PLANS MADE FOR FAIR—AUGUST 1 & 2

Bigger and Better Than Ever

Final plans were completed for the staging of Vermilion Fair at a Directors meeting held on Saturday evening last. The 1934 Fair will be outstanding in many ways; the prizes are fifty percent higher than those of last year and the interest of exhibitors is notiously keen.

The outstanding event for the entertainment of the guests of the Fair are the BOYS' CAMP, the $500 BASEBALL TOURNAMENT, the ATTRACTIONS to be conducted by the Nellie Small company of Saskatoon, and the $1000.00 program of HORSE RACES. In addition to the above a noted HINDU MAGICIAN will be on the grounds and will give hair raising demonstrations of some modern tricks, with a back ground of Indian black magic

Young men may attend the course merely by forwarding an application to the Fair Secretary, S. C. Heckbert, not later than July 25th. together with a one dollar bill; the total cost of board and room etc. for the four days will be $3. and the dollar sent with the application will apply on the $3.00 for board and will at the same time make the

Chinese Were Acquitted

Alleged Lottery Tickets Were Forms By Confucius

Poems written by the great Chinese philosopher, Confucius, and used by any stretch of the imagination, be classed as lottery tickets, Judge Lacroix ruled when he dismissed thirteen actions against as many Montreal Chinese for operating lotteries.

Police had recounted how they had purchased slips of paper containing Chinese characters and had been informed these should take place on certain dates. The slips, they stated, were lottery tickets.

"Are you certain these are lottery tickets?" Charles Coderre, defence attorney, asked the witnesses, who responded affirmatively.

The slips were turned over to a Chinese scholar, who examined them and discussed with a magistrate that they were fragments from the poems of Confucius.

In rendering judgment, Judge Lacroix pointed out that three essentials were necessary to establish a lottery, the ticket, the prize and the drawing. There was no evidence of a ticket, none of a prize and none of a drawing, Judge Lacroix ruled in dismissing the action.

Never Shows Correct Time

Genista City Clock Has Been Fast For 650 Years

Genista claims a distinction which is probably unique. A clock in this ancient Sicilian city has not shown correct time for over 650 years. In 1958 a conspiracy was formed to murder the councillors as they met in the town hall at noon. Conscience, however, overtook one of the conspirators and he put the clock four hours ahead minutes. As a result, the would-be assassins arrived on the scene too early and were arrested by the watch. To-day the clock is still kept seven minutes fast in memory of the councillors' escape.

Through With Speed Flying

Capt. Frank Hawks, famous aviator, on a visit to Detroit, revealed that he is through breaking airplane speed records. "Speed flying is crazy stuff now," he explained. "Safe flying is the real job confronting air pilots." Capt. Hawks has been in China in the interest of the American aircraft company. He was in Detroit to take delivery of a new aerodynamic automobile.

Scientists With Opposing Views Will Study Cosmic Rays

Two Colorado mountain peaks towering more than 14,000 feet above sea level, have been chosen as laboratories for two groups of famous scientists for the study of the much-discussed cosmic rays.

Dr. Joyce C. Stearns of Denver, R. D. Bennett of Massachusetts Institute of Technology, and Darel K. Bowman of McDonald College, Canada, will conduct experiments atop Mount Evans in the Denver mountain park.

Dr. Robert A. Millikan of Pasadena, whose theories regarding the cosmic rays are in many respects opposed to those of Dr. Compton and his associates, will set up his equipment on top of Pike's Peak, near Colorado Springs.

Trained Engineers Needed

Good News For Graduates Of School Of Mines

There never has been a time in history when the need for highly trained technical engineers has been greater than now, Former United States Senator Tasker L. Oddie of Nevada told members of the 1934 graduating class of the Colorado School of Mines.

"World competition," he said, "is growing more keen in the production of the metals especially, and the balance of success will go to that country which shows technical progress in the field of invention and improved methods of treatment has made the greatest advancement."

ASSISTING NATURE

By JACK MINER

During the past year I have read a number of articles, both in magazines in newspapers, as well as many letters that have come to me, on the subject of "Natural Methods," declaring actions or systems on the part of man which the writers described as "interfering with Nature", "upsetting Nature's balance", and so on. To all who adopt that attitude I should like to put myself on record for the effect that, personally, I believe the so-called "balancing" of Nature was left entirely with man, and that I believe in assisting Nature for the benefit of humanity. God created everything—everything and then He created man. "In His own image" and gave him dominion over all" that is, as I understand it, the power and authority to manage everything here on earth.

Look, for instance, at the animal world, with the livestock in the farmer's barnyard as example. Did God create the Jersey cow, and the Holstein, and the Hereford? No. He gave them the original stock and then God, through man's instrumentality, developed many breeds noted for the high cream content of their milk, some for producing the greatest quantity of milk, and some as the best beef cattle. All have been on the earth a long time, of course; but their differences are the result of man's manipulation and, strange, that man had to interfere with Nature to develop them.

Much the same thing is true of the horse, different strains being cultivated for particular purposes, such as the Clydesdales and Percherons for heavy draught work, and the thoroughbreds descendants of original Arab stock for racing.

Recently I was in some of the northern United States, where the character of the farm work to be done is so heavy that the common one, yet where the climate is too severe to permit of horse doing the best. In that part of the country, however, man has crossed the horse with our common horse and produced a beast that withstands the heat and is also strong enough to do the work of tilling the soil. Yes, he has developed the mule. Yet the mule kicked and, so far as I know, has been no farther.

In poultry, if you trace back the various species it is very easy to see that it has been the work of man that has developed the different varieties of fowl. Did God create the Black-Minorcas, Plymouth Rocks, and so on—some of which are especially valuable as layers, and others as food. Our ancestors found the jungle fowl and, one fine than the wild turkey, domesticated and improved.

Recently five years ago our Canadian North-west was crazed by millions of wild buffalo (flow bison). Then came the white man who, realizing the value of the fertile soil, established a park where a herd was placed to preserve the species from extinction, slaughtered the great roaming herds and, turning the land spade-down, made it into one of the largest and most valuable of earth's great wheat-fields, with towns and cities and stately governmental buildings dotted here and there across its vast expanse. Remember, though, that in order to bring about this state of things, man had to "interfere with Nature" as some would call it.

And speaking of wheat-fields, wheat has been man's favorite food for centuries. Yet wheat, even as it was being grown in Canada in comparatively recent years, had certain weaknesses—it had to be planted in the fall and did not always survive the severity of the Western winter; it was not producing as abundantly as seemed most desirable; it did not mature rapidly enough always to escape the Autumn frosts. Then it came to our aid such men as Professor Charles Saunders, cerealist, of Ottawa, and by study, experimentation and the right selection of choice grains, developed a wheat that could be planted in the spring, that would yield several bushels more per acre than had been the rule previously, that would mature within a certain period of time, and that yet retained all the former qualities. We have to-day the Marquis and the Garnet and other types that have been developed by man. God created the original, the germ—but man was given—and has used—the power to develop, manage and control.

Or if you will consider your flower garden, look at the iris. God gave to us in America the original wild iris flower growing along the banks of streams where we customarily call the "flag". From it man has developed the modern, last great three or four feet in height, varied in color, and some giving out an exquisite fragrance. Man has had to interfere with Nature to accomplish this. Also the rose. God created the American Beauty rose? He gave Luther Burbank a little old wild rose which served as the germ, so to speak, from which he has created the thousands of outstanding botanists. man has been given flowers of beauty and fragrance, as the Creator intended he should be done.

But let us look at another side to the question. At the same time that God created the little wild rose He created also the weed typical of which is the Canadian thistle. Still he gave to man the brains and the means of controlling these also, so that they may be restrained from predominating the plant world.

Consider the orchard. Many varieties of fruit. Did God create the Stark-Delicious apple, the Jonathan, Mcintosh and other varieties? No. He gave us the little wild crab, and the hawthorne, which in a miniature apple or guava, and from these man developed what we have to-day. Yet, according to some people's statements, if you kill the dandelion that grows in your trees when they are small, you are interfering with, or upsetting, Nature's balance."

If you are raising poultry, or other bird life, and hawks begin to destroy and live on the birds, you fail to take a gun and shoot the hawks. God gave you not using the brains God gave you.

If your clothing were to become infested with vermin or your dwelling with rodents you would destroy the insects or animals that were troubling you. Yet (if they were constituent in their argument) these people would have Christians that in doing so you were "upsetting Nature's balance," since God created all those creatures at the same time. Or how about the fly, curse of typhoid? Do you control it or, preferring not to disturb "Nature's own", let it live? Personally, the God He gave man "dominion over all" three things.

Indeed, one is moved to ask one question: What would our animal world, our farms and orchards and gardens—our whole world—be like if man had not assisted Nature? Yet the very means the white man discovered this continent, came ashore, cut down a tree and began to develop N-th America into a garden for myriad spirit reflects of God's power. As Asa, the king of Judah, was returning victorious from his engagement with Zerah, the Ethiopian (14:9-15), Azariah went out to meet him. Instead of greeting him with words of congratulation and praise, he acknowledged that the victor to win Peter Syria Todd, Peter's model, and Ora Mason, but proceeded to compete with whom he has quarrelled. After a party at an exclusive club when the rest of the members of the party go to a cabaret to continue the gaiety, Peter and Camilla slip off to the beach by themselves and fall asleep on the sand. When they awake it is early morning and Avia and another boy are standing near them. The man tells Camilla that Avia wants to announce before the party that she and Peter are married. Camilla agrees to accept some of Avia's earrings to help him along, but Peter refuses and they quarrel. Avia tells Camilla has gone from the studio. Explanations And Comments

The Prophet Azariah's Counsel, 2 Ch. 15:1-7. The Spirit of God came upon the prophet Azariah, the son of Oded. In Old Testament times the word spirit refers to God's power. As Asa, the king of Judah, was returning victorious from his engagement with Zerah, the Ethiopian (14:9-15), Azariah went out to meet him. Instead of greeting him with words of congratulation and praise, he acknowledged that the victor to win Peter remain loyal to God. "Hear ye me, Asa," he said, "and all Judah and Benjamin and bringing within reach of us all the blessings He created. To illustrate my meaning, allow me to quote the poem, "Making a Garden", written by Ida Mae Thomas:

Man ploughs and plants and digs and weeds,
He works with hoe and spade;
God sends the sun and rain and air,
And true a garden's made.
He must be proud who tills the soil
And turns the heavy sod;
How wonderful a thing to be
In partnership with God!

I say, He wants all of us to be partners.

THE ICE AGES

(By Gordon H. Guest, M.A.)

Niagara Falls and the Great Lakes, vacation paradise to many from the United States, are likely to be left in us from the last great ice age, which has completed this content many thousands of years ago. Once looked upon as great catastrophies because they destroyed life and defaced the earth's surface, the ice ages are now considered by geologists to have been not entirely destructive.

It is thought that there have been four "ages of ice" in the geological history of the world, each lasting for many thousands of years, and being about great changes in the earth's surface. The last ice age is believed to have covered about 12,000,000 square miles, and of this 6,000,000 square miles is still under ice. It is notable, however, that the world has never entirely covered with ice at one time, and time life was always preserved, to spread again when the ice disappeared.

Geologists refer to an ice age, as a time when ice encrusts large areas of the earth's surface and all forms of life in those regions become extinct. The condition is brought about by "ice caps", huge blocks of ice formed by piles of snow which perpetually melt, congealing to form ice, and slowly spreading further and farther.

It is believed that it was in the melting of the great ice caps that the Great Lakes and Niagara Falls were formed, the peculiar rocky and uneven nature of the earth's surface retaining the water as it melted.

The hemlock tree is not poisonous, the "hemlock" poison made famous by Socrates being derived from a plant similar to the wild carrot and containing poison in root, stem, leaf and seed.

A woman's intuition is more powerful than a man's knowledge.

Recipes For This Week

(By Betty Barclay)

'76 LEMONADE

6 lemons
1 cup sugar
6 cups cold water
Lemon slices.

Extract lemon juice, add sugar, and stir until dissolved. Then add water and serve immediately, pouring into glasses over crushed ice (not too much ice for children). Place a lemon slice over the rim of each glass. By dissolving the sugar in the lemon juice before adding the water you will acquire the real "knack" of lemonade making.

CORN FLAKE PASTRY

1 cup corn flake crumbs
2 tablespoons butter
2 tablespoons sugar

Put the corn flakes (4 cups full) through a food grinder, using the fine cutter. Then sift the crumbs. Measure one cupful after sifting. Cream the butter with the sugar and add the crumbs, kneading thoroughly. Press into the bottom of mold, or a pie pan.

Man has done more in the last 5,000 years to alter the earth's surface than Nature has done in five million years.

About 14,000 persons made contributions to finance Admiral Byrd's present trip to the South Pole.

Avia was one of the first visitors at the museum when the exhibit opened the following week. Her eager, animated face glowed as the gallery filled with sculptured pieces, might have indicated that she was one of the most interested of the visitants. Her eyes scanned one side of the room hurriedly, darted to the other end. Then after a brief interval of suspense, her heart sank heavily with the dread of disappointment, before the jury and the subject for which they were searching impatiently.

Yes, there it was. Peter's "Land of Hope" had made the exhibit. It had been accepted for display with the best by the selecting committee. She crossed the room quickly to examine the card which hung from the modeled group. The date seemed incredible. There would be another week of suspense before the final award of the scholarship prize. She must help Peter to endure it, somehow. Of course, she hadn't much hope now for Peter's chance of the reward. She was only happy that Peter had won this much. She could not see how the plaster piece had been accepted. That should encourage him.

Besides, she now had an alternative to her first plans involving his removal to Paris. How fortunate that she had thought of suggesting that Peter could do some work for her to meet his loan from her. Had she made that suggestion earlier she might have suspected that her pity prompted the plan. As it was, she already had arranged for his services if he did not go to Paris.

The lobby presented two advantages: instead of relieving him of his indebtedness to her, it would practically double his obligation to her, in the light of gratitude. Not only would Peter feel obligated to her for the timely loan of money, but for the opportunity to repay it with his own work. She also would see that enough admiring friends placed orders to add considerably to that obligation. So, she still held the advantage—even without Paris. That would be but a simple step when she had won Peter completely.

Paris, Rome, Athens — everything would be theirs to command, then. Her thoughts merged into the present tense, so confident was she of the future.

So engrossed was she in her plans that she almost collided with Peter in the corridor as she was leaving the exhibit room.

"Peter!" she exclaimed, "it's in!" not even granting him the thrill of discovering it for himself.

"Is it?" the gleam which lighted his eyes betrayed his calm. "I'm surprised."

"I'm not. It is a marvelous thing, but—"

"I know. You might as well my it has no chance against the others."

"Why, no," she denied. "Would you believe it, I have been in there for the last hour looking at that piece, and I have seen dozens of times before, and I didn't even notice the other entries."

He grinned boyishly. "You are prejudiced, madam. You would make a fine judge, now, wouldn't you? Come back with me, and we'll see what else there is to see."

As if she would refuse! She cared nothing about conquering the talent of his contemporaries, but just to walk beside Peter anywhere, to share anything with him, was sheer delight and an adventure.

She led him to his own work and he read with a strange rush of exultation the popular words of information on the classification card. Ostensibly, it was not important; but to Peter it represented a goal toward which he had been striving for four long, arduous years. He had not informed her how probably and confronted with added difficulties. But she was a good warrior who never admitted defeat.

"Well, so long," she waved gayly, and darted away with a rose of the powerful model.

Camilla was jubilant over Peter's announcement. "I knew it would get in," she told him. "Congratulations, darling. I have the greatest faith in her all prepared to celebrate tonight. Be there at six, will you?"

"Okay, sweetheart. But you took a pretty long chance getting that celebration ready before the victory, didn't you?"

"I disagree. It was a sure thing. But even so, a celebration was in order. It is quite an event to have you for a dinner guest, even."

He laughed. "You won't think it's an event when you have to face me across the dinner table every day for the rest of your life," he warned.

"It won't be. It will be—paradise," she declared.

"And what is that advantage?"

"Your success. It all depends on you," she replied, with more significance than he knew.

"That suits me."

They were standing outside now, beside her smart coupe, parked at the curb. "I'll drop you at the studio," she suggested.

"Thanks a lot. But I'd rather walk, to help work off some of this newly acquired exhaust-us. Too much at one time is bad for the mental balance. Did you ever feel giddy with inspiration? Well, that is my present condition," he grinned. "Besides, I want to drop in somewhere right now, and shout the glorious news. She will be anxious to hear. And hair of gold,
This joy is given.
Now two years old!

For us to hold—
To take or leave,
Heart pure as gold!

Another Useless Invention

Cellophane Lining For Bathtub To Eliminate Ringe

"No more rings around the family bathtub!"

This is the promise held out by Robert I. Innis, Long Wharf ship model maker, who, in spite of the handicap of having a crippled arm, has patented an invention which should do much in the way of preventing that shocking ring of dirt arising from those rings which add nothing to a bathtub's beauty.

The inventive genius of a specially treated waterproof cellophane lining which can be instantly loosened from the inside of the bathtub by means of a rip-cord when the bather is through.

Sink Great Shaft

Would Have Deep Hole In Earth To Tap Unlimited Power

The boring of a great hole into the earth, with all mankind lending a hand to the job, was suggested before the American Association for the Advancement of Science in a paper prepared by the late Dr. C. E. Grunsky, president of the California Academy of Sciences.

The paper was read by Dr. F. M. McFarland, vice-president of the California academy, who succeeded Grunsky upon the latter's death June 9.

Dr. Grunsky's thesis said if mankind would sink the great shaft as far as human ingenuity would permit, the results would fully repay the effort.

The centre of the earth is a great reservoir of power, if it could be tapped, gaseous pressures of 900,000 pounds a square inch would be the reward.

Dr. Grunsky did not conceive that man could burrow down very closely to the central core of the globe but suggested a great co-operative effort would result in penetrating the outer crusts to a vastly greater depth than ever before—depths he thinks could be reached which would tell science many valuable things.

Agricultural Notes

Many Items Of Interest To The Western Farmer

For the first time in two years, fresh beef is again being imported into Japan from Canada.

The complete storage capacity of Canadian country and terminal elevators, public and private combined, is about 418,000,000 bushels.

The progressive sales of branded beef in Canada are clearly shown by the following figures: (1931) 17,240,746 pounds; (1932) 21,748,708 pounds; and (1933) 30,682,609 pounds.

Once the stem of an elm tree has been attacked by Dutch elm disease which has broken out in the United States, nothing can be done to save the tree.

The history of agriculture in Western Canada is comparatively brief, and previous to the last 50 years was practically confined to Manitoba.

Canada moved upon from seventh to fourth place among Great Britain's sources of imported bacon in 1933, and, excepting the Irish Free State, represented the only appreciable source of Empire supply.

While oats form the principal and most important cereal crop for livestock feeding, oat hulls are very poor feeding and indigestible, containing only about 2 per cent. protein and over 30 per cent. fibre.

The Feeding Stuffs Act states that in most products in which the phosphoric acid content exceeds 10 per cent., the word "bone" must appear in the description, thus, "Digester meat and bone tankage", "Meat and bone meal".

Before the 1930 revision of the Grain Act, it was possible to have approximately 2,000 different classifications of Western Canada grain, under the classifications then in use.

Next to wool, wheat is the greatest of Australia's primary industries.

Each year approximately 223,000 bags lambs go into the feed lot for the province of Manitoba, Alberta, and British Columbia. At time of sale from the range, these lambs average approximately 60 pounds and when finished for market they weigh from 90 to 100 lbs.

What the Co-operative Committee, composed of representatives of the Dominion Experimental Farms System, the Ontario Agricultural College, and Macdonald College, Ste. Anne de Bellevue, are doing in the study of the pasturage problem is another example of the value of collective approach to an important problem of vital concern to the farmer.

A peculiar form of irrigation is practised in some parts of northern Hind in India where the rain is so intensive, It is known as "boat". The best lands are heavily flooded up to a foot or so in depth when water is available in the hot weather. The land is well cultivated as soon as the bullocks can walk on it and good crops are obtained.

Agricultural engineering research embraces three distinct fields of investigation: (1) mechanical farming equipment, used for production and processing of crops and the handling of livestock products; (2) farm structures, including the farm dwelling and buildings for the storage of crops and the handling of livestock; and (3) land development, comprising both reclamation of unimproved land and improvement of existing farms for profitable agriculture.

Was Bank Teller

Mitchell F. Hepburn Started Career In Bank At Winnipeg

Twenty-one years ago a 17-year-old youth from St. Thomas, Ont., reported to the western head office of the Canadian Bank of Commerce with a letter of introduction. He had come in response to a summons for young clerks to staff bank branches being opened to rapidly-developing prairie communities.

The youth was Mitchell F. Hepburn. The bank official apparently recognized him as exceptionally able and he was made teller in a downtown branch of the bank in Winnipeg.

Within a few months he was transferred to Port Stanley, Ont. To-day he is the premier of Ontario.

Little Helps For This Week

"I would have you without carefulness." I. Corinthians 7:32.

O Lord, how happy should we be If we could cast our care on Thee, If we from self could rest, And feel at heart that One above, In perfect wisdom, perfect love, Is working for the best.

Cast all they care on God. See that all thy cares be such as thou canst cast on God, and then hold none back. Never braod over thyself, never call the only spirit that cast everything, even this very care which distresseth thee upon God. Be not ashamed about little things. If thou wouldst learn to trust Him with thine all. Act upon faith in little things. Commit thy daily cares and anxieties to Him. And He will strengthen thy faith for greater trials. Rather give thyself into God's hands, and so trust Him to take care of thee in all lesser things as being the best way, for one sake, whose thou art.—E. H. Pusey.

Seems To Be Unwise

Manchester Guardian Comments On World Destruction Of Food

In any case, to an economist from another planet it must seem the height of restriction—that is the deliberate destruction of food and raw materials which is now under the direction of Mr. Bruce or of Mr. Elliot or of Mr. Roosevelt, would appear fantastic. In nearly every country during the past few years, in the name of food standards or balanced budgets, the standard of living of the mass of the people has been steadily forced down. Even in the pre-quota era in Great Britain signs of malnutrition among children are not lacking. Do we then encourage the farms of the New World to send us cheap bread, but destroy that meat? Nor, we hope, to destroy it. The word has gone forth that cheap food is a curse.—Manchester Guardian.

NEIGHBORHOOD NARRATIVES

Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Friedland left on the 21st for Cherry Grove, there to visit Mr. and Mrs. Ab Dixon and family. The travellers got some of our rain up there and returned Tuesday, 26th looking refreshed, and having added much to their impressions of the north country.

Road work has begun in the district, to be held up every now and again by wet weather.

The Union (?) team, mightily agitated by the Turks, took defeat at the hands of Woodvale on the 24th, and then joined a few Woodvalers to turn around and meet a full Turk team, who obligingly trimmed them. With the exception of the Gobblers, one of the lads have really got into their stride yet, and practice is necessary to knock off the rough edges and develop the stick skill.

We thought we knew something of gardening until we looked over the efforts of Mr. Graham Gaston (Union) and found peas in pod. His aim of a dish of green peas on July 4th seems about to be realized this year. And for an exotic of real pleasure, just take a peek at Mrs. Gaston's pansy bed—beauties of every color and combination.

Advance news of the Gaston picnic indicates that it will take place on July 18. Kindly correct us, Tolland, if we are wrong.

Jackie Bowman of Kokomo district came out of it with a broken arm when his pony "piled" him. We hope it was satisfactory, but it's hard work for a little fellow to keep it quiet enough, eh, Jack?

Well, another confirmed bachelor has been persuaded by Cupid to give up his carefree days. We refer to Mr. Richard Tattersall, whose bride was formerly Miss Mollie Dixon. Congratulations to the couple, and here's all hopes for a lifetime of "happy days to both."

Now, how can it ever become possible — a Turkey Hill picnic without Barney Powell? However, it takes a lot to daunt the Gobblers, so we're still hoping!

We notice Craig's taking an extra collared! Vermilion must have turned that long sought for corner.

Mlle. Evelyn de Breville is very happy to be home once more for the holidays. Other students returning to recover from the strain of exams, etc. are the Misses Ethel Doyle from Wildmere, Frances and Margaret Sweeney, and Marjorie Cormosonn from town. Vilson welcomes Eunice and Harvey Rankin after the grind, and Harold Webber is greeted by Tolland after a sojourn at Calgary Normal.

Friends of the bride in the Neighborhood wish every happiness to Mrs. Albert Kather (nee Miss Pearl Danby) It will be remembered that she taught the Gaston school a few years ago.

Others who joined the travelling public in the last while were Messrs. Sweeny Sr. and Chas. Sweeney, who motored up to the country around Kitscoty and west of Edgerton to look over land and prospects. Reports from those men indicate that they were favorably impressed.

These wet days remind us of:

"The rain it raineth every day
Upon the just and unjust fella';
But most on the just, because
The unjust takes the just's umbreller."

Well, now that we're breaking into poetry, it is time to quit. So long till we catch the mail again.

P.S.—And speaking of poetry, that girl from Ottawa (Ont.) who wanted a Western he-man would be far more likely to get one should she advertise her ability to milk a bulky cow than by displaying any talent in writing verses. Are you telling me?

Record Attendance Assured For 55th Annual Edmonton Exhibition

This Year's Exhibition, July 16-21 to be One of Finest in History of Northern Alberta's Big Fair

It is expected that all roads will lead to the Edmonton Exhibition the week of July 16 - 21, an unusual interest is evinced in the many new features which the Exhibition management have arranged for this year's show.

Farm Tractor Races

Many refuse to believe that farm tractors can be safely run at around 50 miles per hour, but, seeing is believing, and this may be seen at the coming Edmonton Exhibition. The management have been advised, Leo Meyer, famous speedster, has been engaged to drive one of the tractors which will be run on Tuesday, Thursday and Saturday, July 17, 19 and 21.

Television

Another unique feature will be the giant Television show. This was one of the most talked of attractions at the Royal Winter Fair at Toronto the past winter. Prominent citizens of Edmonton, and local artists will speak or sing or play in a studio on the Exhibition grounds, and in a separate theatre patrons will see and hear them.

"Alpha" the Robot is another novel attraction that everyone will want to see. This good mechanical man that talks, smokes, does a gun and performs many intelligent feats.

The Royal Canadian Mounted Police will present a musical ride on three evenings of the Fair. Al Capone's armoured limousine will be on display in the Royal American Shows, the new Midway for the 1934 Exhibition. Tarzan will be a visitor at the Big Fair and every kiddy will want to see him.

"The Show of the Century," which is to be the special pageant depicting the Coronation of the grandstand is an outstanding presentation. There will be running a continuous performance during the six days of the Fair and grand parade of prize winning livestock in front of the grandstand.

Reduced Railway Rates

In addition to the usual reduced rates good for the week of the Edmonton Exhibition, of fare-and-a-quarter for the round trip, the C.N. and C.P. railways have signified their intention of making a special concession at a rent-and-a-half-a-mile. See your local ticket agent for dates.

Reduced Rates for Exhibition Tickets

The Exhibition management have decided to repeat the advance sale of tickets, inaugurated for the 1933 Annual Edmonton Exhibition. These will be on sale throughout Northern Alberta at the end of the week before the Exhibition opens. A novel contest has been arranged for boys selling these tickets. Free tickets to the Edmonton Exhibition, all expenses paid, will be awarded to the twenty boys in Northern Alberta selling the largest number of advance tickets, and local citizens in every town will be boosting their home town boy for one of these coveted free trips to the big Fair. Advance tickets will also be on sale by news dealers and postmasters, or you may mail a dollar direct to the Ticket Committee, Edmonton Exhibition Association, Ltd. Tickets on sale in Vermilion by Donald Sherback and James Hamlin in Mannville by Roy Wood, and in Minburn by Roy Astley.

NEW SPUDS LOOK INVITING

ISLAND HILL

The grasshoppers may well tremble in their shoes. David Jenkins has gone on a visit to the devastated area and he asserted before he went he could chase the whole darn lot himself. Had he been accompanied by his cousin Lloyd Martin, we would not give two cents for the hoppers' chances, for two Welshmen on the warpath could exterminate a nation. Look what Lloyd George did. He promised nuisance for foulgrace, won an election and ultimately became England's prime minister. Then he promised homes fit for heroes to live in. The heroes returned, alright, to find that L. G. only found a good home for himself. The political game is a good one . . . for politicians.

Miss A. M. McCoy was the recipient of numerous and useful presents at the shower given in her honor at the school Friday, and the following ladies attended: Mrs. Armstrong, Mrs. Birmingham, Mrs. Butler, Mrs. Dignan, Mrs. H. Evans, Miss E. Evans, Mrs. Jenkins, Mrs. Mactavish, Mrs. McInnisel, Mrs. C. Mix, Mrs. Meade, Mrs. Playne, Mrs. Richardson, Mrs. Rochford, M. A. Sealy, Mrs. Alf Searle, Miss G. Searle, Mrs. Stephens Sr., Mrs. O. Stephens, Mrs. Thompson, Mrs. Willey. It should be added Fred Tayer presented Miss McCoy with a large wooden spoon, a very useful culinary article—but Fred was heard to say that it would help as a protection for her against her future lord and master.

The children's picnic was also held Friday and everyone had a jolly time.

Bill Hall wins the merit medal for regular attendance, who had the courage to enter the school while the shower ceremony was proceeding. We should add Bill dressed as a lady for the occasion, but it is reported that the ladies saw through the masquerade.

Clandonald paid us a visit here on Sunday in a league encounter and had no trouble against the locals, who were not at full strength, in annexing full points by 4 goals to 0.

It was a very uninteresting game and Clandonald, as well as Island Hill, gave a poor exhibition. Mr. P. McCambridge, Sr. was referee.

We hear Islay has withdrawn from the league. We were looking forward to a visit to the delightful folk around Islay. Surely, Mr. Givens, you have not backed out in your usual cautious way.

Mrs. Geo. Richardson has gone to Edmonton, accompanied by her two children, on a visit to friends there.

Mr. Cameron, University of Alberta, will deliver an interesting lecture at Clandonald this Friday p.m., and also at St. Andrew's hall Saturday at the same hour. Lantern slides will be shown and everyone interested in agriculture should make it a point to attend these lectures.

A whist drive will take place at the school, Friday, 13th inst. Adm. 10c.

WHITEWASH MIXTURES

During the summer lime can be used effectively to smarten up appearances around the home grounds and to whitewash and disinfect the interior or certain farm buildings when the stock is on pasture.

The mixture used at the Dominion Experimental Station, Scott, for inside of buildings used by poultry, sheep, hogs and cattle has several materials added to the lime and water. First, fifty pounds of hydrated lime is dissolved in eight gallons of boiling water. To this is added six gallons of hot water which has ten pounds of salt and one pound of alum dissolved in it. A can of lye is added to every twenty-five gallons of the mixture. A pound of cement to every three gallons is gradually added and thoroughly stirred.

The object of using alum is to prevent the lime rubbing off. Cement makes a more creamy mixture so that it is easier to apply and more surface covered. Lye is added for disinfectant purposes but a quart of crude disinfectant to every eight gallons would serve the same purpose. Lye KYE, No. 2 C. W. ..... .36 is kept white.

Frequently an enquiry is made for a weatherproof whitewash in the newspapers. Slake 82 pounds of quicklime in 12 gallons of hot water and add two pounds of salt and one pound sulphate of zinc dissolved in two gallons of water. To this mixture add two gallons of skim milk. An ounce of alum per gallon, although not essential, would improve it. Salt should be omitted if required for meat surfaces which rust.

A Whitewash mixture can be made glossy like paint by dissolving a pound of cheap bar soap in a gallon of water and adding it to five gallons of thick whitewash mixture. Lime can be made more soluble and will penetrate further into the wood by adding a pint of molasses to every five gallons of whitewash.

DEER LAKE NEWS

(Too late for last week)

The Clandonald soccer club have organized a junior football eleven and these lads with practise should do some real playing. They are trying tournmet to uphold the fine qualities of their senior brethren, whether win or lose.

Successors to the Gold Dust twins, Peggy and Edna, staged a scene when they got out of control and have been so frisky as to run away once a week since. The pig never reached the market.

Now for the greatest news items ever printed in this column. We are discontinuing our service as reporter of this hiker; this will be the final splurge from our pen. Of course, we will read the Standard every week. We would not miss such columns as Island Hill, Narrativee, etc., to say nothing of the editor's own writings, and the business side, of which we hope to make the Standard one of the best weeklies in the province.

ARGENTINE WHEAT SITUATION

(Average Annual Wheat Production 168 million bushels)

ARGENTINE farmers produce three important crops—Cattle, Wheat and Flax. Of late years much acreage formerly devoted to the production of Alfalfa, Grasses and Flax has been put into Wheat, due to the fact that the world depression has made it difficult for millions of families to purchase any meats, beef, and dairied cows for people to afford to paint their houses and buildings.

As the world situation improves, however, cattle will go back to work, wages for all will become larger and many will be able to afford luxuries such as paint. This will be a tremendous call for Flax to make linseed oil for the manufacture of paint,—so probably some acreage in Argentine will be turned to Flax and we just like the more progressive Argentine Cattle.

POLICE COURT

BEFORE A. E. KAISER, POLICE MAGISTRATE

It is not often that the Juvenile Court has to take any very drastic action. In Derwent as in some other places, a leader in petty activities often leads other boys and girls into acts which border on criminality. In such cases the court must make an example of someone to stamp the mischief out. The youth who had stolen a camera from the drug store in Derwent, was given a severe reprimand, and had to pay a sum of money, in addition being promised by the court that he would be whipped if he were not a better boy in the future.

A rowdy charge was held in camera.

Despite the warning to farmers and others help is hired by word of mouth agreement, and in 75 per cent of the cases it ends up in the magistrate's court. It would be an easy matter to pointed out by the magistrate, to have an agreement informally drawn up at the time as to just what the wages were to be ,the time or period of the contract and by what agreement, and have it signed by both parties.

James Pratt of Islay sued Walter Sivan for wages over and above the amount and for a longer period than Sivan said he agreed to. The court found that the statement of Pratt was without much foundation and allowed him one month's wages and taxed him with the costs of the action.

It does not seem to be any deterrent to the crime of house and cattle stealing to send the guilty parties to Jail. Three months after they see a little smarter than the officers of the law, only to find out their mistake too late. Like Leader of Power was found guilty of stealing a dark bay gelding from John Pulinka or Northern Valley, and was sentenced to five months in Fort Saskatchewan with hard labor.

John Mykytiuk was given judgment against Harry Seminiuk for debt with the costs of the action included.

"Just another claim for wages with the usual counter claims," remarked the Court, when Bill Kochenash sued Peter Johnson for unpaid wages. After listening to the case from both parties the court decided that the defendant was acting as he agreed, and judgment was given for the amount of the claim. The claim was not disputed but only the time of payment.

Mr. and Mrs. A. E. Ottewell of Edmonton are the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Hiram Hodgins at the farm south of town.

Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Darcy returned to their home on Friday last after a ten months' absence in California. The return trip was made from Los Angeles by car by the interior route. The distance of 2300 miles was traversed in six days' actual driving.

ADVERTISEMENTS Are POINTERS

A retail store will do more business if attention is directed to it by thousands of pointers. Imagine thousands of fingerposts scattered over a retailer's trading area, everyone of them pointing in the direction of the retailer's store, and bearing his name. It would cost a lot of money to set up and maintain thousands of fingerposts, and it might be difficult to get permission to set up these fingerposts from those having authority. But if one could have them, they would be good advertisements—good directors.

Advertisements in one's newspaper are in very truth pointers. Every copy of the newspaper carrying the retailer's advertisement makes that advertisement a fingerpost. The sale of thousands of multiplied hundreds upon hundreds of times, becomes hundreds upon hundreds of fingerposts.

A good newspaper is prestige

Sixteen Years Ago To-day

THIS DATE 16 YEARS AGO — 1918

Copious rains have fallen all week, hay dips are filled with water, and crop prospects are good. Great growing weather.

Mrs. Abraham Wenor received word of the death at Ottawa of her sister, Mrs. Max Finklestein. The family formerly resided here. She is survived by her husband and two young children.

Mr. and Mrs. I. Plotcheck have some thirty close relatives enrolled in the war.

Ripe wild strawberries were handed into the office this week by Ira Armstrong.

Norman Morrison of Stephens Limited has accepted a position at Kerrobert, Saskatchewan.

A sample of wheat grown on the farm of Wm. Tolford, N.W. 25-54-6, 19 miles northeast of town, is on exhibit at the office of C. P. Stone Ltd. It measures 33 inches in height and is heading out.

Born—At the Grizzly Bear Ranch, Vermilion, Alberta, on Dominion Day, 1918, to Mr. and Mrs. W. S. Roberts, a daughter.

Married—At Vermilion, by Rev. H. A. Edwards, on June 24, 1918, Leslie Page, third daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Stebbis, to Sergt. Horne, veteran of the 3rd C.M.R.

CARD OF THANKS

The family of the late Mrs. Martha Thompson wish to thank all their friends and neighbors for their sympathy and kindness extended during their bereavement, and also for the many beautiful floral tributes.

CLANDONALD

A picnic was held on Wednesday last at St. Andrew's. The usual interesting tractor-of-a league football game between St. Andrew's and Clandonald, the latter getting the big end of a 6-0 score. Attendance was fair.

Mr. Donald Cameron, of the Animal Husbandry Dept., University of Alberta, Extension branch, will return to Clandonald on Monday with a lecture and moving pictures for the children Friday, July 6th. The last lecture of the district, in the Orange hall on Dec. 7th, Cameron was very interesting. He would like to see more children at the coming lecture, as he is equipped to entertain the young folks in addition to the parents.

Miss McMahon, who has spent the past two years teaching in Moreton, has left us for her home in Edmonton where she intends to rest for a year. Unfortunately, Miss McMahon has been in poor health for the past two months. The best of friends she made during her sojourn in this district are very sorry to see her go. She was very active as relieving organist in the church of St. Columcille, Clandonald, and her unselfish services in that capacity will be greatly missed. We join with the members of the community in wishing her godspeed and good luck in the future.

School is over, and the young tecchers of this district are returning home. Jimmy White is home from his school in Mannville for the holidays and will return to his school at commencement.

Miss Donnabelle White is also home from Marwayne where she has been engaged for a further term. Harold White has been very busy the past week or two chasing a freeze around the various road allowances. He tells us he is going to chase his big brother and sister around during the holidays. We wonder what Jim will say to this?

Rev. Fr. Gillis has returned to his duties after spending the past week in Edmonton attending the priests' retreat and theological studies.

We saw Mr. Deer Lake today and inquired—strictly out of course—if he had by any chance lost his able pen. He has a very good excuse for his recent silence, as he is working secretly on the great American Novel. What do you know of about that?

A meeting of the ratepayers of the Hamlet was held on Wednesday evening. Various matters of local moment were discussed and a good time was had by all, at least we thought so.

We extend our deepest sympathy to Mrs. Fred Bell and Mrs. Norris on the death of their brother, Mr. Frank Carruel, of Rapid City, Manitoba. The death occurred on June 27th. We would like to bring this item to the notice of Mr. AH Thompson, at present in Clover Bar. Mr. Thompson was a boyhood friend of the deceased.

Born—On Friday, June 29th, at the Vermilion municipal hospital, to Mr. and Mrs. Chris Bingbol, a daughter. Mother and baby are both doing well. Congratulations.

The Clandonald baseball eleven brought home second prize from the Mannville sports on Monday. In their first encounter they defeated the Mannville soccer club by a 6-0 score. In the final they ran against the highly rated team representing T. Eaton's of Edmonton. A great game resulted, ending with the Clandonald boys on the short end of a 4-3 score. It was a game well worth watching and our laddies need have no regrets over losing the decision.

ACCIDENT TO ROAD WORKER

Jimmy Moran, aged 31, was the victim of a painful accident while doing road work south of Rumyrie on Monday morning, when the hands of a fireman which he was using caught him in the lower part of the abdomen, inflicting serious injuries. He was rushed to the Vermilion hospital and is confined there. Hopes for a speedy recovery are extended.

Salvation Army Welcomes Officers

Captain Agnes Coxson, who has been appointed by the Salvation Army Headquarters to the charge of the local corps in Vermilion, arrived on the night train this morning. For the past three years the Captain has been working in the far north at Prince Rupert, B.C. She and her assistants will be carried on a large amount of relief work in that city. Clothing was collected and given out to the needy, soup was made and given to the needy children and relief money was collected for those in difficult circumstances.

The Captain states "that she has come to Vermilion to lend a helping hand to all who are in need of spiritual or material help." Now, to order to help and encourage others the Captain desires the cooperation of the people of Vermilion.

A Welcome Service will be held in the Salvation Army Citadel, Sunday, July 8th, at 7:30 p.m.

Lieutenant Michelmore from the Salvation Army Training College will arrive sometime next week, and will assist Captain Coxson in her work in this town.

15-INNING FINAL GAME FEATURES MANNVILLE SPORTS

Vermilion Drops Decision in Long Encounter

The Vermilion baseball team lost the final to Mannville at the latter town's sports on Monday in as thrilling a game as ever was played in this district of Alberta. The battle raged for 15 innings before Mannville ran in the winning run in the last half of that frame. Both teams used just one pitcher each. At the end of the 9 innings the score stood 5-5, in the 13th each team added two more runs and then, in the disastrous 15th, the Mannville batters connected for three safeties in a row and Bond crossed the plate with the winning run. Score cards are not available so details are lacking. Jim White hurled the game for Mannville, with Jim Banks on the mound for Vermilion.

Vermilion, with Fred Brimacombe in the box, were from fanatics in their first encounter 10 to 9.

Resignations Before U.F.A. Party Caucus

Resignations of Premier Brownlee and his cabinet were placed before the United Farmer members' caucus that opened at the parliament buildings at 10:00 a.m. Tuesday.

Shortly after the opening of the caucus, Premier Brownlee's resignation was submitted. It automatically carried with it the resignations of seven other members of the cabinet, namely, Hon. Total precipitation last month was 6.18 inches, the highest for the 15-year period being 6.97 in June, 1931. It rained on 23 of the 30 days.

The driest June in the last 15 years was in 1919 when only .57 inches were recorded.

When the mercury attained only 77 for the warmest mark of the month, it set a 15-year record for the lowest maximum temperature for June. Lowest minimum was 34. In 1930 and 1924 the mercury fell to 29.

With so much moisture, hours of bright sunshine were far below normal, there being only 182.5 hours. The brightest June in 15 years was in June, 1919, when there were 308.1 hours.

The mean monthly temperature was 55.7, considerably below normal. Highest was 68 in 1931 and 1932 and the lowest 53.3 in 1926.

The highest maximum for June in 15 years was 90 in June of 1922 and 1930.

Bountiful moisture has made for fine growing conditions with no reports of frost or hail damage in the district.—Journal.

MORE RAIN HERE

Vermilion experienced a heavier precipitation than Edmonton during the month of June, but the usual run of the weather was similar to the records of the bureau as scheduled.

Frost was registered in this district.

Closing Exercises Of Vermilion High School

Twenty-five Students Pass Out in Final Year; Brilliant Valedictory Delivered by Graduating Student.

The closing exercises of the Vermilion High School took place on Thursday evening of last week in the auditorium hall of the school and in the presence of a large gathering of parents and friends. Heavy downpour of rain prevented large attendance. J. W. G. Morrison, K.C., chairman of the board, presided. Twenty-five students were announced to have completed their final year and were handed out of high school life; 12 more had finished Grade XI and some of these, it was intimated, might be back for Gr. XII next year. The chairman announced that certificates would be mailed later on to all those who had completed their course.

On the singing of O Canada with Miss Frances Antoine at the piano, the graduating class marched into the room and took up the front row of seats. The young ladies were prettily dressed for the occasion, many carrying beautiful bouquets of flowers. Dr. Scott, representing His Worship the Mayor who was unavoidably absent, addressed the students on behalf of the citizens of Vermilion. He stressed what the high school was costing the town; it paid out over $57.00 for each student in attendance during the present year, and trusted this would be appreciated by the student body itself. It showed the sacrifice the people were prepared to make and were making for the cause of higher education. The students then passed up and over the platform one by one and were congratulated by the chairman on their having completed their high school work. Mr. Morrison addressed the students taking his cue from the remarks of Dr. Scott as to what education was costing the people of the town. His subject might be said to have been "Have you played the game?" citing instances of "hookey" being indulged in; indifference shown to teachers; laxity in studies; complaints to parents for being kept in, blaming teachers for this, that and the other thing, and parents naturally agreed in what was told them, and criticisms of the staff and board followed, whereas really the only one to blame was the student himself. The staff were here to impart knowledge and to assist the student in acquiring and laying a foundation for an education, but they were not called upon to make sacrifices for the student who was deliberately defiant and refused to do his assignment. He said, "Some day you whose conduct comes within this category will be sorry; you are passing tonight from within these walls and where you have been working together for the past four years; those years will never recur; those of you who have attended diligently to your studies will have your reward and I can only sorry for those who have missed the opportunity to do likewise." On behalf of the staff and Board he wished them every success in whatever avocation life would call them.

The valedictory for the graduating class was delivered by Alex Smith, one of the most brilliant students that has passed through the school, a compliment paid to him by the chairman. After its delivery the program closed with the National Anthem, when the floors were cleared for dancing, the music being by the well known "Original." "Good-byes" were said about one o'clock and on Friday the classes had scattered far and wide.

VALEDICTORY

"It is in a great extent a paradox that we on such a momentous occasion as this should harbor within our breast intimations of regret. For the past four years our eyes have been focussed on this great event, the limit to all our vision, the beckoning speck on the horizon, the object of all our hopes and ambitions — graduation. And now when the goal has been reached, and our cherished objective realized, we are for a moment at the mercy of mixed feelings of elation and sadness. Elated by the sense of realization, of achievement; saddened by the thought of separation from those who have come to fill part of our lives. We have welded the bonds of many friendships through the common and years of high school friendships promoted not merely by intimate contact, not merely by close association, but by struggling, yes, fighting shoulder to shoulder in pursuit of a common enterprise. It is the parting from such friends as these that brings the note of sadness in. But still, no joy is complete unless it be tempered with pathos.

Regardless of the attitude of the student toward the academic studies, high school works a great change in him. The bright, carefree, crabbed boy who struts confidently through the portals of Grade Nine is not the same person who, some four or five years later, emerges from the door of Grade Twelve. True, his name has not been changed, but that is about the only factor that has not been subjected to the metamorphosis. The care-free air has fadel, the bold confidence retired into obscurity, but in their stead there are manifest under standing and sympathy. Were it possible by the manipulation of the magic crystal to have a senior student meet himself in the realm of Grade Nine he would say something to this effect: "I have seen you before. I have a vague recollection of your features, but I know you not." There is to this extent such a transformation. Change of outlook, change of attitude, change of conviction, and a tendency to discard all that is superficial.

"Whether or not the student reaps the full benefit of the opportunities presented in high school is almost entirely dependent on him alone. The teachers can do only so much. They can encourage, simplify, explain, and explain again, but more than that it is impossible for them to do. The student has made control of his academic faculties and receptiveness, and whether or not he turns the wheel with dexterity and wisdom is a matter for which he himself is responsible.

"The major contribution made by our academic studies has been the creation in us of our vast intellectuals. Our delving into the unknown only has revealed more lands to discover. It has taught us the virtue of application, acquainted us with our own nothingness and insignificance, and provided within us a desire to become wiser from day to day.

"Thus having come through these various stages this class has reached this great milestone, and now it stands sensitive and anxious on the threshold of those vaster realms, casting its eyes to secure an undisturbed view of the immense fields of endeavor which beckon and call. And who can blame it? Who can blame it for the stirs in embryo the spirit of an Edith Cavell, or a Milton, or a Napoleon, nay, a Shakespeare?"

DISTRIBUTION OF TREES

A record year for increase in distribution of trees to farmers, schools, etc., in Alberta from the provincial nurseries at Oliver, near Edmonton, is forecast this spring. The total distribution was 24,320 trees, compared with only 8,095 last year. The trees this year go to 111 districts scattered over the province, and were taken by 162 farmers, 18 schools, 12 institutional and community grounds. The largest distribution was of white spruce, 21,128 of these being sent out. Next spring 10,000 white spruce will be available. Distribution of caragana was stopped this year but caragana seed is now being given out by district agriculturists, and there is a plentiful supply of this for farmers, schools etc. .

WILDMERE WINKS

Miss Pavey, our teacher, gave a little picnic the last day of school for the children and their parents. A nice crowd attended. Softball was played for a while, then races were run and prizes given to the winners, after which a dainty lunch was served which everyone enjoyed to the limit. We are very pleased to say that Miss Pavey will still be our teacher next term; it will be her fourth year here. We are sure the children must be very proud of a teacher who takes such an interest in their welfare. Miss Pavey is leaving shortly on a holiday to her home at the coast, and all wish her a pleasant journey.

Miss Lozom, Triangle teacher, also had a little picnic for her pupils, and a big crowd of older folks turned up to make it a huge success. Softball was the main feature in which the grown-ups took part.

Wildmere Community Club held a meeting Saturday evening to decide on what the members thought of the new garage and when the dance was to be held. They were pleased with the organ and thought it best to find out when the music could come before setting a date for their dance. Keep an eye open for posters, folks.

Miss Marion Gilbert, Basewood, is the new teacher for Basewood school. Mr. Brimacombe resigning.

Basewood Tigers travelled to Tuny Hill Sunday and won a game of baseball from that team 6-0. They then played Woodvale a game of softball and won that also, score 16-1.

Quite a surprise was given Mrs. T. Riley, Wildmere, on Monday last when her sister and niece from Brooklin, Ont., came to visit her, as they never told her they were coming. She has not seen her sister, Mrs. Cook, for almost 24 years, but her niece, Bessie Gaskell, visited out here about 5 years ago. It was a very pleasant surprise to see her jolly face amongst us once more. We wish them a good time on their holiday.

The rain put a stop to the Wildmere and Basewood crowd attending Hendherbell picnic last Friday. It seems no trouble for it to rain on a sports day this year. We should not complain, however, as things could not look better than at present.

Jimmie Wallington had the misfortune to get kicked by a horse while pulling brush last Wednesday. He has a very sore leg and hand as a result.

Miss Grace Crothers is also home from town, where she has been working since the beginning of the year.

Funniest thing this week is on Tom Best, coming over to Wildmere for some groceries, riding a horse and trailing a stone-boat with a wash-tub tied on it. Is that a new kind of Bennett buggy, or a U.F.A. wagon, Mr. Best?

EUROPEAN WHEAT SITUATION

(Total Annual Average Production 1,440 million bushels)

FOR each of the past two years the importing countries of Europe have enjoyed unusually high wheat yields per acre, even after favorable climatic conditions. This year, it is estimated, they will have but a normal yield per acre, hence their combined production is expected to be about 250 million bushels less than last year. This situation should result in substantially increased demand for Europe from exporting countries for the 1934-1935 season.

Lesson Of Peace

Whatever may be the individual reaction to customs houses as between Canada and the United States, there is general unanimity upon the world value of the lesson presented by the unique fact that not a gun nor a fort stands as provocations between the two countries throughout the whole extent of the international boundary.

This is no phenomenal a situation that it has attracted universal attention, been the subject of thousands of after-dinner and more ceremonious addresses, and stands to-day in a belligerent world as a supreme example of what understanding and goodwill can do to preserve the peace of an immense borderline, to cement friendship between two great branches of the Anglo-Saxon family.

For more than 100 years peace has existed between the Canadian and American peoples, and it is almost inconceivable that any set of facts or factors could disturb the serenity of the relationship existing between the Empire South and south of the boundary line.

That goodwill and understanding has been of almost inestimable benefit to Canada, Billions of dollars of American money has been invested in this country; hundreds of thousands of American people have come to settle in our midst. That money has helped materially in the development of Canada. Those people have contributed their share to the upbuilding of a great dominion of the British Crown. Together they have helped to achieve that economic diversity upon which Canada has been able to build its economic fabric in a national scale. These facts are evidences of the confidence with which the people of the sister country view their neighbors to the north and testify to the keen appreciation they have of the solidarity of British institutions and British forms of government.

The unique and signal character of this unfortified frontier, the amity between the two nations, and the close economic relations which seem to stand superior to trade rivalries, have attracted attention of the Carnegie Endowment for International Peace, which has now set about to make a special study of the factors lying behind a situation which stands as an impelling object-lesson to peoples of the globe.

While the last any definite conclusions can be reached, whether or not a tangible cause can be deduced from the obvious facts, which might be made applicable as a general world principle, remains to be seen. The facts stand in their amazing isolation—peace and understanding are the better weapons of defence than all the guns ever forged and all the forts ever built.

Superficially, at least, it would appear the fundamental background to the phenomenon is of the spirit, and for that reason, too intangible to lend itself to any concrete definition or to written into any formula for use of peoples who, similarly situated geographically, cannot get along together.

Whatever the finding, the lesson stands for the world to view—an irrefutable proof of what two nations may do if they have the will to live in peace and amity, convincing evidence that, demonstrating their mutual goodwill by dispensing with the so-called weapons of the defence, neighbors may live in harmony without inciting those conditions of the mind or of the body politic, which lead to war.

Probe Working Of The Brain

Overcoming Their Fear

The High Radio Currents To Stop Functioning Of Limited Area

How a University of California psychologist used high radio currents to stop the functioning of limited cells and so paralyze those that he has access of the brain without interfering with the other parts, to study the purposes of particular centres of the brain, was described to the American Association for the Advancement of Science.

This somewhat startling method of probing the functional workings of the brain was based on the research of Dr. Clarence W. Brown of the university's psychology department.

Dr. Brown suggested his method of brain study should prove serviceable in solving anatomical and psychological problems to which a small concentrated elimination of faction is desired.

Operations Are Becoming Huge Success In Natives Of India

Operations have become quite the rage among the natives of Johat, India, and no patient feels that he has received proper treatment without one, according to Miss Isabel McCormick, missionary, speaking in Montreal at the meeting of the council executive of the Women's Missionary Society, Presbyterian Church in Canada, Western division.

This represents a change of attitude, for the first surgical patient died on the table at the hands of the university's psychology department.

Dr. Brown suggested his method of brain study should prove serviceable in solving anatomical and psychological problems to which a small concentrated elimination of faction is desired.

Gray Miller, president of the Imperial Tobacco Company of Canada, Ltd., states that "The Ontario Burley tobacco growers are to receive practically assured for 1934 a price based on 27c per lb., for an average crop. Although we are still without any such assurance that other manufacturers will follow our lead, we have now agreed to meet the request of the tobacco growers for a 27c average price, and do we have given them our definite undertaking in writing to adhere to that basis for the 1934 crop, provided they can secure an agreement from the other manufacturers to pay the same price."

Modern War Implements

Britain Installing Rapid Fire Guns In Fighting Planes

A big gun era begins in aerial warfare. A 37-millimeter, rapid fire, automatic gun is being installed in some of the larger fighting planes of Great Britain and promises to have a "tremendous advantage" over an opponent carrying only the ordinary machine gun.

The heavy gun shoots more slowly, sending out its messengers of death at the rate of only five in four minutes. But each shell weighs a pound and a half and is considered certain to disable any plane struck even slightly by the contact is effected. And the slow-shooting heavy gun trusts to its long range to give it victory over the hornets. The small, light plane with its sputtering machine gun is never to be permitted to come within effective range.

The report says: "Excellent results at both ground and air targets have been obtained at 2,000 yards." Presumably that gives British air fighters a fine start over all competitors in the armament race. But the presumption limps before the announcement that the new device was designed by the same engineering firm one of the great armament manufacturers whose trade always has been international.

And even if the British government mines complete control of that particular make, it can be certain that shortly after its completion the invention has been demonstrated, arms makers of other nations will be on the job producing equipment to shoot shells just as big, just as far and perhaps just a little faster.—Detroit News.

Synthetic Rubber

Automobile Tires Now Made In U.S. From New Substitute

The first American synthetic rubber automobile tires which look like and feel and wear fully as well, were announced recently.

They were described as a potential checkmate against excessive rubber prices and a guarantee of American rubber independence in war-time. The synthetic rubber now costs about $1 a pound, against 15 cents for foreign real rubber, which has receded from five cents to more than a dollar.

The announcement was made jointly by the Dupont Company, makers of the synthetic rubber, and the Dayton Rubber Manufacturing Company of Dayton, Ohio, making the tires.

The synthetic rubber is made of acetylene, salt and water. The acetylene comes from coal and limestone, so that all the ingredients are home products.

J. A. Macmillan, president of the Dayton company, issued this statement:

"These tires have been subjected to rigid laboratory and road tests and have proved themselves fully the equal of tires built of natural rubber. They have been placed on automobiles opposite tires built of natural rubber and have been subjected to severe usage."

Use Of Radium

Dr. Shepley Deals With Advance Made In Use Of This Medium In Recent Years

"It is definitely recognized to-day that the scope of radiotherapeutic attack has so widened that it now embraces a very large percentage of the total cancer field," Dr. Earle E. Shepley, radiotherapist for the Saskatchewan cancer commission, told delegates to the Canadian Medical Association at Calgary, in a paper dealt with the advances made in the use of radium as a therapeutic agent since its discovery in 1910.

"Because of late recognition," Dr. Shepley said, "a large per centage of cases of cancer cannot be benefitted even by the exception of curative attack. In those that have been given curative treatment, procedures, possibly not more than one-third are cured. From these groups, a large number require palliative radiotherapy." This is a matter of importance because such procedure reduces suffering even if not effecting a cure, Dr. Shepley explained.

Will Regulate Tariffs

Dr. Shotwell Explains Powers Given To Roosevelt

Economic problems, including tariff questions, would be more readily adjusted between Canada and the United States as a result of the powers to regulate tariffs Dominion, President Franklin D. Roosevelt, Dr. James T. Shotwell, former Canadian representative of the United States at the peace conference in 1918 and at present professor of history at Columbia University, New York city, told the Kiwanis Canadian Club. Formerly these powers were the prerogative of the United States congress.

Tariffs, under executive decree, would operate without the intrusion of political prejudices formerly seen, Dr. Shotwell said. His audience included Prime Minister R. B. Bennett, Sir Robert Borden, wartime premier and Rt. Hon. Mackenzie King, former prime minister and Liberal leader in the House of Commons.

Gold is found in every province of Canada except Prince Edward Island, and in point of value it ranks with coal as the two most important mineral products of the Dominion, states the Department of Mines, Ottawa.

Automatic Cave Monster Is Added To Lots Of Trouble

Rev. Ebbert M. Moffatt, central treasurer of the Methodist Episcopal Church in India, was amply installed the real cancer field," Dr. Earle E. Shepley, radiotherapist for the Saskatchewan cancer commission.

The automatic became a source of trouble to Mr. Moffatt before he left Bombay. The weapon was taken there by a bishop's sister, whose American friends felt she would need something to protect herself when she was so far from genteel Oklahoma.

It is, however, illegal to have a pistol that is not registered by the police in India. And the police refused to register the pistol because its bore was the same as that of theirs.

The Bishop's sister appealed to Mr. Moffatt to take the pistol back to the United States when he sailed.

He had it in his possession for two weeks before he left India with his wife and their children. And the police kept a constant watch on him, which was piqued, naturally.

When he arrived in the United States he listed the pistol on his customs declaration. The customs agents said they were not interested. He felt relieved that he was not violating any law, but the helpful customs agents said: "While the law does not violate our law, it violates the New York State law, of course."

Mr. Moffatt threw up his hands.

"I am," he said with determination, "taking it to the nearest police station."

A Miracle Of Speed

Nineteen Girls In London Factory Make Shirt In Minute

Those who refuse to believe that a shirt with all its stitching, trimming, button-holing, and so forth, can be made in one minute, should go to a building in London, and see nineteen girls, each at a separate table, separated into two blocks, by a moving conveyor, performing this miracle of speed. The shirt is made in one operation. One owns cuffs, another makes collars, another buttonholes. And the time shirts in various stages of completion are moving with the conveyor from one table to another. At full pressure the minute shirt are produced, it is said, to fifty-five seconds!

Gift For British Admiralty

Charles Courtney, master locksmith, arrived in London from the United States and said he would present to the Admiralty certain rings and articles of weaving apparel belonging to the late Lord Kitchener. Courtney said he saved the articles from H.M.S. Hampshire, the ship which carried Lord Kitchener to his death while on an official mission during the war.

Husband Needed Sympathy

In granting a divorce to a talkative woman at Toledo, Ohio, Judge James Austin explained that it was given "as a favor to her husband". Mrs. Northcrts V. Mantler could not be stopped by judge, attorneys or bailiff after she began a recital of her domestic affairs. The husband did not contest the action.

Population Of India

Showed Increase Of Thirty-Four Million In Ten Years

Dr. J. H. Hutton, C.I.E., C.B.E., chief commissioner for the census of 1931, in his census report wrote that for long China was considered to be the greatest aggregate of human beings in the world more or less under the same administration, but India's population now even exceeds the latest estimate of the population of China. The difference between the kind of government China has had during the present century and the kind of government that India has had could not be better illustrated. The census of 1931 gave India a population of 353 millions or an increase since 1921 of just under 34 millions. The increase in the ten years from 1921 to 1931 is almost equal to the total population of France or Italy and much greater than that of important European powers like Poland and Spain. If there was an increase of 34 millions between 1921 and 1931, a similar or even greater increase between 1931 and 1941, bringing India's population almost up to the 400 million mark which is envisaged by Sir John Megaw, cannot be dismissed as impossible.—Calcutta Statesman.

PROPOSALS MADE FOR CHANGES IN ELECTION ACT

Ottawa.—Support to the suggestion that persons not voting should be struck from the voters' lists was given by Hon. Charles Stewart, Liberal representative from Edmonton West, in discussion of the Election Act.

Hon. Hugh Guthrie, chairman of the special committee, after discussing amendments, stated one remaining for consideration was the "point is if a person does not vote should he be struck off the voters' list?"

"I am in favor of that," said Mr. Stewart. Anything that would place a responsibility on the voter to record his ballot should be provided, he held. Both Mr. Guthrie and Hon. Ernest Lapointe, minister of justice, were of opinion that the matter of compulsion would be going too far, the present and former ministers of justice contended. "It will serve to enforce the house," said Mr. Stewart.

Any Dominion by-election before dissolution of the present parliament will be held under the present Election Act. An amendment to this effect was approved at a second meeting of the special committee. It was amended form, the act respecting the election of members and the new franchise bill, likewise subject to alterations, will be reported to the commons.

Closing its deliberations, the committee heard brief suggestions for the proportional representation system of voting and the transferable vote.

As sponsor for proportional representation, William Irvine (U.F.A., Wetaskiwin) was amply installed on the subject before the commons. It was decided unanimously the special committee could not go into the merits of the proposal.

The transferable vote would require "much attention" before it could be brought into effect, Hon. Hugh Guthrie and Hon. Ernest Lapointe, former minister of justice, concurred.

A proposal a clause be inserted to cover absentee voters was made by A. W. Neill (ind.-Comox-Alberni). It was decided Mr. Neill could frame a provision for consideration of the house. The proposed clause, it was agreed, should cover lumbermen, lumbermen, miners, prospectors and sailors more than 50 miles from their constituency. The amendment to be replaced before the commons contemplates allowing such voters to mark their ballots in the district in which they are located on election day. The results would be telegraphed to the home constituencies of the voters.

New Franchise Act

B.C. Doukhobors Will Be Debarred From Voting

Ottawa.—Rapid progress was made on the new franchise act as the committee of the house considering the bill approved without division three amendments at a second sitting under the chairmanship of Hon. Hugh Guthrie, minister of justice.

Doukhobors in British Columbia, where they are disqualified from voting in provincial elections under the British Columbia law, will not have the right to vote in Dominion elections under one amendment.

A second amendment struck out the provisions for a signed application by a prospective voter insofar as the original basic list is concerned. The provision for signatures will continue to apply to the annual revisions of the list.

A third amendment dealt with the appointment of enumerators in each riding. It provided one enumerator should be nominated by the sitting member of parliament for the constituency. The second enumerator will be named by the nearest opponent to the successful candidate in the last general elections.

A. W. Neill, (Ind., Comox, Alberni) appeared to ask that provision be made for the taking of the absentee voter vote under the British Columbia Elections Act.

Boys Start On Tour

Famous Ritzsilene Band Will Sail From Montreal For England

Vancouver. — Canada's champion junior band, the Kitsilano Boys' Band, of Vancouver, has left here en route for a two-months tour of England before returning home. At least one of its 45 youthful musicians plans to remain in the Old Country if his hopes are realized.

Norman Pearson, tall, fair-haired, 18-year-old trombonist, who, besides winning many awards for his music, has distinguished himself as one of the Dominion's foremost cricketers, will attempt to realize his ambition when he reaches England—to play in first class county cricket there.

Pearson, despite his youth, has compiled a record in two months of play this season that is believed unequalled in Dominion record books. During that time he knocked up five centuries against the "A" and "B" mark once, and scored 1,033 runs. His high score was 121 runs. And in the record more remarkable, three scheduled games were rained out.

Concerts are being given en route at all the larger cities on the prairies and in eastern Canada.

The party will sail for England from Montreal on the Duchess of Athol.

Casualties At Rodeo

London.—The score of Tex Austin's rodeo to date is five contestants injured and one steer allegedly horrified. Rusty Coram, famous broncho buster of Camargo, Okla., suffered a fractured left arm when a bucking horse fell on him. He was taken to a hospital the fifth cowboy injured since the rodeo began two weeks ago.

Loan For Brookyn

Winnipeg.—Premier John Brackenn announces arrangements have been made by the Manitoba government to loan the city of Winnipeg $1,500,000 to cover the city's cost of unemployment relief during 1933. The loan was made possible by the Manitoba government borrowing from the Dominion government.

Trade With Great Britain

Toronto. — "We intend to establish close trade relationship with Great Britain and all other countries." Hon. Henry T. Rainey, speaker of the house of representatives of the United States, declared here.

Farm Debt Adjustment

Senate Frowns On Bill And Carries Amendment

Ottawa.—Provision in the government's farm debt adjustment legislation whereby a mortgage coming a farmer in excess of seven per cent. may be liquidated on payment of the principal and three months' interest, unless the mortgagor desires to continue it at a rate of five per cent., was frowned upon by the senate banking and commerce committee.

It was held this would make it impossible for farmers to secure mortgages. An amendment was carried unanimously making it possible for the mortgagor to hold his contract, when so challenged, by reducing the rate to seven per cent.

The committee proposed only one other amendment. A provision that would allow the governor-in-council to appoint an official receiver only in such counties as would be deemed necessary and expedient.

The bill was reported for third reading as amended.

JAPANESE MOB MAKE ATTACK ON BRITISH POLICE

Shanghai. — An angry crowd of 300 Japanese attacked British police of the International Settlement garrison here about dawn, hurling bricks, bottles and clubs at them.

The British intervention was sufficient to prevent a pitched battle, although numerous British policemen were struck by bricks and other weapons hurled by the Japanese.

The British policemen, who attempted to disperse the crowd, claimed that two Japanese sailors struck a Chinese woman, making it necessary to take them into custody.

Japanese naval representatives insisted the police of Shanghai had no authority to arrest Japanese sailors. Police refused to accept the Japanese attitude, pointing out other nations maintaining naval forces here already have recognized police authority on shore. They pointed out that when called upon to handle any service man, they immediately hand him over to his own command following the arrest.

Takes Tea With Queen Mary

Mother Of President Of United States Entertained at Buckingham Palace

London.—Two of the world's most talked about women have been entertained by Queen Mary at Buckingham Palace.

King George was present, but most of the social conversation was carried on by Her Majesty and the mother of the United States president.

Just two mothers—grandmothers in fact—they found many common interests as they chatted. Their acquaintance was impressed by the gaiety, friendliness and frankness of Mrs. Roosevelt.

MAY COME TO CANADA

The health of Premier Ramsay MacDonald is the chief concern of the people of the Mother Country at the present time, as his physicians demand that he take a rest. Mr. MacDonald must take at least three months' rest, and it is thought he may make a trip across Canada.

Relief Cheques

Payment Of Dominion's One-Third Proportion Is Authorized

Ottawa. — Cheques in varying amounts from less than $100 to $537,321 as the Dominion's one-third proportion of provincial relief operations, were authorized by order-in-council tabled in the House of Commons. The amounts authorized included:

Alberta—$77,681.

British Columbia—$207.

Manitoba—$2,672.

Saskatchewan—$64,614, municipal and direct relief expenditures under 1933 act, $1,000 credited to the $500,000 loan made by the Dominion to Saskatchewan, November 24, 1933. For previous six months under 1931 act —$1,066. Municipal direct relief under 1933 act—$82,920. Municipal direct relief under the 1932 act—$790, to be credited to the Dominion's loan of $500,000 to Saskatchewan closed January 6, 1934.

Investigation To Continue

Probe Into Price Spreads Will Be Carried On

Ottawa. — The price spreads and mass buying probe will be continued during the summer, it has been learned definitely.

The committee of 11 members of parliament conducting an inquiry since the middle of February is expected to be turned into a commission to continue the investigation.

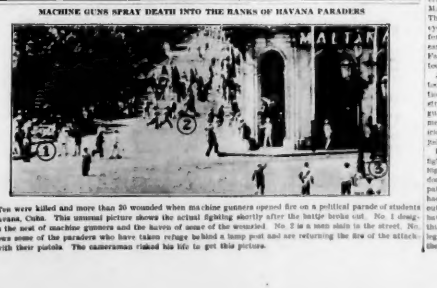
It is a body now being prepared for tabling in the House of Commons, this recommendation for the set-up of a commission is made. No other major recommendation is likely to be made in the present report.

Practically all the sittings of the commission will be held in Ottawa, although there is a possibility the body may visit the maritime provinces late in August to hear evidences from the fishing industry on the Atlantic.

Tax Will Be Collected

Ottawa.—Provisions for the collection of five per cent. income tax from private trusts set up in Canada for the benefit of non-residents were placed in the amendments to the Income War Tax Act which were finally passed through the House of Commons. All clauses in the income tax measure had been passed previously but some question arose over the taxation of these private trusts.

MACHINE GUNS SPRAY DEATH INTO THE RANKS OF HAVANA PARADERS



Ten were killed and more than 30 wounded when machine gunners opened fire on a political parade of students in Havana, Cuba. This unusual picture shows the actual fighting shortly after the battle broke out. No. 1 designates the men of the paraders who have taken refuge behind a lamp post and are returning the fire of the attackers with their pistols. The cameraman risked his life to get this picture.

To Visit Dominion

Reported That Ramsay MacDonald Will Holiday In Rocky Mountains

London.—The Daily Herald states that Prime Minister Ramsay MacDonald has "practically decided" to spend his long vacation from official duties in Canada, indulging in a walking trip through the Rockies.

A projected trip up the Amazon river in Brazil was rejected, the Daily Herald said, on account of the intense heat. Friends of the prime minister looked with disfavor upon his suggestion of spending the three months health-seeking vacation in Newfoundland.

Internal politics in Newfoundland might worry the work-worn premier, it was feared. The newspaper reported that a long sea cruise was rejected on the grounds Mr. MacDonald would spend much of his time reading. He has suffered a great deal from eye strain during the last few years.

The visit to the Canadian west was finally proposed as affording the best possible rest for the premier. It was not stated who would accompany Mr. MacDonald but his daughter Isabel was believed almost certain to go with him. She has accompanied her father on all his trips away from England.

High Price For Telephone

Mukden, Manchuria. — Telephones are so scarce and hard to get in Mukden, because of the growth of the city, that fabulous prices are being paid for telephones being relinquished by established subscribers. A Japanese building contractor has just paid the record price for a telephone connection—1,250 yuan, this is equal to nearly $460 in Canadian money.

May Reduce Radio Licenses

Toronto.—The Globe, in a special despatch from its Ottawa correspondent, said it understood proposals were before the special House of Commons commission on radio that might result in a reduction in the license fee for receiving set owners from $2 to $1.50 or $1.

STATE OWNED BANK MOTION MEETS DEFEAT

Ottawa. — Liberals and Progressives made one more attempt in the House of Commons to gain public ownership for the New Central Bank but with afraid of parliamentary rule and failed. Speaker George Black ruled three motions out of order, declined to receive a fourth and when the house rose had another under consideration.

Hon. Ian Mackenzie, Liberal member for Vancouver Centre, moved the original motion—to refer the bank bill back to committee with instructions to consider a Central Bank owned or controlled by the Dominion or both owned and controlled by the people. The speaker agreed with Premier R. B. Bennett this was too ambiguous and was upheld by the house by 72 with Conservatives voting on their strength against Liberals and Progressives.

William Irvine (U.F.A., Wetaskiwin), a few minutes before, moved to send the bill back with definite instructions to recast the bank from private to a publicly-owned institution.

When the Mackenzie motion was ruled out, the Irvine motion went out as well.

For a few seconds the house was in confusion, with nothing before the chair except the motion for third reading. Pierre Gauvreau (Lib., Joliette) and George Coote (U.F.A., Macleod) both stood up together. The Liberal secured the speaker's eye and moved still another motion for public ownership but it met the same fate as the others. The United Farmer, repeatedly disheartened, took his seat.

J. S. Woodsworth, C.C.F. leader, took another turn appearing a motion to refer back the bill with instructions to the committee to safeguard the sovereignty of parliament over Canada's financial policies." The ruling hour precluded debate on the motion.

Premier R. B. Bennett led the fight against public ownership pointing a picture of a Central Bank dominated by political control and patronage. The government he said, had drafted every precaution against outside pressure and "we believe we have placed on the statute books of this country as good, if not better, legislation than any other country in the world."

BRITAIN WILL NOT PAY WAR DEBT TO U.S. IN GOODS

Washington.—A British reply that Britain was not prepared to make partial payment of its debt in goods and service was received by the state department without comment.

The formal note, delivered to the state department by D. G. Osborne, charge d'affaires, rejected overtures made by Secretary Cordell Hull in a note of June 12.

The British note said the experience of German reparations had shown that transfer of goods was an unsettling to world economic affairs as transfers in cash and could not be entertained by Great Britain.

The British note emphasized that the primary question for settlement was the amount that should be paid.

In administration circles that declined was considered as making clear that Great Britain had not fled this country, in effect, that it would make no payment of any kind until the present debt funding agreement had been revised downward.

Secretary Hull's note of June 12, after setting forth the American position in opposition to British reasons for failing to pay on June 1, suggested that Great Britain had never made any suggestions for payment in kind and hinted that such payments might open an avenue for settlements.

The text of the British debt note follows:

After careful consideration of the note which you addressed to Mr Ronald Lindsay on June 12, His Majesty's government in the United Kingdom feels there are two questions to which it may be useful to refer at the present time.

In the first place, His Majesty's government would observe that in the note of June 4 they did not state payment of the British war debt was legally contingent upon payment of debts due to them. What they said was that it would be impossible for them to contemplate a situation in which they would be called on to honor in full their war obligations to others, while continuing to make all demands for payment of the war obligations due to them. This was a statement not of law but of fact.

Secondly, as regards the suggested payments in kind, His Majesty's government would recall that the experience of German reparations showed that transfer difficulties are not solved by a system of deliveries in kind.

As the committee, presided over by General Dawes, pointed out in 1924: "Even in the financial effect, deliveries in kind are not really distinguishable from cash payments."

Hon. Ian Mackenzie, Liberal member for Vancouver Centre, moved the original motion—to refer the bank bill back to committee with instructions to consider a Central Bank owned or controlled by the Dominion or both owned and controlled by the people. The speaker agreed with Premier R. B. Bennett this was too ambiguous and was upheld by the house by 72 with Conservatives voting on their strength against Liberals and Progressives.

YOUNG CUMMINGS FARMER DROWNED ON SUNDAY

Laurence Andrews Is Cramp Victim in Majory Lake

A sad drowning calamity occurred in the Cummings district on Sunday afternoon when Laurence Andrews, 27 years of age, was drowned in a lake on the A. C. Majory farm. He was in swimming, go beyond his depth, and evidently took cramps, drowning before help could reach him.

Mr. Majory's hired man went to the lake with Andrews and had returned to the shack to get ready to go into the water also, but before he arrived he heard Andrews shouting for help. The lake is only a short distance from the Majory residence, and raising an alarm, the family and others rushed to the scene, but the unfortunate youth had disappeared before help could reach him.

Divers were made to search him by swimmers who dived to the bottom, but were unsuccessful. They then constructed rafts and with improvised grappling hooks finally located the body after three hours.

Coroner Dr. Knell viewed the body and found an inquest unnecessary.

The funeral was held on Monday in Auburndale church, when the edifice was crowded. There were some beautiful wreaths on the casket, showing the esteem in which the deceased was held. The services was conducted by Mr. Brown, the visiting student, and was very impressive.

Laurence Andrews was born in Hungary and came to this district nine years ago with his parents. He was highly respected, had a pleasing disposition and was well liked by everyone. He will be greatly missed by all of the young people in the district.

The sympathy of the entire community is extended to the grief-stricken parents. May God comfort them in their great sorrow.

The Merriest Insect

Thieving Cockroaches Give Trouble In New York Zoo

Dr. Raymond L. Ditmars, the great New York expert on snakes, has made the discovery that the cockroach is one of the boldest thieves in the animal kingdom. That nervy insect will eat the skin right off the biggest snake in any zoo. When the snake sheds their skins, the keepers save them up for the natural history classes in the schools. Nature is just a few years? is shed by a silly they like to get those skins whole and in perfect condition. But because of nefarious and voracious cockroaches the skins often look like something the moths had been at. But Ditmars has checkmated the thieving cockroaches by putting bull-frogs in settings around the snake cages during the skin-shedding season. There isn't a cockroach in the world that is active and smart enough to get past a hungry bull-frog.—Toronto Star.

Brief Career For Society

Statement Anti-Scandal Idea Big Not Last Long

A brief obituary notice in the London Times tells of the death of an idea as well as of a man. A few years ago the Rev. Frank Melville, rector of Falsell, founded the National Anti-Scandal Society, which almost immediately had a countrywide membership. Its members received a badge bearing a likeness of the three wise monkeys and the legend. Speak no evil, see no evil, and hear no evil." At its most vigorous period the society's membership could be counted only in the hundreds but it was made up of enthusiasts. Why did it dwindle away and come to nothing in just a few years? is cited by a silly they like to get those skins whole writer. The Times observes that Mr. Melville was "noted for his outspoken views and his humor."

The world's largest known copper deposit, in Chile, is estimated to contain 60,000,000 tons of ore.

New Zealand is void of snakes or poisonous insects.

Praise For Canadian Nurses

Have High Reputation In Britain And Are Well Known

A tribute was paid to Canadian nurses by Miss Edith Rome, interviewed at Montreal on her way to attend the Canadian Nursing Association convention in Toronto. Miss Rome said that Canadian nurses have a high reputation in Britain, where they have become known through the constantly increasing interchange of nurses.

The standards of nursing in Canada and Britain are much the same, she said, are much higher than those of some countries of Europe, where nursing is a very new thing as yet.

The proposed founding of a Pacific Nursing Scholarship was referred to by Miss Rome, who expressed the hope that some Canadian nurses would compete for and win it.

Little Journeys In Science

PYRETHRUM

(By Gordon H. Guest, M.A.)

The story of how a young German scientist was deported as a spy, because his insecticide is most interesting. In far away Japan, in the 17th century, a certain Japanese daughter was being married, and to this celebration was invited a young German scientist.

It was the usual Japanese custom of those days to decorate each room entirely with one kind of flower in full blossom. In one room the young scientist observed that no insects were flying around, and that the floor was strewn with dead flies, ants and other typical summer pests. This room was decorated with a flower, somewhat like our ordinary field daisy. The young German found that this flower was known as the pyrethrum and that it grew in abundance on his host's estate.

Permission was obtained to take a few of these flowers to his laboratory. After many experiments with pyrethrum and similar flowers, he discovered that the scent given off by them killed insects and other creeping pests, but was harmless to human beings. He found that he had a great value to all nations in the everlasting war against insect pests. Pyrethrum flowers have been widely cultivated in Japan, and its blossoms, compressed and packed in powder form, have been sent to the world to be used in the manufacture of insect powder, which is used chiefly in the home.

Started in just such a way the Mellon Institute in the United States was quickly subsidized by private industries, and has since proved of supreme importance to the business life of that country.

Little Helps For This Week

"If ye fulfill the royal law according to the scriptures, Thou shalt love thy neighbor as thyself, ye do well." James 2:8.

Come children let us go,
We travel hand in hand.
Each in to' brother finds his joy
In this with stranger land.
The thing be quick to raise
The weaker when they fall.
Let love and peace and patience blend.
In ready help for all.

It is a sad weakness in us after we are dead, that though of a man's death hallows him anew to us as if life were not sacred too, so if it were a light thing to fail in love and reverence to the brother who has to climb the whole toilsome steep with us, and all our tears and tenderness were due to the one who has shared that hard journey.—George Eliott.

Would we soothe the lions that should reign in homebirds and make daily thanksgiving sunrise us and lighten the household joy, we must learn every day to live down with sacrifices. Good manners are made up of petty sacrifices. Temperance, order, neatness and many of the same jewels. Listen to every prompting of honor.—R. W. Emerson.

A GOOD CATCH

Above we show a photo of Bill Hay, the manager of the team known as 'n Andy radio team, with a couple of "king fish", otherwise spring salmon, caught in Virginia, where Bill and Mrs. Hay have been spending a most enjoyable holiday golding, motoring, and above all, fishing.

Creation of a provincial research institute for scientific investigation of modern and by product trends in all industry, and more particularly to develop entirely for the basic primary products of British Columbia, is being suggested to the provincial government at Victoria, B.C., by Dr. J. Allen Harris, M.L.A., South Okanagan, himself a research chemist.

Dr. Harris suggests that a modest start be made with the plan, to supplement what already is being done by the provincial scientific research B.C. industry. In accommodation at the University of British Columbia, which has been established on a provincial basis.

Permission was obtained to take a few of these flowers to his laboratory. After many experiments with pyrethrum and similar flowers, he discovered that the scent given off by them killed insects and other creeping pests, but was harmless to human beings. He found that he had a great value to all nations in the everlasting war against insect pests. Pyrethrum flowers have been widely cultivated in Japan, and its blossoms, compressed and packed in powder form, have been sent to the world to be used in the manufacture of insect powder, which is used chiefly in the home.

GOD CARES FOR ELIJAH

Golden Text: "Your heavenly Father knoweth that you have need of all these things." Matthew 6:32.

Lesson: I. Kings 17:1-24; 19:1-8.

Devotional Reading: Psalm 23.

Explanations And Comments

Elijah Predicts Drought, 17:1. Elijah the Tishbite, that is, a native of Thisbe, a member of the tribe of Naphtali who dwelt in the land of Gilead, now appears. In 2 K. 1:8 he is described as a hairy man, girt with a girdle of leather about his loins. His name is composed of Eli, meaning my God, and Jah, the short form of Jehovah. "My God is Jehovah" the name suits him. It grew out of him like the shaggy beard, for he spent his life recalling the faithless people from the false worship of Baal to the true worship of Jehovah the living God" (Charles R. Brown). Ahab was the king at this time of whom it is said (1 K. 16:30) that "he did that which was evil in the sight of Jehovah above all that were before him." Elijah suddenly appeared before the king. "Ahab is the second and fiercest spirit of his day, absolute monarch, possessing the power of life and death. At his side is Jezebel, who is as determined and ambitious than her husband as Lady Macbeth in more ambitious than Macbeth. The prophet stands before them. Does he? In point of fact, he is more conscious of standing before God. In the consciousness of God's presence is the prophet's power" (Allerton).

Famine. Ahab that a long drought was coming upon the land as a punishment from God for his sins (See 1 Kings 16:32. "As Jehovah, the God of Israel, liveth," dramatically affirmed, making use of the custom any form of an oath, "before whom I stand." That is, whose servant I am, "there shall not be dew nor rain these years." Without dew or rain there could be no harvests. The hand of God was especially concerned in those days in the giving or withholding the rain. The drought would be of long duration and would cause only ill. His word, Elijah declared. See Jas. 5:17, 18.

Elijah Fed by Ravens at the Brook Cherith, 17:2-7. The word of God to Elijah was explicit. He was to hide himself by the brook Cherith, which is before Jordan, that

WINDOWS BROKEN BY HAIL AT BLACKFOOT

Large hail stones swept the village of Blackfoot last Saturday evening and practically every pane of glass on the west side was broken. Several cars standing out at the time had the tops riddled. The stones did not fall thickly enough to inflict damage on crops or gardens, but the school with practically a solid glass west side was the chief sufferer.

NEIGHBORHOOD NARRATIVES

The summer's list of casualties was added to the other day when Amos Osborn took a fall by surprise, and generally battered up his person. Well maybe his umpiring got him into that shape, but most of us are pretty well satisfied yet, so we'll place the blame on the dissatisfied gee-gee.

Our friend the weatherman being no tricky ch-nked us out of seeing a good deal of fun on Sunday, 1st. It all happened at Turkey Hill, when the Oobbers and Dobbers could do with a bigger diamond, a smaller ball, and a speedier game than softball. The score was very close, in fact making the game so interesting that most people didn't bother finding out who won. Then came the waterproof Woodvalers, the ones who didn't get bluffed by the rain, borrowed a few more, and trimmed up on Turkey Hill softballers, surprising everyone, including, we think, themselves. After that, heavens only knows how much fun you could have in the lighter game, took a turn at it with the victorious Woodvales and showed them just what could be done in the time of 16 to 1. Well, as we said before, we just missed a lot of fun by not being there.

Thunder clouds prevented the school children of Turkey Hill from joining the Woodvale scholars in celebrating the last day of school. Although the fun had to take place indoors, every sort of game was tried, and nobody missed the sunshine. And the fun that day was just a hint of the real joy of freedom Monday morning.

You know, Island Hill's Merit Medal isn't a bad idea, and we are considering borrowing it (the idea, not the precious medal). However, since we are not on familiar with medals and their bestowing, and since we, like many others, have experienced an acute feeling of depression, we best to submit our humble inspiration — The Order of the Bright Tin Pie Plate! Now don't all speak at once. We can't say exactly how it shall be awarded, but we consider that Mr. Jas. Ross deserves it justly this week, for although really couldn't be helped, but which that patient and persevering Scotchman very kindly made right and created peace in all directions. Thank you, Sir James!

The Union picnic provided enjoyment for everyone and the rain coming on in the evening made us realize just how good a time we had been having. Among other things, we noticed what a splendid turnout Kokhee sent to help celebrate, a feature we all appreciated, and hope they will keep up. The fun of the day was provided by the usual ball games and sports. In the races, the victories we happened to see were those of Miss Harriette Funnell, Mrs. Artie Priedland, and Doug Ross, the latter being well assisted by Miss Alice Bearce to a speedy race. However, in the 25c yard dash, the real test of footlootedness, Doug's stumble gave first place to a nimble Walt from Kokhee.

Four softball teams entered, and Woodvale took their medicine at once from Turkey Hill. The second game was a good deal closer, Kokhee winning out. The play-off was interrupted by rain, T. Hill being ahead, but never was a crowd so reluctant to see it broken up.

The Turkey Hill girls picked up a basketball team and challenged Union. Both groups took the court without any practice beforehand all season, and it told. However, it was lots of fun and even wrung chuckles from the umps. We just got introduced to the cwell hot dogs when the rain started, and we'll regret the interruption for a long time. They were just right.

The ladies also had an interesting game, white, Messrs. Ross and Priestered to the kiddies and sweet-toothing grown-ups in the refreshment booth. And now we are ready to go it all over again at Woodvale this Wednesday (11th).

Sunday saw a contest between the Young Intermediates and the Woodvale Seniors, the latter winning. Both teams needed to lighten up, as the score climbed pretty high. Then the Woodvale Juniors, slightly reinforced, too the field against the visitors, and made it a very interesting, close game, the Tolland tossers winning by one.

Little Miss Betty Connaston took a bad fall Sunday to make a sapping cut in the back of her head. Here's hoping it doesn't interfere with that cheerful smile, even for a day or so.

The Grizzly Bear Junior C.P.A. are to hold a meeting at the Vet's on Saturday, July 14th. Plans for the big picnic to make up the big business of the day. And the Canton picnic is something to be planned for.

POLICE COURT
BEFORE A. E. KAISER, POLICE MAGISTRATE

A number of men in the Northern Valley district were out looking for horses which they had not seen for some time, when a wagon was observed coming their way. On questioning it, one of the party was surprised to see four of his calves in the wagon box. The driver was ordered to stop, but instead whipped up his horses, and as the men were on foot they could not follow. The procured a car, and at once gave chase, but found that the calves had been dumped out in the brush. Investigations followed, and the police apprehended one of the three men in the wagon, Mike Lecopoy. He was brought into court and convicted of the crime, being sentenced to six months in Fort Saskatchewan with hard labor. Richardson for prosecution; Adam for defendant.

For inflicting grievous bodily harm on John Yourwyshyn, Paul Frarko was sent to Fort Saskatchewan gaol for two months.

Anna Nelson vs. Anton Nelson, charged with desertion under the Domestic Relations Act, was settled by agreement out of court. Morrison for the plaintiff.

Certain new settlers and some others, who hold land with agreement to give the owners part of the crop each year, seem to be under the impression that there is no obligation to fulfill their agreement. The non-fulfillment is theft, and land companies and others are taking steps to see that they are protected, with the consequence that The British Dominions Land Settlement Corporation Ltd. instituted proceeding against Stanley Tomkow of Angle Lake. The Company asked the court for leniency if reparation was made, and that it was not their wish that this man should go to jail. Considering this the Court ordered Tomkow to fulfill his agreement and pay the costs of the court, which was done.

Pleading that his crop was small and that he needed all of it to carry him over the year was the excuse Herb Malonik gave for not turning over to The British Dominions Land Settlement Corp their share of his crop. The point was pointed out to him that his failure to do this might place a great hardship on many people who had invested their savings in this (and other) companies, to help just such fellows as himself to get started; also that people who make agreements to do certain things must do so or have a better excuse for not doing so. Malonik was ordered to make restitution and pay the costs or go to jail for 3 months. Restitution was made.

Several small debt cases were settled.

A mental case was held in camera. Court closed at 9:20 p.m.

There will be only one court day a week during July and August.

WILDMERE WINKS

A surprise birthday party was given William Cow, Basswood, last Tuesday evening at the home of Mr. Gibson, when 24 friends gathered in with him a happy birthday. The young chaps gave him a hearty spanking for luck. We bet you failed to see the funny side, Bill.

Several Wildmere folk attended the U.F.A. and U.F.W.A. picnic in Dell's grove last Wednesday. Basswood Tigers played baseball there, winning from Battleview boys by a score of 4-3. They played Gilt Edge later in the evening, but the rain put a sudden stop to the game at the end of the 2nd inning, with Basswood ahead 7-6, so they got first money. The Tigers are taking in the Orange picnics at Vermilion this Wednesday, and will play ball there.

Basswood Club's dance came off with colors flying last Friday evening, with a large crowd attending. They also did well in the refreshment booth. Don't forget Wildmere Club's dance in Wallington's barn on July 27 with Irma music. This will be the best barn dance of the season, so keep the date in mind, folks.

Miss Violet Debrod, who has been working the past three months for Mrs. A. Carlson, Wildmere, returned to her home at Bonnell Tuesday evening. She spent the week end with Mrs. J. Burns, Basswood.

We were all sorry to hear of the death by drowning on Sunday last of L. Andrews, Cunningham. He attended the dance Friday evening and was a happy young man, full of pep, now he is lying cold in death. It goes to show one never knows the hour or the day we will be called to the great beyond.

Mrs. Ed Rund, Triangle, has been a visitor from Chicago visiting her at present.

Mr. Jack Marfleet, Vermilion, was a visitors Sunday at the Cruthers home here.

Miss Irene Finlay, Manyville, along with others, called at the writer's home for a short visit Sunday evening. Miss Finlay was a school teacher here a few years ago.

Our school house is undergoing a coat of paint this week. Mr. N. Nicholson, Islay, is the painter.

Mr. A. Hotte suffered a rather painful accident last Friday when he was thrown off the plow which struck a rock. He landed with his head on another rock and as a result still has a large bump on his head a stiff neck. Glad to see so many out to church. Next Sunday at Basswood again. It gives Mr. Brown, our student, more encouragement when everyone turns out like that.

Taking your Dollar TO MARKET

EVERY YEAR your family, and every family of your acquaintance, spends about 70 per cent. of its income just for living, exclusive of rent — so economic experts tell us. Think what this means—seven dollars out of every ten invested in food, clothing, household utilities and all the multitude of things that keep a family comfortable and happy.

That part of spending is readily understood. But do you realize that every manufacturer and retailer of these necessities is planning how he can get your dollar?

It's a big job to spend so much money wisely and well. It requires careful business methods to get the best possible returns from each dollar that leaves the family purse.

The clever woman goes for help to the advertisements in her local paper. There she finds a directory of buying and selling. She learns about the offerings of merchants and business people. She compares values. She weighs quality and price. She takes this opportunity of judging and selecting almost everything she needs to feed, clothe, amuse, instruct and generally help bring up her family.

Do you read the advertisements ? You will find them willing and able to serve you in the business of purchase.

Advertisements are guardians of your pocketbook - - read them carefully

Lloydminster Regional Exhibition July 23-4-5

Take a holiday and come to Lloydminster Regional Exhibition July 23, 24, 25. No matter what your profession is, you will find plenty of interest — whether the big exhibition of livestock, agricultural products, domestic and ladies' work, or Children's Fair. Boys under 18 who would like to attend the Farm Boys' Camp, write to the Exhibition Manager for particulars. Then there is the amusement side. The lover of a good horse race will see Western Canada's fastest horses in action. For the baseball fans there will be three days of baseball—20 junior and senior teams; and the best teams in ladies' softball will fight it out, 14 teams having entered.

Williams & Lee Company of St. Paul, Minn., will supply plenty of thrills and comedy in front of the grandstand—10 acts, twice daily. Travelling in a modern way, Hemphill Bros. Shows will arrive in a fleet of 45 trucks required to move their big show—9 rides and 10 major shows, a number direct from the Century of Progress Fair, Chicago. For a real dare-devil act see Mlle. Florence defy death twice daily, performing from a ninety-foot steel pole without any safety guards or nets.

Gas from Saskatchewan's first gas well is being piped to the grounds. See the flare burning each night, and demonstration during the day.

Here and There

S. S. Empress of Japan arrived at Victoria recently with one of the largest passenger lists in the past three years. There was a total of 577 from the Orient and Honolulu. The liner was also heavily booked for the westbound trip from Vancouver and Victoria.

Speaking at Toronto recently before members of the International Building Owners and Managers Association, R. W. Beatty, K.C., chairman and president of the Canadian Pacific Railway, doubted the wisdom of "too elaborate planning" in national economics. Mr. Beatty did not think the present system of society was wrong except in the "way in which it is applied."

The Canadian Pacific Railway will celebrate the fiftieth anniversary of the completion of the transcontinental line next year. It was November 7, 1885 that Donald A. Smith, later Lord Strathcona, drove the last spike at Craigellachie joining east to west and Atlantic to Pacific.

Hon. Charles A. Dunning, vice-president and general manager of the Saginaw Club, Montmartin, Quebec, has been elected a director of Barclay's Bank, Canada. The former Federal Minister of Finance is also president of the Ontario Equitable Life Insurance Company.

After one of the most remarkable and successful meetings ever held by a religious body, the Oxford Group left the Banff Springs Hotel for the East. Many of them sailed from Quebec by S.S. Empress of Australia for England. The next house party will be held at Oxford July 1-14.

Speaking at the Admiral Beatty Hotel, Saint John, Sir William Clark, British High Commissioner to Canada, claimed that the real source of Canada's troubles in connection with marketing agricultural produce lay in the economic expansion of agricultural production by industrial countries, especially some of the larger European countries which are normally importers.

Music, moonlight, glorious lake breezes with 600 miles of sailing on the Canadian Pacific's Great Lakes ships Assiniboia, Keewatin and Manitoba are at the disposal of passengers on the company's lines this summer at low cost. The offer promises to be very alluring to Canadians and visitors to the Dominion as well.

Quebec Province is alive with feasts, celebrations and gala events this year marking the anniversaries of some of the most memorable events in its history. Among them and the most important is the 400th anniversary of the discovery of Canada by Jacques Cartier in July 1534.

A Mediterranean - Africa - South America cruise in the 22,000-ton liner Empress of Australia, visiting 24 ports in the Mediterranean, Palestine, Egypt, East and South Africa, South America and the West Indies will be operated next winter, it is announced by the Canadian Pacific. The cruise will take 86 days, leaving New York January 16, 1935 and returning there April 24.

HIGH SCHOOL COSTS

In the report of the closing exercises in connection with the high school, published last week, it was stated that the town paid out over $57.00 for each pupil in attendance during the past year. This should have read "over $57.00 PER DAY," per per pupil for the year. We understand the operating costs of the high school for the year amounted to $11,486, and on the basis of two hundred teaching days the cost of over $57.00 per day is arrived at. Taking the attendance figure at 200 pupils, the cost per pupil is better than $115.00. This emphasizes none forcibly the point that the speaker, Dr. Scott, was making, namely that it was trusted the student body would appreciate the expenditures being made in placing the opportunities of a complete high school course before them.

OUR AUTO CAMP—

The Vermilion auto camp, once a source of pride to the citizens and a joy to the tourists, has fallen to a sad state of disrepair. At one time a record of visitors was to be found in the camp kitchen, wood was on hand for the stove, signs directed visitors to conveniences, everything was handy to the kitchen including table, shelves, a few utensils. What a difference now—no wood, no signs, dirty kitchen no record, table broken up, it looks just a deserted camp.

The board of trade asked by the town council, could do much worse than restore the tourists camp to its former footing. A caretaker who visited the camp every evening was to be appointed at once and everything was kept ship-shape.

In case anything was done on this project it would be well to close the camp during the cold months of the yeeling season and see that everything movable was well secured.

CHILD ACTRESS IN IMPORTANT PICTURE ROLE

Youngest of all the members of the cast of Paramount's production of Damon Runyon's "Little Miss Marker" now at the Columbia theatre, is tiny Five-year-old Shirley Temple who plays the title role.

This little girl who is featured with Adolphe Menjou, Dorothy Dell, Charles Bickford and Lyn Overman, has been a position picture actress for slightly more than a year.

Even a small beginning in the Baby Days, one considers stardom was rapid to advancement to mature parts in never at comedies.

Although "Little Miss Marker" is only Shirley's first role on the screen, she has been cast with Gary Cooper and Carole Lombard in "Now and Forever," which will be released soon.

In "Little Miss Marker," which was produced by H. C. Schaffner and directed by Alexander Hall, Shirley plays the role of the child left in pawn with the bookmaker as collateral on a racing I. O. U. When her father fails to redeem her chicken is adopted by the bookmaker, Adolphe Menjou, and soon grows to be a part of the strange world behind the scenes at the track. Although the adorable child finds it dopts the slang and the manners of the bookmaker and the gambler, she soon wins them over to her way.

ISLAND HILL

We must not interfere with the dance which the kindly folk at Campbell Lake have arranged for this Friday and so the wiest drive arranged for the school here may be postponed until the following Friday, 20th inst. We hope the dance will be a big success.

Mr. and Mrs. H. A. Searle held a birthday party Thursday, in honor of their little son Reggie. A number of friends were invited and all had a very jolly time.

We are mailing these short notes from Edmonton, a city in which history is being made these days. On their visit here, it is certainly a beautiful city, one which Alberta has every right to be proud of.

And the future historian of this great province will tell of the poor boy brought up in honey Portland who came over here and diligently work and study attained the most honorable position or prime minister of Alberta.

And people say that in this age of keen competition and depressing times it is no easy matter to get to the top rung of the ladder.

We heartily wish Mr. and Mrs. Ivy good Vermilion, many years of continued happiness.

Many messages of sympathy have been sent to the family from all over the province, where the deceased had many friends.

KOKNEE & DISTRICT NOTES

(Held over from last week)

School ended on Friday last with an enjoyable party which the teacher gave the children. Several of the ladies of the district were also in attendance. The children ran many races and also played softball girls vs. boys. The girls won the game — hurry up, boys, and learn a little more about softball. A sumptuous lunch was then enjoyed by all.

The dance last Friday was a complete success. A closorful song by Gordon Johnson and a couple of interpretive numbers by Harold McKinley were very much enjoyed.

The first raspberries at the season were picked in this district on July 5th.

The softball game on Sunday was well attended by people from everywhere. Hostess last to Islay but was the second game from a team from the east.

The weather seems to favor outdoor sports greatly, as when there is an event to take place the weather clears.

United States Joins The ILO.

More than ordinary significance attaches to recent decision of the American Congress to apply for membership of the International Labor Organization at Geneva usually referred to as the ILO. Not only will accession of the United States add considerably to the prestige that organization now enjoys but, bringing as it will the U.S. into direct confrontation with this important branch of League of Nations' activity, the move will do much to restore prestige lost by the parent body through recent defections, notably that of Japan.

Press despatches have revealed little of the background, few of the motives, behind this change of front on the part of the Washington government. It is true, of course, membership of the International Labor Organization does not involve endorsement of the League covenant, nor does it entail any political commitments to the League as such. In fact, the U.S. desire to provide adequate safeguards against the "foreign entanglements" that country has so rigorously eschewed since the war, is expressed in the act of Congress which specifically declares that the United States, by membership in the ILO, shall assume "no obligations under the covenant".

This, of course, is possible. The International Labor Organization, like the World Court upon whose bench the United States long has been represented, is an autonomous section of the League of Nations. Membership in either or both is possible without acceptance of the covenant. Germany, as a matter of fact, was an active, full-fledged member of the ILO for six years before becoming a member of the League of Nations. The connection between the organization and the League is derived not from the covenant but from the charter of the ILO, which is Part XIII. of the Treaty of Versailles.

The International Labor Organization is, however, much closer to the League than is the World Court for the reason that it is, essentially, a means of getting international legislation enacted, or treaties negotiated, as is the League itself. The heart of the League system is its permanent mechanism for continuous international conference. The ILO parallels this machinery throughout, in its limited field of social questions.

The importance of the United States' decision to join the International Labor Organization, therefore, may best be judged by considering it in relation to the economic problems created by varying standards of living, hours of labor and rates of wages, in nations now competing for foreign markets, and also by contrasting the present action with Washington's past attitude towards the Geneva labor office.

Hitherto, the United States has been far cooler to the ILO than to any other branch of League activity. Until a year ago, the United States government would have nothing whatever to do with the labor organization, but now, without any parade or ballyhoo, Congress has accepted, virtually without demur, the proposal to apply for membership. This will involve representation on the permanent secretariat at Geneva and ultimate appointment of American representatives to the personnel of the central office.

Psychologically, the action of Washington will have more far-reaching effects. It will give Japan, Germany and Italy "furiously to think" for, if President Roosevelt can persuade Congress to take so complete a volta face in so short a time in connection with one great section of League activity, it follows that but little additional pressure would be required to intervene with the legislators to the end of accepting the League covenant. Despite present reticences, and the insistence upon non-political safeguards, American opinion relative to the League is undergoing a change—and that change is not so far short of complete League membership as to make that end remote. If it come to pass that the United States enter the League, that body will immediately assume grander and nobler proportions in the eyes of the world, and the dreams of those who called it into existence will be within sight of fulfilment.

China Holds Cricket Fights

Sportsmen Will Pay Ten Dollars For Good Fighter

A great effort is being made in China to stamp out cricket-fighting. It is being made as great a legal offence as opium smoking, and punishable with equally severe penalties. Despite the efforts made to stop the "sport," an enormous amount of it goes on. Chinese will pay as much as $10 for a good fighting cricket, and many make it a business to breed them and train them for fighting, in the same way as cocks used to be trained for the old English sport of cock-fighting. The cricket will face each other in elaborate bamboo "rings," down the middle of which a glass plate runs, through which the fighters glare at each other until each time as their ire is sufficiently aroused for the attack. Large sums change hands during the fights.

Plans Big Undertaking

Hundred-Mile Wide Shelter Belt Being Considered By Roosevelt

President Roosevelt is considering a project to plant a "shelter belt" of trees 100 miles wide and stretching across the United States from Canada to the Texas panhandle.

This gigantic scheme, requiring 10 to 12 years to complete, would aim to minimize drouth and help prevent winds from stripping farm lands of their choice soil, it was announced recently by the American Tree Association. Planting in the 100-mile wide area would be in strips, running north and south.

There would be 100 strips of trees, one to a mile. The shelter belt would stretch 1,500 miles through North Dakota, South Dakota, Nebraska, Kansas and Oklahoma to the Texas border.

Project May Succeed

New Process Being Tried To Dredge Gold From Fraser River

The golden wealth in the sands of the Fraser river, which has till now proved largely elusive to the efforts of man, and of which there is said to be enough to pay the national debt of Canada many times over, is to be attacked this summer with a new type of dredge, and with what appears to be every prospect of success.

The structure, now nearing completion, is the largest work of its kind ever attempted on the Pacific coast, incorporating for the first time anywhere in the world the entirely new process as applied to gold dredging.

Built under the engineering advice and supervision of Hums Robertson, placer mining engineer, who has had 20 years' experience in that kind of work with British companies in the Malaya Peninsula, the great bulk may now be seen assuming final shape at the shipyards of B.C. Marine Engineers and Shipbuilders Limited.

Hydraulic pumps, with suction strength of 300 pounds to the square inch, created by two 500-h.p. motors will raise the gravel from the bottom of the river and the complete process of washing and refining will be completed upon the dredge.

Capacity, with the present equipment, is placed at 12,500 cubic yards in the 24 hours, although it is hoped for double the present sluicing area by the addition of an upper deck, on a routine of 13 feet from bow to stern.

The whole operation will be electrically controlled, from the dredging and control switches on the bridge towards the bow of the structure. Power requirements will operate, generating cost of not more than two cents a cubic yard.

Hydro-electric plant is to be constructed on Stave Creek, near where the dredge will be put into operation, and will generate 2,000 horse-power. It is expected that the first unit of this phase of the undertaking is to start at once.

The operation of the first dredge proves successful—and every possible safeguard against failure seems to have been taken—other equipment will proceed to the construction of other dredges of similar model.

Smaller craft will be needed in some parts of the river under lease, but all will incorporate the present improvements, with such improvements as practice may suggest.

Problem In South Africa

Many Pupils With Scottish Names Speak No English

As in Quebec in South Africa there are people with pure Scottish names like Campbell, Fraser and Macdonald who speak only Dutch or no English, Dr. S. H. Bloemfontein, Director of Education of the Orange Free State in South Central South Africa, remarked after an investigation of Quebec school conditions.

Dr. Pelissier was in Quebec to study the question of bilingualism and how it is handled in Quebec. In the Orange Free State he has the same problem, the majority of the pupils speaking Dutch and the minority English. They also are faced with the difficulty of teaching children in the outlying sections, as in Quebec.

Dr. Pelissier said the children with the Scottish names will be descendants of settlers who married Boer women. They gave their names to their children, but apparently neglected their own language to their offspring.

Year Of Anniversaries

At Least Three Will Be Commemorated During 1934

That 1934 is a year of anniversaries was made peculiarly evident by Victor Morin, chairman of the Montreal committee on the Jacques Cartier observances, in the Quebec Women's Institutes convention.

In 1534 occurred the discovery of Canada by Jacques Cartier; in 1634, the extension of the colony by the founding of Three Rivers; in 1734, the opening of the first road between Quebec and Montreal; and in 1834, the granting of its charter to Toronto.

Some Long Sleeps

But Record Of Rip Van Winkle Still Stands

A Huddersfield man has had no sleep for eight years, he says. Not even morphine can give him an hour of real sleep. How he must envy such a man as W. Fuzley, pot-maker to the Mint, who fell asleep on April 27th, 1346, and slept serenely for fourteen days and fifteen nights. Fourteen days is only a nap compared with the exploits of some sleepers. A German civil servant named Arnsberg, forty-five years old, slipped one evening as he got out of a tram and knocked his head on the pavement. He was taken home and put to bed. The doctors said there was no concussion or serious injury. Next morning he was still asleep. He slept for two years and four months. He was a wreck when at last he woke up, for he had starved. There was the famous Marguerite Provost, "the Sleeping Woman of Theodire," who fell into a kind of trance-like sleep by a fright and slept for nineteen years and six months. This she always roused, was able to talk, but she was wasted to a skeleton, and died five months later. The record is that of Wilhelm Lee, American, a farmer called Harms. He came in one evening, tired after a long day's work, and fell asleep. He slept for twenty-six years. It was possible to rouse him to take food, but he could not stay awake more than a few minutes. Like the French sleeper, he was wasted away and died.

French Company Will Survey Bear Lake

If Report Is Satisfactory Capital Will Be Invested

A vast amount of French capital will be invested in development of the Great Bear Lake mining district, providing that a survey to be made this summer by Dr. Bruet of Montreal, who arrived at Edmonton from Paris, proves satisfactory.

Dr. Bruet, engineering questions which were interpreted by Paul Jenvrin, former French consul at Edmonton, and Dr. Bruet will test the question of large scale development being undertaken if his report recommends that course.

Dr. Bruet is vice-president and director of Omnium, a large French company which is interested in mining developments in Great Bear Lake.

The company is interested in gold, silver, pitchblende, and any of the other mineral discoveries in the far north.

Also representing the department of natural resources at Paris, Dr. Bruet also will study the habits and conditions of the Indian tribes in the Great Bear Lake district, with regard to Paris specimens of plant life and also insects found in the north country.

For the second time in the history of broadcasting that the queen's voice will probably be heard on the wireless in September, the occasion being the launching of the Canadian Pacific at Clydebank, Her Majesty having been heard on the wireless in the early days of the British Broadcasting Corporation.

Find Gold In Meteorite

Science's first recorded discovery of gold that has fallen from the sky to the earth was reported at the Academy, Calif., by Dana Gillespie, of Denver, before the meeting of the American Association for the Advancement of Science. Minute amounts of gold were detected in a meteorite found near Melrose, N.M.

May Join League

By Doing So Russia Would Gain Security Abroad

Russia, it is said, plans to enter the League of Nations, and is only delaying to decide what manner of entry would best fit the case. Her disarming to do as to why it stayed out so long.

Unanimous desire to help keep peace in Europe is credited to Moscow, no doubt correctly. But there is another factor of military to the move. Stalin has troubles enough, without having to keep a watchful eye always on the western front.

In particular he has occasion to focus attention on the far end of his dominion, in which quarter Japan is carving out a place for itself in the Oriental sunshine without much regard for what Russia may wait.

Joining the League would be for Russia the next thing to making a general treaty of non-interference with Europe, and leave the Soviet directorate freer to pay attention to urgent matters in the Far East.

Japan undoubtedly sacrificed a measure of world confidence when it left the League. Russia accordingly responding gain confidence abroad if it joined the League and thus associated itself with the proclaimed purposes of that organization.—Edmonton Bulletin.

Turns Page In History

British Girl Retains Nationality Although Married To Frenchman

An English girl of 21 has turned a new page in one of the English women's fight for equal rights with men.

Pur pretty Ina Glan, of Stanmore, Middlesex, has become Mme.—or rather Mrs. Lucien Albert of Paris—and retained her British nationality. She is the only Englishwoman to have married a Frenchman—or any foreigner—who has thrown into a trance-like sleep by a fright and slept for nineteen years and six months. This she always roused, was able to talk, but she was wasted to a skeleton, and died five months later. The record is that of Wilhelm Lee, American, a farmer called Harms. He came in one evening, tired after a long day's work, and fell asleep. He slept for twenty-six years. It was possible to rouse him to take food, but he could not stay awake more than a few minutes. Harry Price, director of the National physical laboratory, said he had collected a library of 12,000 books about magic, and not one contained any genuine evidence about the trick.

Sir Francis Griffin, formerly an inspector-general of police in India, imputed belief in the rope trick to the power of evil suggestion, like the impressionable American lady of travel who said the most remarkable thing she had seen in India was the sun setting behind the Aga Khan.

British Aviatrix On Visit

Amy Mollison Made Short Stay In New York

Fueling "very" on Amy Mollison, British aviatrix, arrived on the liner Majestic for a short visit in New York.

Since the crash in Connecticut of the plane in which she and her husband, James Mollison, made a record-breaking crossing of the Atlantic in 1933, she had done little flying, she said; "just a little for my own pleasure."

She said that she and Mollison were looking forward with enthusiasm to the England-Australian air races next October in which they will participate.

"It isn't that," said Mark, "I am moving again."

Indian Rope Trick A Myth

Occult Committee Says No One Has Ever Seen It

As the result of a solemn inquest held by the Occult committee of the Magic Circle—a group of bona fide specialists—the Indian rope trick today passes under a headstone officially chisled "myth".

Nobody, evidence before the committee showed, has ever performed the rope trick—wherein an Indian fakir is supposed to cast a long rope perpendicularly into the air, whereafter a boy nimbly climbs out of view into the heavens. Nobody has proclaimed who had seen the trick done. So, in effect, the occultists found that neither the rope nor the story will "stand up". The fakirs offered $2,500 to anyone who will perform the feat.

Hoiow Indin was scoured and large rewards were offered futilely for a rope trickster when King George and Queen Mary toured India during their reign was told by Sidney Clarke, chairman of the Magic Circle.

Even the great Nizam of Hyderabad, with limitless resources, was unable to locate a fakir who could do the rope trick, when asked to provide one for a giant garden party, related his friend, Sir Michael O'Dwyer. In 25 years in India, Sir Michael never found anyone who had seen the trick.

Harry Price, director of the National physical laboratory, said he had collected a library of 12,000 books about magic, and not one contained any genuine evidence about the trick.

Sir Francis Griffin, formerly an inspector-general of police in India, imputed belief in the rope trick to the power of evil suggestion, like the impressionable American lady of travel who said the most remarkable thing she had seen in India was the sun setting behind the Aga Khan.

Machine Reads Minds

Crough Paper Takes Record Of Reactions On Brain

The old story about the walls of jerry-built houses being so thin that you could hear your neighbor changing his mind seems likely to come true—if not the truth. An invention created by Dr. Alexander Cannon records any mental reaction, and consists of described as "a machine attached to a human subject. The reactions of the brain are recorded on graph paper. Simple emotions like surprise, hate, are recorded, and the machine also registers mental fatigue, the capacity of the mind, reaction to tension or concentration, suicidal tendencies, and whether the subject is telling the truth or lying. Cannon claims that it shows that waltz music is soothing, and that it relieves asthma by inducing regular breathing. It is also claimed that it proves telepathy to be a physical fact.

Sergeant Forehead Of R.C.M.P. Excels With Rifle And Revolver

The crack shot of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police, according to the annual report of their forces tabled in the House of Commons, is Acting Sergeant D. E. Furslund, who serves in "K" (Alberta) division.

Not only does Sergeant Forslund excel with the rifle, but he also is a mere marksman with the revolver. He is the present holder of the Connaught cup. While attending an instructional class at Regina he fired a course and secured a possible 240 points.

FRANCE DENIES HAVING PLOTTED AGAINST HITLER

Berlin.—France, through her ambassador here, formally and vigorously denied anew involved in the plot against Chancellor Adolf Hitler's government which was broken up by the weekend executions.

The denial was given out and it was stated a formal protest will be made to the German government after the Nazi press had accused the late General Kurt von Schleicher of having dealings with France.

The killing of Von Schleicher, who in 1932 was chancellor for 56 days, was justified, the newspapers insisted, on the basis of "the heinous crime of entering into negotiations with France, thereby giving the idea to Paris that the Nazi system is not going to last."

French Ambassador Andre Francois-Poncet declared the charges are "absurd fable", and protested strongly against the "great prominences" given to the story by German newspapers.

Hitler had accused some of the plotters of negotiating with a "foreign power" in a statement of speculation as to what country was meant.

The German newspapers' story accused Von Schleicher, one of those executed by Hitler's men, of having dealings with France while he was chancellor in 1932.

French Foreign Minister Louis Barthou was a friend of executed the Von Schleicher plot to the British at Geneva, May 30.

"Hitler's enemies are numbered," Barthou was represented as saying.

In addition to the French envoy, the British and American ambassadors have called at the foreign office.

Meanwhile, it was revealed by officials of the Nazi party that Chancellor Hitler's dictatorship is of 2,000,000 storm troopers, among whose leaders the death of firing squads fell thickest, is doomed.

These officials confirmed reports that after the inevitable vacancies the place of storm troopers in German life will be greatly changed, indicating less than 20 per cent. of the men will be retained.

Further Arrests Ordered

Revolution In Germany Said To Be By No Means Over

Vienna.—The arrest, under order of Chancellor Adolf Hitler, of three reich cabinet ministers, including Elts Von Rusbenach, was reported from Munich by telegraph.

Persistent reports that the "second revolution" was by no means over were heard here as the Nazi storm Legionaires fleeing from Bavaria. They said they understood nearly 3,000 storm troop chiefs had been arrested.

Travellers said a "revolutionary committee," composed of the friends and relatives of the slain chief of staff, Ernst Roehm, and Berlin-Brandenburg Leader Karl Ernst, had been formed in Munich.

Will Sail From England For Churchill July 28

Regina.—The pilot will hail the freighter "Dalworth", of the Dalgleish line, about August 1 when she noses into the icy waters of Churchill, Manitoba, to unload cargo from Britain, and to load grain for the return.

Posters state that the "Dalworth" will sail from River Tyne, England, ports July 28 and from Antwerp, Belgium, July 30.

The "Dalworth" is expected to be the first ship in Churchill this year. If cargoes are offered other Dalgleish line freighters will call.

Starts Insurance Plan

Fund For Unemployed Being Tried Out In Wisconsin

Madison, Wis.—Wisconsin is watching progress of its latest social experiment—unemployment insurance.

The compulsory law became effective July 1. Every Wisconsin employer who has given work to at least 10 persons for 18 weeks must make contributions to the insurance fund, and employees may submit voluntary plans which, if approved by the industrial commission, may be used in place of the compulsory act.

Until the fund amounts to $55 reserve per employee the premium under the act will be two per cent. of the payroll. When it amounted to $55 but less than $75 reserve the rate will be one per cent.; and when $75 or more contributions will cease unless the employer desires to provide more adequate reserves for his men.

Will Not Change Policies

Japanese Foreign Policies Still Not Subject To Change

Tokyo. — Assurance that Japan's fundamental naval, military and foreign policies will not undergo radical changes were given in official quarters as newly appointed Premier Admiral Keisuke Okada sought to construct his cabinet.

Koki Hirota accepted reappointment as foreign minister. There were also assurances that the ministers of the old Saito cabinet, General Hayashi of the war department, and Mineo Osumi, minister of marine, will be continued in their posts in the new cabinet.

The conservative newspapers stated that naval leaders were displeased with the selection of Okada as premier. They regard him like warm to many of their policies.

Pension Plan For Workers

Committee Has Approved Canadian National's New Project

Montreal.—A joint committee of company officers and representatives of employees has approved a new pensions plan for Canadian National Railways employees to take effect October 1, 1933, it is announced in the Canadian National Railways magazine.

The new plan, which has a contributor provision in addition to providing basic and service pensions on retirement at 65 years, covers all employees of the company except those under the Inter-colonial railway and Prince Edward Island employees provident fund and the Grand Trunk superannuation and provident fund. Employees in the I.C.R. and P.E.I. funds are expected to be given the option of coming under the new plan.

Minimum basic subsistence pensions, gradually increased as employee solely at the expense of the company. This may be supplemented by joint contributions by the company and by the employee. An employee may contribute from one to 10 per cent. of his salary after 10 years' service. If not more than five per cent. the company will match the employee's contribution.

Provision for gratuities are to be administered by a board of seven members, four of whom will represent the company and three the employees.

WESTERN FARM AREAS BENEFITED BY HEAVY RAINS

Ottawa.—A further improvement in prairie crop conditions occurred during the last week, according to the crop report issued by the Dominion bureau of statistics.

Precipitation was fairly general over the farming districts and was usually heavy in some localities, the report stated.

The area which benefited most were northern and eastern Manitoba, crop districts of central and northern Saskatchewan and the Alberta districts south of Calgary and between Calgary and Edmonton.

Eighteen points had precipitation during the week, the report said, with Prince Albert, Sask., registering 3.1 inches. Unfortunately, the precipitation in Ontario, the most westerly area of all three provinces and severe damage was caused to promising crops. Districts in which there were in northeastern Manitoba, central Saskatchewan and south-western and west-central Alberta.

"Since the first sown wheat crops are now headed and most of the remainder will be heading within a week, indications of an early harvest, except in central and northern Alberta, are generally stated. In these latter areas growth has been slow and warm weather is needed. Grass prospects are being kept under good control by the timely use of the silver export embargo in that country was due to information that international speculators were making large shipments to indefinite foreign destinations. He cited one shipment labelled "Shanghai to Vancouver and return."

History was made at Geneva recently—and by a woman. She is Mrs. Corbett Ashby, above, who was the lone representative of Britain at the General Commission of the Disarmament Conference. Never before has a woman been a great power's only delegate. While the Conference was discussing security, Mrs. Corbett Ashby declared that Great Britain could not take part in any security pacts outside her Locarno commitments.

Automobile Exports

Canadian Cars Are Being Shipped To Australia

Ottawa. — Some movement has been noted in the export trade of Canadian automobiles to the United Kingdom recently and a very substantial improvement in the trade to South Africa, officials of the department of trade and commerce stated here. The development has been particularly noticeable during the past few weeks.

The demand from South Africa is due to the improved economic conditions in that country because of the high price of gold. The departmental advices are that the entire shipping space immediately available has been contracted.

The reason Canadian cars are playing such a part in the trade with South Africa is said to be based on understanding between certain United States parent companies and Canadian subsidiaries giving the latter the South African market.

Silver Cargo

Shipment Valued At $663,000 Consigned To New York

Vancouver.—A shipment of silver, valued at $663,000, which has been teetering between Shanghai and New York, had been definitely consigned to New York and was being loaded here on board the freighter Pacific Shipper for forwarding via the Panama canal.

The shipment arrived here June 20 on the Empress of Japan and was transferred to the dock circles to be one referred to by Secretary Henry Morgenthau of the United States Treasury when he declared the sudden dwindling down of the silver export embargo in that country was due to information that international speculators were making large shipments to indefinite foreign destinations. He cited one shipment labelled "Shanghai to Vancouver and return."

Policy Will Be Changed

United States Is Dropping Control Over Its Livestock

Washington.—Circumstances alter cases for the United States agricultural adjustment administration, which is planning broad changes in its policies.

Such strokes of nature as the drouth are helping re-shape the farm administration programs.

The program next year is expected to call for:

Abandonment of control over livestock production.

A plan for storing grain on farms, possibly under government seal. Loans might be made on this grain.

Officials believe regulation of the feed supplies will automatically control raising of animals.

Avoid Trade War

Great Britain And Germany Sign Agreement

London.—Great Britain and Germany decided to trade war for at least six months by signing an agreement providing for the payment of interest on German and British loan bonds held by British subjects.

The agreement extends six months from July 1, the day the German moratorium on all foreign obligations became effective.

Other long and medium term obligations held in Great Britain which are mostly commercial, will not be serviced during the moratorium, under the terms of the agreement.

Germany agreed to deposit British currency in the Bank of England for payment of interest due from Dawes and Young loan bonds.

In return, Britain will not apply the new clearing house plan under which the government would have been able to seize a portion of German commercial funds for the benefit of bondholders.

LEVY PLAN FOR MEAT IMPORTS IS NOT FAVORED

London.—An import levy plan tending a guaranteed price, and limitation of imports from both the Dominions and foreign countries with a view to helping the Dominions and financial assistance to producers in dustries is understood to have been the subject of discussion at a meeting of the most conference of the colonial office. The discussions were described as friendly but vigorous and it is understood the plan, submitted by the United Kingdom government, fell far short of meeting the approval of the representatives of the Dominions.

The conference is considering a revision of the meat clauses of the empire trade pacts which come up for review this year and are of concern to Australia, New Zealand and Southern Rhodesia but of less direct interest to Canada. Canada is represented at the meeting, however, along with the Irish Free State.

It was suggested the British plan could be operated with the same sort of machinery provided in the trade agreement inasmuch as it is based on the same principle, namely, an agreed restriction of imports from exporting countries. It would apply to mutton and lamb as well as beef.

The levy imposed on imported meat would be on a basis which would give the Dominions a 50 per cent. preference over foreign countries. The proceeds the levy would be used to provide financial assistance for home producers.

It is understood the Dominions are not opposed to the imposition of a quota on their shipments but look upon the question of the proposed levy as a very serious consideration. The quota there would be arrived at by the British government after receive a recitation of their exports to the figures used in discussions at the Ottawa imperial conference which have so far been far exceeded in practice.

Official circles regarded it as possible an agreement might be reached with the Argentine to provide for a quota and levy but the latter would only be effected by the Argentine agreeing to waive the preventative clause in last year's trade agreement between the two countries.

Before the next meeting of the conference the Dominions' representatives will seek the views of their governments on the latest British proposals.

Protection Of London

Subways And Underground Railways Guarded Against Attacks

London.—Questioned in the House of Commons on German preparations for bacteriological and other methods of warfare described by Wickham Steed in the Nineteenth Century Review" Lord President Baldwin of Stanley Baldwin made guarded replies.

"I have seen allegations to the effect in a published article," he said, "but they have been officially denied by the German government."

Mr. Baldwin said the protection of subways and underground railways as well as aerial defence of the capital were in the care of special departments.

NEW FEDERAL MEASURES SOON TO BE EFFECTIVE

Ottawa.—Cabinet council entered upon the task of building up the necessary machinery to carry out the involved proposals authorized by legislation at the parliamentary session just closed. The set-up of the marketing legislation, the farm debt relief scheme and the central bank will all be matters of immediate consideration.

It is understood that establishment of a central bank will be delayed only so long as it takes to secure men with the necessary qualifications to head it.

Undoubtedly the first grocery will be imported from Great Britain since it has been made clear on more than one occasion that it would be extremely difficult, if not impossible to find a Canadian to fill the post.

It is possible, if a Canadian banker of the right type can be induced to head the new bank, he will be sent to London and other centres where central banks are in operation in order to study methods, so that the machine to keep the staff purely Canadian may be realized.

Numerous inquiries are pouring into the various departments with respect to the marketing and debt adjustment legislation and no time will be lost in implementing those measures, it was stated.

Prime Minister R. B. Bennett will be back in Calgary for a fortnight's absence. It is understood Rt. Hon. Sir George Perley will be acting prime minister during Mr. Bennett's absence.

San Francisco Riots

Violent Battles Between Police And Strikers On Waterfront

San Francisco. — Violent battles raged on the San Francisco waterfront as strike pickets fought bandto-hand over an area a mile square with police amid roaring blasts from patrol cars, riot guns and the stinging fumes from tear gas bombs.

Two of the strikers, seeking to enforce a blockade of the port of San Francisco—tied up since May 9 by a longshoremen's strike—fell mortally wounded. Thirty-one other persons were shot, and 38 more suffered gas and club injuries requiring hospital or physicians' treatment.

Two thousand police, and deputies, ordered by Governor Frank Merriam to safeguard state-owned property, moved into the strife-torn area. The situation had quieted.

A gutter near the strikers' headquarters ran red with blood as the two wounded strikers lay helpless until ambulances made their way through the streets.

Taking protection behind telephone poles, police opened fire directly at the strikers. Pickets broke away, shouted threats and officers answered by blasts from their pistols and shotguns.

Edmonton.—Member of the United Farmers of Alberta government caucus, Hon. Robert Gardiner Reid, provincial treasurer and minister of lands and mines, has succeeded Hon. J. E. Brownlee as premier of Alberta.

Mr. Brownlee's retirement from the premiership carried with it the resignation of his entire cabinet, and Mr. Reid subjected his new cabinet would be built around the old.

Vermilion Fair

Promises to be Bigger And Better

With a meeting of the directors of the Vermilion Agricultural Society called for Saturday night next to complete details of operation of the Fair, the 25th. annual exhibition promises to be far and away bigger and better than that of last year.

Given good weather the Fair should stand out as the most successful event of its kind in northern Alberta, with all other B class fairs out of existence It is hoped that the people of the Vermilion district will support the Fair in larger numbers than ever before. Everything possible has been done by the directors to make the Fair outstanding and, with the co-operation of the people, there should be no difficulty in putting it over in good style.

The $200.00 baseball tournament has drawn an entry of the more outstanding teams from the district, and promises to be the tournament de luxe of northern Alberta; with $400. offered as rare purses and the races being conducted on the Alberta circuit we are assured of a good entry of speedy nags and some good sport should be the order of the day. The pari-mutuels will be operated and everyone will have the opportunity to back his or her favorite.

The locally owned and operated midway is again catering to the sport loving people and the buildings have been completely renovated with a coat of paint. The merry-go-round has also been dolled up and should prove attractive to the kiddies.

Dances will be held in the pavilion both nights and altogether everything is being done to make Vermilion's FAIR DAYS the outstanding days of the year

Advance tickets, good for either date or grandstand, may be bought at local stores or from any director of the fair and, in addition to the savings effected in buying tickets this way, the purchasers have the opportunity to win valuable prizes consisting of a twenty dollar in trade at Bobby's Haberdashery, a smoking stand and silver tea basket etc. Buy your tickets — you take a chance and enjoy the fair — surviving B Class Fairs in northern Alberta

A record railroad run of 380 miles in four hours nineteen minutes giving an average of more than 90 m.p.h. over the whole distance, including two stops—was achieved by a Diesel-engined "railroad Zep" on a trial run from Berlin to Cologne

A maximum speed of more than 110 m.p.h. was attained

It is intended next year to open a regular service between Berlin and Cologne, the schedule for the distance being four hours, as compared with seven hours taken by the fastest steam train

A "railroad Zep" service to Hamburg has been in operation some months, the time for the 195-mile journey being two hours twenty minutes

Boat Driven By Car

Idea Being Tried Out On Thames In England

A strange craft was seen undergoing trials on the Thames recently at Putney, England. It consisted of a large, flat-bottomed punt containing a four-cylinder motor car with a 12 h.p. engine, from which the punt derives its motive power

Paddles are fixed to the rear wheels of the car, which are jacked up off the bottom of the punt, and these wheels, set revolving with the running of the car engine cause the paddles to cleave the water. The motor car has only to drive his car on to the punt and couple up

Religion and Science

Sir Charles Saunders Says One Is Complementary To The Other

The dispute between religion and science is "humbug" in the opinion of Sir Charles Saunders, Dominion Government cerealist and discoverer of several varieties of wheat, including Marquis.

In his first address since he was knighted in the King's birthday honors list, Sir Charles at Toronto told the Legal Education of Te Round Table, of which he is honorary knight "There cannot be any conflict between religion and science. Religion theorizes about the deity and science studies his works.

Provided each keeps to its own work, they are complementary and supplementary to each other."

He added that the dispute between the church and science is humbug There is no need for it unless the church is unwilling it has no business to say, as in the case of Darwin, or science says something about God who has not yet been a subject for study by science."

Man In England Announces Use For Old Razor Blades

There is one man at least who has solved the question that torments hundreds of families—what to do with used razor blades

Moreover, he is prepared to take other people's old razor blades and turn them for the general good! He is Mr M J Harvey, borough surveyor at Hythe, England

Mr Harvey has hit on the ingenious idea of using safety razor blades to keep down the weeds in the Royal Military canal

An official of Mr Harvey's department said that scores of them are carried to and fro a long way, which is weighted with lead

A workman on each side of the canal then drags the contraption through the water and good-by, weeds! The device has been found so effective that there is hardly a weed in the canal and the old method of cutting them from a barge has been dispensed with.

The resident secretary in a provincial town was one of the big theatrical companies was entertaining his general manager one day and suggested a game of golf, which invitation was accepted. It so happened that the secretary was in unusually good form at the time he arrived at the first hole. ELIJAH HEARS GOD'S VOICE

Golden text: "Speak, Lord; for Thy servant hears"—1 Samuel 3:9.
Lesson: I Kings 19:8-21.
Devotional reading: Psalm 37:1-5.

Explanations And Comments

Elijah's Lament at Horeb, verse 9, 10. A week ago we left Elijah on his way to Horeb. Now he has reached of his destination and we are told about his experiences there. He lodged, ate and drank, by word of Jehovah's command. Then he was strengthened by means of a vividly realistic dialogue between Jesus and Satan through what struggles of mind Jesus passed, as he by the Old Testament by a similar method, a dialogue between God and Elijah, we get a glimpse of what passed in the depths of the prophet's soul.

"Elijah had been the chief actor in a stirring drama, but as soon as the footlights he had to find his bearings in a new situation. In retreat from the wrath of Jezebel he was overtaken by such a doubt as vexed the soul of Hamlet. 'The world is out of joint: O cursed spite that ever I was born to set it right!' But, unlike Hamlet, the prophet had a refuge. He found his way to Horeb, that sanctuary of nature curtained by clouds, that temple of Jehovah not made with hands. And there he sought to wrestle things out in the presence of God and to find a policy in accordance with the divine will."

"What dost thou here?" was the word to Elijah. Did it mean that Elijah had come to Horeb because there Moses had communed with God, and he also, like Moses, hoped that he could meet God anywhere?

The Cure of Despondency, verses 15-18. God recommended Elijah. The poet he had thought to lay down his sword but, He must now to the refuge of the cave and get to work. He was not out of the fight by any means, was more for him to do. There were three leaders to be found and trained for the work. On the way to Damascus there is Hazael (now a general of Benhadad) to be anointed king over Syria, and Jehu (an officer in the army of Israel) is to be anointed king over Israel, and Elisha is to be anointed as prophet to take the place of Elijah himself.

Little Journeys In Science

THE LIVING CELL

(By Gordon H. Guest, M.A.)

To Robert Hooke, an English botanist, goes the credit for the discovery of the cell. It was about the middle of the seventeenth century that this scientist, while examining a piece of cork under the newly discovered microscope, observed that it was made up of a number of shrivelled bits, which he named "cells". Other scientists continued to study these cells but it was not until one hundred and fifty years later that Brown and Dujardin commenced to study the contents of these cells

These scientists saw there as an agglomeration of very small bags, which were independent of each other but contained a substance which they called "protoplasm". Protoplasm possesses the property of changing the materials received from the blood stream, oxygen and food, into living matter. How this change is brought about is still a mystery. All that science knows is that water and bread, for example, contain the same atoms as the constituents of science. Food causes the cells of living organisms to grow and increase in number, whereas poisons bring about their destruction.

When examined under the microscope the cell is seen to consist of a nucleus surrounded by the protoplasm, the latter being a more or less viscous translucent material. The whole cell is held together by a protective membrane which is similar to the protoplasm in nature. In certain organisms, however, we sometimes find that this membrane is missing and that the cells are simply held together by some very protective coating In these cells are found traces of carbon, oxygen, nitrogen, hydrogen, sulphur, phosphorus, nickel, zinc, arsenic, iodine, even titanium, vanadium and molybdenum—perhaps others. Because why and in what way with assurance what elements exactly enter into the construction of a living cell.

Science has discovered very little as yet about the nature of protoplasm, because no microscope does the men of science attempt to analyse it than it [illegible] Examination of [illegible] gives no further clue to the phenomenon called life

Scientists cannot agree on the number of cells of an adult human being Some say a billion billions others estimate it at only sixty billion

SYNOPSIS

Camilla, Hoyt and Peter Anson, young and in love, marry secretly, deciding to live their own lives apart until Peter is able to provide for her. Peter is a young, struggling sculptor trying to win a competition for a scholarship abroad and Camilla is the adopted daughter of a wealthy family. She is not to inherit money when she comes of age and so is studying commercial art in the hope of landing a position. Others in the story are Avis Wreth, another sensitive girl who is loved by Peter, Peter Sylvia Todd, Peter's mother, and Cleo Baton, his former roommate with whom he has since quarrelled. After a party at an extensive club when the rest of the members of the party go to a cabaret to continue the gaiety, Peter and Camilla slip off to the beach by themselves and talk of love and marriage. Camilla is not in early morning and Avis and another boy are discovered there. This makes it necessary for Camilla to announce the marriage. Peter and she and Peter are married Camilla urges Peter to accept some of her earrings to help free the plane, but Peter refuses and they elope. After Camilla sends a telegram to her father Avis Wreth calls and persuades Peter to accept a loan of $1,000 to help him exhibit and make Avis and Camilla free companions as in a home for it. Camilla suggests "Pagan Youth." Avis suggests "Freedom." Peter adopts the latter title and Camilla, hearing of it, rushes to the studio for quiet and to think. Peter and Avis are together as the two lights are turned on, see the statue has been given the name "Freedom" and is stunned by the discovery.

At Camilla's suggestion, Peter enters as his exhibit a statue he had sculptured secretly before he met Camilla, entitled "Lust." They named it "Lust of Gold".

Camilla's advertising campaign was a success from the beginning, and it was arranged to have radio broadcasts, in addition to newspaper advertising. Camilla is to write the Tiny Tots stories and to deliver them over the radio.

(Now Go On With The Story)

HELPFUL LIE

It was arranged that the author of the Tiny Tots stories should remain unknown until her radio debut, when she would be introduced to the public by her sponsor, the president of the Wheatheart Cereal corporation. Who interested public did not know was that her identity was not even known to her indirect employer, Julian Hoyt, the amazing stroke of meeting this mysterious individual who had so turned the tide of his fortunes. Hoyt was an agent, and resignedly agreed to wait with his public for an introduction.

In fact, the affair rather pleased his fancy, added a touch of mystery to his prosaic routine, which had been somewhat depressing during the past years.

The rejuvenation of his business was like an elixir of life to him; it stimulated his imagination and ambition as they never had been in his experience. Like all things that are precious, he had almost to lose his business, his pride, his ambition, before he discovered how much he valued them. And the day drew ever nearer when he would meet and introduce this mythical creator of the Tiny Tots to his fast-growing radio audience, he found himself almost as excited and expectant as a young man approaching his wedding day.

But before that event took place another important day added its quota of excitement to Camilla's series of startling events.

She had not seen Avis since the evening of the party at the studio, when the statue was destroyed. They had avoided each other by mutual consent, and neither had discussed the other with Peter, who was seeing both of them regularly.

He had gone to the Wreth's to tea as Avis had arranged, played the part of the artistic artist and professional adviser with admirable charm and finesse. He discovered the possibility of no less than three pieces for which the models were spacious and beautifully landscaped. The rose garden nestled a fountain figure, the rock garden a frail woodnymph and the English formal garden presented an idea for a symbolic group of the seasons, done in white marble.

Mrs. Wreth was favorably impressed and remarked when he had gone: "That's the fellow with good sense Avis! Hoyt managed a secret marriage? I can begin to understand why Camilla Hoyt finally approved and accepted him. Charming boy, and I've no doubt he has talent. His quiet modesty is most becoming. Why don't you get interested in someone like that? A girl with your experience could do a lot for an ambitious man. I could see you happy as a sun-in-law like that."

"Give me time, mother," Avis shrugged. "Men like Peter are not picked up at every tea dance and golf tournament. They are discovered After a party at an extensive club when the rest of the members of the party go to a cabaret to continue the gaiety, Peter and Camilla slip off to the beach by themselves and talk of love and marriage. Man In England Sells Bees' Stings For Rheumatism

All spring and summer he wanders through the small villages and hamlets, carrying on his back a large black box which emits a loud buzzing noise.

The box contains bees, whose main duty is to sting his rheumatic clients. Storey's sting is the prize exhibit, and he finds plenty of people willing to offer an arm or leg to a budding bee.

A reporter found Mr. Storey walking along a road between Swinford and Culdrose, in Leicestershire His box hummed rhythmically to his stride

"The faith in bee-stings as a remedy for rheumatism and neuritis is unshaken among most of Britain's country folk," he said. "I never fail to arrive in the smallest hamlet to find plenty of customers. I prepare a small place on the victim's arm or leg with antiseptic, and place the bee in a tiny wire cage on the spot. Then I strike the bee with a straw till it becomes really angry, and stings in self-defence Naturally, I have to be prepared to counter a sting or two as anyone. I dare my that he is rather fond of me."

Mrs. Storey struggled with past-generation scruples which swayed precociously into the realm of modern convenience. "Well, I can't say either of them is a dollar to their names. I could make Peter what he wants to be."

"Only by breaking him first breaking his ideals about love and marriage. And I don't think you would have much luck to work on, if you did that to Peter"

"And that from our most noted playgirl!" Avis exclaimed in mock horror. "What has Terry been doing to you, anyway?"

"Tend'le surprised!" she rejoined with a dazzling smile. "Nothing I didn't" Avis saw a place to trade a straight left

We continue to get a plentiful supply of moisture, the crop looks good and the early wheat fields are headed

Mr and Mrs. Geo Bryant and Mrs. Markenzie are back with us again, after spending a holiday with Mrs. McKenzie's folks, the Eskenazi of Wetaskiwin. They also stayed awhile with Mr. and Mrs Carl McKinnon at Pidgeon Lake. Carl and Hene are managing a beauty parlor at Pidgeon Lake

We saw several of the Manns ball players sticking out their chests at us recently, and all because they took first money from their friendly rivals (Vermilion) at the Mannville sports recently.

Mr George Chalmers is kind of in the doldrums these days. After watching hard organizing his football league, several teams kind of "backfired" and quit. Come on, Grosser old man, don't let those lazy boys quit on us. Geo tells us he is in doubt about your team continuing. However, knowing the manager like we do, we hope Geo is mistaken

THE STANDARD
VERMILION - - ALBERTA
ESTABLISHED 1908
Published every Thursday Afternoon at the Office, Main St.
E. R. P. COOPER — EDITOR.
Vermilion, Alta., July 19, 1934.

The re-opening of the school of Agriculture at Vermilion for the fall term seems to be distinctly within the bounds of possibility. The news will be received with general satisfaction throughout the district as the large number of enquiries being received by the government and boards of trade in the northern section of Alberta served by this school, clearly indicates that there is a general desire on the part of the people to see the institution again performing the functions for which it was created.

The large delegation made up of prominent farmers and business men from different parts of the district, who waited on the government Tuesday, speak very enthusiastically of the generous response they received from the government. They were assured that the matter entirely depended on the possibility of a satisfactory enrollment of students for the fall term The government was advised by the delegation that there would be no difficulty in that respect, and pledged their utmost co-operation and support to that end.

The matter now appears to rest with the people in the northern section of Alberta who are interested in the opening of this institution or who wish to avail themselves of the training made available by the operation of the School of Agriculture

It is hoped that everyone in the district will take a personal interest in the matter. Parents of prospective students should get into touch with W. J Elliott, principal of the school of Agriculture as early as possible. The board of trade has placed their services at the disposal of the district, and will be glad to assist anyone who wishes information or advice

The general improvement in business conditions and the increased level of farm commodity prices, together with the present indications of a bountiful harvest make a very appropriate setting for the re-opening

The Salvation Army Citadel was well filled last Sunday evening when Lieutenant Mitchelmore, who has just graduated from the Salvation Army Training College, was welcomed into Vermilion. DEWBERRY BUDGET

(Too late for last week)

Since last writing the Orange Lodge members organized a good sports day and credit is due to those brethren who took charge that day and made the picnic a success. The weather was fine and the ball teams put on some good games. The Etobicoya baseball walloped Greenlawn, and then drew with the Dewberry girls. After an extra innings the Dewberry team proved the winners.

In regard to the men's ball games, Fairmead and Lauderville were in the finals and the rooting was as interesting as the game. We must hand it to the Lauderville bunch and say they kept smiling through all the suggestions of what was going to happen when at the bat. Just as Tom Hudson was told "You'll never hit it Tom" -Tom sent that ball nearly out of the grounds and scored a home run.

The tennis games on as usual.

It was pleasing to see some of the philosophy of Robbie Burns in the Standard and we wish to thank the correspondent for Half Lake for inserting the same into the papers. Muddy roads it seems were common even in those poor days long before Fords and other kinds of cars were invented. The trouble is that these "observers of Pleasing" that fall over the grain fields Have a nasty habit of spreading some of the matter over the graded roads, and M. D. councillors being human (very) have no control over the behaviour of the clouds. May we quote another "bit o' Burns" in the Budget. Is this Eldable in a Young Friend" in which the immortal Bob gives some sound advice to the young man starting out in the world, amongst other bits of advice he states that mankind being "once weak" will no doubt cause some grief to his young friend:

"Tho' no say men are always a'."
The road, he tells us, is rough
Who hon nae check but human law,
Are to a few restricted.
But och! Mankind are unco weak
And little to be trusted
When SELF the wavering balance shakes
It's seldom right adjusted."

Yes, muddy roads and the "unco weak" are still with us, and clouds, insinuations and human nature are much the same as in Burns' time; being good and bad is often a matter of time and place and circumstances.

Last Wednesday (July 4th) the young folk of Greenlawn held their picnic on the farm of Pete Holman, where some good games of ball were played between Riverton and Dewberry. Unfortunately a cloudburst washed the grounds and about supper time causing a hurried finish to a pleasant afternoon.

Mr. and Mrs. Richardson has returned to his home in Regina and Ed Callister is now in charge of the elevator for the British American Oils Co.

Mrs. E. Wixon, one of the early settlers of the township, is on a visit to Dewberry, meeting many friends. Jim may be here with his motor and is surely kid and having a good time with his old pals and some new ones. We wish them a happy holiday during their stay in the district.

INSURANCE needs may be discussed during Fair days; our office will be pleased to assist. See F. C. Newbert for Dependable Insurance 12tf

POLICE COURT

BEFORE A. E. KAISER, POLICE MAGISTRATE

J. M. Enfield vs. Gus Schiek, small debt action. Same was settled by the payment of claim and costs.

The King vs. George W. Hess, a charge of keeping liquor for sale unlawfully, was adjourned till Saturday, July 21st at 2 p.m.

Simon Maxwell vs. Eddie Monroe. Charged with the stealing of a horse. Monroe pleaded guilty and was sentenced to one year in Fox Saskatchewan and with hard labor. This horse had been gained by Maxwell for about a year. Maxwell's family is now living in Lloydminster and a member of the family identified the horse, investigation leading to the apprehending of the accused who pleaded guilty.

Corporal Olsen vs. James McAlwee for fraudulently taking possession or astray horses. Defendant was given six months suspended sentence, ordered to impound the horses and report to the officer within 24 hours.

Gus Schirk vs. Mrs. Ivan Pruud. Charged with the theft of one buggy. The evidence was so clouded with inconsistencies that the Court dismissed the charge against the accused with the costs against the plaintiff.

Despite the warnings and the lectures that those who trade in horses have not up to them, horses are bought and sold without ever trying to find out whether the seller has any right in the property he is disposing of. The result is that sooner or later the matter comes under investigation and the holder is out the horse and anything he may have paid for it. The old saying is as true today as it was when first quoted: He who meddleth with things not belonging to him, sooner or later will come to grief.

TURKEY HILL TID-BITS

Hello, readers! Here comes Turkey Hill again, seeding pen room in your paper. We regret to say we have been missing from it for some time past.

All farmers, old and young alike, are anxiously watching the hail stones. Some crops were injured slightly in recent storms which swept the district, but on the whole good crops are anticipated. The berry patches seem to call us to them these days. Some have gathered large quantities of fruit already and have been more wary days of picking to come yet. We hear moans on all sides of sore backs and blistered arms.

The young people are busy, too, practising ball for the surrounding picnic days. Practically all of us attended the big picnics at Union and Woodvale. Our boys played an exciting game at Union, winning with a score of 10-3 but the team bested dis arranged as a result of the accident to Harry Beaman, our catcher, who suffered a sprained ankle while sliding into third, suffered defeat at the hands of Kehoe at Woodvale on 11th The girls however succeeded in carrying away the softball prize. We wish to thank members of the above districts for their kind invitations and for the ways in which we were so ably entertained, both in the afternoons and at the dances which were fully enjoyed by the young people of this district.

We are now enjoying a visit from Mr. Wm. Hayes, formerly of Turkey Hill. We are glad to see you looking so well, Billy.

We all sympathize with Mr. J. McLeod, who is at present in the hospital; with Mr. A. Gobeen, who may be seen among us with his right arm in a sling; with Mr. H. Taylor, who has his leg in a cast, and with Mr. Harry Beamon, who, as mentioned before, has a sprained ankle. Hopes for a speedy recovery are extended to all.

Our basket picnic will be held on July 25th with softball and races, etc. A dance will be held in the school in the evening. McCaffery's orchestra. Everyone is requested to keep in mind this date and to attend. A good time is ensured all.

Funniest things heard: Leslie Pow will buying his boy pants at Union school. A certain party trying to borrow a pair of socks for the Woodvale dance. Please explain why you forgot them!

Goodyear Heavy Duty Tires have 6 full-width piles of Supertwist cords, and extra rubber lines on the tread and the side-walls. Can't you be surprised by our low prices.

WILDMERE WHIRLS

First of all we must correct an error in last week's "Winks." Wildmere Community Club dance should have read July 20th and not the 27th as printed. Sorry, folks, but mistakes will happen, you know.

Last Wednesday, July 11th, Beaumont Tigers went to Clairville to play ball. They were defeated by Clairmore. Mr. Howard, Wildmere, took them up by truck. Anyhow they enjoyed seeing the other teams play.

Mr. and Mrs. J. Burke and family, Miss Violet Dolford and William (Ian took in the Woodvale picnic and dance last Wednesday.

Misses Marion and Alice Gibson and Mary Gibbons are holidaying for a week with the farmers' sister, Mrs. L. Kenst, Lea Park, Alta.

Thos. Willens from Edmonton has been visiting this past week at the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. B. Wilson, Wildmere.

Mr. and Mrs. H. Hoyward were Sunday visitors at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Theo Cairns; Mr. and Mrs. Adam Smith visited Sunday evening at G. L. Wilson's, Wildmere.

George and John Wilson shipped a carload of cattle on Friday. A. Smith Jr. helping take them to town.

Hazelwood Social Club met at the school last Saturday evening with a good attendance. A game of softball was being enjoyed when Grace Crathern got hit in the eye with the ball, which brought to the game to a sudden end as she has quite a sore, black eye from it. All gathered in the school to talk over the affairs of their dance. Lunch was served at the close.

Triangle had another of its little community picnics last Saturday afternoon at the school. Quite a nice crowd turned out and a good time was enjoyed by all.

Mr. Rufus Bazzard of Rosebud, Alberta, is up visiting this week at the home of William Gow, Hazelwood.

A. Carlson returned home from Chinook Monday evening. He reports that it is very dry there, and that over so many poor souls are hailed out between here and Chinook. Sure to too bad.

Mr and Mrs. John Isley and daughter Mildred, of Triangle visited Sunday at their daughter's, Mrs. J. Butler, Hazelwood.

Quite a big surprise was given the writer of "Winks" Monday evening, July 16th when twenty friends gathered to wish her many happy returns of her birthday. Games were played at which nearly everyone joined. After which, you should have seen the eats... ice cream and all good things. Many thanks, folks, for all you; very nice and thoughtfulness. It was the first birthday party the writer ever had and she can honestly say that it surely enjoyed being the guest of honor.

The interest thing this week is on the writer herself, because on Friday the nearly everything was 13; printed 13 lbs. of butter and had a bunch of chickens to dress, when killed, discovered three were 13, too; and when we went to wrap them up, so: June 13th paper, and then "friend hubby" says "What day is this" and he "It is. wasn't Friday, 13th. Now. If we were superstitious... oh, boy!

TO OUR ADVERTISERS—

While the Standard appreciates all advertising patronage, it is especially appreciated when paid in advance or at least not later than the first issue of the week in which the advertisements in this paper appear. It is necessary to date these advertisements in this office but they are not published until the week specified. It would be a benefit to the advertiser as well as the paper if all changes in ads came in on Monday. In this way it is certain that there are no mistakes, and the entire staff is not rushed to the extreme limit in order to get the paper out on time. Changes or inserts of new ads sometimes occasionally but in a good many cases they could be made on Monday as well as at that attention is paid to them. Monday morning. Just keep in mind the necessity to have advertising copy in 22 to 24 hours before publication day, as one hour each day counts. Also remember that the Standard does not go to the mails early Friday morning, and many of them would not reach the buyers of the country until the following Tuesday morning. Co-operation is absolutely necessary that this standard be in the post office on Friday of each week. Any advertisement from the stand point at this time is useless as asked in having his advertising in not later than Tuesday noon and as much earlier as you like.

Thank you in anticipation

Economic News In Fashion

Periodically organizations throughout the country pass resolutions decrying the treatment of certain news by the public press but as a rule they are still at it. Much worse than the native land them for the simple reason that the press itself is the finest barometer of public opinion. Newspapers could not survive did they not interpret aright the desires of the public, though they could not exist as profit-making institutions if they attempted to force their views on the public rather than to reflect public view. The success of a daily newspaper depends on its ability to give the public what it wants. That is why sensational news becomes the criterion of success in the newspaper field.

The wants of the reading public change from time to time, and policies of the newspapers must vary with them. Hence, even fashions change, as readers of newspapers will undoubtedly find if they will but trouble to study the changes as they appear in the columns of the daily press.

A week or two ago H. R. Knickerbocker, well-known European correspondent of the Hearst organization, created a sensation by a series of articles in Hearst newspapers on the subject of the economic recovery of Great Britain in the course of which he said:

One of the most remarkable things that has happened to the American press since the depression started has been the public demand for economic news. Before 1929 nobody cared much, but when the slump hit America, it produced a passion for it.

Economic news now is considered as important as the latest sensational murder story. Whether the readers understand it or not, I don't know, but Americans have developed a sudden curiosity to know what is happening to the rest of the world. Consequently, newspapers make a regular feature of analyses of world economic news.

Students of newspaper trends and hews struck with this popularization of economic news in the United States, have traced it through the writings of Walter Lippmann perhaps the most famous of all the commentators of economic events in Canada, during the same period, a similar tendency has been manifested, and the manifestations perhaps have been more abundant for reasons which are not far to seek.

Recent provincial elections in British Columbia and Saskatchewan certainly have demonstrated the public interest in economic matters. The more abundant information on economic matters, more desirous of listening to economic discussion from the public platform than ever before.

This is primarily due to the fact that the trend of their dependence upon world markets has been brought home to the people of the prairie west with more directness than heretofore. They have become acutely aware of the fact that anything affecting the economic condition of the English textile worker, the French vineyard laborer, the coal-miner of Scotland or Wales, sooner or later, is reflected in their own economic condition. They know now that anything which affects the purchasing power of German, Austrian, Jap or Chinese wage-earner, must eventually be felt in their purses.

World economic news, therefore, has assumed new and more impressive proportions in the eyes of the Canadian people. The vital importance of a healthy world economy has become all too obvious. Consequently, when news turns bullish, when word comes that Britain is shuffling off the coils of long continued depression, when items partake of something more than the evanescent interest of the murder mystery or the sex-appeal story.

New political movements, too, have had their genesis in economic discontent. Indeed it is only natural that economic discussion should attract an ever widening public. The one drawback to the fascination lies in the fact that economics, so far, has not been reduced to an exact science, whose truisms can be set forth with the precision of mathematical formulae. For that reason, it is essential that economists in any specific theory should follow, not precede, complete study of economics, not as it has been advanced by some proponent of a particular doctrine, but as it has been reviewed throughout economic history. The truth cannot be determined by study of one set of theories, but by analysis of all theories so far advanced from those preceding Adam Smith to those of latter-day Socialists. Such analysis should be made one duly regard to practicability, as demonstrated by test in political history; not in the field of statecraft alone, but in the wider field of trade and commerce, particularly during the last century and a half.

Mosquitoes Hate Yellow

Avoid This Color But Adore Navy Blue And Red

If you would be free from mosquitoes, wear yellow. They simply hate it. If, however, you would like to receive the attentions of the little bloodsuckers, just wear navy blue, which they dote on. They are keen on dark green and also navy blue. Other, white and orange are pases and yellow makes them hilarious. These findings, made by the Canadian National Steamships have developed from recent studies and the company recommends yellow mats and pyjamas for the tropical travel where mosquitoes are liable to abound.

Reds Whole Hoiel

Wealthiest Man In World Pays Visit To England

The richest man in the world is shortly to pay a visit to London.

He is not an accidental magnate but a mighty Indian potentate, ruling over a state as large as England. He is His Highness the Nizam of Hyderabad.

This is his first visit to Europe and he will bring over an entourage of 300 people, which includes thirty-five of his wives, who enjoy the title of exalted Highness. They will be strictly in purdah, so no white man can look on their faces.

A special liner has been chartered and his envoys in advance are negotiating to take over a whole London luxury hotel.

Nobody knows the extent of the colossal wealth of the Nizam. Fantastic stories are current that the entire vaults of his palace extending for nearly two miles are lined with gold plates and bullion.

His rules over the millions of his subjects with a firm autocratic hand, which has more than once involved the interference of the British of India. Shortly after war some point in his administration was not satisfactory to the Nizam, and the white political official officer was sent along to Hyderabad to "advise and assist." The greatly incensed the Nizam.

Then something apparently went wrong with the Indian honory of the Hugs winds of Indian bearer bonds were being thrown on to the market by the Nizam's agents and acting on the stock exchanges of Bombay and Calcutta

The government tried to buy the bonds but they still continued piling in. The seller of the bonds was discovered to be the Nizam's brother.

There were negotiations between the Viceroy himself and the broker and afterwards with the Nizam. Much to the astonishment of the Nizam's brother the bonds were called away to undertake less disturbing duties. That little frolic not the Nizam back about ten millions dollars.

His first visit to London is to "render homage" and pay his respects to King George. He will be accorded sovereign honors, such as twenty-one gun salutes, a sovereign's escort from Victoria Station to the station to the hotel and one of the King's suite at the station to welcome him. The most lavish scale be done on the kingly scale to placate this very important potentate, for he can make himself a larger nuisance to the "nabibs" than a dozen naked Gandhis.

Rang By Radio Signal

Admiral Byrd Flashed Signal To Liberty Ball July 4

America's foremost historical relic, the liberty bell in Independence Hall, Philadelphia, was rung by a radio signal from Admiral Byrd during the Independence Day broadcast in and West Coast hookup over the WABC-Columbia network, July 4. Special permission to ring the bell was obtained from Mayor J. Hampton Moore of Philadelphia, who spoke during the broadcast. Byrd situated at his lonely advance base 123 miles south of expedition headquarters flashed a signal to Independence Hall. Instantaneously at that hour 13 miles south of Philadelphia, arranged to "feed" the electrical impulse to a hammer which drew the liberty bell. Its tone was heard not only throughout the United States and Canada, but also in Little America.

Correct English

Should Take Pride In Preservation Of Purity Of Our Language

The person who speaks correctly to-day or writes what is called "good English", is speaking or writing in the manner of Addison and Pitt and Macaulay and Gladstone and other great masters of the language. It is true new words have been created to meet new wants arising out of our revolutionary progress, and there are many technical terms in common use which are not to be found in the dictionary. But basically our English is their English, and we should take a decent pride in the fact in the preservation of a magnificent asset and the maintenance of a splendid tradition.—Ottawa Journal.

T. O. P. Herner, General Manager, of the Colonization Finance Corporation of Canada, Limited, has announced the appointment of W. G. In 1908 he joined the staff of the Dominion Experimental Farm at Brandon as assistant superintendent of the Brandon Experimental Farm, his work in this position being very pronounced. Wager With Death

Two Colorado Convicts In Test To Determine Value Of New Serum

Two Colorado convicts were condemned to death on a wager with death in a series of tests to determine the value of a new serum the discoverers hope will prevent tetanus.

The convicts, Carl Erickson and Mike Rebaudi, said they have gained weight since they received the serum though they have taken several doses of the serum and five tuberculosis bacilli have been injected into their blood.

The late term convicts were told they would be given pardons if the bacilli might kill them, but they volunteered to become subjects of experiment after Attorney General Johnson promised them pardons if they survived.

Russia Imports Wheat

Millions Of Bushels, It Is Claimed, Are Being Used To Vindictech

Millions of bushels of wheat, an authoritative source disclosed, are being imported into Vladivostok because of large increase in Russian military manpower in eastern Siberia due to tension between Japan and Russia.

More than 3,000,000 bushels will be the total imported before the port is closed, almost entirely for the purpose of feeding an increased Russian military and naval force.

Despite lack of official statistics from the Soviet union, it was learned that imports at Vladivostok, once an important Russian terminus for American wheat exports, gradually have been increasing during the past six years.

New Air Service

Direct air passenger express service between Seattle and British Columbia became effective July 1 when United Air Lines opened operation into Vancouver. Extension of the Pacific coast airway will place the Canadian and Mexican borders only 12½ hours apart.

Agricultural Notes

Many Items Of Interest To The Southern Farmer

Sudan grass is being grown more extensively this year for pasture purposes in the St. Lawrence counties of Eastern Ontario.

Commercial canning is one of the oldest of the larger organized industries in the Dominion. The first factory was established at Grimsby, Ontario, in 1878.

A saving of thousands of dollars in preparing grasshopper mixtures in Alberta has been effected by the substitution of the sawdust used, on the recommendation of the Dominion Seed Branch inspectors, thereby reducing in the one only 20 per cent. of bran instead of 50 per cent. as formerly.

Under the amended regulations of the Dairy Industry Act, a dairy produce grader may refuse to grade any cheese or butter which in his opinion is not fit for food by reason of temperature or too low a temperature to permit of its examination. Until the temperature of said cheese or butter is brought within a satisfactory range.

The sale of commercial fertilizers in Saskatchewan has been considerably higher than last year, some 1,460 tons of ammonium sulphate and 1,000 tons of triple superphosphate having been sold. Most of the fertilizer went into the territory east and south of Regina and north of the Saskatoon-Macklin line. Fertilizer sales in Quebec are estimated at 30 per cent. greater than last year.

Owing to dryness, seed potatoes in Quebec, as at May 31, were not promising, especially for timothy and clover. Fall-sown rye was being planned to increase their seed production considerably, and a circular was sent to prospective growers instructing them with the services available to them from the inspectors of the seed branch of the Dominion Department of Agriculture.

By the discovery of the late Sir Russell Rose of the relationship between the mosquito and the spread of malaria, eventuating in a similar discovery regarding yellow fever, not only saved millions of human lives but enabled millions of acres of potentially fertile land in tropical and sub-tropical parts of the world to be placed under economic crops. Previously these lands were death-traps to all who attempted to cultivate them or live upon them.

During the ten months ended May, 1934, the amount of wheat moved from Canada was 138,828,849 bushels. Of this, 95,765,894 bushels went to Empire countries—Irish Free State, New Zealand, Malta, other Mediterranean, and the United Kingdom, the last named alone taking 93,663,091 bushels. The total amount of wheat expected to foreign countries was 42,062,955 bushels. In the order of their amount imported, foreign countries were Holland, Belgium, France, Germany, Italy, Japan, Norway, Denmark, Sweden, Spain, Peru, Colombia, Brazil, the United States, and other small shipments abroad.

Imports of Canadian barley into the Netherlands reached their peak in 1929 when they totalled 142,772 metric tons, or over 41 per cent. of the total. In 1930 the imports fell to 11,861 tons, but in 1931 went up again to 108,630 tons. In 1932 the quantity imported was 17,864, and in 1933 there were no imports of consequence. Since the beginning of 1934 there have been no imports of barley from Canada. Despite its absence from this market for a year and a half, Canadian barley is well liked in Holland and some consumers still ask for it although the price is too high to make business possible, says the Canadian Trade Commissioner in Holland.

Bull Fireproof Nest

A pigeon nesting in the courtyard of the federal building at Denver, Colorado, was apparently undismayed by blasts of fireproof construction used in the structure. Despite an abundance of dynamite and concrete made its nest entirely of wire paperclips. J. M. Lee, janitor, who discovered the nest, reported that there were two eggs in it.

Stretched Heart Works

The medical profession, keenly interested, kept touch by telephone as George Hampton, 41, continued to improve after an operation in a Lancaster, Pa., hospital, in which his heart was lifted from its place, stitched to stem a stab wound, and replaced.

MANY POSITIONS ARE WAITING TO BE FILLED

Ottawa.—Appointments to positions of high and low degree, running from the Governor-Generalship, the gift of the government, some of them requiring immediate action and others not of a pressing nature.

Among the most important positions to be filled are the governorship of the central bank, the chairmanship of the board of railway commissioners, head of the proposed Dominion marketing board, a member for the Canadian National railways and the 11 senate vacancies.

In addition, there will be numerous minor officials under the farm debt adjustment measure, the Franchises Act (mostly temporary), the Marketing Act and the Bank of [illegible].

The office of deputy minister of [illegible] has been vacant since and will likely be filled before the next general election, if not sooner, and there is to be an appointment of a director of censorship and to administer the fund of $100,000 set aside for that purpose in the supplementary estimates.

The 11 senate vacancies are in Nova Scotia (2), New Brunswick (3), Quebec (1), Ontario (2), and Manitoba (1).

There has been a heavy mortality list in the senate since the present government assumed office and with 16 appointments already made by Prime Minister R. B. Bennett and 11 to be made, the government will be preponderantly of Conservative leaning. The present standing is: Conservatives 59, Liberals 21.

Observers have divulged in very little speculation upon the selection of a governor for the central bank but there is a growing belief he will be a Canadian and not an import from England as was originally contemplated. The bulk of the initial personnel will be drawn from the financial department of the government, it is understood.

Hon. G. S. Harrington, former premier of Nova Scotia, is said to be slated for the chairmanship of the board of railway commissioners and his appointment is expected momentarily. The vacancy came through the appointment of Hon. C. P. Fullerton, another Nova Scotian, to the chairmanship of the Canadian National Railways board of trustees.

Will Not Limit Navy

Russia Is Building Battleships For Defence Of Vladivostok

Moscow.—Soviet Russia, lacking an adequate navy to defend its great Arctic fields, Black Sea and Far Eastern coastlines is building extensively and has no interest in limiting its navy at this time, The Associated Press is officially informed today from Spassatsky, source that the Soviet union has no intention of trying to take part in the naval limitation conference at London next year, unless political problems arise to the contrary there

Police Guarding Pile Plan

Winnipeg Royal Canadian Mounted Police stationed at Flin Flon as the result of disorders in connection with the strike of miners there will not be brought back until it is apparent there is no need for their services, Premier John Bracken declared, following a mass demonstration in front of the legislative buildings by the Workers' Unity League

Find Body Of Policeman

Body Of Constable Carr Is Found In Fraser River

Vancouver.—Second victim of the slaying at Canford Indian reserve on May 23, for which three Indians are sentenced to hang, the body of British Columbia Provincial Constable Percy Carr has been found.

A body found in the Fraser river, 400 miles from the scene of the slayings, has been identified through dental work and scraps of clothing as that of the missing constable.

Constable W. Pelly, of Chilliwack, where the remains are resting, found that the constable met death from injuries and not from drowning. There will be no inquest, the authorities considering that the inquest into the death of Dominion Indian Department Constable F. H. Gisbourne, brought out all the evidence available.

Constables Carr and Gisbourne were slain when they went to the Indian reserve, near Merritt, to effect an arrest.

Three Indian brothers, Richardson, Ronne and Alex. George, have been convicted of the slaying of Gisbourne and sentenced to hang October 26.

Italian Navy Plans

France Is Annoyed Over Italian Plan To Build New Ships

London.—French negotiators in the Anglo-French naval conversations were represented by persons close to the situation as insisting that France will be unable to participate in the 1935 conference unless the Italian plan to build two new 23,000 ton vessels is eliminated.

Despite this annoyance over Italian plans, Francois Piatri, French minister of the navy, who is expected on the conversations here, indicated France is willing to do anything reasonable to ease the demands of Italy.

The matter will be discussed by French Foreign Minister Louis Barthou when he meets Premier Mussolini next, it was indicated.

Cattle Reach England

Shipment Of 658 Head Landed In Good Condition

Ottawa.—A cable to the department of agriculture reported the arrival, at Birkenhead, of the S.S. Manchester Citizen with 653 Canadian cattle. The shipment landed in good condition, 658 miles had been made at the time of cabling.

No decision has yet been reached in the conversations now in progress between Canada and the United Kingdom with regard to the quota on Canadian cattle which may be sent into Britain for the remaining six months of the current calendar year. For the first half of 1934 Canada's cattle quota was 22,500 head.

Shingle Mill Burned

Fire Loss In Vancouver Estimated At Quarter Million

Vancouver.—Forty men are without employment here as the result of the $250,000 fire which destroyed the plant of the Western Red Cedar Mills, Limited. Of unknown origin, the flames broke out at the mill located on the Fraser river and razed five various buildings.

Stored lumber valued at $82,000 was destroyed together with the mill's machinery. Firemen battled for fought several hours before getting the blaze under control No insurance was carried.

Convention At The Canal

Vancouver. More than 400 engineers from the United States and Western Canada, gathered here for the first joint convention of the American Society of Civil Engineers and the western professional branches of the Engineering Institute of Canada, heard United States and Canadian views on power navigation and reciprocal development of the Columbia river

Pirenzied Vol Retired

Ottawa. Promotion of Commissioner Walter Hose, C.B.E. to the rank of rear admiral in the Royal Canadian Navy was announced from the Supreme Headquarters of National defence last night. Hose retires from the active service but will remain on the retired list with the rank of rear admiral. He was placed on the retired list on July 1, following several years as director of naval services.

Customs Show Recovery

Ottawa. Marked recovery was noticeable in the amount of customs duties collected during the first five months of 1934 compared with the same period of 1933, the Dominion bureau of statistics reports. The amount of entire taxes collected on domestic sales also showed a very material increase.

Economy Measures

Hepburn Putting Into Effect Pre-Election Pledges

Toronto.—Working with the assurance of tried political veterans the new Ontario cabinet, headed by the Premier, Hon. Mitchell F. Hepburn, began to rule Ontario. Following out their pre-election pledges their first task was to replace the two most important commissions at a salary cost to the province more than 50 per cent. less than under the previous administration.

Mr. Hepburn's "big parade" started with high officials of the hydro-electric power commission and the liquor control board lending the movement out of government offices. As for the lesser lights, if any, to follow, the new premier kept his own counsel.

Steps were set in motion to bring the new liquor law providing for the open sale and consumption of beer and wine into operation at an early date.

The new hydro commission is headed by T. Stewart Lyon of Toronto as chairman with a salary of $10,000, and the other two commissioners are ministers of the government who will be participant in the work. They are Hon. T. B. McQuesten, minister of highways, and Hon. Arthur Roebuck, attorney-general.

Edmund G. Odette of Tilbury, is the new one-man liquor commission, whose salary will also be $10,000.

BIG FEDERAL LOAN EXPECTED TO BE ISSUED

Ottawa.—The extent to which new Dominion government securities will be offered to the public this year has not been definitely decided upon, but doubtlessly, depend upon the state of the market. Should securities market conditions be favorable, however, it would not be surprising if the government loan, to be launched within the next month or two, would exceed $200,000,000.

There are maturities and other obligations amounting around $400,000,000 of the issue can be sold at around 3½ per cent., which seems not improbable, it is likely the larger amount will be offered as a second financial operation.

With more than $1,000,000,000 in the hands of investors now in 3½ per cent. and the possibility the average interest rate may be still further lowered, it would seem financial observers state, circumstances favour the flotation of a big loan

Another factor which operation which will probably be launched at about the same time will be the shares of the new central bank amounting to $25,000,000 which has been given a dividend rate of 4½ per cent. The issue will also be the responsibility of the government.

These security issues will be handled entirely by the department of finance under complete machinery and is ready to be set in motion when the proper time arrives

Engineers Meet

Wood Is Unmistakably Towards Better Things, Says Speaker

In the field of engineering the trend is unmistakably toward better things, Harrison P. Eddy, Boston, president of the American Society of Civil Engineers, told that body and the Western professional gathering of the Engineering Institute of Canada when he addressed the opening session of the four-day convention of the two organizations at Vancouver

"It would be presumptuous for me to comment specifically upon trends in engineering in Canada," said Mr Eddy, "but I would not be true to the Engineering Institute of Canada, of which I have the honor of being a member if I did not place public recognition to the splendid work which it has done in upholding and advancing the profession."

He suggested more frequent and closer co-operation between the Engineering Institute of Canada and the American Society of Civil Engineers

Civil engineers from all parts of the continent attended the dual convention

Judge Delivers Terrible Indictment Of Motorists In Britain

"The roads of this country are strewn with the dead and injured," said a judge of the high court last week He spoke advisedly To the greater glory of the God of Speed 156 lives (the highest recorded holocaust, it would appear) were murdered in the last re-corded week and 4 971 persons were injured Within the last two months more than a thousand have been slaughtered, and the maimed approach forty thousand in that number In the face of such a record the Minister of Transport's latest effort at fostering a higher standard of conduct among road-users mounts to a foolish irony What is condemned for its blasphemy, and is made a warrant for every drastic measure Here is a death toll unequalled in any but the greatest of our modern wars and no hurry seems to be felt about bringing it to an end London Observer

Little Journeys in Science

THE PLANT FACTORY

(By Gordon H. Goost, M.A.)

Scientists have been attempting for many years to find out how plants manufacture such complex materials as cellulose, starches, sugar fats, proteins and vitamins and it has been found that every plant contains a little factory in which there is built from the raw material provided which are so essential to man's existence.

It is in the green leaf that this wonderful process takes place. The raw materials consist of carbon dioxide, water, and minerals from the soil. Carbon dioxide is a gas which occurs in the air to the extent of three to four parts in ten thousand parts of air. This gas enters the leaf through very small openings on the surface. The minerals must be soluble in the water which comes up to the green leaf through the roots and stem from the soil. Chlorophyll, the green coloring matter in plant leaves, plays an important part in this manufacturing process. Sunlight, too, is employed, furnishing the energy which converts the raw materials into compounds such as starch and cellulose. The presence of chlorophyll is always necessary to the process, which is known to scientists as photosynthesis, coming from the Greek meaning "to build up by means of light."

Directly or indirectly all life is dependent upon photosynthesis for nutrition. Here the plant produces its own food, and from the factory this food is sent to other parts of the plant, and in turn required by animals, and man in turn requires the most of animals in his diet, thus closely associating plant existence with the stores of food which are built up through the process of photosynthesis. Thus we are dependent on it for wood, coal and oil. On these in turn depend steam power, our industrialization and other important factors in our civilization.

For many years scientists have attempted to duplicate in the laboratory this process which is carried on in the green leaf, but as yet attempts to do so on a practical scale have been unsuccessful.

Agricultural Notes

Many Items Of Interest To The Western Farmer

No foreign wheat has been allowed to be imported into France for milling for domestic purposes since April 16, 1933.

Cornflower or Batchelor's button is one of the easiest hardy annuals to grow immediate. Sown where it has to flower, it will seed itself from year to year.

African sleeping sickness in man and Tsetse fly disease of livestock are caused by a parasite of antelopes which causes no disease whatever in these animals.

From many of the feeding tests carried out at the Dominion Experimental Farms and elsewhere, it has been found that barley is an excellent substitute for corn in the feeding of livestock.

The Academy of Sciences, Leningrad, reports that the injection of ethyl alcohol by hypodermic needle into the stomach of pregnant bitches attached to the plant hastened ripening.

Crested wheat grass is an excellent seed producer. The yields vary from 100 to 800 pounds per acre, depending chiefly on the supply of available moisture. The seed is easily harvested and threshed with ordinary farm equipment.

A low animal weighing 1,300 pounds, well finished, will yield a dressed carcass of 780 pounds. Of this, two are only 260 pounds of really prime beef. The "prime cut" is made up of the sirloin, porterhouse and club steaks, and the prime ribs of the forequarter.

Canadian records show that by using two fans in refrigerator cars, and operating them intermittently with stove corners, the temperature of fruit can be reduced a matter of 20 degrees in from 19 hours' fanning, enabling the fruit to reach the consumer in good condition.

The Viking raspberry, originated on the Dominion Experimental Farm, Fredericton, has been found highly promising in Michigan according to a report from the U.S. Department of Agriculture.

In a study at the Institute for Feeding Technic at Breslau, Germany, it was discovered that dried sugar beet cossettes can be fed with a large part of the ration for fattening green geese, if skim-milk and sprouted clover or alfalfa were also given.

The provisional estimate of wool production in Australia for the season just closed is 1,088,000,000 lbs., June, 1934) is 950,000,000 lbs., (greasy basis), a decrease of 113,000,000 lbs. from the season 1933-1933-33 season. Next season's production is likely to show a fairly substantial increase.

Blanding with reinforced cheesecloth having a thread count of 22 by 22 in experiments at Cornell University increased the length of life and size of flower of all varieties. Aster, chrysanthemums, snapdragons, stocks continued, he said, to develop buds and flowers when the most benefited insect injury was decreased.

Of the 678 pedigree cattle registered during the month of June by the Canadian National Records and approved by the Dominion Minister of Agriculture, 144 were Holsteins, 43 Berkshire; 45 Tamworth; 22 Chester White; 4 Poland China, Hill 3 Duroc Jersey. The registrations of pedigree horses numbered 251, of which 102 were Percherons; and of the 2,007 cattle registered, 1,223 were Ayrshire. MICAIAH SPEAKS THE TRUTH

Golden text: "What the Lord saith unto me, that will I speak." Kings 22:14.

Lesson: I. Kings 22.

Devotional Reading: Psalm 119: 9-16.

Explanations And Comments

Ahab Jehoshaphat Allied Against Syria. Verses 1-4a. For three years, from the time of the covenant made with Ben-hadad, king of Syria, whom the Israelites had so severely defeated (I. Kings 20.26-34), there had been peace between the Northern Kingdom of Israel and the Kingdom of Syria.

Meanwhile Israel and Judah had become friendly, as proved by the marriage of Athaliah, the daughter of Ahab, king of Israel, and Jehoram, the son of Jehoshaphat, king of Judah. It is thought that Judah had become a vassal of Israel, for in our chapter today and again later (2 Kings 3.7-12) the king of Judah is seen aiding the king of Israel in the latter's wars, in which Judah herself had no interest.

Ahab reminded his followers that Ramoth in Gilead (east of the Jordan and south of Lake Galilee) had belonged to their kingdom but had been seized by the Syrians. Ahab had defeated Ben-hadad, king of Syria, the latter had promised to restore to Israel the cities which his father had seized. This promise he had failed to keep. Ramoth-gilead is ours, and we are still, and take it out of the hand of the king of Syria," cried Ahab.

Ahab And the Prophets of Israel, verses 5, 6. It was after Jehoshaphat had promised Ahab that "we are with thee in the battle," 2 Chronicles 18 3, that he asked Ahab to ascertain through the prophets the will of God in the matter. Ahab had gathered 400 prophets around him; they all agreed that Jehovah would deliver the city into Ahab's hands.

Micaiah and Ahab, verses 7-28. Jehoshaphat would make assurance doubly sure and asked if there were not yet some other prophet. There was Micaiah, the son of Imlah, Ahab admitted, but he hated Micaiah, for he always prophesied evil. Jehoshaphat wished to have him summoned, nevertheless, and Ahab yielded

Then the kings in royal robes were sitting on their thrones on the broad threshing space before the gateway of Samaria, the usual place for public assemblies; before them were all the prophets prophesying the defeat of the Syrians. One of them, named Zedekiah, had made horns of iron and was declaring that with these the Syrians would be consumed, when Micaiah appeared. The messenger who had gone for him urged him to prophesy good even as all the other prophets had done, but Micaiah stoutly asserted that he would prophesy only that which Jehovah told him.

When Micaiah approached the two kings Ahab said to him, "Shall we go to Ramoth-gilead to battle, or shall we forbear?" He was full of irony, and Jehovah will deliver it into the hand of the king" (1933, p. 1933, June, 1934) is 950,000,000 lbs., (greasy basis), a decrease of 113,000,000 lbs. from the season 1933-1933-33 season. Memorial Church In Baghdad Is Proposed

To Honor British Killed In Mesopotamia During War

An appeal for $20,000 to build a Mesopotamian Memorial Church" in Baghdad is signed by the Archbishop of Canterbury, Sir Francis Humphrys, British ambassador in Baghdad, and others.

The building which has been used as a church since 1921 was originally a Turkish guardhouse, and will shortly have to be demolished owing to town-planning developments, and the construction of a bridge across the River Tigris. The British community in Baghdad, numbering some 600, is anxious for a permanent church, and a site has been acquired

It is suggested the new church should be built as a memorial to the 41,115 British lives sacrificed in Mesopotamia during the war, and to the Turkish troops who fell. The planning would include a memorial shrine containing a book inscribed with the names of all British officers and women who [illegible] lives on Mesopotamian soil.

New Treatment For Arthritis

Paraffin Bath Makes Application Of Glowing Heat Easier

Bathing rheumatic joints in hot paraffin is a valuable means of treating those conditions in arthritic patients, Dr Bernard Langdon Wyatt, of Tucson, Arizona, has reported to the American Congress of Physical Therapy

The paraffin bath enables the physician to apply greater heat to the pained joints than is possible with solutions, packs, fomenta, oils or radiant heat, Dr Wyatt explained. The reason seems to be that a tiny insulating space forms between the patient's skin and the inner layer of the paraffin coating. This insulating space helps the patient to endure very high temperatures. The high temperature causes an increased supply of blood to the affected part, which relieves the pain and stiffness and enables the patient to move his joints more freely

She is entitled to inherit money when she comes of age and so is anxious to conceal the fact of her marriage. Camilla's mother, Mrs Avis Werth, another wife, tries to persuade Camilla to marry Peter Sheila Tudor, Peter's former fiancee, who has married a man she does not love. After a year of secret meetings, Camilla tells Peter she is going to have a baby. When the rest of the members of the party are in a restaurant celebrating Peter and Camilla slip off to the beach by themselves and Peter asks Camilla to marry him. Camilla suggests a "Paper Honeymoon" and Avis "Inspiration" Peter adopts the latter title and Camilla, heartsick goes to Peter's studio for supper and to think. Peter and Avis follow later, and as the lights are turned on, see the status has been shattered to pieces. Avis accuses Camilla of doing this, and Camilla, stunned by the disaster, and hurt and humiliated, says nothing. Avis continues to accuse Camilla of deceiving her. She dashed across the hall, rapped on Peter's door the three little knocks, a pause, and a fourth one, which was her customary neighborly signal. No response. She repeated the signal, more insistently, but there was no reply. Her enthusiasm sank like a rock into a pond. She had purposely asked her uncle to telephone at once, so that she might be the first to tell Peter the news, whatever it might be.

She recrossed the hall, dejectedly, and entered her own study and left the door standing open, so that she might hear Peter as soon as he returned. Perhaps he had gone only to the corner on an errand.

But Peter was not making errands in his studio for a delayed message concerning the winner of the Paris scholarship. He had not expected to be the fortunate one, but he had not yearned toward one goal for four long years to guess say he could not contemplate defeat in that one. Having finished with his afternoon class at the museum, he would then go to the tearoom appointed with obligations, free to give every bit of your time and yourself to your work. You will take my love with you and my memories of it, and will return to me a bigger, better man," she managed to keep her voice firm and practical.

"Well," he admitted, "I'd be all kinds of a thief to drag you away from your career now, when everything is breaking big for you and you are earning more than I'll be able to for a couple of years, at least —perhaps, ever."

Again, he had turned her generous offer aside. It hurt her cruelly, but she reasoned then; if it were the only way to relieve Peter of his sense of obligation to her, that was the way to leave it. There was no way to convince him that she would rather live wretchedly with him in Paris, or anywhere, than to enjoy the fruits of her own achievements alone. Besides, if he needed help, she wanted to be able to extend that help. If he became ill, or any of the unexpected misfortunes which might develop separated by a bottomless void, a costly journey, a world of differences What was accomplished by the scholarship that immigrant group?"

"We don't expect you to swallow it all at once, little boy." Ann Carter who had seen much of him during his long association with the professor, put in. "Take it easy. Get used to the word at a time Peter Anson is awarded—the Paris—Scholarship—" "Sensational Exhibit—"

"All I've got to say is, he doesn't deserve it," Peter roused suddenly, and Camilla's heart leaped at the old smile as it had not worn since his wedding day "In more ways than one, what I mean. Well, thanks for the compliments and all that, but I'm off to tell my wife the front page news." And his long legs strode down the room as if he were discharged from a canoe

He was waiting at the entrance of the building where Camilla rushed up when she emerged a few minutes after five o'clock. In one leap, he was beside her, holding her hands and telling her all in one excited breath, "Camilla, I did it I mean we did it."

"Did what?" she asked, bewildered, but already absorbing the joy which emanated from his whole being.

The prize Paris the immigrant group You made me enter it dur- "Ring!" he explained incoherently

"Peter not really?" she gasped

Absolutely! Here where can we go to talk shall we go somewhere for dinner - here, taxi," he summoned a passing cab. And presently they were settled in the luxurious holding hands, and they were riding out toward Charm Cottage, the favorite rendezvous of their special celebrations

"Can you believe it?" he demanded when they were facing each other across their favorite window table

"Of course, I can. I might have expected it more, except you were so terribly sure that you hadn't a chance, darling. Oh, Peter, isn't it just too wonderful?

"How too wonderful to me," he drew a long breath of satisfaction, beginning to realize that his fondest dream had come true. "Now you just watch your husband make good. Nothing is going to stop me, not if I know it. I am going to work as I've never worked before! Think of it, Camilla—Despone, the Trocadero, all the scenes and masterpieces of the world to study with and work from. Paris! the mecca of art and scholarship!

"I'm so glad for you, dear Peter!" she said softly and earnestly, then a wistful tone crept into her voice. "But—Paris—is so far away from me." With an effort she smiled as if she were joking. She would not let him see how wretched about leaving her. She had to be gallant about it. She had made this very provision, that, when she married Peter, he be free to accept the most glorious opportunity that might be offered him

ALBERTA'S "N.R.A." MOVEMENT.

While the Standard is heartily in favor of some method of standardization of prices in each and every line of business it would hesitate to recommend the launching of an act to govern retail prices by one individual price list, evidently, is the idea behind the recent Department of Trade and Industry act passed at the last session of the Legislature. This act provided for the formulation of codes by various branches of any class of trade. The carrying out of the idea would mean higher retail prices to consumers in Alberta and would lead to higher prices for farm produce, commodities, higher salaries, etc., which is what we need to emerge from the present business doldrums However, one province cannot hope to achieve any great benefit by acting alone, as such a move would probably result in a flood of business to mail order and other business and trade houses in other parts of Canada not governed by any such act.

What success the United States N.R.A. attained was because it was a nation wide movement. We believe that Alberta would be wise to wait and see the outcome at the recent investigations of retail business in general, also that of manufacturers, being carried on by the Stevens Commission in Ottawa. The correct procedure would be to enact legislation governing retail trade for the dominion This no doubt, is the object behind the recent investigations of the Federal Commission

GOLDEN JUBILEE EDITION OF RED DEER ADVOCATE

Congratulations in the highest degree are due to the editor and staff of the Red Deer Advocate, who last week issued a special number in celebration of the city's Golden Jubilee Anniversary, consisting of 68 pages. Advertisers are also to be commended on the manner in which they rallied to the support of this worthy newspaper's efforts. It was the most ambitious and meritorious achievement of any weekly yet viewed at this office.

CLANDONALD

There was a big time in town on a recent evening the occasion being the return of the Clandonald baseball prolonged holiday Mr Hollenbeck to our regular station agent and he received from his vacation with a beautiful bride. The boys put on the well known "chivaree" and the agent responded nobly with lots of refreshments

Mrs Frank Williamson is an Edmonton visitor this week

The old town sure bit hard time last week and how! The combined interest of Al Capone and that mythological figure John Dillinger united to pay a midnight visit to the postoffice and get away with ninety-two cents. This should be a warning to other villages not to let that the name of our town does really mean something. If the name of the town is not enough, let them ponder a moment on the name of the pastmaster, and they will be optimists indeed who will try to "shake down" the P.O. a second time.

Our local Sherlock Holmes, on inspecting the tire trend of the car used by the gangster, discovered that they used an American license plate, were heavily armed, cross-eyed, suffered a slight limp in and had the tooth a severe case of pink tooth brush. Information solved Sherlock has not yet been able to discover how the boys have entered, we suppose that possibly they got through the keyhole and did he look sour? Simple my dear Watson. And by the way, what was Sherlock doing himself on the night of the big hit?

We have quite a lot of Rabbit Burns philosophy in various columns of the Standard. Well a wee bit philosophy in this world does no harm run on the right course of the various roads — sooner and better or some of it could be in stakes, our poet although some of it would have been worth a the carnage pass a Burns.

Mr Norman Hartley is entertaining his brother-in Frank and Wife of the farm for a few years ago. Glad to see you.

Mr. Henry Gosbie is spending a holiday renewing acquaintance in Lamont and district.

If the Postmaster General could any more stamps as large as the Jubilee series and Windsor specimen is suggest that he also issue envelopes that will accommodate both stamp and address.

And speaking of postmasters reminds us that our own postmaster is in a quandary about his Scotch piano. You will remember that thieves got away with the bottom half and—er—such (apparently) piano thinks that about the only thing to do would be to have the thieves either return the part they stole or come and steal the other half. That way somebody would have a rank registers, this way no one has anything. Hot dog! the grammar!

News from Islay

ISLAY DEFEATS LEAGUE CHAMPIONS

On Sunday, 22nd, Islay journeyed to Clandonald, and on a good ground by J. McGaw (on minutes from the end) brought home the points.

Islay won the toss and started from the west end. It was a ding-dong battle all the way and play see-sawed back and forth all the time. Both teams had their chances and five minutes before the bracket Islay were unlucky not to score through H. Robertson, the ball just clearing the bar. After the change-over, both teams turned on the pressure and after 15 minutes play, J. McGee crossed to E. Elliott who hit the goalie and again was unlucky not to score. Not until ten minutes from the close could Islay register; the ball was taken up on the left by W. Elliott who crossed to the right about forty yards out; it was snapped up by the inside, who lost to the back and who in turn lost to Jimmy McGee. Jimmy made no mistake with a shot that gave the Clandonald custodian no chance. The Clan continued to raid the Islay goal but were off the target and the while the blow with Islay one up. A good clean sporting game by both here sides played football from start to finish. Islay lined up as follows:

Goal, Carver; backs, Givens, Liedee; half-backs, R. Matheson, T. McGee, W. Elliott; forwards, J. McGee, Munro, H. Robertson, C. Robertson, G Elliott; reserves, Christie, Potvin.

Don't forget the Islay Sports Association under the auspices of the Islay Football Club. Let's all go!

The dance held here Friday was enjoyed to the full. The Fenson-Burt-Gould orchestra which dispensed the music improves as time goes on. Jim Williams was Boss-master.

Mr. Andrew Hall left Friday for the short end of a 6-1 score here Sunday in a league encounter. Our scorers were: Eric Hawkes 2, P. McCambridge 1, W. Williams 1, H. St. Denis 1, Hall secured first and were leading at half-time 1-0, and we thought during the first 15 minutes of the second half that Waugh, the clever goalie of St. Andrews, was going to frustrate all the efforts of our forwards, but once the latter tasted blood there was no holding them back and the net notched four goals in quick succession. P. McCambridge Sr. was referee

Pandemonium reigned supreme during the dance hours on Saturday night here. Dons bowled, women screamed and determined men stood with loaded rifles. Rumors had gone round that the dance was to be held up by a band of the district One man alleged he saw a machine gun mounted on a motor car, another man claimed to have seen his boots turned to dust by police and nearly trightened the life out of a constable. Anyway there was no excuse needed to make apparent to light hearts assuming saloon . . . the police were there in force. Constable Hall, the village policeman, was a health officer and kept aloof. NEIGHBORHOOD NARRATIVES

No news? (no problem just at present to get it all in and down in a respectable space. And if we could figure what anyone can do with one hand in the barrel we could add to the running battle

(or of the wheel of travelling ... picked the following Moose Jaw and Mill Wither (grandpa and grandma) down from Lac Pard ... and ... took Mr and Mrs. Robt Isaacs ... family touring our district on a pleasure tour to Washington and the Pacific coast; Mr and Mrs M Yeoman and Mrs Simpson of Jarrow dropping in on Woodvale visitors to Mrs. Arch Pritchard; (a time ... for ... Messrs M and Dick Yeoman Mrs. Pritchard and Geo Mather partying on a day's fishing at Lake Laurier returning with 6 fish and 90 that got away. Mr. G. Trevithar treating him self to a holiday leaving Ted Brown in charge. Mr Jack Lyons surprising everyone by getting back on some. Mr. and Mrs. Pich and family from Provost helping swell the crowd at the picnic after motoring up to visit Mr and Mrs Jos Pich at the Neighborhood Mine Trunk Pich all smiles at the prospect of accompanying her son and uncle on the return trip. Mrs Van welcoming a friend from Chicago Master Webber (son of Roy Webber formerly of Tofield) visiting the Gadson district having made the trip from Ontario; Miss Olive Pritchard journeying back with the Jarrow party and it were missed any friendly course Another bride, another groom on ... Mr and Mrs. Herbert ... and this time it is ... Mr. and Mrs Garfield Roberts that we extend the heartiest good wishes for a long and happy married life. Both are well known in the Neighborhood and it is with no ... that we say that the ... (or one ... community ... can part with.

The last meeting of the Glee Club received the financial report of the picnic and dance and members were delighted to hear of the treasury contaning a greater sum than it has ever before had Now, just to keep up the good work! And the question of how and whether to save or spend it that money certainly gives the Neighborhood food for discussion for a while.

A U.F.A. meeting the same evening reported a tidy little profit from the Union picnic.

Those Kokomo speeders bet it be known that they would extract our players' hams on the 5th of August at their picnic. Wait, boys, our Wind ents had one taste of meat now Return to ten bow!

THE PICNIC

The big event of the summer was the Woodvale Glee Club picnic which drew a splendid crowd on a wonderful day. An efficient committee had made arrangements for sports, while our sugarcoated host-men, Messrs Rose and Pich, aided by Mr Ed Fox on the transportation end, kept the refreshment pail running smoothly. Ball games races and hoseitz contests kept everyone interested and busy and the peoples verdict was "just fine of Tom." In the ball games Wood vale first took Telland for a spin, then Turkey Hill took defeat (and what a surprise!) from Kokomo. A glorious game, T. Hill vs. a Woodvale-Union team, played T. Hill for the prize with a close score. The final game was all thrills as Kokomo and Woodvale battled for the honors. The breaks fell to Woodvale and it was a tired and happy bunch of warriors who cheered and were cheered at last. In the races, different speed artists were Miss V. Commeaux, Miss M. Commeaux, Mrs. Ed Gordon, Mrs. Dan Doyle, Doug Rose, Bill Bobning, Bill Doyle and C. Brown. Mr. Mark Stamp won a coupon of novelty contents.

Surrounding districts were well represented and the Club appreciates their attendance. We only hope the visitors enjoyed themselves as much as we home folks. The neighborhood judged it a success in every way.

Mr. H. Bowman got the Pie Plate for that cheerful grin as he sat there with his ankle bandaged up. Catching the game in which he wouldn't take part.

After 56 years in dairying, 32 of which were spent in this province, Dr. C. P. Harker, dairy commissioner, retired this week, to be succeeded by J. Roy Sweezey, native of New Brunswick, and for some years chief federal grader at Winnipeg.

IMPORTANT SEED GRAIN FIELD DAYS

Three important seed grain field days will be held in the province during August, one at Vermilion, August 2; at Claresholm, August 3, and at Olds on August 10. These are held under the auspices of the provincial department of agriculture and dominion seed branch, co-operating with the Alberta Wheat Pool, the Canada Malting Co., the U.G.G. and the Western Canada Flour Mills. Samples of grain from seed drills of farmers in various districts were collected this spring and these samples have been grown in plots at the schools of agriculture and will be inspected on the field days thus giving an opportunity for all concerned to note the kind and quality of seed

GRANDSTAND ATTRACTIONS BOTH DAYS OF THE FAIR

The Nellie Small Amusement Company of Saskatoon are providing the attractions for the grandstand and, judging from reports, they will satisfy those who take advantage of the opportunity to see them. Sixteen local girls are to be used in the grand finale of the acts and there are still a few required to complete the cast; all girls who desire to take part should apply at the secretary's office for a pass to the grounds and should be on hand at noon sharp on the first day (Wednesday) for their instructions and rehearsals.

Plans Are All Completed For Vermilion Fair

Prospects Are Bright for Records

The District Fair, which is being held on August 1st and 2nd, promises to be the best held since its inception twenty-nine years ago; a directors' meeting last Saturday night put the finishing touches on the arrangements and plans are complete for handling the large crowd which is expected to attend.

Livestock and other exhibits are the largest in years and the people of the district appear to be taking a keener interest in exhibiting their stock and the products of the farm and home

BEST BALL TOURNEY IN ALBERTA, AUG. 1st.

The Edmonton baseball tournament on the first day of the Fair, with the final game on the Thursday, is attracting some of the outstanding teams of the district including the Edmonton All Stars, Vegreville, Wainwright, Mannville, St. Paul, Viking and Vermilion and it is expected that the tournament will be one of the best held in Northern Alberta this year

MIDWAY ATTRACTIONS PROVIDE FUN GALORE

The locally owned and operated midway, with the merry-go-round for the kiddies, will provide plenty of opportunity for the public to take a chance on the investment of a little of their surplus funds and at the same time know that they are getting a square deal and that the money taken over the hands will be spent in Vermilion district rather than sent the United States into the hands of nobody and consequently into the that country

With good weather the Vermilion Fair should fill a need in the district and it is hoped that the wholehearted support of the people of the district will be manifested towards the fair as it has been in the past

BOYS' CAMP AT VERMILION FAIR, AUGUST 1st and 2nd

The boys of the Vermilion district are being left behind in enrolment at the Boys Camp, which is being sponsored by the Vermilion Agricultural Society in conjunction with the Fair Already there are upwards of sixty entrants to the Camp and it is hoped that ... will be in attendance ... office ... Wainwright, Viking, Edgerton and Kitscoty Many other clubs and districts too are taking advantage of the opportunity in good style. Twenty-one applications for admission to the camp were received in this morning's mail and it is most gratifying to the management of the Fair that the young misters are interested in the project.

The Department of Agriculture at Edmonton is providing the necessary instructors for the camp and it is planned to hold sports events on each day of the Camp, applications will be accepted up until Saturday night of the present week. SEND YOUR BOY —give him the opportunity—he will appreciate it and the holiday will be of great value to him

Character Makes The Man

In a little magazine sent regularly to the writer of this column through the courtesy and thoughtfulness of a friend, and which we always read with pleasure and profit, and from which we frequently quote, there recently appeared a short article that is both timely and worthy of consideration in these rather troublous days when we are inclined to place responsibility for all our ills upon governments, institutions systems,—in fact, upon anything and everything except our own human frailties. The magazine article referred to reads as follows:

"Most of the ingenious schemes for making this a better world fall down because they assume that man is an angelic creature who would dance singing through the streets with gratitude in his heart, if only the chains of circumstance could be stricken from him. The trouble is that man isn't an angelic creature. He can be about the most unsavory member of the animal kingdom. While he remains so, he makes the safest inclosed tiger look like a domestic cat. Statutes and fair rulebooks can be hung blankets to the backs of cages. On the other hand, it's just as big a mistake to assume that man, as I mean. He needs safeguards. Nothing in the jungle can make him as dangerous as he can be. Indeed, he can be a beast he can also be the most unselfish creature that ever walked the earth. He is a little of both, and a half-dozen half devils, and a half-dozen half angels.

"What we need most of all is to realize that education was the royal road to ... Practically no one questioned it. Laws were enacted ... schools were established, and education in new was cheerfully ... the prevalent belief that free education for all children, always in ... that when people are educated enough, they would dawn. People ... were educated, crime would vanish, poverty would disappear, and ... Age has not arrived. Appalling ... and ignorance ... education in itself is not ... ...

NEIGHBORHOOD NARRATIVES

Hey, T. Hill, that missing pair of pork came to light to cause a great deal of surprise on account of their whereabouts. There has been some talk of Hill's intention to have they aged in perambulate to their location.

Our travelogue continues this week to Middle Mist Hose Walters of Tod land who has left to visit points in Wisconsin; also Mile Evelyn de Breville, who is holidaying with friends near Wainwright. Mr. and Mrs. Jas. Hankin, who week-ended with relatives and friends at Lake Lauzon.

The clanton picnic held a variety of attractions which drew a crowd from every direction. In softball the Wood Tigers mauled the Gobblers to a beginning, then Woodvale took Tot land for a walk. During the interval a pick up team tried out the Tigers at their own meat, hard ball, and shook a victory out of the bag. The play off between Woodvale and Tigers seemed a little slow, and Basswood romped home with the honors in this other features kept the crowd busy, but our being a rabid ball fan let to learn only the name of Fred Brown who bravely won first place in the pie eating contest. Just at that poignant time after supper Mr P. Enzenauer, M.L.A., addressed the gathering pointing out in a clear way some of the simple truths that often get mixed up in the fuzzy game of politics. We had the added pleasure of meeting the gentleman

The Order of the Pie Plate is be stowed on Mr. P. Enzenauer for his efficient management of his part of the picnic. Events were run smoothly and well, with no drags or hitches. Mr Funnell, Sr., is a visitor from the country south of us. He reports that promising crop prospects have been replaced by hot, dry winds.

On a trip to town, we noted that gravel is being laid in the Beperell district from elevators on the highway That ought to take care of a heretofore troublesome stretch

ANNUAL FAIR OPENED ON WEDNESDAY

Largest Exhibits of Livestock in History of Exhibition

Perfect weather greeted the opening day of the Vermilion Fair. At time of writing (Wednesday) Old Sol was holding forth in all his glory shaded occasionally by fleecy white clouds. The air was fresh and cool cleaned by the rains of Tuesday. Dust was also a minus quantity.

Entries in all livestock classes, especially attracted by the increased prizes offered, broke all records for several years past. A good attendance was reported from the Fair grounds on Wednesday, with the 15-0 baseball tourney in full swing. Booth and midway attractions were all set for a good two days' business

The Leader for Over Forty Years

"SALADA" TEA

"Fresh from the Gardens"

Conscience And The "Talkies"

Hollywood and the motion picture industry have been occupying even more than their accustomed share of the newspaper spotlight during recent months and to some effect. There are indications the results of inquiry and publicity will have a salutary (if not sanitary) influence upon the product administered for the entertainment and edification of the theatre-going public.

The tremendous potency of the "talkies" as agents for popular spirit, perhaps unconscious that of the people at large, has found all too belated recognition in official quarters. Steps should have been taken, years ago, to ensure the influence exerted should be for good, for the elevation, rather than the debasement of public taste. Inauguration of a more direct and rigid censorship at the source of supply now, appears very much like closing the stable door after the horse has been stolen. Much harm has been done already.

Death of Dillinger who had the unenviable notoriety of being classed as "U.S. Public Enemy No 1", just as he left a Chicago theatre where a "crime" picture had been shown came as a somewhat lurid commentary upon the feature of the business which had been engaging public attention. There had been a surfeit of "crime" films - pictures which, despite the anodyne of a little sickly sentiment, had tended to metamorphose the "public enemy" into the "public hero", to throw a romantic glamour around the gangster and his "Moll", to sugarcoat the sordid and the subversive. The morbid and degrading curiosity of the mob which battled for sanguinary souvenirs of the dead Dillinger (the blood-stained garments and bullet-spattered paving stones) can be construed only as a species of hero-worship—a hero worship gone hay-wire, become depraved and distorted.

The criminal picture had been accompanied by an apparently endless string of "sex" films. It was only right, therefore, and to be expected, that the Dillinger climax to the first should be paralleled by an equally sensational climax in the case of the second, when there was unfolded in a notorious "morals scandal" trial which occupied the attention of a Hollywood court at the very time police were ending the hectic career of the gangster.

There is no guinessing that presentation of crime and sex in the average film has been anything but a healthy influence; nor can it be gainsaid that the sole criterion of motion picture production in the past has been box-office receipts. Such a criterion has led to over-emphasis of sensationalism, the featuring of the thrill; and the anodyne of a little moral sentiment has never been applied in sufficient dosage to neutralize the possible evil effects upon impressionable minds of scenes and sounds of doubtful moral quality.

Efforts have been taken to impose a new and stricter censorship upon the film industry, which proposes to segregate the more harmful features of Hollywood box-office attractions placed in circulation. The censorship will apply not only to the pictures themselves, but also to the stories procured for film purposes.

Concerning the average story submitted and accepted, there apparently is a reason why they should be trite and commonplace both in theme and presentation. Apparently, there is a premium upon the banal. James R. Gregson, noted playwright and actor, has been giving some rather cynical advice upon "How To Write A Talkie" to readers of the Leeds (Eng.) Mercury. He advises aspiring scenario-writers never to try for style, and never to write like a Galsworthy, a Hardy or a Madox Ford; bare-bones and nothing more is wanted. He concludes in this vein:

"Never mind feeling ashamed of the story—send it off at once before your conscience gets going. And as soon as you've sent it off, start on another—or the same one made slightly different. When your first story comes back from the first film company, send them the second and send the first to another firm. When you have about a dozen stories, keep them circulating. Don't hesitate about sending the same people a story which they have once rejected. They have probably changed their reader in the meantime."

Apparently the motto for those who seek this way to wealth is: "Abandon conscience those who wish success".

Receive Big Salaries

Motion Picture Stars Receive More Pay Than U.S. President

The United States motion picture industry, even while suffering a loss of $19,500,203 last year, was able to have given 110 people larger salaries in 1933 than that received by President Roosevelt.

Three others equalled Mr. Roosevelt in the salary he would have received without his government pay, net $75,000.

The peak yearly pay cheque for the industry, $315,000, went to an unidentified actor. The second highest, a salary of $296,250 went to an "artist" who received $57,000 a week when he or she was working.

These figures were contained in a report of N.R.A.'s six months' study of the producing, distributing and exhibiting branches of the film industry.

University Gets Rollin Collection

Was Most Valued Possession Of Late Madame Curie

The late Mme. Marie Curie's most valued possession, a gram of radium isolated for her in 1921 with funds raised by a committee of American women, has been passed on to the University of Paris with the stipulation that her daughter, Irene Curie be permitted to use it at will for her researches. Bronson Maloney, chairman of the Marie Curie radium fund, said she received word to that effect.

Mme Curie's daughter is herself a distinguished physicist, having virtually grown up in her mother's laboratory and serving as her principal assistant for years prior to Mme Curie's death on July 4

Mrs. Meloney expressed a belief that the radium constituted the only property of value left by Mme Curie with the exception of a meagre bank account, a plot of land in a Paris suburb and personal effects.

Giant Mersey Tunnel

Huge Engineering Feat Is Formally Opened By The King

The world's longest underwater roadway, the giant new Mersey tunnel between Liverpool and Birkinhead, was recently formally opened by the king.

His Majesty pressed a golden switch which rolled back huge green and gold curtains, and formally declared open what has been called the greatest engineering feat of modern times. The tunnel has four lanes for vehicles and broad sidewalks for pedestrians.

"Who can reflect without awe on that will and power of man which in our times has created the noble bridges of the Firth and Forth and the Sydney harbor, and has driven also tunnels such as this in which many streams of wheeled traffic may run in light and safety below the depth and turbulence of tidal waters bearing the ships of the world."

The tunnel is named the Queensway in honor of the queen.

It was conservatively estimated that more than a million persons were present.

The tunnel has been under construction for nine years. Outside of the actual boring the chief difficulty encountered was that of ventilation. The total cost is estimated at $30,000,000. The tunnel contains a three-mile roadway of special cast-iron sections.

Building Activity At Coast

Considerable Construction Work Going On In British Columbia

Considerable activity is noted just now in British Columbia construction circles. Road-surfacing, theatre building and home-building are noted in contracts recently signed, while largest of the enterprises is a new mill of the Crest Central Sawmills, Great Central lake, which is being built at Port Alberni. Cost of the plant is estimated at about $400,000, and an average of 300 men will be employed.

With the exception of backwheat, the grain crops around in Canada during May, 1934, were lower than in May last year. The amounts in bushels, with the comparative figures for May last year in brackets, were, wheat, 3,358,707 (5,950,063); oats, 578,396 (621,581); corn, 164,546 (194,604 producers); barley, 37,778 (49,211); buckwheat, 3,808 (2,744), and mixed grain, 726,-796 (1,061,874).

Chance For Canadian Girls

Australian Lacemaker Hopes Someone Will Copy His Designs

"For the instruction of Canadian girls" an Australian lacemaker, William Blacker of Hoose Creek, Queensland, has sent to Canada a specimen of lace and two handcarved serviette rings. They are in the hands of Col. Wilfrid Bovey, president of the Canadian handicrafts guild, at McGill University.

In the letter which accompanied the specimens, Mr. Blacker explained he learned to knit and to make fishing nets during a long illness in his boyhood, and later used that experience to make lace after an idea of his own. The inspiration for the wood carving, he says, was derived from watching Australian aborigines at their work.

Mr. Blacker complained that very few of the girls with whom he has come in contact in Austra'a have the necessary proficiency in knitting and net making, and they have not the time to learn; so he "cars that his skill in lace making will be lost. Thinking that, because "of the long, cold winters" in Canada, the girls here may be more ready to stay home and knit, he sent samples of his craft and expressed the hope that some Canadian girls "who take an interest in artistic matters may enjoy trying to produce something that will be a novelty."

Scientists Are Puzzled

Striped Tree In California Is Producing Pink Lemons

Pink lemons are being grown in California. They are growing on one branch of a grove which has become a Mecca of astounded scientists who gaze at this phenomenon with awe and ponder over gravely pinch themselves. The skin and fruit of the lemons are a vivid pink, but this is not the only strange feature about the tree. The trunk and branches are striped, while some of the branches are white and others green. The white boughs are quite barren.

Canada is specifically mentioned in an order issued by the German government respecting the importation of fruit into Germany. All imports from the Dominion must be shipped direct in specified ports and be subject on arrival to inspection for San Jose scale and railroad worm.

Corporal Stallworthy Recommended To Shackleton As Weather Expert

When Edward Shackleton, leader of the Oxford University exploration expedition into the Canadian Arctic this summer, asked the Canadian government for an experienced expert on meteorology to study the wastes of the far north, Corporal F. H. Stallworthy of the R.C.M.P., formerly a constable at Athens, and now at Ottawa, was immediately named.

Named for his exploits in the loneliness of Ellesmere Island district, Corp. Stallworthy will accompany the expedition to that territory where it is panned Shackleton will establish the base.

Five years in various parts of the Arctic and his splendid work on the Bache peninsula where, at one time he was marooned for a whole year, have fitted Corp. Stallworthy for this new post he will fill.

Last November, Miss Hilda Austin, daughter of the rector of St. Catherine's church, Edmonton, married Mr. Stallworthy and during his absence in the north she will remain in England with her husband's parents. The expedition planned the journey into the north from the European side and while in Ellesmere land will make an attempt at reaching the north pole.

Huge Producer Of Gold

Export Soviet Output Will Be Second Largest in World

Soviet Russia now ranks as the second largest producer of gold in the world as the result of spectacular output gains in the past two years, the most recent estimates, official and otherwise, indicate.

The 4,000,000 fine ounces of gold which the Soviet Union is expected to produce this year would outstrip both Canada and the United States, long rivals for the position of runner-up to South Africa. Russian output in 1933 is officially placed at 2,489,000 fine ounces by the government, a gain over 1932 of 142 per cent, and more than twice the annual average of Czarist days.

The Soviet government claims to have spent more than 500,000,000 rubles in the last four years on the gold mining industry. Its foreign orders for gold mining machinery have been given chiefly to the Bolshevik regime assert that Russia's gold deposits are well-nigh inexhaustible and that in the U.S.S.R. some day will exceed even the Transvaal, richest gold source ever found.

An Appropriate Text

Before beginning his sermon one Sunday evening a certain minister said that he was sorry to have to complain about the congregational offertories, but he felt bound to make a protest and an appeal. Then turning to the Bible, he announced the text: "Bend your hearts and not your garments!"

To Save Sugar Crop

Flies Brought From Brazil To British Guiana By Air Mail

Three men nearly lost their lives on a journey of 1,200 miles to bring some flies from the interior of Brazil to Georgetown, British Guiana. The flies, it is hoped, will save the chief product of this British colony—the sugar crop. In six special packages the flies have travelled 500 miles down the River Amazon to Para by fast motor launch, and then 1,000 miles by air mail. They have been brought to fight the moth borer, a pest which at present destroys about 30 per cent. of the sugar crop by burrowing through the sweet cane. They are "Amazon flies," and their existence—and partiality for moth borers—was discovered after two years of research by Dr. J. G. Myers, of the Imperial Institute of Entomology. Mr. Myers set out to bring a "force" of these flies with a number of assistants, and has had an adventurous journey. The launch in which he brought the flies down the Amazon had to be carried on a native's canoe over twenty miles of mountainous country. Once the boat was swamped in rapids, and Dr. Myers and his fellow-assistants had a narrow escape from drowning. All the scientific instruments for the expedition were lost. But the flies were saved and, if conditions suit them, they should obliterate the moth borer.

Puzzle Has Been Solved

Japan Bought Scrap Iron For Manufacturers At Home

Several months ago the American trade figures showed that Japanese merchants were buying scrap iron in this country and elsewhere, giving detailed information as to ports of loading and shipping lines. It was conjectured that Japan was using this method to procure cheap iron for the wheels of the manufacture of war material, and sentimental tears were shed over the fate of good Yankee scrap iron in the Baltic and the Megantic, which were reported to have been bought and dismantled for this ignoble purpose.

Since then American agents in Japan have made the amazing discovery that the Japanese authorities were selling this iron at cost price to manufacturers at home. The secret is out. Tokyo has forwarded three-quarters of a million tons of idle shipping abroad for $5,000,000 f.o.b. It will not be long before the old ships return to the American market as $1.25 bicycles, $175 automobiles, $4 50 radios, etc.—New York Post

THREE POWERS REFRAIN FROM TAKING ACTION

London. — Great Britain, France and Italy were represented in authoritative British quarters as satisfied with the elevation of Prince Ernst von Starhemberg to the head of the Austrian government in place of slain Chancellor Engelbert Dollfuss.

The three powers which have undertaken to guarantee the integrity of Austria, it was stated, will abandon any thought of joint action into the Austro-German situation on the grounds the Nazis have done themselves more damage than could possibly be inflicted from any other quarter.

"It is agreed that it is the wisest policy now to let the Nazis stew in their own juice," said one source close to the British government. "They harmed themselves immeasurably by showing how weak they really are—much weaker than were the Socialists when Dollfuss smashed last February, and by forcing an estrangement between Germany and Italy which may be expected to gradually widen in the future.

Munich, Germany. — No authentic explanation of the reported mobilization of between 20,000 and 50,000 fugitive Austrian Nazi storm troops, which have been receiving training here under German leaders, was available.

While Premier Benito Mussolini mobilized 65,000 troops on the south side of the Tyrol, at points not more than 50 to 75 miles away, "to be ready to come in defence of Austrian independence," the rumor that Chancellor Adolf Hitler came here to prevent a march into Austria gained credence.

Berlin. Franz von Papen, the German vice-chancellor, will be sent as a special envoy to Vienna, it was indicated in an officially published message from Chancellor Hitler to Von Papen, now in Switzerland.

Von Papen's appointment in the terms of Hitler's letter was taken to mean that he is leaving the Reich cabinet and dropping his post as Nazi commissioner, at least temporarily.

Britain's Farm Policy

Boosting Domestic Production Failing A Serious Question

Oxford, Eng. — The agricultural policy of Britain, one of boosting domestic production, is failing in serious questions for the overseas empire, declared Stanley Bruce, Australian high commissioner.

He told the Royal Empire Society's summer school here he agreed it was essential that "in these islands you have healthy agriculture, and I assure you you will have the complete co-operation of the Dominions."

He pictured Britain as the centre of a great group of agricultural countries with Britain giving them the opportunity of selling their products in exchange for her manufactured goods.

To Aid Stock Feeders

Credit Corporation May Help Farmers Through Winter

Regina.—Provided reasonable assurance of the safety of investments is given, the Dominion Agricultural Credit Corporation has decided on a policy of advances to stock breeders and farmers to assist them in carrying young cattle through the winter. The decision was reached at a meeting of directors here.

An important decision which will in time affect the cattle industry of the three Western provinces, it is expected to result in the placing of between 5,000 and 10,000 cattle on feeder farms chiefly in Saskatchewan and Alberta this coming winter. The meeting and discussion that resulted in this decision were urged by W. W. Sharp, Stettler, Alta., president of the corporation.

In all three provinces there are many breeders who have not the feed for their cattle and who would would be therefore compelled to sell on the fall market for what they can get. There are also many farmers having ample feed but no money to buy cattle. This aim of the corporation is to bring these two together.

Famine In Russia

Statement Says Not Less Than Five Million Persons Have Died

Montreal.—On a mission to awaken public opinion to necessity for aiding famine sufferers in Russia, Dr. E. Ammende, secretary of the international aid committee, was in Montreal recently.

The committee hoped, he said, to have surplus grain sent to Russia. Negotiations in Western Canada were interested in the project following his trip there, he said.

"Not less than five million persons have died from starvation since 1933, the year our committee was formed," he claimed. "And the end is not in sight now than anyone can imagine. It has already assumed so serious an aspect that the Russian government has actually admitted there will be one, after doing its best to conceal the fact since our committee was formed.

"The areas affected are all near the Black Sea ports of Odessa and Rostov," he added, "which would simplify redistribution of grain."

TENSE FEELING IN EUROPE OVER AUSTRIA'S LOSS

London.—Every capital in Europe is tense with expectancy and in some cases apprehension.

Twenty years to a day after Austria's ultimatum to Belgrade and Serbia, which placed Europe on the brink of the Great War, events seemed four to be repeating themselves over the possible consequences of Austria's loss of independence.

The Italian ambassador to France consulted with the French foreign minister and it was unofficially said that telephone wires between Paris and Rome were being kept busy with consultations.

France and the Little Entente view Austrian independence as vital to the peace of Europe

In Prahs, Czecho-Slovakia it was said that Austrian loss with a fascist dictatorship would cause the Little Entente to interfere with Austrian internal affairs.

German Minister Recalled

Berlin.—The German government recalled Herr Reith, German minister to Austria, for his intervention in Vienna without the government's consent.

It was learned from private but reliable authority that Reith conducted the negotiations which led to the end of the Balkhausplatz siege.

It was determined that, while still a prisoner, Minister Emil Fey telephoned to Reith, asking him to secure assurances that Nazi plotters would reach the border safely.

After receiving such assurances, it was said he agreed to conduct negotiations in a personal capacity with a view to preventing bloodshed, and went personally to the chancellory.

England Gets Heavy Rain

Traffic Held Up And Lightning Causes Wide Damage

London.—Another June thunder and rain storms have swept England, breaking the long drouth and leaving everywhere a trail of havoc.

London experienced a downpour of tropical intensity and many roads were quickly under several inches of water. Traffic generally was held up, underground and surface train service was disrupted.

A hailstorm fell in a suburban belt and set it afire, scores of houses were damaged, followed by lightning, and many homes and buildings were flooded.

Aspects Of A Desert

Conditions In Southwestern Manitoba Said To Be Bad

Winnipeg—Southwestern Manitoba is taking on aspects of a desert as the drouth-stricken district this year passed under a greater area than ever before, says a summary of crop conditions issued by the Manitoba department of agriculture.

A strip of land 30 to 40 miles wide along the international boundary shows scarcely a single good field of grain. Soil drifting was followed by clouds of grasshoppers and hot, parching winds have withered what, ever crop promised to mature.

"There really is not a single district west of the Red River valley that is clear along the international boundary, and many areas where "might" yield five bushels an acre and oats and barley barely sufficient for seed purposes.

In the northern and eastern sections of Manitoba, conditions show sharp improvement. Conditions are good in the north, though more rain is much needed.

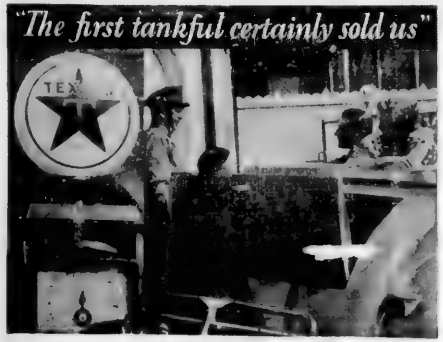
Now you can get Tetraethyl Lead in FIRE-CHIEF at no extra cost!



Once a motorist tries Fire-Chief, it's pretty certain he'll come back again for more. Not only because Texaco Fire-Chief Gasoline compares favorably with any of the other leading brands sold in the Dominion, but because Texaco Service, too, ranks high.

Filling your tank with gasoline is certainly no more than you're paying for—but wiping your windshield, checking tires, water in radiator and battery—these are the little extras which make it both profitable and pleasant to trade regularly at the Texaco pump.

If you could put a gallon of gasoline on a scale—and by looking at the gauge, learn all about its power, speed, mileage and anti-knock qualities—then you'd know in advance just what you were paying for. But since you can't do that, you can do the very next best thing . . . . .

Take Texaco Fire-Chief Gasoline, for example—Fire-Chief is not only fast and powerful—but now Tetraethyl Lead, the anti-knock compound, has been added to it!

Tetraethyl helps to eliminate the harmful motor "knock" that steals power and speed, overheats engines and tends to cause unnecessary wear on wrist pin and crankshaft bearings. With Tetraethyl in a gasoline, you get smoother performance, greater speed and economy.

We'd be tickled to death if you could put Fire-Chief on a scale and test it for power and smoothness. But since this is impossible—try a tankful in your car. Test Fire-Chief's new power, action and mileage with Tetraethyl added! Get your next gasoline at any Texaco Service Station.

IMPORTANT—Greater FIRE-CHIEF is not an old gasoline colored and renamed, but is an entirely new, improved and better gasoline.

How Dr. Grenfell Procured Radium For His Work In Labrador

How Sir Wilfred Grenfell once converted pirate into radium is another of that Labrador physician knight's almost inexhaustible anecdotes and he told that one as he sailed aboard the steamer New Northland for his forty-something year in bleak Labrador.

It was in Pittsburg." Sir Wilfred recalled, and the women there were not only exquisitely groomed but a number of them had long strings of pearls "Ladies", I said, "if each of you would give me just one pearl from those strings on which there are so many, I could buy some radium and fight cancer at my hospital"

Sir Wilfred said it was agreed He got the pearls and bought the radium

Little Journeys In Science

RAYON

(By Gordon H Guest, M.A.)

Rayon or artificial silk, which has been in use for years a widely used product is rendering good paper in that it resists the ravages of mildew Four different processes have been perfected for its manufacture, but of these the viscose process is used for over 80 per cent. of the world's rayon production.

High grade sulphite wood pulp (usually taken from spruce trees), is the starting point for the production of artificial silk. Canada supplies almost 60 per cent. of the world's requirement of wood for this purpose. This material, which contains largely of cellulose, is treated for two hours with a weak solution of caustic soda, which results in the formation of alkali cellulose. Surplus moisture is squeezed out of this alkali cellulose and the material is then torn to shreds, which are left for 24 hours in a closed vessel

A liquid known by chemists as carbon disulphide is now added, producing a solution called viscose This solution is allowed to "ripen" for a day or two, after which it is ready for spinning. This is accomplished by forcing the viscose through fine holes, into a preparation of dilute sulphuric acid. The acid forces the fine jets of liquid to change into threads, which are spun into the material we know as rayon.

This artificial silk is altogether different from the natural product It lacks the tensile strength of pure silk, but it has a fine appearance, and this combined with its cheapness, has led to it being used extensively either alone or as a mixture with wool or cotton.

U.S. Crop Reduction Program Is Not Needed

Nature, stepping in as an unwelcome assistant to the United States government's crop reducing program, has made it overshoot a good deal. A survey showed that the figures aimed at in the five major divisions—wheat, cotton, corn, tobacco and hogs—either have been virtually reached or surpassed.

Drought, insects and floods gave the reduction drive a mighty but unwanted shove along its course.

It has become apparent to directors of the plan that some surpluses they regarded as obnoxious a year ago would be needed to avoid shortages this year.

Wheat, the bread grain, averaged 844,312,200 bushels during 1928-32. The government sought to cut that down to 718,000,370. Now the July report indicates a crop of only 483,622 000 bushels.

The cotton program promises to hit the mark closer. The average in 1928-32 was 14,657,000 bales and the farm administration sought to pull it down to 10,460,251 bales Official indications now point to 10,190,442.

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

AUGUST 5

ELISHA HELPS THE NEEDY

Golden Text: "Inasmuch as ye did it unto one of the least of these my brethren, ye did it unto me." Matthew 25:40.

Lesson: II. Kings 4:1-44.
Devotional Reading: Psalm 41:1-4.

Explanations And Comments

A Widow Helped, verses 1-7. No one can read the miracles recorded in this chapter as wrought by Elisha without remarking their similarity to some of those recorded of Elijah. Both multiplied the substance of a needy widow; both restored to dead child to life. The multiplying of the loaves and fish is always in our mind; of course, the miracle wrought by Jesus in feeding the multitude.

In our first story there is a widow in dire distress. The law allowed a creditor to take as bondsman for a debt—see Le-vitcus 25:39-41—and this woman's creditor was about to take away her two children as slaves. Such cases are by no means unknown today. The method which Elisha is said (a) to have employed to relieve her does not differ from that of most miracles of the Bible. What had she in the house? he inquired. Oil, a pot of oil. Borrow all the empty vessels you can from your neighbors, he directed. From the pot of oil which you possess, then shall the oil pour as long as and live upon the remainder of the pile price, was his counsel. Her orders were supplied by a divine mercy of which the oil that flowed as long as she had any empty vessel to receive it is a type.

Fearless Sufferers Helped, verses 38-44. There was a great famine in the land and Elisha was among the dire need. Elisha made noxious pottage safe for them to eat, verses 38-41, and then he made a little food go a great way. Twenty barley loaves and a sack full of ears of grain, which had been brought to him as a present, he fed a hundred people. "What, should I set this before a hundred men?" He scarcely exclaimed in great surprise when directed to feed them all. Said Andrew to Jesus: "There is a lad here, who hath five barley loaves and two fishes; but what are these among so many?" John 6 9

So he set it before them, and they did eat, and left thereof, according to the word of Jehovah." According to the word of Jehovah"; the ministry of this man was wholly a ministry of the word of the Lord "By all his activity he was demonstrating to those who had the spiritual capacity to apprehend, how good and magnificent were the thoughts and instructions of God concerning his people. His deeds were expressions of his messages". (G. Campbell Morgan).

Strange Ceremony

Hindu Funeral Of Indian Princess Attracts Attention In England

Amazed villagers of Tooting, England, through a surrounding screen of canvas witnessed an exotic funeral ceremony as the body of the Princess Shumshere Jung, beautiful wife of the Nepalese minister to Britain, wrapped in wedding cloths, was burned on a ghat (funeral pyre) built of fragrant wood, Indian oils and butter costing over $2,500.

The ashes will be taken to India to be scattered on the sacred Ganges at Benares. Nepal, a forest kingdom in the foothills of the Himalayas to which white men are barred, is wedded with Britain financially by the British government, which was represented at the funeral for which special permits had been granted to allow it to be held according to the ancient Hindu rights.

In order to ascertain the suitability of potato flakes as cattle fodder, research have been made in Germany where potato flakes are largely manufactured for a number of years. Based on the feeding value of the product, a considerable saving is expected that they may be used with satisfactory results. Mixed with oat-chaff and straw, they are said to be suitable for bags and poultry

MANVILLE DEFEATS LOCAL BALL TEAM 5-1

Manville baseballers defeated the locals on the fair grounds diamond last Friday evening 5 runs to 1. The game had few highlights; several errors caused by rough spots were Vermilion's undoing, as well as the boys having an off night with the big stick. Banks, Smith and Corson were the locals' battery, while Prosser pitched for Manville with Ewing on the receiving end. Jack Smith scored Vermilion's lone run.

Report Battle River U.F.A. Convention

The Battle River U.F.A. Federal Constituency Association convention opened at Wainwright Buffalo Park pavilion at 10 a.m., Monday, July 23 under the chairmanship of Mr. Walter Skinner assisted by Mr. A. Wood.

Mrs. D. Ehat was appointed secretary, with Mr. Urquhart as assistant.

The president, Mr. Walter Skinner, gave the annual report, which was followed by the financial statement presented by the secretary. An association was made this year by giving the Juniors representation at the convention.

Mr. Spencer, the federal member, was called upon to give an account of what had taken place in the House of Commons during 1934. In giving his annual report of the session, Mr. Spencer said that it had been one of the busiest since 1921, during which a large amount of constructive legislation had been placed on the statute-book. The speech from the Throne, though outlining the general trend of government legislation, was by no means a complete survey of the work of the amendment of the official opposition, also the non-confidence made by the co-operating groups, both of which were defeated.

The budget of this year was somewhat of a departure from the usual, as assessed except that on gold, while sundry small reductions were allowed in taxation. Unemployment relief. The main reduction was that on the sugar, the duty being 1½ cents per pound. No change was made in the farmers' rate, but of the general tariff, 33 were slight decreases.

The main item in public debate was those for interest on debt, war pensions, care of soldiers, provincial subsidies, and the sinking fund, with a total of $318,700,000, or 42% of total expenditure. Of the $318,700,000 what might be termed uncontrollable. The budget of 1934 was $454,474,000 millions, plus 35 millions C.N.R., making a total of 489 millions.

Mr. Spencer quoted from two amendments to the budget made by the official opposition, and the two of the co-operating groups, all of which were defeated. The first amendment dealt with the most important of the resolutions on the order paper, and was on account of the fate of each. Reference was also made to the special committees such as Price Spreads, Mass Buying, Franchise and Election Acts, the committee on Civil Service and that of Radio

Mr. Spencer gave a list of legislation of the greatest importance from amongst which might be noted the following, on much of which he sub mitted detailed information:

Financial — Bank of Canada 1934, Bank Act Revision, Amendment to Dominion Bank Notes Act, Winding-up of Public Works by $100,000,000 issue, Government Annuities, Farm Loan Banks, $96,000,000, Repeal of Finance Act.

Agricultural — Livestock and Livestock Products Act, Dominion Marketing Board, Amendment to Canada Grain Act re Garnet Wheat, Com modities before the Board and Coal mines Act (Canada Farm Loan Board).

Other Legislation — Boards of Transport Commissioners Act, Dominion Farm Relief Tax on Gold and Silver, Amendment to Criminal Code, Elections Act, Loan Companies Act Amendment, Soldier Settlement Act Amendment, Unemployment Relief.

Mr. Spencer had been requested to divide his report into its deal with several work of the session the first to review the work of the Agricultural and Commerce Committee of which he was a member. He then went on to some detail also with the Insurance subject. At the end he replied to the questions

During the reading Mr. Ross, vice-president of the U.F.W.A. and Chairman, M.L.A. both addressed the convention

A special conference on the war was held in the town during the afternoon, under the direction of Mrs. Dexter, U.F.W.A. director for Battle River During the day when opportunity offered names were entered in to by many of the delegates and visitors dining with a short chance to the Juniors

The convention opened on Tuesday morning with community singing followed by consideration and discussion of several important matters. The discussion lasted so long that the appointment of officers was deferred until the afternoon session. Tuesday afternoon was devoted to business and resolution on group organization the appointment of officers took place resulting in Mr. Walter Skinner being elected unanimously as president and all of those later with no change in their farms How did it taste, boys? Great was the answer from the ball games The first one was Optimist Centre, Turkey Hill, the Turkeys winning Woodvale and Tolland next Tuesday's ball games will be held at Tolland

Mr. Spencer thanked the convention for its support, it were to judge by the way the crowd turned out to the ball game of all we had to do the weather is now two previous meetings Tolland and Woodvale, and the latter won took the field next Tuesday. WRITER TELLS OF SHORT COURSE AT OLDS AGRICULTURAL SCHOOL

DEAR EDITOR,—

As Mr. Murray, the Principal of the Agricultural School at Olds, Alberta, asked me to tell through the paper of the time that I spent there recently while attending the short course. I am going to relate as brief as possible the most important things that I did.

First, I wish to thank all the members of the school's staff, and also Miss McKenzie and Miss Rosenberger for the good time that I experienced.

I left Vermilion Sunday, July 15th at 7.50 in the bus to Edmonton reaching Edmonton at 12.30. Mr. Moss met me at the bus station and came to the Y. W. reaching it on the dot. At five p.m. I left for Olds There are several stops at towns between Edmonton and Olds. I forget the names please accept no offence and we arrived safely. It is several miles to the staff.

Monday morning after breakfast Mr. Kerr kindly showed all the students the many beautiful flowers, shrubs and trees that have been planted by other things. Later, Mr. Murray showed us around the school, the workshop and many grains, fruit trees, and vegetables that are growing.

After dinner there were games such as softball, volley ball or club swing which we enjoyed.

As there were many boys and girls, each of whom were divided into A and B teams. There were about 51 students there in all.

We had exercises every morning before breakfast. Tuesday our program started On Tuesday, Wednesday, Thursday and Friday we did much the same as Monday. We had exercises before breakfast either the A or B girls would lead the exercises. The exercises were created by Miss Mackintyre and the girls enjoyed them very much as they explained by Miss Switzer, Miss Mackenzie and Miss Rosenberger. The cooking class, I am sorry to say, is not what might be termed uncontrollable The budget of 1934 was $454,474,000 millions, plus 35 millions C.N.R., making a total of 489 millions.

Mr. Spencer quoted from two amendments to the budget made by the official opposition, and the two of the co-operating groups, all of which were defeated. KOKHEE & DISTRICT NOTES

Hello everybody. This is to warn that the hockey pool had to be postponed owing to four sports on the one date even though they didn't apologize for doing so but suppose we must be submissive to our superiors. The pool will therefore be held on August 12th. It will be rather late but we still hope to get a good crowd in attendance and also a fine day. All sorts of games and amusements and good prizes will be staged at the pool not on the sports grounds at Kokhee Lake. We hope to see a large turnout from Woodvale Union and Turkey Hill when on you ball teams. Call for you the Kokhee Rear fars.

The weather has been exceedingly hot this past week and everybody seems to be suffering from it. Crops are beginning to show signs of burn up so that would surely enjoy a shower but as to when or arriving at rain is a hope.

OUR FAIR

The biggest undertaking in the history of each year as far as the Vermilion is concerned, is the staging of the Agricultural society Fair. This is the enterprise so sponsored by a group of the leading farmers of the district and business men of the town. That the directors know what they are about and study conditions prevalent is proven, as the Vermilion Fair has continued to flourish year by year when many fairs, both larger and smaller centres, have gradually failed and with the withdrawal lately by Hoffer and Sons of the sweepstakes grains have ceased to be held also. Another until at the present time our annual event is the only Class B Fair in Northern Alberta.

The directors this year saw fit to increase the prizes in livestock and other divisions and that as well as in many classes are the largest of any fair in Alberta. The entertainment program as usual has been rearranged in an added share of attention and something for everyone is to be found on the grounds. The admission prices are also very low.

The annual Fall this year is the means of putting thousands of extra dollars into circulation in the immediate vicinity, so that it is every person's duty to boost the Exhibition in every manner possible and all the whole family attend one or both days.

There is general approval of Premier Reid's decision to see to it that every man shall have the right to rent a certain acreage of woodland or bush, so far as it is possible for the government to enforce such a resolution.

Why the province of Alberta as a country still retains its park like appearance with certain spots of wood land and bush on the south and every quarter section. But within recent years there has been a lot of wood slashed down to make room for crops and there is only room for that when the prairie is denuded of its growth. Other districts have extended to such disastrous as soil drifting and crop failure on eroding. Even in this district favored as it is by nature, soil drifting is not unknown although to date a large percentage of the bald prairie of parts of the south has been saved. The value of wood land as a method of conserving soil as well as moisture.

How far the government can make it out or force property owners to comply and enforce it may be difficult to ascertain. But a move of this kind would be of far reaching benefit to one and by the farmers in particular for not a few is practically of great value to the countryside.

Vegreville Observer.

OBITUARY

HENRY H. ROBINSON

The funeral of Henry H Robinson, which took place on Saturday last, July 28rd 1934 marked the passing of a highly respected citizen of this town and district. While for the past few years he has made his home in the Rusylvia district, he, for several years previous to that, dwelt in Vermilion.

Mr Robinson was one of those men well known and liked by all. His straight forward method of doing business and his kindly manner in his dealings with everyone won on him considerable good will. The loss of his help in both church and social work will be keenly felt. Two sons and a devoted wife are left in deep mourning and the sympathy of the whole neighborhood is extended to them in their hour of bereavement.

The service was held in the Vermilion United church and was conducted by the Rev. H. E. Boyd, assisted by Mr Ford. A large attendance of sympathizers were present some having motored considerable distance to be in attendance at the last rites, a beautiful array of flowers giving token of their kindly feelings. Three members of the choir sang a touching rendition of "Sleep the Sleep Divine." Mrs. A. West presiding at the organ. A solo by same artist was at the close of the church the casket was not opened but the body was on view previously at J. Warnke's funeral parlors. It was here that the family took their last farewell. This arrangement adds much to the solemnity of the occasion and lends for a more dignified and respectful service.

The pall bearers had charge of arrangements and interment was made in the Vermilion cemetery.

Among the floral offerings were not forget me's from Choir of First United church, Vermilion. The First United church Sunday School. The Friendly Fan-ci- and Busi. Business Men and Mr. and Mrs. Warnke and family. Mr. and Mrs. Jas. Robinson and family. Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Robinson and family. Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Ellis. Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Mr. and Mrs. Jas. MISCELLANEOUS SHOWER IN HONOUR OF MISS ELLIOTT

Honoring Miss Kathleen Craig, whose approaching marriage this month is an event of interest, Mrs. George Wright entertained at a luncheon shower at her home on Tuesday evening.

The supper table was centred with a large wedding cake reposing in a bed of blue tulle and surmounted by a flower girl holding pink and white streamers which formed a canopy for a tiny bride and groom and several bridesmaids. Roses, delphinium and dahlias in pastel shades were used throughout the rooms.

Following the delightful buffet luncheon, little Marie Wright presented the guest of honor with a knife with which she cut the cake, containing many useful and beautiful gifts. Much merriment was caused during the evening by a guessing contest in which the bride-elect received recipes bearing quaint pictures of each of the guests.

Outstanding Exhibits - Large Attendance

Blessed with fine weather, the 1934 Vermilion Fair went over the top in good style on August 1st and 2nd. The rain of the preceding day put the entire country in a good frame of mind and crowds of people came from all over the district to attend the Fair for which plans had been in process for months

The largest entry list for years was presented to the judges and the actual judging of livestock required attention on both days of the exhibition. The exhibits in the main building were far above the average for the past few years and Miss Cristall and Mrs Hardie, of Edmonton, were kept steadily busy during the entire first day placing the awards in the various classes.

The grains and grasses were judged by Mr. Andrew of the School of Agriculture Farm, while Messrs Harrington and Elliott judged butter, eggs and cheese; the livestock was efficiently handled by Mr. Andrew Indiar, Messrs. Mr. J. W. Hunford, dairy cattle; Professor Rockville, beef cattle, and Mr. S. W. Shepard, sheep and swine. Mr. H. A. Craig, Deputy Minister of Agriculture, was present during the forenoon and was an interested spectator at Fair and announced the various boards taking part in the livestock parades. Dean Howes of the University of Alberta was also present, accompanied by Mrs Howes and was found in his poster of the efforts of the Fair Board in staging such a successful event in the face of present day conditions.

The general interest in the judging was most gratifying and it was remarked on all sides that a greater number of people patronized the judging zone than has been the case for many years. The children's classes were well filled there being more than one hundred entries in the children's sections alone

THE BOYS' CAMP

The Boys' Camp, held in conjunction with the Fair was outstandingly successful with more than eighty boys in attendance, they were housed in the beautiful dormitory of the School of Agriculture and all sessions were held in the classrooms of that institution. The boys report an excellent time and already there is a demand for a repetition of the camp in 1935.

PRIZES TO BE AWARDED ON SATURDAY TO CLANDONALD WINNERS

May Be Two Ministers of Provincial Cabinet Present

The annual compe[illegible] Clandonald settlers [illegible] stage at Clandonald on Saturday afternoon, August 11th, when prizes will be awarded to the winners in the various events. Clandonald is one of the oldest settlements in the district and to the labors of its pioneers is due the credit for the splendid results to be seen in almost every field in the district.

The annual competition is staged by the Clandonald Settlers' Association during the autumn season and is always looked forward to as a big event in the district. Many visitors from all parts of the district are present and the competition has always been keen and the exhibits of the highest standard.

This year the competition will be held in the afternoon and the awarding of prizes will be made at the close of the afternoon's sports. Ernest Hutcherson Was Charter Member Of B.C. Fruit Growers

Ernest Hutcherson, 81, who was the first horticulturist at the Ontario Agricultural College at Guelph Ont and who gave instruction in 1878 to Hon W R. Motherwell, former Dominion minister of agriculture, is dead at Ladner, B.C., where he had resided 53 years.

Mr Hutcherson resigned from the Guelph college in 1880. With the late Thomas McNeely, he set out to make the first commercial orchard in British Columbia.

He was one of the founders and charter members of the B.C. Fruit Growers Association and was appointed the first fruit pest inspector in the province. In 1906 Western Canada applied to the B.C. government for a man to finance and enforce a fruit pest act for the state and Mr. Hutcherson was loaned. There is no human power that can convince me that our loving God is to blame for this present crisis. The fact is for over four years we have allowed ourselves to go blood thirsty mad, right from the bar-room to the pulpit, and God did not settle all this world's affairs on November 11, 1918, for since that we have gone extravagantly crazy. Yes we have a vast throng of ten cent audiences in every town and village of Canada, and have allowed ourselves to drift

AUGUST 12

AMOS PLEADS FOR JUSTICE

Golden text: "Love worketh no ill to his neighbor; love therefore is the fulfilment of the law." Romans 13:10.

Lesson: Amos, Chapters 5 and 7.

Devotional Reading: Proverbs 21: 1-7.

Explanations And Comments

A Lament over Israel, 5:1-3. Amos has been called "the first doomster of Israel." Now he lays down which I take up for a lamentation over you, O house of Israel." Romans 9:27-28. our message. A "lamentation" is a technical term applied to poetry of a mournful nature, as to a name chanted over the dead, as in David's lamentation over Saul and Jonathan (2 Samuel 1.17), or in the face of any calamity, as in Ezekiel's lament in Ezekiel 19. "The virgin of Israel is fallen; she is cast down upon the land." Although Amos wrote many decades before the destruction of Samaria, the consequences would be now soon to whom he was sent—that he would be carried captive. Amos knew only too well how he was hated in Israel. He was accused of blasphemy and high treason, and told by the priest Amaziah to "Go, flee to the land of Judah, and eat there thy bread, and prophesy there: but prophesy not again any more at Bethel." And he had obeyed and there he was, the sentence of the sacrifice of his dreams he had given.

Verses 4-6 addressed the judges and accused them of trampling on the poor, demanding a portion of their scanty harvest of wheat, for by no other way could they obtain justice except by that bribery. A fair tribution would overtake them; they should not dwell in the fine houses of hewn stone, nor drink the pleasant wine that appeared in the dreams he had given.

Verses 7-9 condemned the judges and accused them of trampling on the poor, demanding a portion of their scanty harvest of wheat, for by no other way could they obtain justice except by that bribery. A fair tribution would overtake them; they should not dwell in the fine houses of hewn stone, nor drink the pleasant wine that appeared in the dreams he had given.

Your transgressions are many, your sins mighty. You take a bribe from the rich and let them escape from justice, and withheld a man's rights from him to whom he pay a bribe. Moffatt translates: "I know your countless crimes, browbeating honest men, accepting bribes, defrauding the poor at justice"

A Way Of Escape From Penalty, 5:14, 15 Professor Kent paraphrases these verses in these words: "Seek whomsoever my words appeal. I repeat my earnest prayer in efforts to do that which is right in the sight of God, and he the Lord of hosts will just, will not fail you. Undoubtedly strive to get down publicly and to purify the law courts; perchance a faithful few may yet survive the approaching destruction to enjoy Jehovah's blessing and favor."

Justice Shall Prevail, Pleading to God, 5 21-24. "The prophet now represents God as saying, "I hate, I despise your feasts, and I will take no delight in your solemn assemblies." But let justice roll down as waters, and righteousness as a mighty stream.

Little Journeys In Science

WATER

(By Gordon H. Guest, M.A.)

Water is the most familiar of all chemical compounds. It covers about three-fourths of the earth's surface, the greatest depth of the ocean being about six miles. It is an important component of the air, and even "dry" land contains considerable quantities of water. It constitutes about 62% of beef, 87% of milk, 92% of watermelons, and 80% of cucumbers. Thus when we drink normal milk we pay for about 87% water.

Living things, both plants and animals, cannot exist without it. Enormous shipping, fishing, and other industries result from the fact that three quarters of the earth's surface is covered with sea water, and in addition, there is a great volume of fresh river and lake water so necessary to human welfare and other creatures not inhabiting the sea.

Steam power is derived from water, and other mechanical power is obtained from falling water, as at Niagara where electricity is generated on a very large scale.

Pure water is odorless and tasteless. In this layers it has no color that can be detected, but it has a bluish tint when observed through considerable thickness. When sufficiently cooled it solidifies to a colorless mald commonly known as ice When heated it boils and changes rapidly into water vapor, commonly called steam.

There is a general law or nature that substances expand when heated and contract when cooled. Fortunately for man and other living creatures water does not always follow this law When warm water is cooled it contracts according to the law of expansion and contraction, until it reaches about four degrees centigrade. For some reason which scientists cannot explain, from four degrees down as far as you wish to go water expands instead of contracting Now, if it expands it will be lighter than it was before four degrees, and hence the cold water will rise to the surface When the temperature drops to zero the forms at the surface first, and then below as the temperature remains below zero.

It would be different if water followed the law of expansion and contraction regularly The water would become heavier as the temperature approached zero and this heavy cold water would drop to the bottom of the lake or river, and remain there at the bottom and as the winter progressed the lake would freeze from the bottom up, until it was converted into a solid mass of ice All water animals would be destroyed and the warmth of summer would not be sufficient to thaw it out

At noon, the temperature of the moon is hotter than boiling water but it falls to several hundred degrees below zero at night.

Addition of a per centage of copper to pure gold gives it a reddish color, silver gives it a greenish tint

SYNOPSIS

Camilla Hoyt and Peter Anson, young and in love, marry secretly, deciding to live their own lives apart until Peter is able to provide for her. Peter is a young, struggling sculptor trying to win a competition for a scholarship abroad and Camilla is the adopted daughter of a wealthy family. She is not to inherit money when she comes of age and so is studying commercial art in the hope of landing an agency job. Others in the story are Avis Worth, another wealthy girl who is trying to win Peter, Sylvia Todd, Peter's model, and Gus Mateo, his former room-mate with whom he has quarrelled. After a party at an exclusive club, when the rest of the members of the party go to a cabaret to continue the gaiety, Peter and Camilla slip off to the house by themselves and fall asleep on the sand. When they awake it is early morning and Avis and

WINNIPEG TO VANCOUVER CYCLIST HERE

Pedals 4000 Miles

John Scheel, 16-year-old Winnipeg youth, who rode a bicycle from his home to Vancouver and is now on his return journey, stopped over in Vermilion last Thursday afternoon and was introduced to a busy Fair crowd in the grandstand. He had his album autographed by Mayor Fallow, waved his hand around at the crowd and was off on his homeward way.

The boy was the picture of health, bronzed and strong looking. His leg muscles when flexed were undeniable, made so by countless hours of cycling. His return route was from Vancouver to Calgary, to Edmonton and home by the Jasper highway.

Genuine regret is felt by many local hockey followers at the untimely death of Jack Leswick, a member of the Chicago Blackhawks. His body was found in the river at Winnipeg after he had been missing for several days. He was well known here, having played many games on our arena as a member of the Lloydminster hockey team then a crack outfit, back in 1927 and 1928.

ISLAND HILL

When in Vermilion during the week we dropped in to see Mr. W. A. Hogan who has erected a fine new residence on Main St. a few doors from the Bank of Commerce and found him very busy. Should you dear reader, require a new suit or an old one cleaned and pressed Bill is your man.

Born To Mr. and Mrs. Fred Hogan, at the Vermilion municipal hospital, Saturday, July 28, a daughter. Congratulations.

We regret to learn Mr. M. McHugh is very ill in hospital in the Vermilion hospital. His many friends wish him a speedy and complete recovery.

Island Football club were again our visitors Sunday, this time in the cup competition, and the game ended in a draw, 3 goals each. The game will be played the rest of the play.

Mr. Hogan's version of the game we were also favored with a boxing exhibition by the two brothers of the lady players was requested to join the show but Mr. Hazel and George Richardson were our seconds. Refer to Mr. H. Eldred.

The re-play will take place at Islay —when, we cannot say, as the best ball ever seen on sports field on keeping the dates of the matches as secret as a war cabinet. We observed the referee to endeavor to find out the date of the re-play, and it was screwed into our ear "you are not a football player," so we returned and went home in a hurry.

U.F.A. monthly meeting will take place Monday, 13th.

Come on, friend Martin, send in that poem you promised. The editor of the standard is always pleased to publish the product of a fertile brain. Besides, you may qualify for the Mer it Medal, or if you prefer it we will recommend our dearly beloved fellow scribe Neighborhood (gosh, we hope her husband does not read these lines) to award you the Pie Plate.

Hugh Ackerson lost a medal which he valued highly as a keepsake, and after a search found it, when he and dearly reclaimed "I have found my Merit Medal." Hugh deserves and is hereby awarded the Merit Medal for this exhumation.

Miss Sullivan after two weeks vacation at her old home at Poplar Heights, has returned to Edmonton.

Father Smith, who preached a mission last week at Vermilion Catholic church, is a gentleman out of the ordinary. His sermons last Sunday was delivered in three different languages — first in English second in German, third in French.

WILDMERE WINKS

Jimmie Wallington took his usual load to the Fair on Thursday last. There were 22 in the load, so Jimmie did his part for the Vermilion Exhibition. He also attended the Seed Grain demonstration at the agricultural school that day.

Laurence Graham, brother of Mrs. J. Wallington, took sick at the Fair on Thursday with acute appendicitis and was operated on that night at 10 o'clock in the Vermilion hospital. He is now progressing favorably. It is tough luck on a young man just starting farming, though. Never mind, Laurence, just keep up that cheery smile of yours.

The last meeting of the Dangwood Social club until after the busy season was held at the school on Saturday evening. There was only a small attendance. Roger Pare was elected secretary treasurer, replacing Gilbert Brimacombe.

Mrs Cook and Miss Bessie Garbutt who have been visiting this past six weeks with their sister and aunt, Mrs. T. L. Riley, left on Monday evening for Edmonton. They will spend a day or two there and then continue to Winnipeg where they will attend the exhibition. They will then go to their home in Brooklin, Ont. Everyone wishes them a safe and pleasant journey home.

Mr. and Mrs. J. Burke and family visited Monday at the Swaffert and Riley homes.

Fred Webber of Tofield was a Sunday visitor at the Smith home. He and Alex had rooms close together when they attended school in town.

P. C. Wallington brought over a new 7-foot Massey Harris binder on Tuesday, with which to cut his 1934 crop. There is much new this week. The writer is too busy gathering berries to gather news.

CLAIMS RELIEF INDEBTEDNESS UNFAIR AND UN-CHRISTIAN

Complaint Made of Alleged Injurious Statements

Frank Alp attended the town council meeting on the 6th, requesting a statement of his relief indebtedness and in writing. He pointed out how unfair and un-christian it was to ask a man on relief to contribute, he claimed, over 50c% to the taxpayers (property owners and business men) of the town.

Mr. Alp also complained that two unfair and injurious statements had been made by members of the council, —one that he had refused to work, and another that he had refused to be medically examined. No comment was made and the accusations were not substantiated.

CLANDONALD WILL GET GOOD CROPS

(Taken from Edmonton Bulletin)

Crops in the Clandonald district are in excellent condition, although they may have suffered slight damage through excessive heat during the last few days, stated Father Andrew MacDonell, O.M.I., M.C., director the Scottish Immigrant Aid Society, who is a business visitor in Edmonton.

Considerable progress has been made by settlers in the colony during the past year, according to Father MacDonell. Land ready for cultivation has been increased by approximately 1600 acres, while approximately 2,000 more acres is in crop this season over that of last year.

On Saturday, August 11, a competition between the settlers will be held at Clandonald at which prizes will be awarded for in classes for the best corn ear of wagon, harness and team of two horses, the best calf raised and shown by boy or girl under 16 years of age, and also in the "better farms" competition in which the better buildings, the beautifying of house, the garden and quality of livestock and grain will be factors. S.A. Band From Edmonton Visits Vermilion

It would have taken a very severe music critic indeed to find any flaw in the Salvation Army concert, presented by the Edmonton band, on Saturday night last. The visit of the Band was, as stated, a rare treat. Although not arriving until 6:30 to 7 p.m., the Band very generously rendered several numbers in the park before their regular concert. They were listened to by several hundred people, who lined the sidewalk and road; parking space was at a decided premium.

The Band then marched to the Community hall where they rendered a most delightful concert, consisting of a variety of instrumental and band numbers, and vocal selections. There was also a duet reading and then the meeting was appropriately completed by a prayer by the Band Sergeant.

INTERESTING RACING AT VERMILION EXHIBITION

Although the track got a setback from the heavy rain of Tuesday, harness races pulled off Thursday in connection with Vermilion exhibition provided exciting finishes to some one thousand people, who jammed the grandstand. In most cases it was neck and neck crossing of the tape. The two-for-all perhaps furnished the most excitement. Battle Tide, owned by York & Fleming, of Provost, was out in three straight, her best time being 2.17. Belle Monte, owned by Mr. and Mrs. of Portland, Sask., was a close second, with Jean Worth, also owned by York & Fleming, coming third in the 2.20 class, Lady Wellington, owned by Jake Kushlowy of Shoal Lake, Sask., coming in the winner in three heats with 2.17½ as record time. Jean Wakefield, owned by A. N. Terry, Provost, finished second and Myrtle B., owned by George Jenkins Camrose, third. The open run was taken by Jean Provost owned by W. A. Findlay Vermilion, with some club also owned by Findlay coming second. Time 2.5. The ladies' race was won by Marigold, owned by V. H. Evans Vermilion Roney, owned by George Brown, came second and Captain owned by H. M. Maskell, Vermilion, third. Time 2.5.

SEED GRAIN DEMONSTRATION HELD ON THURSDAY LAST

Improvement of Seed Essential If Export Market to be Held

RESTS IN HANDS OF FARMERS THEMSELVES

A Seed Grain demonstration, with lectures on its use, was held at the Demonstration farm on Thursday of last week under the auspices of the Dominion and Provincial Departments of Agriculture, Prov. Seed Branch Alberta Wheat Pool, U.F.C. Seeding Grain Co.; Alberta Pacific Grain Co.; Soldiers' Settlement Board National, Northern, Midland and Pacific Grain companies, and Canada Malting Co.

Among those present were Dean Howes of the Dept. of Agriculture, University of Alberta; H. A. Craig, deputy minister of agriculture; Mr Stewart of Calgary, and Mr. Lewis of Edmonton, dominion agriculture inspectors, as well as various officials of the elevator companies, Soldiers' Settlement Board and Provincial Seed Branch association. About 300 farmers were in attendance. Short lectures were given by N. C. Stewart, Dean Howes, and H. A. Craig, and a demonstration by Mr. Lewis.

THE PLAN OF IMPROVING SEED

The idea behind the plan is to improve the seed sown by the farmer. At the present time in the majority of cases the farmer sows what he calls Marquis or Garnet and reaps about 67 varieties ,particularly true in the case of the older seed Marquis He will also use his own seed year in and out with consequent depreciation in variety and yield. This lowers Canada's grain standard and also Canada's potential export market. To keep our export market and it is upon this that Canada greatly depends, we must raise superior grain to our competitors, as Canada is further from the buying centre, Great Britain, than other grain exporting countries. From all this devolves upon the kind of seed sown in the first place and to the fact that we must constantly improve the seed, and it is to this end that these bodies are working on the seed testing plan.

The testing plan is carried out by the elevator companies who every fall collect samples from wagon deliveries to the elevator, and each spring get samples right from the farmers' seed drills. These are numbered and classified, then forwarded to the agent in charge of the district seed plots. Out of these samples under the testing plan only 38% graded "A" or good, 22% "B" and 43% went "C." Eighteen thousand samples have been graded and this year some 27,000 samples are being graded. The elevator agent then attempts to persuade the farmers with the poor seed to obtain seed from the "A" farmer. A plan of assisting farmers to get pure seed is sponsored jointly by the Federal and Provincial governments, together with the grain companies and railways. Full information may be obtained at local elevators regarding this plan.

Results of inspectors' findings may be obtained from local elevator representatives concerning each farmers' plot. Seed plots grown on the dessen division farm have also included summer fallow plots, crop rotated, and some untreated, showing the results obtained from testing.

For full information regarding any of these points, inquire of the local elevator agents.

WEDDING BELLS

BELL—SHAW

ISLAY, Aug. 8. - A quiet wedding was solemnized on Monday, August 6, at the home of Mr and Mrs. John Shaw, Islay, when their daughter Hilda Louise, was united in marriage to Mr Robert Bell of Islay, the Rev Mr Laird conducted the ceremony.

The bride was becomingly dressed in a gown of ashes of roses crepe over white sheen and carried a bouquet of roses and ferns.

Miss Lillian Shaw was her sister's bridesmaid, and was charming in a dress of coral silk crepe.

Mr. W Tenly attended the bridegroom.

The bride and bridegroom left by motor for a short visit to Edmonton. For travelling the bride wore a navy blue suit with accessories in white.

MALLETT—GERRY

Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Gerry of Bever announce the marriage of their daughter Berbie Gertrude, to Mr. Maurice Mallett, formerly of Fleet, Alberta, which took place Monday, August 6, at the Highlands United church. Rev J W Smith officiating —Edmonton Journal.

"You can't Stop stoking a steam engine" said Wrigley

Interviewed, and asked to what he attributed his phenomenal success, the late Mr. Wrigley, of chewing gum fame, replied, "To the consistent advertising of a good product."

"But," asked the reporter, "having captured practically the entire market, why continue to spend vast sums annually on advertising?"

Wrigley's reply was illuminating.

"Once having raised steam in an engine," he stated, "it requires continuous stoking to keep it up. Advertising stokes up business and keeps it running on a full head of steam."

This applies to your business, too. Don't make a secret of your product. Tell people all about it. Tell them what it does. Tel them its advantages. Tell them where to get it. Tell them through the Press and keep on telling them.

dance that has been the case for many years past; the grandstand attractions provided by the Nellie Small Amusement Co. of Saskatoon, were late in arriving, owing to the impassable condition of the highway in Saskatchewan; the afternoon programme was somewhat interrupted on this account, but the programme presented to the packed stand in the evening was splendidly received and the audience were apparently loud in their praises of the attractions, judging by the throngs which packed the [illegible] and paddock on the second day, at both afternoon and evening performances.

The second day of the Fair was ideal and crowds packed both stand and grounds during the entire day. The harness and running race programme was run off smoothly, with Starter Fred Kaye getting the ponies away in style; the parimutuels drew a fair crowd and those who had a few dollars to spare seemed to enjoy the added excitement.

The Vermilion Citizens' Band was in attendance both days, adding much to the enjoyment of all those present.

Exhibition Prize Said Tourney

The final baseball game drew the largest crowd on record and the Edmonton team managed to put it over the doughty Wainwright nine to win first money for the tournament.

LOCAL MIDWAY

The locally owned and operated midway was in operation during the Fair and drew a good play. The old reliable stage entertained the ladies and the other booths drew a good play from the more enterprising men. The youngsters were particularly interested in the dart board and milk bottles; and the local operators of the booths strained their lungs in an endeavor to entice the unwary to "take a chance."

Probably the most popular form of amusement on the grounds, from the kiddies' point of view, was the merry-go-round, which enjoyed a continuously crowded patronage both days.

BETTER NEXT YEAR

The Vermilion Fair has been built up on a regional basis and practically all exhibitors came from within a range of fifty miles of the town. Despite the fact that provincial grants have been entirely eliminated and the Dominion grant somewhat reduced, the directors of the Vermilion Fair have been able to continue their annual exhibition and it is realized that only the full co-operation of the people of the district around the town has made it possible to maintain the standard of the Fair when other such events have been gradually going out of existence all over the West. Vermilion Fair was advertised as the only "B" class fair in northern Alberta, and judging from the comments of visitors, judges, etc., it may well be advertised as Alberta's Outstanding Fair — it rests with the people of the district, and if the same measure of support is received in the future as has been on Prouty given in the past, it is hoped that our Fair may be maintained in its rightful place among the exhibitions of Western Canada. Bigger and Better will again be the motto in 1935 and suggestions for the improvement of the Fair will gladly be received at any time from interested persons. The Fair is not a money making scheme; it exists for the betterment of [illegible] Vermilion district and it is hoped that more and more of our district people will take an interest in it and help to make it "Bigger and Better than Ever."

CLANDONALD

(Too late for last week)

The deep sympathy of the community is extended to the family of Mr. Henry Robinson, who died in the Vermilion Hospital on Friday, July 27th.

Mr and Mrs. Geo. Jacklin have returned home after a holiday spent in Calgary and Banff.

A very successful whist drive and "Pie Social" was held in the Convent on Wednesday, July 25th. Mrs. Frank Monaghan won the quilt which was made by the Ladies' Altar Society.

Mrs. Washington of Saskatoon, formerly of Vermilion, is the guest of Mr. and Mrs. Angus MacAulay.

We are pleased to learn that Harold White has been engaged for the coming term to teach at King Edward school. We would like to see more of our local teachers engaged in schools closer to home.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Rhoades are spending a few days in Edmonton. We understand that Fred is in poor health but have no details as yet.

The league game between St. Andrew's and Clandonald developed into a clean, well-contested match after a very tame start. St. Andrew's were awarded a goal after ten minutes of play; this goal was offside but St. Andrew's were well worth the score. In the second stanza the Clan settled down, battled apparently taken the measure of St. Andrew's, and they scored on three occasions. Jimmy Phelan and Jack Cusack were goal getters for the locals, and may we remark that the goal scored by Cusack was as nice a piece of work as we have seen in some time. Dan Walker scored St. Andrew's lone tally.

On no occasion was the game one-sided, and St. Andrew's are to be congratulated on the great fight they gave the locals.

Mr. Geo Chalmers and family just returned from their vacation in time to allow George to change and give a good account of himself in the Clandonald attack. The Chalmers have been visiting in Saskatchewan and have a sad story to relate of the grasshopper and drought damage to the crops in those parts.

Mr. W. E. Moberly returned on Sunday from his five weks' holiday south of the International line.

We had a flying visit on Monday last from Donald McPherson who at one time bought grain in Clandonald for the Pool. He is at present the Pool agent at Phillips, near Viking.

Mrs. Norris is home after a holiday spent with her folks in Calgary.

Mr. Harry O'Neil ,K.C., will be leaving us shortly for St. Paul.

May we join with the editor and staff of The Standard in congratulating the Red Deer Advocate on its fiftieth anniversary number. Mr. Walter Harris of the Advocate is a very dear friend of the writer, and the editor of the Advocate has been very generous during the past twelve years in his allotment of space to this humble scribe, in any progressive movement for the benefit of Red Deer and district the Advocate has invariably been the standard bearer, and they really deserve all the nice things said about them in the various papers throughout the Dominion.

Born—To Mr and Mrs Ed. Barclay in the Vermilion municipal hospital, a daughter. Congratulations, Ed.

Born—To Mr and Mrs Jim Smith in the Vermilion municipal hospital on July 29th, a son. Name to you Smithy.

The Rev. Fr. Maugan of Peterborough, is preaching a mission in Clandonald, commencing Sunday, 29th.

A meeting of the ratepayers of the hamlet was held on Wednesday last, with T. J. Cooley presiding and Ross Mackenzie secretary. Local problems were discussed the main object being to declare a herd law for the hamlet. It would appear that stray cattle are fond of the delectable garden truck raised by different members of the community.

Listen! Is what we say on Sunday it would appear that the Mayhew family were very pleased that George White left a piece in June and a set line pail handy when he left home. Hope you made it alright Lawrence.

[illegible] a wedding of interest to the community took place on Wednesday when Claire White was united in the bonds of matrimony to [illegible] The ceremony took place in the [illegible] church, Rev. Father Maugan officiating. The bride was attended by Miss Mary Ann Cusack and the groom by Mr. Jack Cusack. The bride was charmingly attired in a navy blue ensemble with white accessories and carried a bouquet of roses. After the ceremony a reception was held at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Jas. White, where a delicious luncheon was served to the guests. Mr. and Mrs. Gerald Cusack left on the afternoon train for a honeymoon trip to Edmonton and other points. The bride's going away costume was a navy blue ensemble with white accessories. The best wishes of the community are extended to the happy couple.

A tremendous crowd turned out on Friday night for the prize drawing dance. The radio went to Saskatoon. The only major prize to remain in the locality was won by John Logan.

In the past week we read of the death of two people more or less in the public eye. One was perhaps the most famous gangster of modern times, John Dillinger, known as public enemy No 1 in the U.S.A. The other was the premier of an empire once a major European power, but since the Versailles Treaty a comparatively small nation Austria. Engelbert Dollfuss had served his country as well as he knew how. John Dillinger had served himself at the expense of his country equally well but, my friend, what a sickening similarity between these two deaths. What little mercy there was, went to the gangster, he came he died the quicker, the man who served his country was allowed to slowly bleed to death in fearful agony for five hours, and his murderers even gave him the right to see a clergyman and make his peace with God.

We talk of the searching for the "Deity in Man." How presumptuous we are when man is still capable of acts such as these.

(From Wainwright Star.)—The vacancies on the teaching staff for the coming term have now been filled by the appointment of Mr. Mead, formerly of Edgerton and of Mr. J.W. Sweezey, formerly of Grande Prairie.

FOOTBALL NOTES
Island Hill 2, Islay 2

On Sunday last Islay again journeyed to Island Hill, this time to battle for the right to enter the Cup final Islay won the toss and took the west end with the wind and sun behind them. Island Hill kicked off but lost to Matheson who passed to Meiler. Jimmy went down the wing, beat three men and the goalie with a shot from twenty yards out. Islay 1 Island Hill 0. Five minutes later Jimmy again swept down the wing, this time crossing to Munro, who scored. Islay 2 Is. Hill 0. Then Island Hill started to play football but the wind was too much against them. Islay pressed continuously but their shooting lacked accuracy and half time came with them still two up.

After the change over, the Hill attacked steadily, but only after twenty minutes could they find the goal. Island Hill 1, Islay 2. Islay then took a share in the play and came close to scoring. After ten more minutes the inside right scored off a corner from Chris Hawkes who had moved over to outside left. This evened the game, 2-2. Right from the kick-off both sides strained every muscle to get the winning goal. Two minutes from the end Jimmy Meiler again broke away and had the goalkeeper at his mercy, but the Hill centre half who was lying on the ground, reached out and grabbed Jimmy's ankle, it is alleged. The centre half got half way up and Jimmy continued on his way to the ring. The Hill player went out and Jimmy went off. After this Munro came close to scoring but too much did well to hold down and the game will be replayed in Islay. Watch for the date. It will be a great game and may the better team win the thanks are due to Mr. Edwards who handled the game in an efficient and capable manner.

Islay lined up as follows: Carter (Steves, H. Robertson, Matheson, T. Meiler, W. Steves, J. Munro, Hawkes, Munro, C. Robertson and Steves Jr.

Islay's next game will be played at Islay on Friday, August 17th at 6:30 p.m. Let's have a big crowd

To Stimulate Objective Thinking

The topsy turvy condition in which the world finds itself to-day, naturally leads to nervous thought on the part of everyone. Why should there be a shortage of wheat in the midst of a surplus of commodities which we call money? Stagnation of trade the world over. One hears that the capitalistic system is doomed as a result of the present chaotic condition. Is it time for a change? Many theories are being put forward. Some suggest Utopia. The history of the world establishes the fact that a revolution necessarily come slowly. There can be no rapid realization of any fundamentally accepted changes in our social system. But the world must not stand still. A forward and not a backward movement is inevitable. The encouragement and not the suppression of constructive thinking and expression of thought would be of material advantage. In the annual address of Principal Fyfe of Queen's University, reference was made to the stimulation of thought by means of discussions in the class rooms. He is reported in part as follows:

"In our academic seclusion we sometimes retch from a hustler world the echoes of an accusation that the Universities of Canada are becoming nurseries of anarchy and revolution. So far as such charges have any basis except hysteria, they mean more to encourage us, for they seem to indicate that students are at least experimenting with the art of looking at both sides of disputed questions as an approach to truth. In our duty to encourage them in this direction we are supported and their speech which has for the moment established a tragic confusion between right, patriotism and servility. We must show them that in a University where men and women gather to exercise their functions of rationality and love, freedom and truth are necessarily implied. Their presence here as citizens is guaranteed by the constitution of the land, and utterance would be in a University the basest treason. As Penn said Wherever is right, the preacher must be strong.

"If we are to stimulate objective thinking, we must be quick to live in speech and thought ourselves—but not equally rash. Propaganda is no part of a teacher's proper function. He is not concerned to produce opinion on a temporary plan which can be quickly changed by country-propaganda. His aim is to stimulate the growth of intelligence, the power of detached judgment. To that end he may exercise in the class-room every art of persuasion that he knows, but if he blends his way into the center world, where opinions clash unanchored both from fact and reason, it behoves him to remember what astonishing weight that world attaches to a professorial pronouncement. The professor stalks heavily into the platform, sternly demanding judicial sobriety. A University teacher should certainly be clever, he needs to be wise, and of the factors of wisdom not the least are self-restraint and kindliness and patience."

Wonder Of Modern Surgery

Doctors Can Remove Faces Entombed Away By Disease

Persons whose faces are disfigured by disease or accidents no longer need live the remainder of their lives in horror of being seen in public

Almost entirely new faces can now be "manufactured" by surgeons, according to Drs. Gordon B. New and Frederick A. Figi, of Rochester, Minn. The doctors described the operations to members of the American Medical Association during the annual session of that group in Cleveland

Operations to renovate faces are performed after disease and has away bone, cartilage and mucous membrane, or following the removal of tumors, the doctors said

Artificial plates are inserted in the cheek-bones, jaw-bones and nose; bones are "carved" by means of gouge and skin and bone are borrowed from other parts of the body to be grafted to the face

And when these things are accomplished, the doctors asserted, the person again can face the world with something akin to confidence

Gold Pouring Into London

Great Increase In Foreign Deposits Of Precious Metal

The golden tide, unchanged in the history of the world's monetary movements, continues to pour into London.

It began a year ago with a gold influx at the rate of $25,000,000 weekly, then it increased early this year to $50,000,000 weekly, and during it averages 45 millions weekly and shows no indication of declining. As soon as gold arrives in England from South Africa, Canada and other producing countries, it is bought by French, German, Dutch and American buyers, nervous about the financial state of affairs in their own countries, and stored away unrelentingly in the vaults of London banks, where they know it cannot be touched. Already in the square mile that constitutes the city of London more precious metal has accumulated than ever King Solomon's legendary mines contained. The latest figures, covering a period of nine months, show gold imports valued at £ 90,000,000 or 200 000 Exports reached less than $500,000,000. Altogether, at the moment, ten billion dollars and a quarter of foreign gold is stored in the city banks a figure which exceeds any previous records in peace time.

But what is the use of this gold; they cannot use it either to provide credits for industry or work for British people? Germany, starving for fresh financial upheaval in Europe might cause its flight from London, but the immediate effect is an alarming international stability. Its uselessness is further emphasized by the fact that, while the reports say they are bursting with it, the official government figures reveal that the British people's standard of living is on the way of wages and salaries has been decreased through an economy campaign by $310,000,000 since the gut crisis of 1931.

Solo Climber Lost Life

Former British Army Captain Attempted Ascent Of Mount Everest

Captain Wilson, who lost his life, would be the limit in human daring. It is the sort of unbridled audacity which the British admire. It is the sacrilege and which the gods invariably punished. The penalty has been visited on Capt. Wilson. The former British army captain who set out to walk up a mountain which organized expeditions have failed to conquer, had his theory that three Everest attempts had failed because of overwhelmation, in which he may have been right.

Mr. Wilson did not count on making use of ropes and tracks left by the Everest expeditions. He set out on that in the strictest sense he was something more than a one-man expedition. Everything that he has done, he obviously belonged to the new school of mountaineering which has been springing since the war and which has transformed a sport into a gamble with death. The new climbing technique affects men and the older Alpinists would not dream of attempting, but they have done it at an enormous cost of life.—New York Times.

Britain Still Maintaining Her Rate Of The Sea

What may be taken as a sign of a world trend toward prosperity is the fact that on June 30 last, compared with the same date last year, there was a 70 per cent. increase in the tonnage of the merchant ships under construction in the yards of all nations, except Russia, about which Lloyd's had no official information. Since June, 1933, there has been increased activity in most shipyards of the world, and the report on the nation.

Secret Method Revealed

How Scotland Yard Determines Age Of Finger Prints

Scotland Yard's secret method of telling the age of finger prints was revealed in Session Court in London during the trial recently of John C. O'Connor, charged with breaking into the Lady Margaret Day Nursery.

Evidence against him was a thumb-print found on a clock, but O'Connor said he had only handled the timepiece in 1922. Detective-Sergeant Jack Livings, of New Scotland Yard, said he had no doubt the fingerprint was that of O'Connor.

He added: "The powder we apply to latent impressions to bring them out will stick to the ridges of a new print, but an old one is dry and the powder will not adhere to it. A fresh print can easily be removed by a duster, but a stale one can only be removed by a damp cloth."

HITLER TAKES OVER THE ROLE OF DICTATORSHIP

Berlin.—Adolf Hitler, in a series of lightning-like moves, has made himself absolute dictator of Germany.

He concentrated in his own hands the functions of president and of chancellor as soon as the aged president and patriot, Paul von Hindenburg, died at Neudeck.

Then he called for and received an oath of personal allegiance from officers and men of the entire army and navy.

After these moves, amounting to a virtual coup d'etat, the former lance corporal, who succeeded a field marshal, called for a plebiscite on Aug. 19.

Although desiring the functions of the presidency, Hitler declined to accept the title

In a letter to Wilhelm Frick, minister of the interior, Hitler outlined his plans to assume the office without the title, saying he desired henceforth to be known as before as "fuehrer and reichschancellor."

He directed that a "free secret election" be held at which the continuation of power in his hands and such other matters as may be necessary be kept.

"The necessity for regulating the question of the chief of state, caused by the sudden death of the president has overtaken our people," Hitler wrote, "leads me to issue the following order:

"First, the greatness of the deceased has given to the title of reichspresident a unique and non-recurring significance.

"According to the feeling of all of us, and in what I it meant to us this title is indissolubly bound up with the name of the great deceased. I therefore request care be taken in official and unofficial communications to address me just as heretofore, as fuehrer and reichschancellor only. This stipulation is to be observed in the future also.

"Second. I desire that the vesting in my person, and charged by the reich's chancellor's office as such, of the functions of the former reichspresidency, decided upon by the cabinet and constitutionally valid, shall receive the expressed sanction of the German people.

"Steeped in the conviction that all authority of the state must proceed from the people and by them be ratified in free, secret election, I request you immediately to lay the decision of the cabinet, with possible necessary changes in the law, to the German people for a free plebiscite."

Rapidity of the action which concentrated in the hands of one man Germans in the hands of one man recalled the speed with which the Nazis first came to power on the morning of Jan 30, 1933

Once again the Germans showed they are a people ready to be regimented to obedience. The change from a country governed at least theoretically by representative government to one of absolute dictatorship seemed to cause no ripple

Dire whisperings that the reichswehr, which worshipped the aged President von Hindenburg as a hero, might overthrow the upstart Nazi Regime—as unfounded as had been reports of a general strike when Hitler became chancellor.

By nightfall, the propaganda ministry announced the entire army and navy had taken the oath.

It was announced wherever detachments happened to be or wherever ships lay at anchor or moved through the seas.

Absolute Minimum Is Idea Of New Japanese Premier

Tokyo.—Keisuke Okada, new premier of Japan, whose viewpoint on naval questions was awaited eagerly by the world, said he believes navies should be reduced to the smallest proportions possible.

But he added that Japan is dissatisfied with the arbitrary 5-5-3 ratio laid down by Washington treaty of 1922 as Japan's proportion of capital ships in relation to Great Britain and the United States. Revision of the Washington treaty is to be abolished has not yet been decided, he said.

"I cannot favor the present ratio principle in naval limitation, which hurts the self respect of certain nations," said the premier who was called to the head of the government by the assassination of Premier Inukai. His observations were made at his first meeting with foreign newspaper correspondents.

Opening Of Bay Route

Prospects For A Record Shipping Season Seen Good

Churchill, Man. — Warm winds whistled over Hudson strait as harbor crews at this northern seaport prepared to open the navigation season of 1934 on Aug. 10.

With 10 steamers definitely chartered and more bookings in the offing, port officials were enthused over prospects for a record shipping season. A complete crew always is on hand to swing machinery into action at the huge elevator filled with 2,500,000 bushels of wheat.

"It will be an act with more teeth in it than is contained in existing legislation," he said. "We are going to bring both sides together to work out a code. We are going to put the shyster employer out of business altogether in Ontario. There are other gross abuses which we will abolish."

RECOVERY IN BRITAIN SUFFERS FROM RECESSION

London.—Parliament has adjourned with economic recovery at a crisis

For the first time since 1932, when Britain began her steady climb out of the depression, business activity has slumped.

The drop is a slight one, but it is the first, and the dominant economic question in London is merely temporary or the initial sign of a serious recession in the near future

Whichever it happens to be observers say, the limits to Britain's recovery will be reached at a point far below her pre-depression prosperity unless there is an upward trend in world trade

The reason is that the recovery to date has been fostered largely on internal, not external demand.

Belief that there are limits to Britain's recovery was voiced by Sir Rupert E. Beckett, chairman of the Westminster Bank, who said "The British people can never gain real prosperity merely by taking in each other's washing."

Exports are Britain's present recovery to two factors: That the country has been able to get in on the ground floor of the world-wide rearmament boom and that behind the tariff wall erected in 1931 she has been able to gain a large share of her domestic market. . .

Stewart-Craig Nuptials On Wednesday

Miss Kathleen Craig and Mr. E. M. Stewart, whose marriage took place at Vermilion on Wednesday.

A wedding of unusual charm was solemnized at 5:30 o'clock Wednesday afternoon in the First United church when Miss Helen Kathleen Craig, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John A. M. Craig, was married to Mr. Elmore Markey Stewart, son of the Rev. Alexander and Mrs. Stewart of Edmonton. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Mr. Stewart, father of the groom, assisted by the Rev. H. A. Boyd, pastor of the church, under an arch festooned with maiden-hair ferns, white and orange gladioli blow forming a color scheme, along with the floral decorations of the church auditorium, of rose and attractive beauty. The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, was attended by her sister, Miss Jean Craig as maid of honor, and Miss Marguery Stewart, sister of the groom. Miss Ina Chatwin of Turtleford, Saskatchewan and Miss Claire West, cousin of the bride, as bridesmaids, all of whom were daintily gowned in frocks of net in pastel shades with picture hats to match, and carried silk net muffs covered with sweet peas and gardenias.

The bride was lovely in a simply cut gown of white satin with Tudor collar and long sleeves, prettily set off with seed pearls set in georgette. The skirt cut in train was soft with billowy georgette ruffles. A long embroidered veil fell gracefully from a coronet of orange blossoms caught at the back with pearls. She carried a shower bouquet of roses and lilies of the valley.

Mr. Duncan Stewart of Edmonton attended the bridegroom and the ushers were Mr. L. M. Craig of North Battleford, Hugh C. Craig of Vermilion, Charles Mooney of Islay, and Gordon Ehrick of Edmonton.

Miss Marjorie Ann West, sweet in a shell pink georgette frock, was flowergirl, while Master Douglas Griffiths of Edmonton carried the bride's train and looked smart in a Fauntleroy suit of black velvet and white satin.

The wedding march was played by Miss Constance Tubb of North Battleford and Mr. V. M. West was soloist, to the bridegroom Felicitations singing "O Promise Me" with delightful effect.

The bride's mother was charmingly attired in figured shell pink georgette. The bridegroom's mother wore a lovely gown of canton blue georgette, each wearing a corsage of roses.

Immediately following the ceremony a reception was held at the home of the bride's father and which was artistically decorated with a profusion of ferns and cut flowers, altogether making a brilliant setting for the happy occasion.

The beautiful array of numerous gifts was arranged upstairs, these coming from relatives and friends in all parts of Canada.

The bride's table was tastily arranged and centred by a four-tier wedding cake. The table was presided over by Mrs. L. M. Craig, North Battleford, Mrs. S. E. Barwick, Mrs. C. L. Whitby, Mrs. F. M. Baker, and Mrs. (Dr.) W. H. Scott, of Vermilion. Assisting them were Mrs. A. M. West, Mrs. V. E. Kaiser, Mrs. D. Fenton, Edmonton, Mrs. Garland, Miss Jean Stewart, Edmonton, and the Misses Lois Whitby, Helen Baker, Myrtle McDonald, Agnes Stephens, Eleanor Parker, Elsworth Wiebe, of Vermilion, and Miss Mary Jackson, Edmonton.

The toast to the bride was proposed by Col. W. C. Craig of North Battleford and was appropriately responded to by the bridegroom Felicitations followed and an enjoyable evening was spent by the large number of guests present, at the close of which the happy couple, amid showers of confetti and good wishes, left for Murray Bay, Que., where they will spend their honeymoon. The bride chose a travelling ensemble of green silk crepe with brown accessories. After their return Mr. and Mrs. Stewart will reside in Vermilion.

Among the out-of-town guests were: Mr. and Mrs. P. Griffiths, Edmonton; Mrs. D. Chatwin, Turtleford, Sask.; Mr. and Mrs. Roger Roscoe, Edmonton; Mr. and Mrs. James Pearson, Edmonton; Col. W. C. Has Unusual Record

Woman Mechanist Took Turn On Watch in Graf Zeppelin

Karin Mannesmann, graduate engineer, holds the unique record of being the first woman machinist to be employed on a flight of the Graf Zeppelin.

Miss Mannesmann completed a round trip from Friedrichshafen to South America taking her shift in the motor gondola of the Zep with the other mechanists.

The young lady wore greasy overalls the entire time aboard the ship in contrast to the chic frocks of some of the women passengers.

Miss Mannesmann has been employed in an aeroplane factory and made the trip to familiarize herself with heavy motors under flying conditions. It was a prerequisite for a better job with a rival manufacturer.

During the trip she stood watches of two hours on, two hours off in the rear of the motor gondolas, the trick and rest periods at night being doubled.

Karin was graduated from the technical high school in Berlin receiving her degree in engineering. Since leaving school she has devoted her time to aeroplane design and construction.

Little Journeys In Science

SOLUTIONS

(By Gordon H. Guest, M.A.)

When a spoonful of salt is placed in a glass of water we observe that the salt disappears. The scientist describes this simple fact by saying that the salt has dissolved in the water and he calls the resulting mixture a salt solution. The substance which is dissolved is called the solute and the material which does the dissolving is known as the solvent. Those who salt in the water the water the salt is the solute and the water as the solvent.

Water is the most common and useful of all solvents. It dissolves many solids such as sugar salt washing soda, and saltpetre. It also dissolves some liquids such as alcohol which mixes readily with water in any proportion. Some gases are very soluble in water whereas others are only slightly soluble. Ammonia gas dissolves very readily in water, producing a solution which is sold as household ammonia. Oxygen is one example of a gas which is only slightly soluble, being found to the extent of three parts by volume to 100 parts of water. However this small amount of dissolved oxygen is sufficient to keep fish alive. The fish extract the oxygen from the water by means of their gills.

We are quite familiar with many other solvents. Gasoline is a good solvent for grease. Turpentine, naphtha paint and other dissolves fats. Another good solvent for grease is a liquid known by the chemist as carbon tetrachloride but which is more widely as a cleanser, under various trade names.

Plants can only use the minerals from the soil in solution. The water in the soil dissolves some of the minerals, and this solution is taken in through the roots of the plants and up to the leaves by capillary action in the human body all food is first transformed or "digested" into soluble substances before being taken into the blood stream.

Hardness in water is due to the presence of certain minerals which are dissolved in the water as it flows over frequently. Fluorine in the shape of tea bottles is made up of those minerals which are left behind when the water changes to steam.

Thrills Of An Under-Privileged Sportsman's Life

By JACK MILLS

Yes, readers and they prove to be more thrilling by the years open the human mind to be more and more appreciative and considerate of the blessed body and soul building and powerful advantages Dad has given us in the study of this great great outdoors. Personally, I am compelled to believe that my handicaps have brought me favours that money cannot buy nor take away. For illustration as soon as I was big enough to fiddle after father on a pigeon hunt and pull the top rail off a high fence then on with the ammunition and the shooting in his Engli ish accent, "Here they come, Jack, 'urry up and 'it." And soon I got the thrill of hearing the thunder of that old black powder and see the pigeons take dozens all around and about me. Later on came the thrill of moving the fun much tallied of Canada, and locating and catching my first den of gopher, pretty little, hard-biting red foxes. Then when fall came on and we were all meat hungry, I slipped out, and after snowy Sunday morning had the thrill of my life, for in less than an hour I had killed my first deer. I was then only 13 years of age, and could not be carry or drag it. So I ran home for help.

You should remember this youth at the springtime of life, and age in the harvest and at the price the average sportsman is paying for the sport of thrills to-day I have long since been a multi-millionaire.

Years and years before we had in open season on moose in Ontario. I hunted them in Quebec and time and again I have enjoyed the tingling thrill of having a small ear load of moose at the mercy of my rifle, and from 1906 to 1911 we had open season on shich in Ontario. Blessed I believe are the hearts entitled guns on earth!

I have flashed a light into a bear's den and been thrilled by seeing three of those black cinerous with pretty faces, looking helplessly and pitifully at me.

I have answered the howl of a wolf and be proof that I fooled him I soon saw him come quarter-ing my wards me, and without exception I had the sporting thrill of all my shooting career as I pressed the trigger and saw this monstrous timber wolf leap high in the air as that high-power bullet crashed through his living room.

Then under the above are all dead thrills, and a certain per centage of them to me have long since become petrified regrets and the best thrill they produced for me was when I sold and loaded my whole mounted collection into a box car to go to the Panama Exhibition.

And so the last quarter of a century I have restricted more to living thrills. One pair of barn swallows protected from them imported enemy the English sparrow, multiplied to 25 nests, which produced two hundred or more young thrills by the fifth year.

Three wild ducks left alive brought seven hundred clucking breeding thrills in seven years.

Four years of careful study and anxious waiting was rewarded by breaking thrills when eleven high migrating Canada bombers shut off the gas and put on the four wheel brakes and thrilled the whole neighbourhood with wonder and excitement, as they settled steadily and most leisurely down, down, down, and down, until they passed and rejoined with the winged tipped decoys in the

But possibly the most blessed and far reaching living sporting thrill that ever thrilled any sportsman's career came to me one night while at my work burning bush. Yes it was about 2:30 a.m. and I was sitting in a front room waiting the time to build the next fire. Yes, I am typing studying the stars that guided me to my boyhood raccoon hunting days. Yes, that have guided me hundreds of miles through the pathless wilderness. Yet I couldn't call tem of them by name. But here they are all back in their November formation, and in my simple way I seem to want to know me about them. With my hands I try to focus my eyes on them and so forth. Just at that stage of my anxiety my very soul was thrilled to the extreme limit with what I firmly and emphatically believe was the still small voice of my saint. "Raise your Sunday text and those Salvation Army calendar messages on your house hands, and make missionaries of your bandid bride Heidel, in a flash I threw that old blanket off my shoulders and sprang to my feet as quick or quicker than I have ever seen a bull moose rise out of his bed. Yes how to do it and its far reaching possibilities all seemed to be visualized or picked up in the same flash.

Well, since then I have caught, handed and liberated over 10,000 Canada geese. Think of it, 10,000, ten pounds of honking thrills tossed into the air to go and multiply. Oh! picture now if you can an aged white haired man reaping living thrills from his life-long study. He has goose bands. These bands were put on during the following years: 1 in 1920, 5 in 1921, 8 in 1922, 7 in 1930, 17 in 1931, 14 in 1932, 1 in 1933.

Address: Miner, Jack, Kingsville, Ont.

Port Harriman, c-o Hudson Bay Co. 100 McGill St., Montreal, Canada.

July 8th, 1933.

Dear Mr. Miner,

Thank you for your letter of October 16th, 1931. I would have replied before but I have been trying to collect a good many tags from the Eskimos.

I have collected a number, and gladly forward them to you. The Eskimos are still in possession of a good many old ones, and they do not take to give them up. However, if you could kindly send me a good number of Bible Lesson Picture Tracts to go inside their littles. I am confident that I could obtain all the tags they possess. Perhaps you could see your way clear to send me about 1 000 of the above tracts. I do not know what these may cost, but do not go to too great an expense.

The geese that have gone by this way the past few years have also such a great number of tags attached to their legs.

Iam only too willing of assist you in your work, so please that is any details you desire to know about

With all kinds thoughts

Yours very sincerely,

Signed Arnold C. Herbert.

Now please don't condemn the Eskimos for wanting to study the colored pictures mentioned in Rev. Herbert's letter, but still remember Mr. Miner many a time during my Sunday school career have I strolled into Mrs. Miner's, where she taught the infant class, and shared with them at least one look at the day's lesson. Possibly you see the colored pictures of the little curly-haired Carpenter standing before and holding the intense attention of a delegation of men. Or it may be that of Joseph making himself known to his aged broken hearted father. I tell you one and all it has always kindled my inspiration to be more considerate, patient and loving, when I went and sat down with my own class of mischievous teen aged boys.

Devotional reading: Isaiah 55:6-11.

Explanations And Comments

The False Confidence of Rulers, verses 1-3. The rulers were at ease in Zion (Jerusalem) and secure in Samaria; luxury had lulled them into a feeling of false security. There was some excuse for their pride. Every nation was at peace, and their capitals were deemed impregnable; defended as they were by surrounding mountains. "As the mountains were round about Samaria and Jerusalem, so," they believed, would Jehovah be found about his people. In point of fact, Samaria, kept the besieging Assyrian army at bay for three years before she finally met the doom which Amos had pronounced upon her thirty years or so before; and a century and a half afterwards it took the Babylonians 18 months to effect the capture of Jerusalem."

The Laziness and Luxury, verse 4. Amos now graphically pictures the everyday life of these prominent men of Samaria. They loll upon beds inlaid with ivory brought from afar, though they are not weary, and they stretch themselves upon their couches at table, though they are not hungry. "It is easy to understand how the prophet, desert-trained, sleeping under the stars, always on the alert against robbers and wild beasts, would not only look with scorn upon so idle and luxurious a life, but would see the dangers which lay behind it. Such people as this would be a poor defense in the day of trouble. They were soft in body, mind and soul; they knew nothing of the sound sleep which follows sheer weariness, nothing of how good, simple food may be enjoyed with hunger; nothing of how blessed is a draught of cool water to those who have gone a hard way under hard skies." (Adeney).

Vain and Vicious Pursuits, verses 5 and 6. "Rise is the mother of indolence and grandmother of vice." At their banquets the dissolute revellers sang idle songs to the sound of the viol, and invented for themselves instruments of music, as David did, though for a far different purpose; David used his instruments in the praise of Jehovah; these idle rich, in their drunken revels. For they became lopers who were not content to drink their wine from measured goblets but took and they sang, elated themselves with very costly oils; but they were not grieved for the affliction of Joseph, and the latter is the most damning charge of all! The expression calls to mind that scene in the early stories of the race when Joseph's brothers sat down to eat and drink, utterly callous of the cries of Joseph in the near-by pit, Genesis 42:21. In like manner, the people of Israel were careening in utter callousness to the sufferings of the poor, when "the righteous were being sold for silver and the needy for a pair of shoes."

"Ill fares the land, to hastening ills a prey,
When wealth accumulates and men decay."

"The heartless indifference of the luxurious rich to the social wrongs of the nations stirred the soul of Amos to its depths. He saw the national and religious lead ra s at ease, the newly women living in prodigal luxury, without a care for the tragic condition of the lower classes oppressed by injustice and corruption. The great thing about Amos is that he felt." We feel in Amos something akin to the Master when he flamed forth in indignant condemnation of the Pharisees." (Elmer A. Leslie).

Answers To Questionnaire On Recreation Show Surprising Result

An American organization known as the National Recreation Association, formed to study and make suggestions on the employment of leisure time, has been trying to find out what form of activity in their spare hours makes the greatest appeal to the average person.

It prepared and sent out a questionnaire to five thousand persons of all sorts: housewives, social workers, clerks, janitors, barbers, street cleaners, truck drivers and so on. They were asked to check on a list of 24 recreations those they preferred and made most use of Reading newspapers took first place by a wide margin.

The objection may be raised that the reading of newspapers should not be included in any such list, that it also should be a daily occupation of intelligent citizenship. Be this as it may, the revelation of the taste of the majority of people indicates the success of the newspapers in estimating popular interest, and justifies journalistic judgment in providing in the newspaper departments giving information, amusement and entertainment for young and old in every occupational group and social level.

FIELD DAY HELD AT CLANDONALD

The progress made by the settlers of the Clandonald colony, where crofters from the northern Isles of Scotland, and men from the industrial centres of northern Ireland are wresting a living from the soil, has been marvellous, stated Hon. P. E. Gridale, minister of agriculture, who was the principal speaker at a field day held on Saturday in connection with the colony. Hon. J. J. MacLean also addressed the gathering.

Sponsored by the Scottish Immigration Aid Society over 150 farmers took part in the three main competitions and competition was of the keenest. In the main competition, the "better farms" contest, which was won by John McMillan, only 12 points separated the first 12 contestants. McMillan in securing the first prize of $10 had a mark of 95% per cent, being only a quarter of a point ahead of William Hawkes, who obtained second money. Third prize went to the Lawrence Brothers, and fourth money to Angus McPhee.

The first prize for the best turnout of wagon and team of two horses was won by William Lawrence, second by A. Rewstrew, with Alex McMillan placing third. Charles Brady obtained first money in the event for the care of harness and equipment, with William Hawkes getting second and Charles Stone, third. The prizes in each case were pedigreed ewes

In the competition for the best turf raised and shown by a boy or girl under sixteen years, first prize was won by William Lawrence.

The competitions were confined to settlers on Clandonald colony. Clandonald extension and Canadian Pacific and Hudson's Bay colonists are all British settlers in the Clandonald area, the scheme being under the auspices of the Scottish Immigrant Aid Society.

CLANDONALD

We extend our deep sympathy to the family of Mrs. Dert Williams in their sad loss. The family is well known in this district

The odd binder is whirring close to town. The crop is stooking up good and the grain appears to be in good condition. However, cutting will not be general for a week. About $30 in checs of rain has fallen in the district over the week end and will greatly facilitate the maturing of oats and feed crops generally.

The spinach here is for fairly good crops of wheat which are expected to yield about 20 bus to the acre, with summerfallow and breaking somewhat higher. Oats will not give quite such good returns, the estimated yield being around 30 bushels with a slightly higher yield on early sown fields. Wheat came through the dry spell in better shape than oats, the latter for the most part heading out a little too

ASK!
ASK!
ASK!

¶ He who asks most gets most. There is no escaping this truth. It is something like the tortoise and the hare. The race in business is not to the swift, not to the clever, nor to the brilliant man, but to the man who is most diligent to the man who keeps on doing his plain duty.

¶ You are a retailer. You want to get on. You want to swell each day's sales. Well, you will sell more each day if you ask! ask! ask! buyers to buy your goods.

¶ You can hardly go round canvassing homes and buyers face to face. This practice would be too costly, though undoubtedly would be effective. But you can use newspaper advertising: in this way you can do your asking for business. You are not required by the buying public to do smart advertising. The public doesn't like smart or clever advertising. The public just wants to be informed about what you have to sell; and if you will add reasons why the public should buy what you offer, then you will get more customers. The public wants information, and it won't object to a little urging. Spending money is for the most persons quite a serious business, and so they like retailers' advertisements to be plain, straightforward statements of fact

But your car doesn't have to be young to give you a big kick out of driving. It's how your car acts that interests you.

We too are interested in cars...in the way gasolines and motor oils perform. The simple truth is that there are other good gasolines and other good motor oils sold in the Dominion. But we have, in Texaco Fire-Chief Gasoline and Texaco Crack-Proof Oil, a combination "made for each other". Used consistently together they consistently produce the best results.

WILDMERE WINKS

J Wallington took a truck load of Wildmere and Banwood folks over to a dance at the Autumn Leaf hall last Wednesday evening. Everyone had a very enjoyable time. Good music and a real good round were on hand.

Mrs. Baker, Wildmere, was taken very ill last Wednesday and rushed to the local hospital where she was operated on the same night. That makes three from our district in the hospital at present. We are very glad to say all are progressing favorably.

Quite a surprise was sprung on the Wildmere community last Friday when two very popular young people in the persons of Miss Naomi Smith and Mr Clifford Crothers were united in the holy bonds of matrimony at Vermilion. The happy couple were given a wedding supper at the bride's home in Wildmere. They will reside on Mr Jim Young's farm. The whole community join with the writer in wishing them a long, happy married life. Wildmere Community Club attends giving them a shower and dance at a later date, when our sexy treasurer Laurence Graham, gets home from the hospital. Keep this in mind folks.

Mr. and Mrs. George Scuffert and baby daughter Berna, were Sunday evening visitors at the Gibson home in Banwood.

Miss Mary Love and Mr Kenneth Isley, Triangle, were also Banwood visitors on Sunday, Kenneth visiting his sister, Mrs. J Barbo

Mr and Mrs. Alex Love and baby son, Triangle, visited Sunday after noon at the Crothers and Wallington homes.

Mr A. Carlson is at present at his farm at Chimnol, Alta.

Mr John Isley, Triangle, was the first to cut wheat in our part of the world, but there will be lots cut this week.

Mr George Dibbee, Banwood, bought a new binder last week to cut his 1934 crop

Mary Gilholme and Alice Gibson, Banwood, visited at the home of Mrs. Wallington on Monday afternoon.

The principal thing heard this week was Chas. Morand finding a cow on the same section where he lost her nine months ago, with a young calf by her side. He had looked all over for her but fail. Now he wonders who fed her all last winter. Some queer things happen in this world Charlie

SYNOPSIS

Camilla Hoyt and Peter Anson, young and in love, marry secretly, deciding to live their own lives apart until Peter is able to provide for her. Peter is a young, struggling sculptor trying to win a competition for a scholarship abroad and Camilla is the adopted daughter of a wealthy family. She is not to inherit money when she comes of age and so is studying commercial art in the hope of landing an agency job. Others in the story are Avis Werth, another wealthy girl who is trying to win Peter, Sylvia Peter's model, and Gus Matson, his former roommate with whom he has quarrelled. After a party at an exclusive club when the rest of the members of the party go to a cabaret to continue the gaiety, Peter and Camilla slip off to the beach by themselves and fall asleep on the sand. When they awake it is early morning and Avis and another boy are standing near them. That makes it necessary for Camilla to announce before the party that she and Peter are married. Camilla urges Peter to accept some of her earnings to help him along, but Peter refuses and they quarrel. After Camilla has gone from the studio, Avis Werth calls and persuades Peter to accept a loan of $1,000. Peter finishes his statuette and asks Avis and Camilla for suggestions as to a name for it. Camilla suggests "Eager Youth." and Avis "Inspiration". Peter adopts the latter title and Camilla, heartsick, goes to Peter's studio for quiet and to think. Peter and Avis follow later, and as the lights are turned on, so the statue has been shattered to pieces. Avis accuses Camilla of doing this, and Camilla, stunned by the disaster, and hurt and horrified by the accusation, faints.

At Camilla's suggestion, Peter enters as his symbol, a statue he had sculptured especially for her as a wedding gift. They named it "Land of Hope".

Camilla's advertising campaign and Tiny Tots broadcast was a great success, and Mr. Hoyt expressed his pleasure and surprise on learning that Camilla was the author and artist when he was so ably attending to business for his company

Peter's exhibit was awarded the Paris scholarship, and he prepares for his journey to France.

(Now Go On With The Story)

CHAPTER LVI

"I want you to be the very last person I see when the train leaves," Peter had told Camilla. And so they planned for their last day together.

They had dined festively at Charm Cottage, their happiness tempered with the ache of memories and the apprehension of the future. But, for Peter's sake, Camilla staunchly thrust aside her fears for what lay ahead and committed herself ostensibly to this exquisite joy of the moment. She scarcely took her eyes from Peter's sunny face, storing up in her mind a living picture of it to take out and look at often in the lonely year ahead.

They talked of trivial things, jestingly, as if a threnody of sadness did not accompany their thoughts. They lingered over their macaroon glace and demi tasse, as if it were not five short hours before they would part for one long year.

They walked slowly in the crisp chill of the late autumn evening to Peter's dismantled studio in the Annex Building. As they had done on their wedding day four months before, it was there Peter dropped his mask of nonchalance and sat wistfully holding her in his arms while his face pressed to hers.

"I wish you might have gone to New York with me at least, to see me sail."

"I didn't want to put much out of a whole year," she sounded him "And I think it might be even more difficult for both of us. When I see you leave on the train, I can try to make myself believe that you're not going far and won't be gone for long. But to watch a boat carry you down, down the river and over the horizon—" she sighed.

He crushed her close and her hand went up to caress his face. "If only you might go with me!"

"Which is impossible," she added, with a dull finality which left them both silent for awhile.

His trunks had gone, his Gladstone bag stood in readiness beside the door, like an object of evil taunting and challenging them from the shadow beyond the arc of light from the shaded lamp.

And then, with a sudden speeding up of time, they were at the station in the midst of the clamor of cars, taxicabs, hello, voices, laughter. They were no longer Camilla and Peter Anson, wife and husband. They were separate entities, soon to go their separate ways, and confused for a few brief moments with the conflicting forces of humanity.

Camilla watched the gate man punch Peter's slip of pink and tear it in half with the casual indifference of a doorman at the theatre tearing off the ticket stubs which gave you the privilege of being amused for a few hours. What a different significance the return of this half ticket had! It gave Peter the right to go to the other side of the world and stay away from her for a year.

She went with him into the Pullman car, found his berth upper seven. "That's a lucky number to begin with, even if I am on the upper," he laughed. "But I shan't always take the way of least expense, you bet. Some day, you and I will have a drawing room when we travel."

"Of course," she agreed.

"And you will try to come over in the spring?"

They had talked that over many times, but they floundered for things to say that would fortify their cheerfulness

"Before we know it, your work will be going splendidly and we shall be writing about where and when you will meet me," she promised again.

The clamor outside increased, late arrivals followed hurrying porters into the car with their luggage. Peter glanced at his watch for the tenth time. "Guess you will have to go, precious. I'll take you to the platform."

They single-filed through the aisle and corridor, descended to the platform

"I'd take you into the station, but I don't dare. Can't afford to pay for another upper on the next train," his smile was strained

"That's what I came to the train for to see you off. I'll watch the train out of sight until the tail light blinks indistinctly," her voice trembled a little in spite of herself

"All aboard!" sang the porter

Peter's eyes plunged down into his and held them for a breathless moment. Their arms clung to each other and their lips lingered in a long kiss

"Have to go nowthear," he mur mured

They parted reluctantly as the train began to move. Peter sprang onto the step, followed by the porter, and stood waving his hand as the train gathered speed. Camilla waved back, dashing the tears from her eyes so that she could see his face more clearly. Bright, blown curls and sunny smile blurred together before a tall figure moving swiftly in to the distance The clicking rails echoed hummel And with a last jeering wink, a red light on the observation platform blinked out

Camilla turned and walked back through the station and into a taxicab and directed the driver to her apartment. She felt numb, lifeless, empty Part of her had gone away Peter stood at the steamer rail looking down into the sea of faces and the chaos of a pier at a ship's departure All the excitement of parting and sights and odors swirled about him He was detached, seeming to be no part of it, just watching with interest. He was thinking how different his landing in this great his port would have been, instead of a return before He had arrived there, I grinned, bewildered tripping to h with the land

And now by the results of the skill with which he had repressed his emotions, a day he was sailing, across the sea in honor and dent words alone For a moment he wished that his mother might know what he had done She always had talked to him of going "back home," yearned for it and begged him to go sometime, even if she could not He would, he promised himself It was possible that he would go to Stockholm from Paris before he returned to New York But he could not plan in pockets for that yet

People hurrying aboard and others hurrying ashore. Tears and laughter Kisses, caresses. Sober faces, happy faces. From photographers and reporters rushing to and fro Women in smart clothes wearing bright corsages of flowers. To some of them, this sailing was an occasion of their lives; to others, it was just another tiresome departure.

Bells, shouts, running feet. The gangplank raised. Frantic waving of hands and calling farewells. The pier drawing away from the huge steamer, disappearing into the distance. Boats passing, tugs puffing about like distressed mother hens that had hatched ugly ducklings now turned into swans and didn't know what to do about them, freight-boats slipping by, the skyline of the city looking like a picture of towers and spires against a dull gray sky, dissolving in the fog.

The Statue of Liberty slipped by like a phantom in the mist, an hallucination that never had been real And so three hundreds were returning whereas they or their ancestors had come

Peter stared down into the lacy foam of the disturbed water, recalling the stern, little smile on Camilla's face when it had receded into the distance at the station. He wished that he might have seen her again But perhaps it was just as well that she had not come to New York with him It would have meant for her a lonely journey back

But, he realized, there was nothing to be gained by yearning for Camilla now. He had to right-about face and make the best of what was ahead of him As if the act would follow the thought, he turned about and walked down the deck toward his stateroom Best to get settled for the week, and perhaps he could get some work done

The days would be long and lonely even if he were friendly with his fellow passengers. He might have made the passage in five days on a faster steamer, but again he had to consider the cost tourist deck interested him as a way to see the sea

Search For Treasure

Young Englishman To Explore Lost City Of Sheba

In search of treasure hidden in the mysterious lost city of Sheba, once ruled by the glamorous queen, a young Londoner of 22 is setting out on a long trek into the Arabian desert

He is Norman Stone Peers, who has recently returned from a 2,000-mile camel expedition across the Sahara

Millions in gold, silver and precious stones, are believed to be hidden beneath the shifting sands which wiped the great city of Sheba from man's ken over 2,000 years ago.

"It is going to be a difficult trip with lots of risks," said Mr Peers

"The Arabian desert is one of the hottest places in the world, and one may die of thirst there in 24 hours Fierce brigands lurk in its wastes, and hot trails mean almost certain death

"Years ago Sheba was the centre of the trading routes across Arabia In the reign of the great queen it was a city of luxury

"At the death of the queen the city began to decline It became overrun with thieves and brigands, and traders avoided it until Sheba became a forgotten city and the desert sands gradually obliterated it

OF JOY

Though sometimes long I woo it This joy beloved of all. It may not be had by pleading Or answer to my call.

But like a swift wind veering Its touch is on my life Now light than leaves of unused petals Yet keener than a knife

I never see it coming, Or know not when it goes It ends with me, it is fragrant And I feel as a rose

It sends me no forerunner To say when it will start. And all I know of joy is His singing in my heart

Champion Defeated

Six-Year-Old Boy Wins A Wonder At Chess

Wonders never cease and a strange tale comes from Belgrade where the baby has chess competition has just closed When the victory was being celebrated, the proprietor of the cafe asked the champion if he would just play one game with his little boy Magic ensued and with no little sauce beat the champion conceited.

They brought out the boy, a grubby little fellow six years old, hardly as high as the table Propping him up with cushions the reformer laughingly began the game After a few moves the little chap laughed and clapped his hands and said Hey mister you're going to lose your queen and a few more moves ended the old

The professor then began to play in earnest and it looked serious for the boy till his father said to him, "If you win I'll give you 20 cents" The boy then set to work and when the game was over the champion was beaten and the 20 cents was in the boy's pocket Halifax Chronicle

Codex Reveals Changes

Errors Have Been Made In Copying The Bible

Remarkable changes made in copying the Bible are revealed by the Sinaitic Codex according to Dr Percy Dearmer, who is preaching recently in Westminster Abbey he said "The Codex shows that the full name of the father who was released was Jesus Barabbas, and the awkwardness of his having the same name as Christ proves that here we are on the bedrock of history The copyists soon left out the word, not realizing the critical importance" The Bible version is (St Matt., ch xxvii, v. 17. Pilate said "Whom will ye that I release unto you? Barabbas, or Jesus which is called Christ?" Even more important is the fact that Christ did not say, He that believeth not shall be damned

John Bryden Conservative Candidate

VERMILION RIDING

John Bryden, popularly known as "Jack" Bryden, of Manville, was the unanimous choice of the supporters of the Conservative party as candidate at the next provincial elections for this riding, at the district convention held on Thursday of last week at Manville. The president, W. J. Magnah, was in the chair. About 100 delegates were present representing every section of the constituency. After the purpose of the meeting was explained by the president, Mr. D. M. Duggan, provincial leader of the party, opened the meeting by outlining the principles adopted by resolution at the recent convention held in Edmonton, which he stated would be developed and crystallized into a platform after candidates had been nominated in the various districts throughout the province. A goodly number had already been selected. Mr. Duggan stated that in 1921 the Conservatives had joined hands with the U.F.A. in ousting the Liberal regime which then had long outlived its usefulness. There was not much fault to be found with the Farmers' government for the first term or two, but since the depression came upon us in 1929, it seems to have lost its bearing and he felt it no longer enjoyed the confidence of the people. He pointed out that were it not for the aid given by the Bennett government during the past three years the financial structure of this province would have collapsed. The Liberals had added over five millions to the public debt of this province and the U.F.A. government despite their protestations in 1921 and in face of their pledges had added over ten millions during their regime, and this was not due to relief, as the federal government had advanced over dollar it had spent in that direction. To solve the problems facing us he was ready to sink party differences and unite with anyone willing to carry the principles adopted by the Conservative party into effect. He had made this challenge both to Mr. Brownlee and Mr. Howson, but both refused to accept. In closing, Mr. Duggan gave indications pointing to the turn of the political tide in this province in favor of the Conservative party.

The convention unanimously approved the following resolutions

That complete confidence in the leadership of the Hon. R. B. Bennett and appreciation of recent enactments looking to better marketing facilities and abatement of mortgage and other indebtedness; formation of a Central Bank, and other legislation making for the betterment of the people of Canada and more particularly the agricultural

That complete confidence in the leadership of Mr. D. M. Duggan, M.L.A., and pledging his unfailing support in the next provincial elections.

Expressing his deep and sincere sympathy to Mr. A. E. Williams and family in their recent bereavement

That we impress upon the leaders of the Conservative party the necessity (a) of adjusting mortgage and mortgage company indebtedness by way of compromise and reduction of interest (b) or taking such steps as will ensure a revenue of the Province of taxation now borne by the people especially the farmer, communities, (c) of making provisions for wider markets and better prices for our farm products, (d) of reductions in freight rates, especially on such commodities as the grain livestock and dairy products, (e) of developing a proper system of marketing roads and that adequate financial assistance be given municipalities for this purpose

The immediate consolidation and refunding of all governmental debts, thereby relieving these bodies of the high interest rates now paid by them on their respective bonded indebtedness.

The relinquishment by provincial governments of such constitutional rights and prerogatives as will enable the federal government to enact legislation providing for unemployment insurance and the refunding of the provincial and municipal debts of Canada.

That farmers who have complaints with respect to the price paid for farm machinery be prepared to submit evidence to that effect to the local [illegible] one of the most important inquiries developed by the Price Spreads Commission.

The election of officers for the ensuing year resulted as follows: Hon. President, Hon. R. B. Bennett, Hon. Vice-Presidents, D. M. Duggan, M.L.A., President, A. E. Williams, Manville. Vice-Presidents, Mrs. W. E. Stanley, Minburn. Mrs. McComas, Vermilion. Secy-Treas., J. W. G. Morrison, Vermilion. An executive committee representing different parts of the district will be completed at an early date.

The convention was one of the most successful held by this party for some time. It was a business convention, very little time being spent on addresses

MEETING AT VERMILION

The meeting held in the evening in the Orange hall, Vermilion, following the nominations proceedings in the afternoon at Manville was largely attended. J. W. G. Morrison, K.C., presided, the speakers being John Bryden, the party candidate, Mr. Duggan and Col. F. C. Jamieson. Mr. Bryden spoke briefly, stating the nomination was a surprise to him and consequently he was not prepared to discuss political issues. All he wished to say that if elected he was prepared to support any legislation that he felt was in the best interests of the people, no matter by whom it was introduced. The few words which Mr. Bryden spoke were clear cut and made a distinct appeal to the audience. Mr. Duggan followed with an address of the afternoon by dealing more in detail with the public debt of the province and especially the debt of the city of Calgary to which the Conservative party had pledged itself. He sounded a warning that there could not be any lightening of the taxation burden in this province until the governmental debts of the province were reduced, dated by the federal government and refunded at lower rate of interest. He stated that this gigantic conversion was now being contemplated by Premier Bennett who has information in his possession that if Canada were to carry out certain policies the entire amount would be subscribed in England without difficulty. This would mean a great saving of interest to the provinces and the municipalities. The U.F.A. government was being severely criticized by the Liberals for its operation of the telephone system. It must not be forgotten that back in 1919 the then Liberal government spent $2,000,000 in making a survey of the system by New York experts. These men made six specific recommendations, the adoption of which, Mr. Duggan stated would have save ddthe people of this province millions of dollars, but not one was put into effect. The report was pigeonholed and it is still there. Then the U.F.A. government had an actuary survey made. A report was presented and recommendations made, and not one brought into effect. The outstanding negligence of the former parties is that today the government telephone system is burdened with debt, waterlogged, and services are deposed of for next to nothing, the people being made to bear the loss. Other incidents were pointed out by Mr. Duggan of extravagance and incompetency which had given rise to a serious financial situation in this province, and which had created a revolt against the present govern ment making itself viable, with people who wished to destroy present political systems but against which the conservative minded portion of the people were bitterly opposed. He emphasized the great benefit to the taxpayers of Canada that would follow the refunding of public debt at a lower interest rate.

The Conservative leader referred to the marketing bill and farm debt legislation, dealt with by the Bennett government at the last session, declaring these measures would greatly benefit the agricultural industry in Western Canada.

Col. F. C. Jamieson, M.L.A., K.C. reviewed the Conservative platform, declaring it to be far in advance of that proposed by any other party.

POLICE COURT

BEFORE A. E. KAIBER, POLICE MAGISTRATE

The better the highway the faster we travel and when the travelling is done recklessly it endangers the life and property of others as well as ourselves. For reckless driving on Highway 16 Gerald Fortin paid a fine and costs amounting to $10.00.

Mike Martynish had a very fine grey gelding and was surprised one day to discover that it had mysteriously gotten out of his pasture. He made a wide search for it and after some months, with the aid of the police it was discovered at Nanaco, Alta. It had changed hands many times and was at last traced by the R.C.M.P. to a horse trader by the name of Herman Mitsch, who was apprehended and brought back. He claimed on one occasion to have bought this horse from a woman at Kitscoty, and on another occasion to have bought it from a party of three men who had 30 or 40 head in the same yards for sale. He later admitted that this was not exactly correct but that horse traders were not expected to tell the truth. The court took him at his word, after taking the evidence, and sentenced him to one year in Fort Saskatchewan jail with hard labor. The horse was ordered to be returned to its owner. (Note: We are just wondering how the police who bought and traded this horse will come out: there is a good moral right here, don't buy a horse from a stranger unless you are sure of getting a good title to it.)

When the government passed the act that all stallions must be registered they had in mind the betterment of stock. Failure to comply with this requirement carried a penalty of $25 and costs which was paid into court.

The affiliated Inspection Bureau laid six charges against Arthur Smith, a former elevator manager of the Fourth Grain Co. in Vermilion, for issuing grain checks to parties to whom he was indebted personally. He pleaded guilty and was sentenced to one year in Fort Saskatchewan with hard labor on each charge, to run concurrently.

The Dewberry Club received a little liquor for personal consumption, and when it discovered that a cafe in a public place it was up to the proprietor paid a fine and the costs of the court.

Two juvenile cases were heard in camera.

Several small debt cases were disposed of in the usual way, payment of claim and costs

TURKEY HILL TID-BITS

We must first correct one of our statements made last week. The final ball game at our picnic should have read "Telling's Tailors" beat by same Thorcliffe players, took the field against the Gobblers." Sorry, readers, to have committed such an error.

Several severe storms have rumbled around our district lately, but luckily none have appeared to injure our good crops. The majority of farmers are very busy harvesting now and binders are at work, too. We think that most of our battery batches have put through their supply so we shall turn our attention to the gardens and busy ourselves preserving their products.

Our ball game on Friday, August 10 was not quite as successful as we had planned it to be. Several of our players were delayed and darkness overcame us before many innings were played. We hope to welcome you better next time, Bisswood.

Pleasure-by will notice the addition of a new porch on the school. In fact, extensive repairing has been done to the interior of the building, and the barn, also, has come in for its fair share.

Those who attended our dance last Friday, Aug. 10, will all agree that a very pleasant time was spent. Some of our district residents had put on extra shine on now how done and they are to be congratulated on the success they made it for dancing. Were you disappointed because we took your date, Wednesday? We know some one of your members at the dance. We're sorry, but hope to hear the announcement of your dance later.

We are anxious to know how two young ladies of the district enjoyed their auto ride Wednesday, May. May blame your big brother for that joke, or maybe Amos can give you some light on their filling, too.

The Checkerboard And Peace

"Britain's frontier is not the Rhine." This statement, made in the British House of Commons by Stanley Baldwin while acting premier during the absence, in Canada, of Ramsay MacDonald, and used to epitomize his plea for extension of Britain's sea defences, threw into vivid prominence the altered status of the mother country in regard to her European neighbors. Development of aircraft by continental powers has banished that security from hostile attack it guaranteed heretofore by a powerful navy and the "chalk cliffs of Dover" automatically. Her frontier has been pushed outward step by step with the growth of foreign air armadas and the increasing range of potential enemy aeroplanes.

Synchronizing, as it did, with the disturbing sequence of events which preceded and followed the assassination of Chancellor Dollfuss of Austria, the debate in the British house startlingly revealed the extent to which the atmosphere surrounding the European scene had been impregnated with fear of war. No wonder Britain's statesmen are perturbed, no wonder the chancelleries have been striving to secure some effective guarantees of territorial integrity among the storm-racked powers of Europe!

The fear of war can be traced directly to the militarization of Germany, under Adolph Hitler, and the obvious ambition of the Nazis to extend the sphere of German influence until the Reich is once again dominant in European affairs. Prior to the Austrian embroglio, a concerted movement had been launched in Europe whose objective was (and is) effectively to curb Nazi ambitions of territorial expansion, west, east and south. The western frontier marching with France and Belgium, had, of course, been "guaranteed", by the agreements contained in the Locarno treaty of 1925 Germany, France, Belgium, Great Britain and Italy pledged themselves individually and collectively, to guarantee the inviolability of the Franco-German and Belgo-German boundaries as defined by the Treaty of Versailles. There had also to be a complete demilitarization of German territory west of a line drawn east of the Rhine.

Agreeable with respect to eastern boundaries, however, were not matched by any far-reaching pacts of mutual guarantees. It is true there was a network of arbitration treaties involving Poland, Czecho-Slovakia, Germany and also France, but the Reich would not go so far as to accept as irrevocable and permanent her eastern border. In fact, the hope has been cherished assiduously in the Nazi inner circles that some day there would come a revision of the German-Polish boundary which would restore Danzig and the Polish Corridor to the Reich. It is this rift in the lute of peace, diplomats of Europe are now striving to close by means of what has become known as an "Eastern Locarno".

The "Eastern Locarno" pact now proposed calls for a mutual assistance agreement involving Russia, the Baltic States, Poland, Czecho-Slovakia and Germany, and would provide mutual guarantees of their respective frontiers and for mutual aid against an aggressor seeking to upset the status quo. As Germany is the only nation fundamentally opposed to the present territorial set-up, the real meaning of the "Eastern Locarno" is apparent.

The actual significance of the proposed treaty is that Nazi Germany's ambitions would indeed be curbed if Berlin signs (and it has been put squarely up to Hitler), it would mean voluntary acceptance of her present boundaries all around. It would mean definite reinscription of the Polish corridor and German claims in Upper Silesia. It would mean the stabilization of Europe in its present form. That apparently, is the key move to peace on the European checkerboard.

Apparently, too, "Locarno" is the formula of peace upon which European chancelleries pin their greatest faith. In addition to the "Eastern Locarno", a similar treaty, known as the "Southern Locarno", designed to preserve the Mediterranean status quo and involving, probably, Turkey, Italy, Greece and Yugoslavia, also is mooted.

Hotels in Sahara Desert

Find To Be Taken By Camels In Small Parcels

As the French penetrate further and further southward into the Sahara, pacifying the roving Arab tribes as they go, hotels are being erected for the accommodation of government officials, visiting army officers, business men and the occasional venturesome tourist.

The hotels had to be taken south, through the desert, in parcels.

Each parcel weighed about 200 lbs. and was one camel-load. Caravan after caravan, travelling 45 days through the sands, brought to Timimoun, in the far south of Algeria, the many tons of windows, doors, glass, china, linen, coffee, tea, electrical installation and other equipment needed for the local hotel.

Another formidable item European laborers would agree to go there, so the place was built by French army labourers, when themselves had to trace in the sand the first outline of the building because the superstitious wild Arabs of the region believed The Evil Eye, and would not have anything to do with blue-prints. They did consent to draw the mud bricks, however, which form the walls, and to drag up to the site the date-palm trunks forming the roof beams and girder-work.

The rest had to come in parcels. Even the ships of the desert bringing the parcels were transportation. They would not travel on even such good hard roads as were to be found along their line of route, but had to be steered over soft sandy courses. Camels suffer from bad spells of food and sorrows unless allowed soft tracks.

Japan Develops New Art

Sculptography, by means of which pictures or objects may be photographed in relief form, has been developed in Japan. Sculptography's greatest contribution to science, according to its inventor, lies in replacing the human element in the making of sculptures where exact likenesses are required, as in the case of the artistic element. Just as photography replaced painting for such purposes, sculptography has replaced ordinary sculpturing.

Soviet Buying Area

Newspaper Claims Shipments From England Going To Russia

A London newspaper says that it is able to reveal that the record exportation of arms from Great Britain, amounting to £2,483,246, was due mainly to orders from Soviet Russia.

The arms consisted largely of machine guns and munitions. More than three-quarters of the total found their way to Russia.

The permission of Whitehall had to be secured for these large shipments.

The reason for these rush orders is that Russia is feverishly buying up the products of the world's armament factories in readiness for the struggle she believes is approaching once again.

The armaments business is phenomenally busy.

Although the figures stand so high, they would have been much larger owing to insistent demands from Paraguay and Bolivia, but in these instances applications for licenses by the munitions manufacturers have been turned down by the foreign office.

Flags Raised Huge Sum

Kitchener Flag Collected $150,000 For World War Fund

Flags which raised hundreds of thousands of dollars for helpless soldiers and refugees during the World War have just been presented to the Imperial War Museum by Lord Ernle, Solomon of Melhourne. They are to be hung near the National War memorial at Chelsea when it is completed. The most treasured relic is the collection is the Kitchener flag which alone raised $150,000. It is an Australian flag, which was sent nearly 200,000 miles and twice around the world to collect signatures. It was signed in the trenches by Lolly and Haig. A star from it was inscribed at Gallipoli, then it is signed and returned for sewing into the flag. The autographs of the King and Queen were later added. Finally the flag was sent back to Australia where it was raffled in 1918.

Canada's Industrial Praise

Report Shows Western Provinces Are Becoming Industrialized

Canada's prairie provinces—Manitoba, Saskatchewan, and Alberta—are rapidly becoming industrialized. While these provinces, often referred to as "The Bread Basket of the World", are famous for their output of agricultural products, at the same time manufacturing plays an important part.

According to a report issued by the Dominion Bureau of Statistics, in 1932 the three prairie provinces manufactured goods with a selling value at the factory of $187,483,877. Establishments engaged in manufacturing numbered 2,987 and represented a capital investment of $254,450,363. These plants provided employment to 38,964 workers who received salaries and wages totalling $42,430,765. The value of materials purchased totalled $92,247,846 and the value added by manufacture amounted to $80,302,531.

Flour and feed mills led all industries with an output valued at $24,-976,781. Slaughtering and meat packing followed with products worth $23,704,989. Other leading industries were butter and cheese to the value of $13,784,928, sawmills $13,089,275; railway rolling stock, $12,014,632; petroleum products $11,958,020; printing and publishing $5,787,444; breweries, $6,359,-269; printing and bookbinding, $4,417,145.

Sir John Simon, British foreign minister, denied he is a Jew. Sir John wrote the denial to a correspondent who had drawn his attention to statements current in Britain and abroad that the foreign minister was of Jewish origin.

At the same time Sir John expressed hope his denial would not be distorted to make him appear sympathetic with anti-Semitism. His attitude he regards as "un-English" and which he "utterly condemns". FARM CREDIT ACT IS TO BE APPLIED SOON

Ottawa.—Within 10 days, the government will proclaim the Farm Credit Act passed last session, assisting debtridden farmers to arrange compromises with the creditors and start over again financially, it was announced. It probably will apply first to Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta, where the need is most, being extended later to all provinces.

M. A. MacPherson, former attorney-general for Saskatchewan, has been in Ottawa two or three weeks, drafting regulations under the act, and stating it in motion. He will not be a permanent official.

In a statement, the former Saskatchewan official said the purpose of the act was to provide legal machinery of the simplest type, enabling finance ably-disposed farmers to secure relief from their over-powering debts. At the same time, it provided safeguards for the creditors.

In framing the legislation, said Mr. MacPherson, parliament "felt that if the debtor and creditor can be brought together, easily under the actual facts and circumstances obtained by reasonable and frank consideration, that a fair settlement would and would be an understanding arrived at."

The legislation makes available to both a dea the opportunity that there may be fair investigation of the true situation

The a should mean a fresh start for the debtor—a start which will mean that while he will be subject to conditions, those obligations will be re-arranged that he can face the future with courage, that he no longer is in default. Cash party must be prepared to deal reasonably with the other. A settlement is needed between debtor and creditor, and it must be made without destroying the basis of credit and confidence, and, as a result, undermining the bas s of co-operation.

If, under the act, the parties at their meeting cannot agree, there is provision for appeal to a tribunal which can formulate a binding proposal, having in upon the "present and prospective capability of the debtor to perform the obligations proposed and the productive value of the farm" (section 12).

Government House In Ontario Not To Be Closed

Toronto—Decision as to the maintenance of an official residence in the lieutenant-governor of Ontario will be reached when the legislative committee of Premier Hepburn has retired Asked if he was going to close up government house Mr Hepburn said he thought for 1934 it would be retained and no change would be made.

A headliner will be introduced in the house at any other in point of government or a member dealing with the matter, he said. "It will be left to a vote of the representatives of the province and I don't think there is much doubt of the result."

Mr Hepburn said he had no desire to harass or belittle the position of governor but had to give effect to the will of the people to curtail expenses. The matter was explored by the federal government and consequently the province had nothing to say as to how it should be met but a decision had to be reached as to whether the province should continue to maintain a residence In his opinion it should not.

Marketing Plan

Plan To Be Put In Operation, Beginning With Apples

Toronto.—The Globe in a special despatch from its Ottawa correspondent says the Dominion government's experiment in control and regulation of marketing of natural products will be inaugurated this week. The first products to be dealt with under the new plan probably will be apples and pears, the Globe says.

The first step in launching the scheme will be the designation of a minister to take charge and it is expected Hon. Robert Weir, minister of agriculture, will start the task at once. The cabinet will then pass approval on Mr. Weir's suggestions for the federal marketing board after which the act will be promulgated.

The Globe added:

"Mr. Weir, it is understood, will take personal and active charge of the operations of the federal board, although the department will be to deal with the various schemes submitted by p oducers throughout the Dominion. The federal organization is expected to include in its various departments such officials as D. Derbyshire, deputy minister; Dr. J. F. Booth, formerly director of markets for Saskatchewan; and an authority in the marketing service of the wheat situation; R. L. Wheeler acting fruit commissioner in the absence of C. F. McIntosh, who is ill; J. F. Singleton, dairy commissioner, and C. B. Rothwell, livestock commissioner.

Profit On Wheat

Presumably Belongs To The Three Western Pools

Ottawa. — Statisticians at work when wheat recently touched a dollar a bushel for the May delivery at Winnipeg, estimated a bush profit of $20,000,000 on the government incurbent into wheat price stabilization.

The profit, if finally realized according to John I. McFarland, manager of the selling agency, presumably belongs to the pools of Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta and not to the Dominion, which guaranteed the manoeuvre to the banks.

The profit does not affect the return to the farmer and is predicted upon this year's reduction in yield in Western Canada and the crop failure in western Manitoba and southern Saskatchewan.

Study Crop Loan Plan

Will Give U.S. Farmers Control Of 1935 Supplies

Washington. A gigantic crop loan plan which would leave control of 1935 supplies in the hands of farmers themselves is being considered by the United States farm administration.

Modelled after this year's corn and cotton loans, the plan will call for government loans on a wide range of farm products. There will be a stipulation that supplies must be sold when prices rise to a certain point.

Last year the government advanced farmers 10 cents a pound on stored cotton, and 45 cents a bushel on corn sealed in cribs or warehouses. This pegged prices at those levels and officials say the plan was a success.

As prices advanced beyond those levels recently, farmers began selling their cotton and corn and making a profit for themselves.

MORE MONEY FOR HIGHWAYS

Completion of the Edmonton Jasper highway as all weather road and the completion of the necessary reconstruction on the upper end of the Calgary-Banff Park highway, is being assured as a result of arrangements made with the federal government by Hon. Geo. Hoadley for a sum totalling $125,000 marked for the Jasper road and $150,000 marked for the trans Canada highway in Alberta The latter provided for work both east and west of Calgary. In addition the federal government has granted a sum of $100,000 monthly to Alberta for direct relief, which is somewhat larger than had been expected.

Some of the work on the two park highways will be done this season, but some of the construction work necessary, chiefly that on the Jasper road will not be possible till next season

IMPROVEMENTS AT PUBLIC SCHOOL BLDG.

$500.00 Being Spent — Much Needed Work

Improvements to the value of about $500.00 are being made to the first floor of the public school. The cloak rooms are being enlarged and a room is specially being prepared to house the library, at present stored in a sort of cubby hole on the second floor. The main entrances and stairways are also being fixed, while the three class rooms have had the plaster gone over and repaired, large portions being entirely renewed. The hallway has also been treated with new plastering, while the whole woodwork has been varnished. The walls in the class rooms are being painted as well as the cloak rooms and main doors The whole floor will present a quick and spic and span appearance when school opens on Tuesday, the 6th.

These repairs have been delayed for some years past on account of financial conditions, but the board deemed it unwise to delay further. The wood work is being done by H. J. Payne, the plastering by Harry MacBeet, and the painting and varnishing by F. J. Alp, assisted by Burns & Robertson.

Little Journeys in Science

AMMONIA

(By Gordon H Guest, M.A.)

Ammonia is a colorless gas which has a characteristic, pungent, powerful odor It is about one-half as heavy as air and is very soluble in water. Ammonia, gas is easily changed to a liquid At ordinary temperatures a pressure of about 66 pounds per square inch is sufficient to liquefy the gas

Ammonia will neither support combustion nor burn in air Although intense heat will cause one-half to the presence of a small amount of moisture react with acids to form ammonium salts By the passage of ammonium salts Por example on mixing the fumes of hydrochloric acid which is known commercially as muriatic acid, with ammonia a heavy white cloud of ammonium chloride is formed

Liquid ammonia is used very extensively in making artificial ice and in producing the low temperature required in cold storage plants What use of ammonia depends on the fact that it can easily be liquefied at ordinary temperature by applying pressure When the pressure is released the liquid ammonia evaporates, absorbing a great deal of heat from the surroundings The evaporation usually takes place in pipes surrounded by a solution of salt which is not easily frozen This cooled salt solution may be piped to a cold-storage room, or coils of frozen water may be immersed in it to produce ice

Ammonia gas is very soluble in water and is therefore usually sold in water solution under the name of "spot ammonia", which is used in the cleaner both in the home and in the industries Large quantities of ammonia are used in the manufacture of fertilizers, and in making ammonium compounds such as washing salts.

Not What They Seem

Many Things Have No Association With Their Name

Cork logs are not made of cork. They are made of wood, metal, leather, or strong canvas; they were invented by Dr. Cork. Hackney coaches are not so called because they were first made in Hackney, London. The word comes from the French "Haquenee, meaning an ambler Brier pipes are not made from the roots of the sweet briar The name is derived from the French "Bruyere," meaning heath. Dark blue and light blue are not the colors of the Universities of Oxford and Cambridge respectively A university has no colors. But members are entitled to wear the university badge Dark blue and light blue are the colors of the athletic clubs of Oxford and Cambridge A laughing jackass is not an animal; it is a bird. Cinderella did not wear a glass slipper She wore a fur slipper, but the original French words were "Pantoufle en vair," and the sound was mistaken for "Pantoufle en verre," thus "fur" was changed to "glass."

Christmas Seal Campaign

A.C.T. To Aid Saskatchewan Anti-Tuberculosis League in Worthy Effort

The Associated Canadian Travellers, with a membership of close to five hundred and clubs in five of the leading cities of the province, have voted forces with the Christmas Seal Sale committee of the Saskatchewan Anti-Tuberculosis League and their entire membership for the campaign that fall will boost the sale of sheets of these cheerful little stickers, the proceeds of which go to the organization's good gratifying results in the prevention of the spread of tuberculosis in Saskatchewan

This alert organization, being desirous of associating itself with some humanitarian cause in which every member could actively participate, is enthusiastic over the effort a real success. Its membership in five of the leading cities of the province have whole-heartedly signified their approval of the Christmas Seal Sale as a major activity and the September list will initiate a campaign that is designed to enlist the support of the entire business community of the province.

While the generous manner in which wholesalers and retailers have supported the Christmas Seal Sale in the past is fully realized and appreciated, it is stated that the response would be much greater if the purpose of the sale were fully understood and that a larger group of people would be reached by a campaign such as the Associated Canadian Travellers have undertaken Each year's Personal contact means a great deal in any effort and this will be provided by the A.C.T. members in trying to which will be supplied with a pamphlet giving full information regarding the work of the Saskatchewan Anti-Tuberculosis League and the all-important preventive work that is made possible by the sale of Christmas Seals

The information contained in this pamphlet is of vital interest to every resident of Saskatchewan. Here are some of the facts it contains:

The tuberculosis death rate in Saskatchewan has been reduced 50 per cent in the past four years.

The cost of treatment in Saskatchewan Sanatoria was over $300,000 less in 1933 than in 1930

Since preventive work was commenced in 1929, 4,000 X-ray examinations have been examined at the expense of the Christmas Seal Preventive Fund.

Proceeds from the sale of Christmas Seals provides the funds for preventive work. This discloses cases in their early stages, thus preventing very more certain and reducing the period of treatment and so the cost to the taxpayers.

The money raised by taxes for the maintenance of the three Saskatchewan Sanatoria is for treatment only. The money for preventive work is raised by the sale of Christmas Seals.

Prevention of tuberculosis and the protection of the well from infection is equally as important in the fight against tuberculosis as the care of those suffering from the disease

During 1933 there were three hundred and fifty-two cases of tuberculosis in Saskatchewan During the past six years one-third of all deaths from infectious diseases in this province have been due to tuberculosis It is now the most fatal of all infectious diseases

The education of everyone regarding the control of tuberculosis.

The greatest menace to the examination of all persons having symptoms of tuberculosis, who are suspected by their family doctors of tuberculosis. Among 7,238 persons examined by chest clinics and sanatoria and consultants during the past two years, 1,000 cases were discovered

The sale of Christmas Seals is a sanitation which appeals to everyone who desires to help stamp out tuberculosis cause, and although the efforts of the members of the A.C.T. a great worthy cause, they will be glad to afforded an opportunity of contributing therein.

Record Shows 22 Is Dangerous Age For Motor Driving

The danger age for automobile drivers is 22.

This is one information contained in a survey of accidents to pedestrians on street and highway safety following a three-year study of automobile accidents in Massachusetts.

"Of all operators licensed, approximately one-sixth are under 22 years of age or under Of operators involved in fatal accidents, about one-quarter are 22 or under," according to the highways committee's statement.

"In proportion to the smaller size of the group," the committee's statement reads, "its accident record is enough worse than the performance of the older class to warrant special attention"

LIGHT

By MANLEY F. MINER

Son Of Jack Miner, Canadian Naturalist

While walking quietly through an evergreen grove recently my attention was drawn to the fact that the trees had grown tall and rank, and as the sun very rich in food for such trees they were very thick, all growing straight up for light. Each one trying to push its head out above the other, but on close examination, all the lower limbs were dead while the tops, only, were green and full alive. And what was the cause? On close investigation it was revealed that these limbs and lower branches were not getting light. Light that everything needs. Then, without light these lower shoots from the trees were dying one by one because God's plan is that anything that lives must have light and heavenly food continually, or else they die and perish. And as I wished I thought of how this same example could apply to humanity. If we don't get spiritual food in time with the infinite God, Nature, or whatever you have a mind to term it, we soon die.

Yes, man might be alive bodily but be completely dead spiritually and unless he keeps in time with the God, he is bound to die gradually, the same as the tree does, limb by limb as it misses the light.

After having this thought come to me, as I walked on, I pondered, walking through this grove, I went home, and as I love to play my violin, I took it out to play it, out of tune. Like all other string instruments they get quickly out of tune by the action of the atmosphere. No matter how good your violin may be, it needs to be tuned every day and many times a day the same can be said of man. The wear and tear of life and the demoralizing atmosphere is often cause to be which sin creates, so affects his disposition that he needs to be brought into harmony with God, in tune with God every day and many times a day.

"Thou man cannot live on bread alone, he must live Light and be kept in tune with God between seasons.

Economou' body was said to give out sufficient rays to light a dark room

Commander Of French Liner Encounters Sea Monster in Azores

Commander Delattre, of the French liner Cuba, officially reported to his company that a sea-serpent had been sighted from the Cuba 800 miles southwest of the Azores.

A quartermaster and two sailors corroborated the statement. The monster was from 80 to 85 feet long, shaped like a huge lizard, with a long neck topped by a tiny head, and it had two humps on its back

It was visible, Commander Sylvestre stated, for about 20 seconds, making four leaps out of the water each time turning its head as though to view the ship

LESSON IV

HOSEA PREACHES GOD'S LOVE

Golden Text: "For God so loved the world, that he gave his only begotten Son, that whosoever believeth on Him should not perish, but have eternal life." John 3:16

Lesson: Hosea, Chapters 6, 11, 14.

Devotional Reading: Psalm 36: 5-10.

Explanations And Comments

Jehovah's Love for Israel. In Lesson, 11:1-4, "When Israel was a child," in the beginning of His national existence, "then I loved him, and called my son out of Egypt." "Called him, locally, into the land of Canaan, and morally, to set an example of true religion" (Chapyn). "Hosea dwells on that beautiful past, half in melancholy reflection on the contrast, and half in persuasive pleading that the old relations between the nation and their God may be restored. The early days in Egypt and the Desert were a history of grace on the part of God The prophet stops in his message of love to recall lovingly the early periods of Israel's national existence, and sees God's love dawning then, and meeting with ill response" (Hastie).

The Prophet's Entreaty, 14:1-3 Hosea entreats the people of Israel to return to God, and bids them offer the penitent prayer: "Take away all our iniquity and accept what in us is good, instead of burnt-offerings (bullocks) we render you our prayers (the offering of our lips). We will no longer trust Assyria nor in Egypt, nor in idols, the work of our hands, but in thee alone, helper of the fatherless."

Assurance of Divine Mercy and Loving Favor, 14:4-8. To the penitent prayer the Lord will response: "I will heal their backsliding, I will love them freely" (See Hosea 6:1; Isaiah 57:18. Hosea in very nire of the mercy and loving-kindness of God. If this rebellious countrymen will repent, they will be forgiven

Western Musical Development

Easterner Has Kind Words To Say Of Western Efforts

Leo Smith, noted Canadian musician, who has just returned to Toronto from a Western Canadian visit, declared that "a visit to the west is an education." He said music entrance in the west was already "productive of surprisingly good results."

"It's gratifying to note," he added "that the musical boundaries are not confined to the cities. He said while in Saskatoon persons journey from many country points to attend the music examinations.

"The results seemed to show a keenness, vitality, even at times a spontaneity, which, to any way of thinking, rather overshadowed performance of corresponding grades in the east," Mr Smith said

SYNOPSIS

Camilla Hoyt and Peter Anson, young and in love, marry secretly, deciding to live their own lives apart until Peter is able to provide for her. Peter is a young struggling architect, trying to win a competition for a scholarship abroad and Camilla is the adopted daughter of a wealthy family. She is not in love with Howard Hoyt when she comes of age and so is studying commercial art in the hope of landing a job. Others in the story are Avis Wentworth, another wealthy girl who is trying to win Peter, Sylvia Todd, Peter's model, and Gus Barlow, his fellow-architect mate with whom he has quarrelled. After a party at an exclusive club, when the rest of the members of the party go to a cabaret to celebrate Peter's victory, Peter and Camilla slip off to the beach by themselves and fall asleep on the sand. When they awake it is early morning and Camilla and another boy are missing from them. The makes it necessary for Camilla to announce before the party that she and Peter are married. Camilla urges Peter to accept some of his earnings to help him along, but Peter refuses and they quarrel. Later, Camilla has gone from the studio, Avis Wentworth, a society girl, tries to accept a loan of $1,000 Peter finishes his studies and asks Camilla to Camilla for suggestions as to a name for it. Camilla suggests "Youth" and Avis "Inspiration." Peter adopts the latter title and Camilla, back, goes to Peter's new studio for quiet and to think. Peter and Avis leave, later, and as the lights are turned on, see the statue has been shattered to pieces. Peter accuses Camilla of doing this, and Camilla, stunned by the accusation, hurt and horrified by the accusation, faints.

At Camilla's suggestion. Peter enters a small statue he has of sculptured especially for her as a wedding gift. They named it "Land of Honor."

Camilla's advertising campaign and Tony Peck broadcast was a great success, and Mr. Hoyt expressed his pleasure and surprise at learning that Camilla was the author and artist who was so ably stimulating business for his company.

Peter's exhibit was awarded the Paris scholarship, and he prepares for his journey to France. After the ship's departure from New York, Peter is on his way to his cabin when he meets Avis Wentworth.

(Now Go On With The Story)

CHAPTER LVII

Before Peter could recover from his surprise Avis Wentworth's arm was smiled serenely and exclaimed, "Surprise, Peter?"

"Well, hello," he replied with a note of consternation in his voice. "You do have a habit of appearing at the most unexpected times and places"

"And aren't you glad to see me?" she asked in a hurt voice.

"Why, of course," he was rallying to the exigency of the moment. "As a matter of fact, I was just now minded for my new job of publicity what I was going to do with myself on this slow-going craft for a whole week. But why in the world are you traveling on a tub like this?"

"To see that you are not lonely," she replied coyly.

"That is most considerate of you," he offered gallantly

Oh, but I had a selfish reason, too. I didn't want to be lonely on another boat you see. A week with a good traveling companion can be much shorter than five days alone."

"But I didn't know you had planned to go to Europe, now."

Neither did I until two days ago, and you were so busy with your own affairs that I just decided to make it a little surprise, too."

No doubt about the surprise," he admitted. "What's your destination —Paris?"

"Oh, yes. Always Paris. I travel here and there about the continent when I am over there, but Paris is always home to me. You are still wandering why I am going It happened this way. I was talking with Professor Drake the other day and he said that in his opinion my talent lies in portrait work, and that the very best thing I could do was to study with Monsieur Bonin in Paris. In my enthusiasm, I decided to go at once, and then hit upon the idea of taking the same boat with you, just for fun of it. If I get over there and discover that I am not prepared to stay indefinitely, I'll take a flat boat back and start all over."

"How convenient it is to have money!" he sighed, smiling.

"Isn't it? I said that same day," she said confidently. "But there is no sense in our standing here like this. I must see that Tillie gets an settled this afternoon; and then for a long, pleasant luxurious week. Do you like the water?"

"I think I do." Peter grinned, "but I've never before been out where it is quite even as this."

She turned away, then hesitated "Shall I arrange with the dining room steward to put us at the same table?"

"Why, of course. No sense in two good friends, stranded at sea on the same boat, sitting at different tables and wishing for congenial company. Or wait, I'll arrange for it, myself," he suggested as the second thought. "I would look better for Avis if he sought her companionship, via tips to the steward.

"Fine!" Avis agreed, and reflected that it might be clever to arrange the information to reach Camilla that Peter had bribed a dining room steward for a table with her. Simple and not suspicious, a man doesn't usually bribe her plans than Peter had from the beginning True, it was a subtle and tedious campaign, but well worth the time and patience. "See you at dinner, then," she left him gayly

For two days' notice, Avis' trunks contained a surprising collection of stunning clothes, which might have been purchased on the spur of the moment. She might have been on her honeymoon, so alluring she made herself for every day and every occasion of that voyage.

By the third day, it seem'd quite natural for Peter to find Avis across the breakfast, luncheon and dinner table; with deck games, conversation in the salon, dancing in the evenings or just sitting idly by side by side in their deck chairs in the calm, indolent hours between activities.

Peter was seized by a spell of inertia, so easily developed aboard a steamer, and following the stress of busy days over many months years, in fact. It was the first time he had relaxed since his work began and he was content to let the world go by as long as he could remember. It was so blissful to stroll idly around the deck in the sunshine, to be secluded and caressed by the warm salt breeze, to dream without doing or plan without action. Avis had been convinced him of the wisdom of such a week of idleness. On the second day Avis had suggested when she proposed a set of deck tennis.

"But I should be working, Avis. I expected to get a lot of extra things done this week."

"Aren't you the bear for work, though? Now let me tell you what would be the sensible thing for you to do, Peter. Make this week a real holiday. Forget everything except rest and a good time and be ready to leap into Paris in full swing with new ambitions. You certainly do run one week away from your work, while at the same time it would do you a vast amount of good. You must learn to play a little." She was so anxiously concerned for his welfare that he felt a responsive desire to please her wishes, even while he acknowledged that she probably was right about it.

It was that receptive mood induced by his complete resignation to idleness and pleasure into which Avis subtly moved her needs of leisure and pleasure.

By the third day, Camilla and Avis were seemed vague and remote as the stars and space; and Peter was luxuriating in the charm of Avis' gentle flattery, the pleasure of her gay, irresponsible manner, the ease of her companionship, the sense of rest from Camilla's harrying commitment to work and ambition and stimulation.

Avis captivated him in this period of inactitude and pleasure as she never had done in the atmosphere of work and ambition at the studio. She was part of this life which had seemed so unattainable to him, and she made him feel that he had only to reach out his hand and grasp it And although the Belgrade was not the epitome of luxury and service to which she was accustomed, it seemed magnificent to Peter who had had so little ease and beauty in his life.

If Camilla's ambition had inspired him and provided him confidence, Avis' indolent mood stimulated his desire to obtain what he wanted by the shortest route, to forfeit an essence of proud struggle for a pound of easy victory. It was not much her words and actions, as her manner and the way her every thoughts willed him to her viewpoint.

There was also a full golden moon in conspiracy with wind-blown, dimly-lighted decks, in her favor. Sitting side by side, snuggled into steamer rugs, with the vastness of the heaving sea stretching about them in all directions to remind them of the insignificance of man, of the futility of wanting for life while life passed by; talking in intimate tones while the silver sheen of the moonlight and the eerie sound of the waves against the hull of the boat turned it all into a world of make-believe. The dramatic life lost its prospections of importance. It was a mood in which man tells himself that this is all there is, even as this."

She turned away, then hesitated "Shall I arrange with the dining room steward to put us at the same table?"

"Why, of course. No sense in two good friends, stranded at sea on the same boat, sitting at different tables and wishing for congenial company. Or wait, I'll arrange for it, myself," he suggested on the second thought. "I would look better for Avis if he sought her companionship, via tips to the steward.

New White Star Liner

To Be Fitted With The World's Largest Ship's Propeller

The world's largest ship's propeller has left London for Clydebank. This propeller was the first of four specially designed for Number 534 and it was shipped by the steamer "Copeland" to the Clyde where it will be fitted to the liner

With an approximate weight of 36 tons and a spread of more than 20 feet from tip to tip of its Manganese Bronze Blades its shipment occasioned a great deal of ingenuity and skill Carefully wrapped in a protective covering of sheet iron and canvas it was hoisted on board the "Copeland" by the "Hercules", one of the largest and most powerful cranes used by the Port of London authority.

Before the propeller reaches the Clyde it will make a sea journey of nearly 600 miles. To ensure that the propellers will reach the shipyard in absolute safety, they are being shipped one at a time

A start has been made at Clydebank in painting the hull of Number 534 for the launching ceremony When the tens of thousands of spectators assemble at Clydebank to witness the launch they will see that the huge hull of the ship presents a glittering appearance of light grey and red. The upper part of the hull will be a light grey, whilst the underseas part will be red. Dividing the two will run the white "waterline" of the great vessel.

Scores of painters will be engaged in this task during the coming week as any many thousands of gallons of paint will be used in completing this striking transformation.

THE RHYMING OPTIMIST

By Aline Michaelis

KEY TO DREAMS

The keys on my ring are of little worth,
Leading to things well known;
But here in my hand I hold a key
Found on a paring unknown.

Somewhat small for a gate, yet large for a door,
Too long for a sailor's bun;
I turn it in sleep and I wake
And wonder what it unlocks.

No symbol of all I have seen on earth
Is at potent as this to me,
And I have no words for the strange silky
Which lies in the unknown hay.

Perhaps it might lead to a garden-place,
A hidden and lovely place.
It might open a door in a foreign land
And show me a thousand faces.

And never, as long as I can clasp
Close by this time-stained key,
Will the gates of romance again be closed.
Or the door of dreams for me!

Uncover Roman Theatre

Walls Slowly Emerging From Ground in St. Albans, England

So many people are flocking to St Albans, England, the Roman Verulamium in the days of the Romans, theatre whose walls are slowly emerging from the ground that Lord Verulam, in charge of the excavations has given orders to admit the public to the area every day between September 1st and April 1st. Archaeologists agree that the theatre is the only one of its kind at present known and probably the largest in Britain. Remains of a platform, a proscenium wall, a stage and a semi-circular orchestra have been uncovered by the excavators. The space in the latter has yielded many relics of the theatre From its proportions it is supposed that in its day it would have seated between 3,000 and 4,000 playgoers The building appears to date from the second century A D

This then is of faith, that everything which touches us in mind, body or estate, whether brought about by this outward senseless nature or by the will of man, good or bad, is overruled to each of us by the allholy and all-loving will of God. Nothing befalls us, however it befalls us, we must receive as the will of God. If it is through man's negligence, or ill-will, or anger, still it is to us in the very least circumstance the will of God. For if the least thing could happen to us without God's permission it would be something out of God's control. Heating system of novel design has been invented by a London scientist —working on the principle that the human body is always radiating heat to colder objects. He has invented a system which will raise the temperature of any room as high as that needed for human well-being. This will be done by specially-treated wallpaper connected to the electrical mains

Our blood pressure is rather accelerated this week and we are in a serious mood of nervous tension, as I here's how: On the occasion of the Island Hill-Islay rug game we took in the sights at the Hill and also the game which we enjoyed immensely. However, when Jimmy McGee took that terrible wild swing at Richardson we were greatly relieved when he "landed." If Richardson had ducked McGee would have knocked us over the schoolhouse. (Has started our blood pressure going (B) the way, McGee, you should never lead with your right, at least not until the referee has blown his whistle. Thanks.) Saturday night drinking that beer, in our own back yard, we sought for comparatively safe ne'er-do-well topics for our conversation, as we were not in the mood for anything controversial. We decided to talk about the baldness of Tex Rickard. It was a most exciting topic. We can't remember a single fact concerning Rickard's baldness, but we talked about it for hours. Then we decided to talk about baldness in general. We can't remember a single fact concerning baldness, but we talked about it for hours. Then we decided to talk about baldness in particular. We can't remember a single fact concerning baldness in particular, but we talked about it for hours. Then we decided to talk about baldness in general and particular. There was a wealth of information to be imparted. The subject matter will soon be replaced by the beer-and-whisky-belly topic. Then we'll shop on credit. We've [illegible] the barber on credit. We've [illegible] the butcher on credit. We've [illegible] more socially [illegible] the baldness of Tex Rickard. It was a most exciting topic. We can't remember a single fact concerning Rickard's baldness

This Changing World

Probably no period of recorded history can show such a succession of surprising and baked-to-people changes political and economic as that through which we are passing. The vast complex of peoples and nations comprising the civilized world to-day is in a state of uniformly unstable equilibrium—an equilibrium disturbed from time to time by a variety of unrelated forces both major and minor. So frequent are they as unexpected their chain tends far-reaching their effects, that few even of the great among the prophets dare risk portraying the face of things to come in the immediate future. They feel safer in making—and indeed they prefer to make—their predictions at long range and to envision a world more remote in time than that which is likely to concern much the present much-abused generation.

The political and economic changes which occurred during the storm years of 1914-19, the revolutionary upheavals which wrecked dynasties and brought new state forms into being probably were larger in scale. But they were not so numerous nor, for that matter did they strike with such force of more recent occurrence. The protracted strain of the war itself served to dull and deaden the sensibilities of the people directly subjected to it, and, more inured to shock, they were inclined to lump all the catastrophies into one the War. They were inclined, too, to the belief that, once peace were restored, the world would quickly revert to the pre-war basis and settle anew into the ordered routine which seemed so stable until the unexpected happened at Sarajevo.

The world however has refused to settle down returned to revert to the former status. The well-ordered routine which made life seem the best of all possible worlds until the summer of 1914, has never regained its old momentum. The people hanker for peace and a chance to routine their existence; they wish to remodel the new world on something like the old lines But peace is denied them peace, security and comfort, the essentials which comes from an assured livelihood. All is unrest They feel they sit upon a volcano about to erupt, and nerves agitated by uncertainties make them more susceptible to the many influences which evidence the turmoil beneath. Thus the crises of the depression appear more menacing than those which occurred during war-time which stunned rather than agitated.

Recent events in Austria are symptomatic of the European unrest. The world looks on with anxiety while these two nations writhe in their efforts to evolve a state form which can bring harmony and happiness to their people. Equally significant is the world at large, however, are the experiments being tried in the United States and in Great Britain to evolve a new economy which will give work to the workless and restore the prosperity both. In the past, history records that experiments have never complete revolutions in the national economic life of those countries, but few would agree that either yet had found the solution within itself

It is unnecessary to emphasize the many changes during the period of depression Books on political and economic subjects became obsolete in a day. Anyone who reads knows that. Take, for example, the following quotation from a book which reached shelves of public libraries in Western Canada little more than a year ago

"Nobody doubts, for instance, that America will overcome the present difficulties since it gets a grip on itself France is sitting comfortably, and even Germany is held to have a fair chance . . . But the irony is more doubtful for Great Britain because her malady seems more fundamental Already the British Empire has fallen from its former high estate."

The picture has been entirely reversed since then. Sincerely a statement in the quotation stands to-day—and that is but a sample of the dangers besetting the would-be prophet in this dynamic, fluid world. Apparently, the unstable condition will continue until every nostrum and every alleged cure-all has been tried and tried in vain. Then perchance, a world on the verge of ruin will realize that it is not so much the medicine that is wrong as the dangerous. Indeed lower international stability replaced by international amity element any kind of political or economic medicine might cure remaining ills

The recognition that His Excellency has thus given to the value of junior club work in Canada ought to encourage greater activity on the part of every club member and stimulate a deeper sense of the opportunities that are provided in the form of agricultural science.

Seeking New Height Record

Wiley Post Will Use Flying Suit He Invented

With a specially constructed flying suit of his own invention, Wiley Post, world-circler, will soon take off in an attempt to better the present altitude record of 47,352 feet

His well-known companion, the "Winnie Mae", in ship almost as famous as Lindbergh's "Spirit of St Louis", has been remodelled with the addition of a new 550-horse power motor and two superchargers so that it speed is expected to be increased to 250 miles per hour at ordinary altitudes and seemingly impossible velocities in the stratosphere where air resistance approaches "0"

Post's flight is not primarily for purposes of breaking records, but to test his airsuit, he has announced.

Engineers have always said if we had a variable pitch propeller and a super-charged motor we could fly in any altitude if the body could function normally." Post explained "Well, we have the propellers and the superchargers and I believe this suit will conquer the last obstacle."

The suit consists of rubberized fabric trousers covering the entire trunk of the body up to the shoulders and a rubber top piece capped by an aluminum bowl globe. The wearer will get air through the supercharger, which also supplies the motor The suit, of course, is airtight

Post hopes to get enough information in the initial test flight to warrant winning the $50,000 London-to-Australia derby next October.

Rock Ride At Niagara

Huge Chunk Weighing Thirty Million Pounds Goes Over The Falls

A gigantic pile of rock estimated to weigh 30,000,000 pounds rose above the water in Niagara gorge recently, visible evidence of the second major rock slide from Horseshoe Falls since 1921.

Water was flowing over what was dry rock as sightseers thronged to the shore of Goat Island in an effort to obtain a view of the jagged mass like rim of the falls and the huge pile beneath it. But most observed the view, shrouding the secret of Nature's wonder.

The huge chunk fell from the cataract with a deafening roar that seemed to still the sound of water pouring over the precipice. The rock slide was preceded by a gradual drop of water more than 200 feet into the air.

The lip of one of Canada's great wonders lifted as if from a charge of dynamite, heaved, groaned and slid away with a rent. Where there was only a trickle of water a huge stream began to pour.

Niagara Falls, in its recent break, demonstrated a peculiarity of that famous scenic wonder is only the last of the American Niagaras, and like the others, is headed for eventual extinction within perhaps 20,000 years.

Brazil is chiefly an agricultural country and the diversity of climate facilities the cultivation of practically every agricultural product. Nevertheless, Canada in the fiscal year 1932-34 exported $337,511 worth of agricultural and vegetable products, to Brazil, a considerable increase over the preceding year.

Makes "Color-Music"

Attachment For Piano Invented By English Engineer

I. Shanah, English electrical engineer, has invented an apparatus for making "color-music" which may be used in any home as an attachment to a piano. By means of this, a drawing room may be flooded with diffusing lights which will automatically react in colors to whatever tune is played. He has so regulated the vibrations of a piano in proportion to each other that each note has its own exact shade, so that it will be possible for instance, to play "God Save the King" in a combination of shades varying between red, white and blue. The "Blue Danube" in green and blue, or the "Moonlight Sonata" in yellow and silver. Another invention by Mr. Shanah enables one to "feel" music. You hold two metal tubes and when a tune is played you feel the rhythm of it like a beating pulse, which send a pleasant tingling sensation up the arms.

Telephone Of The Future

Eighty - Three - Year - Old Scientist Working On Improvements

Mr John Ambrose Fleming, a celebrated scientist who has done a good deal to do with the development of telephones, is the inventor of the thermionic valve which made wireless telegraphy possible. "In a few years' time," he said the other day, "we shall probably chuckle over the recollection of what clumsy devices like in 1934. Everybody knows that the telephone is in its infancy; everybody knows that it can be improved enormously What form will that improvement take? I am a scientist, not a prophet, but I do not hesitate to say that you can carry in your pocket. It may become more elaborate than it is today. I do not choose to prophesy. I'm certainly not going to tell you on what lines I am working now to improve the telephone." Sir John Fleming is 83, and a very busy 83

Making The Roads Safe

British Courts Do Not Handle Reckless Drivers Easily

British courts are ruthless with motorists who carelessly endanger the lives of others. Kaye Don is under sentence on this account, and another example is to hand in the sentence of a girl, recommended to mercy by the jury and therefore getting off with half the term the judge had intended to impose, and to jail for six months for manslaughter She said she had been ill and took some pills to relieve the pain, and had had three bottles of beer as well as the gin. Her driver's license was revoked and she was disqualified for life from driving. That is the way to make the roads safe. Hamilton Herald

Emigration Society

Secretary Returns To England After Visit To Canada

Concluding his forty-second visit to Canada from Britain, Robert Culver, secretary of the British Dominions Emigration Society, returns on the Cunard White Star liner Ascania from Montreal.

"I am impressed," declared Mr Culver in an interview, "with the improvement in Canadian business conditions during the year. There are many signs of material progress and a feeling of returning confidence among the financial people I have met here this year. I feel that before long we shall have a greater opportunity of increasing the work of our society in the Dominion "

"The British Dominions Emigration Society was founded in 1882 by Prebendary Kitto During these 50 years over 87,000 have been assisted to emigrate from the United Kingdom to the Dominions. The work I am most proud of is that we have never charged one cent interest on the money advanced It was not surprising therefore, though most gratifying to our society, to receive a commendatory letter from your Prime Minister, the Rt. Hon. R. B. Bennett, paying warm tribute to our work upon the occasion of our 50th anniversary At the present time our work is almost entirely confined to the re-union of British families."

The society enjoys the high presidency of M.R.H Princess Louise, Duchess of Argyll, and a list of distinguished vice-presidents which includes The Most Noble the Marquess of Salisbury, K.G., G.C.V.O., The Right Hon. and Right. Rev. The Lord Bishop of London, The Right Rev. The Lord Bishop of Stepney, The Right Hon. Lord Lugard, The Right Hon. Lord Middleton, Sir Archibald Weigall.

The society's Canadian manager is R. Gordon Burgoyne of Montreal; the local committee includes many business and professional leaders.

Committees of similar calibre cooperate with the society in Toronto, Halifax and Saint John, N.B.

Assistance to emigrate takes the form of grants or loans made under varying conditions in suit circumstances, to British-born subjects of good character and sound health, those of advice and help to settle after their arrival.

The First Motorcycle

Fiftieth Anniversary To Be Celebrated In Germany This Year

The fiftieth anniversary of the first motor-cycle is to be celebrated this year a monument is to be erected at Gottlieb Daimler, in Schorndorf, Germany. Working behind the shutters of a shop in Stuttgart, Daimler and Wilhelm Maybach made the first motor-cycle, and in the same year the first motor-boat was launched in the river Neckar, a tributary of the Rhine. Believing the inventors were manufacturing counterfeit money, the police raided their workshop, and as there was considerable public fear of petrol, wires mounted on porcelain insulators were placed around the premises to give the impression that the motive power was electricity. In the following year the first "horseless" carriage left the shop. It was an ordinary horse-drawn carriage with metal tires in which one cylinder of 1½ horsepower was mounted. It achieved a speed of eleven miles an hour.

A Pulpit On Wheels

Sexton Places It Where People Can See Minister

In the Church of St James Clovelly, is a pulpit on wheels. The pulpit which existed before 1688, was very high and ugly, so it was decided to cut it down to its present proportions. When placed in a certain position in the church it concealed the altar, and was in the only other suitable position, people in the gallery could not see the preacher Now, before the sermon, the sexton pushes the pulpit on its linen to the centre of the church, and after the sermon it is pushed back again

HOLD DEBATE ON THE ISSUE OF ACREAGE CUT

London.—Delegates to the international wheat conference engaged in a "free-for-all" debate on the issue of acreage reduction, an agreement on which is being urged by the Canadian-United States-Australian bloc.

This bloc, composed of three of the four big exporting nations, is for it the other—is seeking an agreement also on tentative export quotas as well as a quarterly system of quotas, which would be more elastic than the annual system in effect last year.

A communique stated that no quotas have yet been arranged, and the sub-committee which will draw up figures has not yet been named.

It was believed that Canada, with huge stocks, may get the full 288,000,000 bushels tentatively agreed upon several months ago.

Whether Argentina gets the 148,000,000 allotted to her for the current year appear at present to depend upon how much progress has been made in acreage reduction.

Both the United States and Australia, it was said authoritatively, are likely to take substantial reductions since the tentative allotments of 150,000,000 and 84,000 000 bushels.

The three-nation bloc is interested in obtaining a commitment from Argentina for further acreage reduction. It is known that Argentina is asking a quota of 200,000,000 bushels as its export allotment for the year ending July 31, 1935, and that the bloc thus far is willing to take a considerable reduction in her quota. It was said on good authority that the bloc would not accept a quota of 200,000,000 bushels.

It was understood Russia now is ready to accept a quota, but is said to be about the same as last year. Indications now are that the Soviet will have little, if any, wheat to export during the year.

Owing to favorable reports from Canada, the delegates of exporting nations are now considering that the wheat prices will attain the level at which importers promised to reduce the tariff barriers—a minimum of 90 cents a bushel.

Delegates, however, are willing to take a considerable reduction in her quota. It was said on good authority that the bloc would not accept a quota of 30

GENERAL MANAGER TEXAS OIL COMPANY VISITOR TO VERMILION

Comes From New York

An interesting item, which was overlooked last week was to the effect that H. W. Indge of New York, Vice-president and general manager of the Texas Oil Co. was a visitor in Vermilion on Saturday August 18th. He is making an inspection of the company's holdings in Alberta and called at their new service station and bulk plant while here, interviewing the manager of each of the business units. Mr. Dodge travelled by aeroplane from New York to Calgary and went from that city to Edmonton from which point he is inspecting the outlying holdings of the company.

Police Officer Attacked In Court

A most unusual episode occurred during a court hearing before Magistrate Kaiser at Derwent last Tuesday. Nick Hawreliuk had just been convicted of unlawful trespass, when his brother Steve Hawreliuk got into an argument with Cpl. Olson of Vermilion and so far forgot himself as to make an attack on the officer in court. For this display of lawlessness Hawreliuk was immediately charged with assaulting a police officer, to which charge he pleaded guilty. The Magistrate in passing sentence pointed out the serious nature of the offense, and stated that he was disposed to impose a severe penalty. However, since Cpl. Olson was not pressing for a sentence of imprisonment, owing to it being harvest time, his Worship stated he would be more lenient than he other wise would have been. He then sentenced Hawreliuk to a fine of $50.00 and costs, with imprisonment for two years less one day in default of payment of the fine.

Heavy Frost 23rd

12 Degrees Recorded

Twelve degrees of frost were recorded here on Thursday night last and Friday morning, August 23rd and 24th. At 11 p.m. Thursday it was just exactly freezing point according to the standards self registering thermometer. The previous night 2½ degrees were registered.

The amount of damage done to the grain is hard to estimate and will probably not be known until after threshing. All garden stuff was killed as soon as the sun came out on Friday morning.

Fortunately harvest was well advanced throughout this immediate district Cutting is now nearing a final stage. Some threshing outfits are already in motion. Fine warm weather has prevailed since the frost.

Turn over this page and see [illegible] large display advertisement. It contains something that will interest us.

Magistrates From Man Become Change Canted In Left Footed

In which trouser pocket does a man carry his change? The question arose in a recent case in a Bath, Wales, court. A man accused of stealing a shaving brush from a drug store said he placed it in his right hand while he put his left hand in his pocket for the money The druggist then showed him a dearer brush which he bought Near home he found he still had the cheaper brush in in right hand and before he could return it the police came After his testimony the magistrates placed these hands in their trouser pockets. Their money was in their left-hand pockets, and they freed the man

C.P.S. Steamship On Pacific Coast To Be Broken Up

An old queen of the coast-seas of British Columbia, with the memories of many mariners upon her decks, has been given a viking's end recently.

The Canadian Pacific Steamships S.S. Princess Royal, already stripped of the fittings that made her a passenger liner, was given a bath of oil and then a torch put to her. She leaned to a fitting finish as she lay broadside to the beach between Esquimalt lagoon and Albert Head. What is left of her will be broken into scrap and shipped to Japan.

The Princess Royal was built at Esquimalt in 1907, registered 961 tons, and was 228 feet long.

The Canadian Grain Act

Wheat Graded To The Best Marketing Advantage

Among the eight bills affecting agriculture which became law during the 1934 session of the Dominion parliament was an act to amend the Canada Grain Act. The changes in this act place the statutory grades of No. 2 Manitoba Northern wheat on the same basis as No. 1 Northern Hard and No. 1 Manitoba Northern in so far as milling quality is concerned, and also empowers the Western Standard Committee to deal with the different varieties of grain which may be grown from time to time, so that they may be graded in the best marketing advantage without interfering with the quality of the main Canadian standard grades.

Little Journeys In Science

INSECTICIDES

By Gordon H. Guest, M.A.)

Insecticides are classified into poison sprays, or stomach poisons, and contact poisons. The former must obtain them taken internally, while the latter bring about destruction of life by mere contact. Pyrethrum belongs to the contact class of insecticides. Arsenic compounds are usually found in poison sprays. Finely divided lead arsenate suspended in water is used extensively and is very effective. Calcium arsenate is much cheaper and more abundant than lead arsenate. It is soluble to some extent in the soil, which is very destructive to the cotton plant. It is also used in dusting the potato beetle Aeroplanes are employed to drop the calcium arsenate in the form of a fine dust upon the cotton plants.

Oil emulsions, produced by the addition of fish-oil soaps to oil, are used in a considerable extent. Nicotine, a complex compound found in tobacco, is rapid and effective in the destruction of insects Lime-sulphur spray is used against scale insects. This is prepared in concentrated form by boiling together water, sulphur, and slaked lime. Hydrocyanic acid used as a fumigant in greenhouses and on nursery stock. It is an extremely poisonous substance.

Many of the poison gases used in the late war have been tested to discovery if they would be useful in the warfare against insects. One of these, chloropicrin, is the most promising. Only a few of the more important insecticides have been mentioned. Science is continually developing new destructive agents and more efficient ways of applying them to this ever-lasting struggle of mankind against insects and fungi.

Crows Foresee Disaster

That crows have a foreboding of disaster was shown recently in Cogenmore Wales. For 80 years crows have built their nests in the branches of a lofty oak 300 years old. Without warning they all moved to another tree. A week later their home tottered in a breeze and fell. After the crash the crows cawed triumphantly.

It takes a wise man to give a woman advice without incurring her enmity.

Living in Poverty

But Paul Petrel, Famous Dress Designer, Expects To Stage Comeback

Still living in his penthouse apartment in Paris, but dependent for food and clothing upon charity and a 70-cent daily nonsupport check, Paul Poiret is dreaming of a comeback in the dressmaking realm he once ruled.

"I spend most of my time with scissors and cloth," said the former king of Paris dressmakers in spite of his misfortune. "I cut out dresses. Sometime someone will buy one and I will start on the road back to success."

"I haven't given up," he declared firmly, although he has been out of work for 18 months and stands in line with thousands of others to get his food parcels and receive his dole.

He does not know how much longer he will be able to keep the penthouse apartment, sole remaining sign of his former great wealth.

Once Poiret's entertainment in his chateaux and his three yachts attracted the aristocracy of the world.

No Camping In Church

St. Paul's Cathedral Puts Ban On Picnics In Pews

Persons wishing to go on picnics will in future, have to look for camping spots other than the pews of St. Pauls' Cathedral, according to an edict issued by the cathedral authorities.

"We have in the past been turning a 'blind eye' to many abuses," a church verger declared. "The other day I found a man in a pew reading a newspaper and smoking a pipe, and I have encountered all sorts of things in a house of worship he replied that he had only come in to get out of the rain."

By action of the chapter, however, use of the cathedral for anything but devotions will be prohibited in the future.

May Erect Giant Tower

A giant tower, 6,600 feet high, six times as high as Eiffel Tower, has been proposed as a means of defending Paris, France, against aerial attacks. It would be built of reinforced concrete. Platforms would be placed at various elevations for the launching of aeroplanes and as bases for anti-aircraft artillery.

It's easier for a woman to hold a strong man than her own tongue.

"JACK MINER AND RELIGION"

By REV. W. R. McKELLOW, B.D.

Jack Miner, the Canadian naturalist, lecturer and author, was recently asked to what were his religious beliefs. In the interest of humanity, and because he is a true Christian gentleman, he answered that question quietly replied very emphatically:

"I believe in any religion that is for the betterment of mankind." Wonderful. I belong to the Methodist Church, which is now part of the United Church of Canada. That is my chief reason for this is, when I was just 24 years of age I was married; my wife belonging to that church. As I belonged to no church then, I felt it my duty to go with her. I firmly believe there would be more happy lives and happy homes if husbands and wives attended the same religious service. Besides, I like the Roman Catholic or Protestant.

Well, you say you believe in any-

Detective Dressed As Merdicant Collects $40 In Six Days

R. Rutland Yard detectives disguised as beggars, with tin cups and matches, when he was in search of a "wanted" man. In this disguise he stood on a prominent London sidewalk for six days and eventually secured his man He also received nearly $40 from kind-hearted passers-by, which he promptly returned. Those who know his home are aware of the fact that he is a keen lover of animals, and, when he keeps for the boys of the community, and the other directly in front of his home A constant path, in which a motto is engraved, runs from each entrance That through the baseball diamond contains the inspiring quotation "Rejoice and be ye glad!" And that in front of his house, "We thank God for our bounty".

Christian churches, then I'm in favor of church going," he said. But, he continued "it always takes time to get things working harmoniously and I am only sorry church union wasn't unanimous, for it is so much nicer to have one sort of thing and always go on-o'ly."

Jack Miner himself possesses a unique personality. His sanctuary might be similarly termed Those who know his home are aware of the fact that he is a keen lover of animals, and, when he keeps for the boys of the community, and the other directly in front of his home A constant path, in which a motto is engraved, runs from each entrance That through the baseball diamond contains the inspiring quotation "Rejoice and be ye glad!" SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

SEPTEMBER 2

Golden text: "He hath showed thee, O man, what is good; and what doth the Lord require of thee, but to do justly, and to love kindness, and to walk humbly with thy God?" Micah 6:8.

Lesson: Micah, chapters 3-4 and 6.1—7.8.

Devotional reading: James 1:22-27.

Explanations And Comments

A Dramatic Scene: God Pronounces Sentence. Fulfillment of Faithful Disciple, verses 1-5. The prophet Micah, in a burst of oratorical indignation, declares that God will contend, or plead (the figure is that of a complainant in court), with the people before the mountains, as judges. "Hear, ye mountains, and ye enduring foundations of the earth," the prophet cried; "for God hath a controversy with his people, and he will contend with Israel." The mountains are spoken of as "enduring", for they have outlived many generations of people.

Jehovah now speaks. He is the plaintiff; the prophet is his attorney; Israel is the defendant; the mountains are the judges. "O my people," Jehovah exclaims through his attorney, "what have I done unto thee? and wherein have I wearied thee? testify against me"—show cause for your disobedience. No answer comes for the only answer that could be made is that the fault lies in the people, not in Jehovah.

The Divine Conception of True Religion, verse 6. To all of this, verses 6 and 7, Micah replies with what is probably the best known verse in the entire Old Testament, which combines the characteristic messages of Amos, Hosea, and Isaiah. The keynote of Amos' teaching, as we have seen, is justice; that of Hosea, love; and the distinctive emphasis of Isaiah's message as we shall see, is faith. It is humble fellowship with God. "He hath showed thee, O man, what is good (good is here used synonymous with obedience to the will of God), and what doth Jehovah require of thee but to do justly, and to love kindness, and to walk humbly with thy God?" With this definition of religion may be compared the last verse of our text from these two weeks ago: "Let justice roll down as waters, and righteousness as a mighty stream"; last week's Golden Text from Hosea: "I desire goodness, not sacrifice; and the knowledge of God more than burnt-offerings"; and various twelve and thirteen of Deuteronomy 10: "And now, Israel, what doth Jehovah thy God require of thee, but to fear Jehovah thy God, to walk in all his ways, and to love him, and to serve Jehovah thy God with all thy heart and with all thy soul, to keep the commandments of Jehovah and his statutes?"

Agricultural Notes

Interesting Items Gleaned From Many Sources

Canada exported 37 live cattle to Hong Kong, China, for delaying purposes during the first three months of 1934.

Hogs graded in Canada during the 23 weeks of 1934 up to August 9, totalled 1,862,717, as against 1,986,-661 in the corresponding period of 1933.

The general effect of the customs changes in the Fiji Islands is to increase the margin of preference to imports from Denmark and other Empire countries.

There has been more tomato puree, tomato sauce and ketchup, and tomato soup imported into the British Isles from Canada than from any other country during the first six months of 1934.

Reports from Moscow show that there has been considerable difficulty in the Russian production of harvesting machinery, particularly harvester combines, and this has had an effect on harvesting arrangements.

The total stocks of Canadian wheat in Canada on July 31, 1934, were 188,822,845 bushels—18,417,210 bushels less than the total on the corresponding date in 1933, but 61,476,667 bushels more than on July 31, 1932.

Shipments of livestock from Western to Eastern Canada for the 21 weeks of this year, up to August 2, 1934, (gures within brackets) included 48,575 (33,063) cattle; 484 (145) calves; 140,015 (180,275) hogs, and 14,400 (13,845) sheep.

For the first six months of 1934, Canada exported to the United (England) market the following canned foods: 1,178,000 cases of peas, 14,585 cases of loganberries; 2,852 cases of peaches, and 40,984 cases of canned apples.

A trial shipment of Ontario apples in hampers made in 1933 to Egypt has been well received. It consisted of Ganon, Baldwin, and Spy varieties, mentioned in order of preference. The Canso in particular, says the Canadian Trade Commissioner in Egypt, should be able to find an outlet in Egypt as to meet the demand for red apples.

The most from which soup has been made becomes rather tasteless, but it still contains most of its nourishment. Therefore, it may be used in hash, meat pide and ragouts, where the flavour of vegetables and seasoning compensate for the lack of meat flavour.—Beef, How to Choose and Cook It. Dominion Department of Agriculture Bulletin.

The Japanese wheat crop of this year is estimated at 44,491,150 bushels. It is considered that the annual consumption of wheat is about 65,-000,000 bushels, so that the five-year plan instituted two years ago by the Japanese government to grow sufficient wheat for domestic purposes seems to be almost attained in the matter of production for 1934.

Latest estimates of wool production for the five principal exporting countries (Australia, New Zealand, South Africa, Argentina and Uruguay) for the 1933-34 season which has just ended (except in South America) point to a net decrease, greasy basis, of nearly 300 million pounds, or 9 per cent., in comparison with the 1932-33 season.

"The bears had eaten everything," he said, "except the spinach."

The acetics who doubled the bears' ability to open tin cans, Noble explained.

‡ KOKNEE & DISTRICT NOTES ‡

Kokhee has just celebrated one of the biggest events in its history. This was the picnic and dance on August 7th, staged by the Sports Club The day was a great success despite its being in harvest time. The season being far advanced before we could get away in an account of numerous other attractions in neighboring localities. We thank all those who took part in helping to make the sports of the success they were; also to Parker and Hall in putting on first visit in such fine style, they are a fine bunch of sportsmen and we hope to be able to attend some of their events soon. We also thank Goodwin, Hall, McKeeney, Lavada and Wildwood for attending and to the Youngfield family who turned out in the dance at night.

The races at the picnic were effectively carried out by James McGee, assisted by Mrs. D. Sherriff and Mrs. F. McCandless. The winners were:

Girls egg and spoon race—1, J. Watt, 2, S. Hamilton. Boys' 100 yard dash—1, R. Lisosky, Kinsey, 2, Sloggett race —1, V. & L. Watt, 2, B. A. Rose. Tractor eating contest—1, W. Watt, 2, H. McCambridge. Wheel barrow race—1, D. A. Rose, C. V. & L. Watt. Slow horse race—1, W. Watt. A number of others were held but the names of the winners have escaped the writer's memory.

The softball games were managed by V. Watt assisted by D. Sherriff, Turvey's Mill lost to Woodvale, they Kinsey lost to Kokhee. Real Woodvale lost to Kokhee Juvenile.

This brought an enjoyable day to an end and everyone made for the school where a terrific crowd jammed the building. Everybody secured accordable, however, and seasons to make new friends during the evening Miss Curry favored with two lovely songs which were hugely enjoyed First class music was rendered by McCaffrey's orchestra. Everyone went home fully satisfied with the good time they had enjoyed

ISLAY WINS RIGELMOF CUP

Last Sunday, Mrs. Islay Football club journeyed to St Andrew's pitch to battle Clandonald in the cup final After 90 minutes of fast football the score stood at 1-1. Another half hour's overtime was ordered and Islay were successful in getting the odd goal in the first ten minutes. The boys would like to thank Clandonald for a real football game, clean, fast and hard fought; the referee, Mr. Edwards for the efficient way in which he handled the game, and last but not least the ladies of Clandonald for an excellent lunch. Through lack of space a detailed report of the game is being held until next week.

OLDS AGRICULTURAL SCHOOL OPENS OCT. 30TH

The Olds School of Agriculture will re-open for the next school year, on Oct. 30. Providing the expected number of students register for instruction at the Vermilion school, it will re-open on the same date, according to Hon F. R. Grisdale, minister of agriculture

It is expected that fully two appointments will be received for the Vermilion school, many of which are on file now. There is accommodation at each school for 200 students

James Murray will continue as principal of the Old school as will W. J Elliott at Vermilion. A large number of the former staff will return to Vermilion, while no changes are contemplated in the Olds staff.

THRESHERS PREPARING FOR RUNS

Threshing outfits are preparing for their runs and not many days will elapse before machines will be working in practically all parts in this district. An odd load or two of new wheat has been hauled in but as far as can be learned no steady threshing has yet been done. Ernest Hopkins pulled a load of new wheat to town on Saturday while W. E. McKee has threshed his crop. The yield from the latter's crop is reported to be very satisfactory.

WANTS SEPARATION

Suit for judicial separation is being taken by A. Elizabeth Wyley against her husband Albert Wyley farmer, alimony and custody of the two children in their youth is the statement of claim. The couple were married at Islay, in July, 1914. P. C. Thomson acts K.C. is counsel for the plaintiff —Edmonton Journal.

RUSSIAN WHEAT SITUATION

Annual Average Wheat Production 580 Million Bushels

It is estimated that since 1916 the population in Russia has increased by at least 17 million persons, which means that Russia's annual requirements of wheat are at least 175 million bushels more now than at the time when they were in 1916 The production of wheat in 1916 is not accurately known but it can be said with fair accuracy that the average annual production for the past two or three years has been very little, if any, greater than it was before the war in 1913 and 1914. There is will be seen that Russia easily requires all the wheat she is now producing for the use of her own people, therefore should not be, on the average, a serious competitor in world wheat markets

Now It Could Be Done

Probably it is an direct reaction to the appalling state of irritant unrest which keens international news continually on edge that more is being written and heard now of peace and its perpetuation than was heard or written during the great fiasco which terminated in the framing of the Treaty of Versailles

The Anglo-Saxon world, at least, has come to the conclusion that a treaty conceived by revenge and nurtured by fear is altogether too provocative an instrument to produce anything more than a more armistice or truce That section of the world now is convinced that the Christian virtues of humility and fraternity could and would provide a better background for an abiding peace featuring the essential conditions of harmony and mutual co-operation

It is hard to concede that mankind is devoid of capacity to bring about this condition of state In fact, when one scans the war efforts of the last six-and-a-half years between 1914 and 1920 it is difficult to conclude that only the Will is lacking Were the efforts made then to destroy life and property exerted now to preserve life and property, world peace quickly would be achieved There is no doubt of it

If doubts be cherished, they should be dissipated by reference to the recently published "War Memoirs" of David Lloyd George First as Britain's Minister of Munitions then as her premier, Mr. Lloyd George was primarily responsible for organizing the country's human and industrial resources for victory How far-reaching, how extensive that organization was, is vividly revealed in the pages of his narrative All essential departments were brought within the compass of his authority All were made to contribute their full quota to the national effort That gigantic organization was established for the dual purpose of building up the Allied, and of breaking down the enemy capacity to endure The achievement shows conclusively what can be done by organization on the grand scale

Considering the efficacy of war-time organization and effort, surely it is not foolhardy to suggest that, were all the nations of the world to unite in organizing in the cause of peace, lasting and prosperous peace would ensue And were the same efforts applied to solving the economic problems of the peoples of the world unemployment they, too, would yield

It is a strange commentary on civilization and human progress that sacrifices to win a war should be described as "heroic" and, as such, borne with determination and a grim smile, while sacrifices to win a peace should be branded as humiliating and intolerable. It is strange, too, that war could be financed with no insuperable difficulty, while finances required in an economic depression to keep innocent people from starvation, present apparently insurmountable obstacles to the governments concerned.

Nicholas Murray Butler, noted American liberal, recently translated the financial cost of the world war into graphic and startling terms. It cost 400 billion dollars. "With that money," he says, "we could have built a $2,400 house, furnished it with $4,000 worth of furniture, placed it on five acres of land worth $700 an acre, and given this home to each and every family in the United States, Canada, Australia, England, Scotland, Wales, Ireland, France, Belgium, Germany and Russia. We could have given to each city of 30 000 inhabitants and over in each country named, a five million dollar library and a ten million dollar university Out of what was left we could have set aside a sum at five per cent. that would provide a $1 000 yearly salary for 135,000 teachers, and a like salary for another army of 135,000 nurses

Four hundred billion dollars was expended in a war which took 20,000,000 lives. Surely, a similar amount expended in a peace, would save a similar number from sufferings attendant upon economic depression.

Some Interesting Facts

Article Deals With African Desert Dust And Elephants

News of the World, London, says: "In an interesting article in the National Geographic Magazine it is stated that it is not only in this country that motor boats are cursed, but that Arab canoeists are loud in protest and abuse of the motors, which fling choking clouds of dust all over the pilgrims

"Away, thou son of a dog! By Allah! What an invention of the devil! May your bones break and be burnt to cinders by the sun!"

But in another few years the poor canoeists may have still more cause to protest for the road along which the pilgrims travel will probably be the route of the proposed Jeddah-Mecca railway

The same authority says that much of the elephant lore that is widely accepted is fabulous. The elephant has a wonderful memory, but the beast does not often remember

If elephants avenged every boating there would be a very high percentage among elephant trainers and attendants.

"If the trainer or keeper fears the animal and does not at once subdue it with force, then the pampered elephant will continue to intimidate him, and he may eventually be killed. If, however, he subdues it at once by the rich tradition of their land, declare the hooking of the automobile horns will never be allowed to break its spell

Thousands Of German Professors Seek Work In Foreign Countries

Some 7,500 academic and professional refugees from Nazi Germany are now attempting to create a new existence for themselves in foreign countries, the New York Emergency Committee in Aid of Displaced German Scholars reveals. It is declared that "of all classes affected by the National-Socialist revolution in Germany, the academic and the professionals have suffered the most."

A high commission for refugees coming from Germany is co-ordinating the work in various countries Sixty German scholars have been placed in American institutions of higher learning. More than 1,200 German scholars have been displaced, of whom 600 to 700 have or will shortly emigrate Between 5,000 to 5,500 professional people have left Germany and 1,500 to 1,600 of the 7,000 German university students forced to quit their studies have sought refuge outside Germany.

Fight Auto Invasion

French-Canadians Do Not Want Cars On Mount Royal

The only city in the Dominion which boasts a mountain in its midst is in the middle of a small war about the mountain

Mount Royal, the rearing landmark from which the metropolis of Canada derives its name, is the bone of contention in an argument as to whether automobiles shall be allowed for the first time in history to scale its summit

The mountain broke into the headlines when Ald. J. Allan Bray ventured the suggestion motorists be permitted to wind their way upward to its wooded dells and broad expanses of grass overlooking the modern city. An immediate storm of protest broke and thousands of citizens voiced their determination to preserve the primitive natural charm of Montreal's namesake for future generations to enjoy.

One of the few fortunate yet remaining against the advance of the automobile age, Mount Royal has continued to share its picturesque quaintness with Bernardo's motorless avenues. To date, only pedestrians, bicyclists and the horse-drawn Victorian rigs are heritages of another age in Montreal, are allowed on the mountain and the French-Canadians, who regard the great rock as part of the rich tradition of their land, declare the hooking of the automobile horns will never be allowed to break its spell

Alberta Teachers

Considerable Versatility Is Demanded By School Boards

Some Alberta school boards apparently demand considerable versatility of talents in their rural teachers This was revealed at Edmonton at the hearing of appeals for alleged wrongful dismissal and startling terms. It cost 400 billion dollars. "With that money," he says, "we could have built a $2,400 house, furnished it with $4,000 worth of furniture, placed it on five acres of land worth $700 an acre, and given this home to each and every family in the United States, Canada, Australia, England, Scotland, Wales, Ireland, France, Belgium, Germany and Russia. Recover Sunken Gold

Five Million Dollars Removed From Hold Of Steamer Laurentic

Bullion valued at £1,000,000 ($5,000,000) was removed by a private salvage firm from the sunken steamer Laurentic which went to the bottom with a German torpedo in 1917, the London Mail says

Admiralty divers salvaged £3,000,000 between 1918 and 1924 and abandoned the remaining £1 000 000 because the ship had been smashed amidships in the mud

Salvage operations on the steamship Laurentic a 15,000-ton White Star liner which lay in 120 feet of water, are known to be among the most difficult ever attempted

British navy divers clad in rubber suits made more than 5 000 trips to recover £5 000 000 worth of bullion

The Laurentic was sunk off the mouth of Lough Swilly in northern Ireland, in a position exposed to westerly and northwesterly gales

Mail By Rocket

German Invention May Shoot Letters From Dover To Calais

A rocket mail service may be established between Dover, England, and Calais, France. The enterprise would employ the "Zucker" aluminium rocket, a German invention which was exhibited at the International Air Post Exposition in London the first part of May

It is estimated that by means of the rocket service letters may be shot across the English Channel, a distance of 21 miles, in one minute

It is reported locally that the inventor, after demonstrating the practicability of the service, intends to approach the British and French governments with a view to arranging for a regular service, and that a British syndicate being formed for the purpose Under the proposed scheme, China would be the receiving and dispatching point for the continent

Gigantic Cunard White Star Liner

Some Startling Facts About The New Queen Of The Seas

The name of the new Cunard White Star superliner now known as No. 534 will be divulged 24 hours before the hull slips down the ways at Clydebank, Scotland, Queen Mary, christened by Miss George V., will launch the new steamer The ship will be at least 1,018 feet long and register 73,000 or more gross tons. She will cross the Atlantic from England and France in four days. The cost of the superliner has been estimated at $30,000,000. The vessel will have 11 decks, one the first class promenade being 750 feet long, just 35 feet less than the entire length of the Mauretania. She will be five times the length of the original Cunarder, the Britannia. The height to the masthead will be 250 feet. The rudder will weigh 183 tons. The Aquitania's is but half this weight. The steel plates range from 6 feet in length to 30 feet, and weigh from 200 to 6,000 pounds.

There will be 2,000 portholes and windows, the panes of glass ranging from 12 inches in diameter to large oval panes two feet in height. The anchor cables, wire hawsers and ropes for the ship will be more than four miles in length. The anchors, of special design, will be the world's largest. There will be 60,000 cubic feet of refrigerating space. The automatic steering gear will be the largest on any ship. The ship will be driven by single-reduction geared turbines supplied with steam from high-pressure watertube boilers. There will be four screw propellers, each driven by an independent set of machinery. The driving machinery will be placed in two separate engine rooms. Four turbo-generators will supply power to the auxiliary machinery. Three others will supply light and power for the hotel services In the engine-room will be used. The propellers will each weigh 35 tons and measure 20 feet from tip to tip There will be 257,000 turbine blades, varying in length from two to 12 inches and geared to the thousandth part of an inch. The Clyde River has been widened and deepened for the launching at a cost of $400,000. The new superliner is being built in the yards of John Brown & Co. Ltd., where the Aquitania was built.

There will be three funnels. The first funnel will be more than 70 feet in height, the other two lower. This arrangement will keep the decks and ventilators clear of funnel gases. The hull of the first Cunarder, the Britannia, could be passed through any one of the funnels of the new superliner. The ship will contain 50 miles of plumbing pipes. The electric lighting system is sufficient to service a city of more than 150,000 inhabitants, such as Quebec, Hamilton or Ottawa. Steam will be generated in 27 enormous boilers. The number of tubes in the main and auxiliary condensers will approximate 80,000. The electrical wiring would reach from Halifax to Vancouver and then 400 miles out into the Pacific ocean. The giant's stacks will be thirty feet in diameter, exceeding the Holland Tube, between New York and Jersey City, by six inches. From the keel to the top of the foremost funnel is equal to the height of an 18-story building. The engines of the 534 will generate 200,000 horsepower enough to tow Staten Island across the Atlantic. The make up of the ship will require 25,000 tons of steel. The cantering department will contain 200,000 pieces of crockery. Ten miles of carpets will be used in covering the ship's floors. Tableware, including knives, forks, spoons, etc., will total 100,000. The ship's decorations will cost $2,500,000. Her steadiness will be assured by a million-dollar gyroscope device weighing 300 tons. This device will keep the ship steady in the roughest sea. The captain's bridge will be 100 feet about the water line. The steamer's ventilators will be large enough to swallow a subway car The sun deck will contain shady garden lounges, patio courts and swimming pools, giving a tropical aspect to the surroundings during all the seasons. The steamer will be insured for approximately $7,000,000

In her 53 flights across the Atlantic, the Graf Zeppelin has never been more than an hour behind her schedule and in many cases she has been several hours ahead

Tests have shown that actors or speakers in a hall should speak louder to cold weather, because the heavy clothing of the audience absorbs more sound.

Commemorate Early Flight

Aeroplanes Kept In Air From Dawn To Dusk At Edmonton

The twenty-fifth anniversary of flying in Canada was effectively commemorated at Edmonton recently when some 12 members of the Edmonton and Northern Alberta Aero Club kept an aeroplane aloft for 15 hours, 15 minutes in "a dawn-to-dusk" flight.

In common with other flying clubs across the Dominion, the flights were carried out, each machine staying in the air for shifts of one hour, to be replaced by another before the first had touched the ground.

Pilot C. North Bawle, hopping off at 5:00 a.m., was the first to commence the flight, while Pilot Evan Jensen was the last to land when he brought his machine down at 6:25 p.m. after a black rain cloud and thunder made the sky too black to continue.

Miss Margaret Fane was the only woman pilot to take part in the commemoration of the flight made by "Chevy" Baldwin, who hopped off in his crudely-made "Silver Hawk" 26 years ago, August 16, in Nova Scotia.

London's Newest Building

Has Hotel Service And Every Accommodation For Tenants

"Flatels" is the newly coined name to describe a $10,000,000 block of flats which is being completed in London. The name is intended to describe flatlets having hotel service. There will be 50 flats, accommodating 1,200 persons, and for practically every daily want of the tenants—food, clothing or service—will be available within the building. A shopping expedition of the flat-dwellers will be merely a trip to the ground floor, and there will be restaurants, dining rooms, barber shops and beauty parlors. A novel feature will be a terrace, 16 feet wide, surrounding the top floor of the building It resembles a liner promenade deck and will be available for sun-bathing

Wanted His Razor

Portland Man Would Shave With Knife That Almost Killed Wife

You can choose your own title for this one. Here's the story.

A little man entered the police station at Portland, Oregon, and asked for the razor which his wife used to stab her throat in an unsuccessful suicide attempt a few days ago.

"What do you want with the razor?" a police sergeant asked. "I want to shave!" was the cool reply.

It was suggested that he buy a new razor.

AND YOU KNOW THEM!

In every community there are to be found two types of citizens. There is the citizen who stands on the street corner, with his hands stuffed down in his pockets, his shoulders stooped and a sneer on his face. Such a one is no value to any community.

He is the fellow who says the fire department does not know how to fight a fire and tells how it ought to be done but never lends a hand. He is the fellow who complains about the rats in the streets—but he hasn't paid any taxes for years, and, of course, does not help to keep them in condition. He is the fellow who finds fault with the schools and the teachers, but never did anything in his entire life to improve or help the side or drive life. He is the fellow who criticizes the local newspaper, but never subscribed for it (or if he did, he never paid for it!). He is the fellow who condemns everything and sees no good in anything.

Contrast him now with the other type of citizen. The citizen who is a booster and who may be counted on to assist in every worthy civic cause. This type of citizen pays his debts and his taxes, stands for everything that is for the betterment of the place where he lives and never allows his enthusiasm for his home town to lag. He is an asset to any community.

It is men of his class that are responsible for all the improvements which are made. We owe it to him that we have good streets, that our school system is as modern as it is, and that we live in a place that we can boast of to our friends. It is the latter individual who invests his money and his time in the development of his town and district.

Classify yourself and see which class you belong to and which type you can match. If you belong to the first, it's time for reformation. If you belong to the latter class—more power to your elbow! —Wainwright Star.

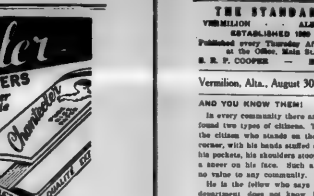
WILL POSTPONE MEETING OF ASSOCIATED BOARDS TRADE

With harvest operations in full blast President Thos Gordon of the Associated Boards of Trade considers it advisable to postpone the quarterly meeting set for an August date until Oct. 5th, and 6th, by which time harvest will be completed. Members of the Board are being asked to give an opinion as to the proposed postponement and they will very likely accede read fly enough. —Vegreville Observer

COUNT DE TOPOR SPENDS WEEK IN TOWN

Making his first visit here for several years the Count De Topor spent a week in town, leaving here for Edmonton on Monday morning. He represents the interests which have considerable local property, namely the imperial block and a large number of "Count's" houses as well as several farms in the district. The company is one of the town's largest taxpayers and to show that his heart is in the right place, the Count paid the taxes in full, so he said that he understood Vermilion was having some little trouble financing during these stressful times

The Count is a much more lively person than he formerly resembled him and is fairly bubbling over with good nature and energy. He laughs over reminiscences of Vermilion.



Count de Topor has been around the ton and from there will leave for Japan where he is due in three weeks

AUSTRALIAN WHEAT SITUATION

(Average Annual Wheat Production 180 Million Bushels)

Australia produces three important crops—Wheat, Mutton and Wool. Three factors started trouble acreage formerly in grasses and native pasture devoted to the production of mutton and wool was turned to wheat-growing for the reason that the prices of mutton and wool fell relatively lower than the prices of wheat. Australia refused to withhold all her surplus of wool from the market. The present three products for sale at any price. It is considered she has today no surplus of wool, nor in the last year has she sold more than a normal requirement. This will certainly tend to induce Australian farmers to take more acreage out of wheat and to devote it once again to the more profitable business of sheep raising

NEIGHBORHOOD NARRATIVES

Misses Trudo Pirk and Olive Fyfe of Island returned to their respective homes after viewing other parts of our fair province

A very respected lady of the Tolmie district has concluded that it is quite foolhardy to approach the berry patch without a fly spray. Bellew, her three horsers can sting! Quirk, Hasty, the Pilot!

Our nature notes this week include a meeting of the "investors" of cows and blackbirds which adorn the rows of telegraph poles to their respective dens for departure; also the prevalence of skunks and an occasional porcupine. A meeting of the Progressive Buying Group took place two weeks ago at the home of Mrs. Wm. Tolson, Wm. B. Bowman, Kathan-Berry), W. Portsmith, Watson, and J. Brown, Woodvale. A joint meeting of the Union and Telford locals took place Saturday at the home of Thos Priestland for further work along the above lines. It is a new step, with great possibilities, and the Neighborhood is interested) watching its developments

Sherwood wishes for a Blotjes of happiness are extended to Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Maidment (nee Nonah Hendley) who were married in Lacombe last week. The couple were well known in the Neighborhood and it is hoped that they keep the happy smile with which we were so familiar.

Hello, folks! It is doubtful whether the headline is appropriate this week, since we are some distance from the Neighborhood, "sitting on top of the world," and enjoying grand weather and grander scenery at Jasper.

Visitors by car to the home of Mrs W. J Doyle Jr. were Mrs R Dunbank and Mr. N Mellinson from Jasper They were accompanied on their return trip by Mrs. W. J Doyle Jr and daughter, Ioanna

We were sorry to read of the untimely front of last Thursday night. It was rather to be expected since Wednesday night had cast a chill over gardens, and Thursday morning was a sure life elect.

The Neighborhood is to be congratulated on the amount of straw it will have Most fields further west are nearly knee high

In case we didn't get the news thru Hendley's who were united in matrimony last week The couple were well known in the Neighborhood and it is hoped that they keep the happy smile with which we were so familiar.

Well, old Bill, we think it must be that the better half in your case gave a little attention to her spouse's questions as ours does to our trusty pourtsellers

Well, as old May says now you can read the rest on the paper.

"I am stepping on it, Son!"

NO one can actually blame Sonny for speaking up. After all, with cars whizzing by on both sides, he probably thought Dad was holding back.

The sparkling performance of many a car is often interfered with by inefficient gasoline. We don't claim for a minute that all gasolines in the West are "inefficient" and that ours can put wings on your car. We do feel, however, that you will like the way Texaco Fire-Chief takes hold on hills, in traffic... the way it steps out when you "step on it".

If you want to show Sonny what your car really can do, give Fire-Chief a trial. It is available at all Texaco Stations at regular gasoline prices. And after all is said and done, an ounce of performance is worth pounds of claims.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

(This paper does not hold itself responsible for opinions expressed by correspondents.)

Editor, The Standard.

Dear Sir:—In the last issue of The Standard your Island Hill correspondent made a feeble effort to be truthful concerning the Executive of the Vermilion District Football League. Whether he succeeded or not is a matter of opinion. All I have to say is that such bombast is a manifestation of neither wit nor wisdom. There is a misrepresentation of facts in some some notes in which I would like to draw the attention of the football public (players and fans). The notes read "Arrow teams originally joined the League and under the management of those football 'nuts' four clubs have vanished. Seven teams originally join the League; it began disbanded. 27th Aug with four teams. Furthermore these teams are not under the management of the Executive. Each team has its own local management (?) and the Executive is comprised of a representative from each team to carry on the general business of the league. They have done nothing without a meeting, or without two representatives. If some of the Clubs were unwilling to abide by the majority vote and withdrew their teams it is certainly not the doing of the Executive. We have done our best to establish and maintain the form of sport in the district. But if the different clubs think that others would do better, then by all means let them.

We take this opportunity to thank the Cup donors and all who in any way supported football this season.

Thanking you on behalf of the Club

Donald Dorrier Football League Executive.

Yours very truly
GUY T CHALMERS.

ISLAND HILL

Merit Medal is awarded Ernie Everett this week for calling on us with his faithful companion, the accordion. We enjoyed the dance, you know, the afternoon tea, the same as if we were real comrades and real homes. He took us the news of dear old England his dear old England—our stories, never many stories and, well finished, he took up his accordion and played "The Wearing of the Green." Many boys have passed since we sang a song but when Ernie has played we have sung. We go up and send Had Fried Archroon been listening, he would have shed better tears of remembrance.

Picture the scene, dear reader Here is a man playing "The Wearing of the Green" a descendant of the very men who hanged our forefathers for singing the same song. Ah! With all the depression times have changed for the better and, don't you forget it, there is many an honest heart beats under a ragged coat!

So, Ernie, we have much pleasure in passing the Merit Medal over your honest heart.

Noticed During the Week—

Jim Rochford with a two-horse load of fence post out our bungalow. He was accompanied by—ah, well, Jim is a shy bird and much must have its due.

Bert Scorie, Alf Negrie and George Lind tryin' out the thrashing outfit. It was merely an accident that George was given the hardest job.

Harley White blading on Willey's Hill. Now, Harley, Rome wasn't built in a day, you know.

Mr. Frost using Smith's double around here.

It was freely rumored here during the week yesterday to be played on the soccer final between A. T. A. Lodge and Chalmond that the latter club were so grieved at the sentence of death passed on Island Hill Club that they

ELEPHANT BRAND FERTILIZER
BECOMING POPULAR

Much interest on the part of the farming community, has centred this year on the series of commercial fertilizers, the local agency for the Consolidated Mining and Smelting Co. placed approximately two cars of fertilizer in use in 1934 and already the sales for 1935 have far surpassed those of the current year.

It is claimed for "Elephant" Brand fertilizer that it makes plant food more readily available to the growing crop in the early stages and before the bacterial action sets in, and in such that growth is continuous in the fertilized crop. This fertilizer supplies nitrogen and phosphorus to the soil and all who have seen the results during the growing season are prepared to admit that the use of commercial fertilizer has a decided beneficial result and will be a feature of prairie farming in the future.

Fertilization of old land has resulted some remarkable increases in yield and it is estimated that the average gain of 10.4 bushels per acre increase, for the whole province of Alberta will be obtained in the Vermilion district. Maturity of the crop being a deciding factor in combatting frost damage it has been well established in this district that ten days earlier maturity has been obtained through the use of Elephant Brand fertilizer.

It is felt by many that once fertilizer is used it must always be used but this has been declared to be a false impression as agronomists all over the continent; the fertilizer merely adds plant food, in the form of nitrogen and phosphorous and, in a word what this is used up by the plant, in the case of a dry year is preserved for the fertilizer is left in the ground but will give its results in the next crop.

At present prices of grain it takes but, two additional bushels of wheat per acre to pay the fertilizer bill, and with increased yields, earlier maturity and cleaner crops the small additional outlay is well worth consideration. Under ordinary circumstances some-mer yellow may cost approximately eight dollars per acre, average yields being about eighteen bushels it would appear that the expenditure of an additional dollar per acre for fertilization is the best dollar ever spent if the yield is increased by even four bushels per acre.

"Does fertilizer harm the soil?" is a question often asked. This is effectively answered by the Saskatchewan Association of Agronomists who, in a recent bulletin declare: "Phosphate fertilizers, when drilled in with the seed of grain crops, result in increased development of the root system; produce from the start a more vigorous and rapid growth of the plants which has a smothering effect on the weeds, produces an evenness of growth and maturity, advancing the latter, which is most essential in the prairie provinces, especially in areas suffering from rust and early frosts, and results in yield increases which under certain conditions make its use economically profitable."

Continuing, the report further states "A most uncommon viewpoint is that the use of this fertilizer has a detrimental effect on the productive capacity of the soil. There is NO PRACTICAL OR SCIENTIFIC BASIS for such an opinion. Phosphate fertilizers and NOTHING WHICH IS DETRIMENTAL exist upon the beneficial effect in itself, make for more efficient use of other plant foods which our soils contain."

All farmers who are interested in better crops are invited to write for particulars of Elephant Brand Fertilizer, full details will be supplied without obligation of any kind.

Attachments for seeding in the fertilizer have undergone a change from previous years, and, although full details are not yet available it is expected that the new attachments will cost but half the former price and will be more efficient than those formerly manufactured.

Discounts of $3.00 per ton are offered on all orders booked for the 1935 prize to September 15th. Buyers have privileges of cancellation up to January 15th.

Fertilization costs approximately one dollar per acre and will be generally practiced in this district in the future. A number of good farmers used Elephant Brand in 1934 and already many have doubled or trebled their orders for the next growing season. Fertilizer is NOT WARE HOUSED but may be secured in carload lots at the lowest price if orders are placed in time for inclusion in the shipments. Fertilizer is sold at a cash price, payment being made on the delivery of the fertilizer in March. For advertisement in this issue of the Standard and MAKE SURE YOUR ORDER IS INCLUDED IN ONE OF THE CARLOADS . . . on rich is run by ordering NOW . . . If anything prevents your taking your order you have until January 15th in which to effect full or part cancellation.

See R. C. Heerbert, District Representative, Canadian Industrial Mining and Smelting Co. for full details.

(Chalmondale) were incapable of doing themselves justice and consequently today would win the cup, today did.

Regularity!

TO MERCHANDISERS :--

"You sweep out, you trim the windows, you dust off the counters, you make up new price cards, you plan your merchandising showings, you do these and a hundred other necessary jobs REGULARLY in the normal conduct of your business.

"But how about the biggest job of all — contacting the people and telling them repeatedly that you are in business and have the goods they need. Do you do that REGULARLY? Do you figure you are going to get your share of the available business if you don't tell folks about your merchandise or your service at REGULAR intervals instead of doing the job spasmodically or not at all?

"By all known tests, experience and thousands of records, the acknowledged best-of-all medium for REGULARITY is advertising in the local newspaper. A newspaper going REGULARLY into the homes of your possible customers, not only in your town but the surrounding territory as well, makes it easy enough for anyone to see how your local newspaper offers you the finest kind of a vehicle for carrying your business message REGULARLY to the people.

'And don't think these folks won't miss your REGULARITY of advertising. They look for their newspaper REGULARLY, READ IT REGULARLY, study its advertising (yours, if it's there) REGULARLY.

"And what's more, you'll find they are buying fairly REGULARLY, too, if you'll just check up, especially with the advertisers who do use space REGULARLY.

"YOURS FOR MORE REGULARITY IN ADVERTISING."

OCCASIONAL WIFE

By
MRS. HUBERT WEBSTER
Author of "Juvette", "Lipstick Girl" Etc.

SYNOPSIS

Camilla Hoyt and Peter Ames, young and in love, marry secretly, deciding to visit their new lives apart until Peter is able to provide for her. Peter is a young, struggling sculptor trying to win a competition for a scholarship abroad and Camilla is the adopted daughter of a wealthy family. She is not to inherit money when she comes of age and so is studying commercial art in the hope of landing an agency job. Others in the story are Avis Werth, another wealthy girl who is trying to win Peter; Sylvia Todd, Peter's model, and Cue Masters, his former roommate with whom he has quarrelled. After a party at an exclusive club, when the rest of the members of the party go to a cabaret to continue the revelry, Peter and Camilla slip off to the beach by themselves and fall asleep on the sand. When they awake it is early morning and Avis and another party are standing near them. To make it necessary for Camilla to announce before the party that she and Peter are married. Camilla urges Peter to tell some of her friends, earning to help him along, but Peter refuses and they quarrel. After Camilla has gone from the studio Avis Werth visits and persuades Peter to accept a loan of $1,000. Peter finishes his exhibit and asks Avis and Camilla for any suggestions as to a name for it. Camilla suggests "Enzyo Youth" and Avis "Inspiration." Peter adopts the latter title and Camilla, hesitating, goes to Peter's studio for quiet and to think. Peter and Avis follow later, and as the lights are turned on, see the statue has been shattered to pieces. Avis accuses Camilla of doing this, and Camilla, stunned by the disaster and hurt and horrified by the accusation, faints.

At Camilla's suggestion, Peter enters as his exhibit a statue he has sculptured secretly for her as a wedding gift. They named it "Land of Home".

Camilla's advertising campaign and Tan Tots broadcast was a great success, and Mr. Hoyt expressed his pleasure and surprise on learning that Camilla was the author and artist who was the shy stimulating business for his company.

Peter's exhibit was awarded the Paris scholarship, and he prepares for his journey to France. After the ship's departure from New York, he is on his way to his cabin when he meets Avis Werth.

(Now Go On With The Story)

CHAPTER LVIII

It was in such a mood, when Peter had been exceptionally gentle and solicitous during the evening, that Avis ventured upon a long-dropped subject while they smoked and talked in a secluded corner of the deck together. He had not mentioned Camilla's name in her presence that day, and she risked the remark after referring to Camilla first in a casual manner.

"Poor little impulsive thing! I suppose it accounts for her genius. A girl like that never should fall in love. Her emotions are too violent, and jealousy is always her fatal undoing—like her breaking your statue. I'm sure you forgave her for that, after what happened."

He turned quickly to face her. "Why, Camilla never did that!"

"Oh—" she caught her breath softly, "then she didn't tell you, after all?"

"Tell me what?" sharply.

"Why—all about it. She came to me the next day and begged me to help her some way to make it up to you. I supposed she had told you, after the way you won the exhibit."

"You don't mean—that she deliberately destroyed it, and then—" desperately.

Avis gestured hopelessly. "She wasn't really wholly to blame. Just new red, or green, whatever jealousy makes you see, and did it in a sudden fit of revenge—then instantly regretted it." Her voice was smooth, soft, convincingly sympathetic.

Peter was silent for awhile. Finally, he asked in a hollow voice, "But what did she come to you about?"

"Told me that she had persuaded you to enter the other group in the exhibit and begged me to try to influence Uncle John and the committee in your favor."

He sat forward suddenly with a groan. "Is that why I—?"

She shook her head with a slow smile. "On my honor—no, Peter. I went to see him, but his vote already was cast for you and I hadn't a thing to do with it. As for his influencing the committee, I knew that was impossible and never suggested such a thing. It would have hurt his pride to allow him to think that I would venture to persuade him. Fortunately, it turned out all right for you. It was obvious that Uncle John was not the only one who voted for your piece, but it happened that his vote was the deciding factor. You won by a single vote."

He smoked in silence again, and she was wise enough not to intrude there into those hurt, bewildered thoughts which she knew were struggling within him. After awhile, she reached over and touched his hand lightly.

"I'm sorry, I shouldn't have mentioned it, but I have felt so sorry for Camilla all this time and I think about it often. She must be very madly in love with you to have done a thing like that."

"Mad enough," he exclaimed with vehement confusion, "but that can't be love! How could anyone be cruel to the one you loved?"

She hesitated then, "I'm sure I couldn't, but there are all kinds of love, you know. Camilla is so emotional that she expresses everything she feels in action. But there is also deep, quiet, steadfast love."

"How do you know so much about it?" he asked coldly.

She drew a quick breath, sighed. "Ah, that is another story that I—couldn't tell you, Peter."

"You have been — hurt, too?" gently.

"Not—by love. But what is one to do when there is no love with which to be hurt?"

She hesitated a moment. "Then you are in love with some man who doesn't—reciprocate?"

She nodded silently, her head resting against the back of the chair and her half-open eyes watching him covertly.

"I'd say he was all kinds of a sap not to wake up and find himself," Peter declared forcefully, then sighed deeply. "Gosh, this love business is a wild, untamed thing, anyway. Why do people select their life partners by impulse and emotion instead of by practical reasoning as we venture into any other kind of business?"

"Because there is no getting away from love, I guess," pensively.

"Well, what is it, then? How do we recognize it when we do find it? Why isn't it complete for us?"

"Why, Peter, you talk as if you never had been in love!"

"Why?" tersely.

"Because you would know the answers to all these questions."

Silence. Then "Well, I don't." He could not escape from that strangling sensation which Avis' revelation about Camilla had given him. He thought that she, his precious Camilla, would so betray and humiliate him at the very climax of his ambitious efforts tortured him like the closing efforts tortured him like the closing of a garrote around his neck. He might have doubted her guilt, had Avis not told him so simply and as if unaware that she was betraying the other's confidence in her. No, it was true enough; but, the more he revolved the thing in his mind, the more confused and hurt and angry he became.

He brooded in silence for awhile, into which Avis did not intrude. Finally, he arose impatiently as if the inertia of sitting quietly was no longer to be endured. "Should you like to go in?" he asked tonelessly. "I'm not much of a companion this evening. This thing has got me—about Camilla. I hope you understand that I'm not—"

"Of course," she interrupted kindly, "I'm only so sorry that I mentioned it, Peter."

"I'm glad mighty glad to know it," he contradicted. "More than anything else, I hate deceit. It helps a lot to know just how things stand."

"Well, don't you do anything rash —like jumping overboard."

"Not on your life I think I have discovered one more thing tonight—that love isn't worth all the suffering we take with it."

"Oh, Peter, dear don't be cynical," Avis pleaded

"I'm not. Only being sensible"

She laughed softly "You are much too romantic to renounce love. Get a hold of yourself, please. Good night, Peter."

He smiled down at her with a new tenderness. "Good night, little pal."

She carried away with her the light in his eyes, hugging it to her heart; reminded the vehemence of his renunciation of love. That would do for a beginning, she exulted. If she could take him along that far toward her goal within four days, what might she not accomplish in a week? By that time, she could make him wonder what he ever saw that was attractive about Camilla. She would make herself indispensable to his life.

Camilla resolutely followed the routine of her days and thanked the benevolence of blessed, fatiguing mind-occupying work. If two days could be so interminable and wretched, what of the years of her future? She tried to convince herself that as time passed, she would become accustomed to Peter's absence and would be happier. But she did not want time and absence to dull her need of Peter if so, what then? She would have nothing left. Nothing for which to live and hope and work. Life then would be just a monotonous existence, without aim or reason or pleasure.

And what if Peter, immersed in his work, involved in his new interests discovered that his longing for her was dulled? Protest beat with broken wings within her breast.

Resolutely, she put her thoughts aside and summoned her will to concentrate upon the fictional lives of her characters. She was working at the office, but nowhere could she prevent her thoughts of Peter entering.

Her secretary announced a gentleman to see her. "He said it was urgent, but would not give his name," Miss Scott explained.

Camilla frowned with annoyance. "Probably another high-class beggar who got in with his air of impudence. This radio publicity makes me a good target for such people. I'll see him for a minute."

Eloquent Plea Of Indian

Magistrate Dismisses Case Of Breach Of Game Laws

"Canada is our country; God gave us mouths to eat and put game in the country for us to live on. It is the only way we have of getting a living. You white men have an education and a job to live by, but we have no other way," John O'Chee, Chippewa Indian chief, explained to Magistrate R. E. Thorber at Edson, Alta., when charged with illegal possession of big game carcasses. The magistrate dismissed the case.

Evidence disclosed that in July a party of 40 Chippewa Indians moved from the Rocky Mountain House district to Marlboro and began to kill moose and deer. Alarmed lest game should be exterminated through a general slaughter, citizens complained.

The magistrate, in announcing his decision, said that unless he had instructions from the attorney-general's department he could not see his way clear to convict the full-blooded, non-treaty Indians who do not live on reserves, as long as they were not making a wholesale slaughter.

He took the stand that the Indians knew of no other way of making a living and unless the government was prepared to look after them, he was not prepared to register a conviction.

A sister of the accused chief, who asked if she could address the court after evidence was taken, and who received permission to do so, described eloquently the experiences of her tribe and how royalty they had been to the white people in times of trouble. She claimed on one occasion when the Prince of Wales was visiting in their district His Royal Highness had told them that they could hunt for a living. Her address lasted 45 minutes, during which she made a stirring plea for her brother, pointing out that they had a mother 105 years old to take care of.

On dismissing the case, the magistrate warned the chief that he must endeavor to obey the laws of the land as far as possible. Chief O'Cee agreed readily and shook hands with the magistrate

Proud Of Its Record

Tree In Nova Scotia 170 Years Old Still Bearing Apples

George H. Whiteman believes he has on his farm at Lawrencetown, Nova Scotia, the oldest apple-bearing tree in the Annapolis valley. It is 170 years old and in its life-time has produced 600 barrels of excellent fruit.

The seed for the leafy giant came up with the Whiteman family from Newington in 1762. It was planted by Mr. Whiteman's great-grandfather. Long years ago the seedling tree was grafted with the Nonpareil variety

Some seasons it produced 12 barrels of marketable apples and while orchardists of Canada's great orchard country were bemoaning the fact that the last severe winter affected many of their trees, Mr. Whiteman's "old faithful" blossomed forth livelier than ever

Ancient Doll Goes Modern

Prized Possession Of Ontario Child is 134 Years Old

Prized possession of a little Kitchener, Ontario, girl is a wooden doll said to be 134 years old, handed down by her great-great-grandmother, in Germany from generation to generation.

Brought to Canada in a wooden chest whose date of manufacture was indicated as 1800, the doll is believed to have been made the same year. The body is wood, with hinges fastened with screw nails for joints. The head, made of a substance resembling plaster of paris, is solid and fastened to the body with screws.

Most witness to the triumphs of Napoleonic hosts, to the rise and fall of monarchs and empires, the doll by no means preserves the fashions of the dying years of the 18th century. Until the present owner obtained the doll from her mother, who in turn received it from her mother. "Praiein Gretchen" wore a cretonne gown made with a bustle and an old-fashioned bonnet to match. Now, however, she flaunts the acme of twentieth century modishness.

THE RHYMING OPTIMIST

— By Aline Michaelis —

TWO BIRDS

Two birds flying a-wing to wing
High above the plain,
Sail through autumn's blossoming
Into night and rain.

Vast pursuing shadows rise
From earth's darkening face;
Swiftly, through the failing skies
Just a sentence.
Two birds heed not of the voice
Of the wind of night,
Flying wing to wing rejoice
In their silent flight.

Though they lose the sun's last spark
And no comrades sing,
Gaily still they face the dark,
... wing to wing.

What is my next duty? What is the thing that lies nearest to me? That belongs to your every-day history. No one can answer that question but yourself. Your next duty is to determine just what your next duty is. There may be something you neglect, or something you know you ought to do. You would know your duty if you thought in earnest about it and were not ambitious of great things. If it is something commonplace that will make life dreary it will soon lead you to something more. Your duty will commence to comfort you at once, and will at length open the unknown fountain of life in your heart G MacDonald

WILDMERE WINKS

Hanby Martin, Triangle, had a very narrow escape from being seriously hurt by lightning on Monday, Aug. 20. When he was in the barn a bolt of lightning struck the fence and knocked the gate away from him, bumbing two fingers of his left hand. These remained still for two hours. He had his hand on the wood of the gate at the time which was fortunate; had he had had the metal fork in his hand he would have been much worse. It was a chess concern call, just the same.

Mrs. Jim Gordon had a personally surprised on Thursday last, when one of our popular young ladies, in the person of Miss Ethel Mary Gordon became the bride of Mr. John Marfleet of Vermilion. Rev. Mr. Boyd tied the nuptial knot. The happy couple are at present visiting at the bride's parents. Everyone joins with the writer in wishing them every happiness for a long happily wedded life. The couple will have to make it a couple of showers now as both Mrs. C. Cruiksey and Mrs. J. Marfleet are willing workers in our club and we only hope that they continue to reside in the district.

Congratulations to Mr. and Mrs. W Steele, Bleasweed, on the birth of a son at the Vermilion municipal hospital Thursday, August 23rd. We are glad to hear that both mother and son are doing well.

Mrs. Burchell returned in our district on Saturday afternoon from the Vermilion hospital where he has been a patient for some time. She is glad to be at present stopping with Mr and Mrs. T. Riley until he gets his strength back.

Mr. John Isley, Triangle, was the first to get started threshing in our parts. He threshed a couple of loads on Saturday last. From what we hear it is not of a very good grade yet. Here's hoping it improves with a little more time.

Jimmie Wallington has been a very busy man lately working on binders for the district. We hear that the implement companies should pay you wages Jimmie, for hauling out repairs. The busy stand of wheat is hard on the aged binders this year.

We be the pleasure on Saturday of meeting Arthur Hughes, the bride and groom, Mr. and Mrs Chester Kennedy Wildmere are extended for a long life of wedded bliss.

Just two more Sundays of church and then Mr Brown will be leaving us. We will surely miss church; the summer has gone all too quickly this year.

Miss Violet Dolford of Bonnyville has returned to her home from Bleasweed where she was visiting for a couple of days.

Mrs Thomas Cairns has her friend Mrs. Kinnear and two sons from Melville, Sask., visiting her for a couple of weeks. On Sunday last they visited at the Howard and Smith houses.

Ground has already re-opened at Bleasweed with Miss M. Gibson as teacher. Wildmere opens on Monday.

Hontage Norman, governor of the Bank of England, whose evasive tactics have given newspaper men some strenuous times in the past few years, actually posed for a photograph aboard Canadian Pacific liner Duchess of Bedford on his return to England recently. "Wait till I get my hat on straight," was his comment to the astonished and gratified photographers.

Railway building is by no means at an end in Canada, E. W. Beatty, K.C., chairman of the board of the Canadian Pacific Railway stated recently following an extended business trip through Western Ontario. "Completion of our development will probably mean construction of more railway mileage to capture a bag of PROFIT," he declared.

EXPORT OF HAY AND STRAW IS UNDER LICENSE

Ottawa.—Confronted with a serious shortage of fodder crops in sections of Canada, the government has utilized powers conferred by the new Marketing Act to license the export of hay and straw. An order-in-council passed under the act required exporters of either hay or straw to obtain licenses for shipments abroad. It also makes transportation companies see that shipments outside Canada are covered by such licenses.

A statement issued from the prime minister's office explained that drought and heat had so affected the Canadian hay and clover crops in sections of Canada that an acute lack of available cattle feed was being felt. Both Canada and the United States had found it necessary to take steps to conserve cattle feed. Where surplus areas in Canada were adjacent to deficit areas in the United States, and vice versa, it was intimated, exchanges could be arranged for moving feed across the line.

A license will be required for each export shipment, and it may be revoked by the governor-in-council if the licensee fails to comply with any of the terms and conditions imposed.

"The prolonged drought and heat that have afflicted large areas in Canada and the United States have compelled the two governments to take immediate action to relieve the acute lack of suitable cattle feed that is now apparent and to prevent speculators from exploiting the consumers and producers of these crops," the statement says. "The Canadian hay and clover crop, which in the four years 1926-29 averaged over 13,000,000 tons, had fallen to 11,433,000 in 1933; and, for the current year, it is estimated at 9,864,000 tons. The decline in total production is, of course, unequally distributed across the country, being most pronounced in Saskatchewan and southern Alberta.

"It is the policy of the government to see that out of the total crop of fodder crops as exist in accessible parts of Canada, should be made available in the first instance for the relief of conditions in the deficit areas. The action that has been taken under the Marketing Act is designed to facilitate this policy by regulating, under license, exports of these essential feed stuffs."

Fair Wage Act

B.C. Says Dismissal Where Minimum Wage Law Becomes Effective

Victoria.—Many British Columbia firms will be obliged to discharge all but several years' experience in their work, have received only $5 or $6 per week but have now been discharged by their employers because of the province's new mercantile minimum wage of $12.78 per week for such labor, Hon. George S. Pearson, minister of labor, reported.

The minister publicly requested all youths so discharged to communicate with him and he said he had received reports from more than 80. In turn, he has written to the firms involved and has asked them to reconsider the dismissals, stating that they are big enough to take part in reconstruction of the wage system in the mercantile industry without hurting themselves.

"This is a thing which needs cooperative effort," he said.

"We have no desire to prevent any firm from doing business and we want to feel that everybody is working together to raise the wage standard back to a level permitting decent living conditions."

Twenty per cent. of the 40 youths who submitted their cases were with one firm, the minister said.

Want Regulations Altered

Cattle Shippers Cannot Afford Stop-over On Hay Route

Prince Albert.—Immediate alteration in regulations that at present interrupt the direct shipment of cattle to Churchill was urged here by leading livestock producers of Saskatchewan and Alberta.

W. E. Cutt, manager, of the Saskatchewan Livestock Pool, and Jack Stevenson, manager of Western Beef Growers, Calgary, were emphatic in declaring Churchill would suffer unless arrangements which have been in force at Hudson Bay Junction for feeding are changed.

"Shippers cannot afford stop-over charges of only 700 miles," Mr. Cutt stated. Direct runs of 40 hours were not uncommon in the overland route from Calgary to Montreal, he said, and travelling time to the northern port was only 36 hours, including a stop of more than an hour at Melfort.

They were enthusiastic over the potentialities of the new northern outlet if regulations be changed, and declared treatment at the hands of officials was also of the best.

Regulate Hay Exports

Shortage Of Hay And Straw In West May Affect Livestock Industry

Ottawa.—Because of the shortage of hay and straw in many parts of Canada, particularly the West, the government will take steps to limit late exports by license, it was learned here unofficially.

Reports in the prairie provinces, and in the Maritimes to a lesser extent, is pressing, according to representations to the government. Regulation of these exports by licensing would be to protect the farmers from speculators.

Burnt-out areas in the United States are badly in need of hay and the country certainly is taking off the $8 a ton duty for the entry of Canadian hay.

Road To Jasper

Work On Edmonton To Jasper Highway To Be Started Soon

Edmonton.—Completion of gravelling the Edmonton-Jasper highway by the provincial government will start at an early date and operations will commence on the stretches of the road immediately east of Jasper national park boundaries and west of Edmonton, it was announced by Hon. J. J. MacLean, minister of public works, reported on his return from an inspection trip over the highway. When completed this will give an all-weather road between Edmonton and Jasper. Work is being undertaken following an announcement of a federal loan of $125,000 for the purpose.

Returned For Revision

Plans For Proposed Bridge At Vancouver Need Work

Ottawa.—Plans for the proposed first narrows bridge at the entrance of Vancouver harbor have been sent back to the designers with a request the location of certain piers be changed so as to provide for a vaster main span. This action was taken after a sub-committee of the cabinet had listened to the views of engineers in the matter of the width and height of the main span of the proposed bridge.

RELIEF COSTS ARE SAID TO BE ON THE DECLINE

Montreal.—The number of people in Canada receiving direct relief at the end of July showed a considerable decline, the total being 890,098, says the Montreal Gazette in a despatch from its Ottawa correspondent.

The despatch continues:

"This total was divided amongst the nine provinces as follows: Ontario, 300,000; Quebec, 285,000; Saskatchewan, 100,000; Nova Scotia, 50,000; New Brunswick, 9,100; Prince Edward Island, 588.

Important decreases in the number on relief were shown in the provinces of British Columbia, Alberta, and Manitoba, while Saskatchewan, due to the desperate conditions created by the general depression, showed an increase. The decline in British Columbia is attributable largely to the industrial recovery displayed there both mining and lumbering showing notable advances. A slight improvement in general conditions and the absorption of many men by harvesting operations explains the drop in the number of relief recipients in Alberta and Manitoba.

In May, 1932, the total number of persons receiving relief in British Columbia was 64,362. In March 1933, it reached the peak figure of 109,000, or nearly 16 per cent. of the total population. Six months later it dropped back to 80,885, but it jumped up to 105,000 in April of the present year. By the end of July it had fallen again to 88,100

Saskatchewan showed a decline in May 1932, was 156,738, but for some reason it fell to 49,000 in September of that year, and then jumped to 117,000 in March, 1933. These same months' figures for Alberta were 56,000

McIntyre, Calgary; Calgary Dental Society, Calgary.

The funeral was jointly conducted by J. Waring of Vermilion and Wilson Bros., Drumheller.

Mrs. N M Coombe, who lives three miles north west of Islay, has four crab apple trees from which she will gather some eight pails of fine well developed crabs this season. A branch bearing eight apples was handed in to the Standard office this week and the samples it bore compared very favorably with the eastern Siberian crab both in appearance and flavor. They are very hard and juicy.

Mr. C. Johnson, a new member of the high school staff, has arrived in town.

The reduction in mill rate this year was made for the taxpayer's benefit on the assumption of the councillors that such taxpayer would do his share in making payments. Have you done your share? If not, please do so by September First. 18c

WEDDING BELLS

KENNEDY—HILLABY

A very pretty wedding took place on Saturday, August 25th at 5 o'clock p.m. in the United church manse when Anna May, elder daughter of Mr and Mrs P C Hillaby of Islay, land became the bride of Robert Chester Kennedy, son of J. L. Kennedy, Lloydminster, Alta

The bride was lovely in matron gown with white accessories and carried a bouquet of sweet peas, asters and maiden hair fern. Her attendants were Miss Gladys Larson, in pale blue floral georgette and Miss Hilda Kennedy, in blue crepe.

The bridegroom was attended by his brother Mr Russell Kenney and cousin, Mr Gordon Larson.

Mrs. Fay Larson served a delicious turkey dinner to twenty-five guests, relatives to the happy couple after the ceremony, the large bride's cake making a beautiful centre piece for the table. The groom thanked his best and bestmen in a few well chosen words.

A host of friends extend heartiest good wishes to the bride and groom, who will make their home south of Vermilion for the present

609 WILL TAKE THE NORMAL SCHOOL COURSES

Normal schools in Calgary and Camrose open for the fall and winter term Wednesday. Student registration will be considerably larger than last year, a total of 609 cards of admission having been issued to applicants, as compared with 495 a year ago.

The Calgary normal will have 361 of this number and Camrose 248. It is anticipated, however, that there will be, as usual, some shrinkage in the actual attendance, which always falls short of the applications.

As previously announced by the department of education, the Edmonton normal school remains closed for the coming year.

Nearly 100 students enrolled at the High School opening day; the attendance is expected to reach 115 a little later. The public schools started off with a registration of 252.

FIRST THRESHING IN DISTRICT DONE ON W. E. MACKENZIE FARM

Wheat Grades No. 1

The Standard wasn't quite right last week when it reported that no threshing to amount to much had been done. 4th Tuesday of last week August 28th, W. E. Mackenzie had threshed out on his farm west of town, S.W. 2-54-6 a large field of Edward wheat. The yield proved to be an excellent grade, being awarded No. 1 at the Pool elevator

GROWS VERMILION'S FIRST PLUM

Miss Grace Bury has what the Standard believes to be the first plum grown in the Vermilion district. This is a lone plum, perfect in every way but a trifle small in size. It was grown on a tree in the garden in Parkview. Miss Bury has four plum trees in the garden and this is the first year that it was possible for them to bear fruit, being now in their fourth season. Unfortunately this season a frost nipped the trees when they were in full bloom. The activity of the trees will be watched with interest next summer.

An interesting feature was an address by Rev. Father MacDonald outlined an educational movement that is now being established in the whole of Canada and which will be known as the Scottish Standing Seats in the West as well as in the East. As the statement [illegible] the Scottish societies in Canada are interested in the movement and will participate very largely in the undertaking. It is also hoped that their efforts already so heightened will be broadened from his letter and will [illegible] of his visit.

Soviet Claims Scouted

Claims from Moscow that Russia had usurped second place among the world's gold producing countries, superseding Canada, has been received with almost universal scepticism. Apparently, the statement has been interpreted as just another of those propagandasm with which Soviet authorities key their nationals to further sacrifices, but which singularly fail to impress the outside world.

During progress of the last five year plan, Moscow deluged the world with claims of amazing achievement, which, now that the orders of the period have subsided, are being assessed at their true worth. There is no gainsaying the great advances made in certain industries, particularly the so-called heavy industries under the program initiated by Lenin and carried into effect by Stalin. In some instances these have been spectacular, but round them in the rub seldom have been quite as magnificent or outstanding as the claims made concerning them.

Several of the leading magazines and newspapers of Britain and America are devoting considerable space to reviewing the Soviet industrial and agricultural achievement. These have been equitable, unprejudiced and, probably based upon the true facts for truth and not antagonistic propaganda is what the public needs these days. The claims made on behalf of socialized endeavor by proponents of Socialism of the Russian variety, apparently do not stand the test of statistical investigation. Alan Monkhouse, one of the British engineers merticed for propagnda purposes in the notorious sabotage trials of a couple of years ago, in a book of his experiences in Russia is surprisingly sympathetic to the Soviet planning scheme in the light of the circumstances preceding his deportation. Paying some attention to the statistical record of industrial achievement he shows that the Soviet government's own figures in specialized lines such as house building do not compare favorably with similar achievements in capitalistic and individualistic England, recorded at the same time in the several particulars in which Soviet authorities claimed to have out-distanced their depression and collapsing capitalistic contemporaries, which are not substantiated by the facts.

Apparently, the same is true of the gold production, backed by Russia threats that, having overtaken Canada they will shortly overtake and pass South Africa in production of the yellow metal. In this connection, mining authorities maintain that, while undoubtedly Russia has been creeping up in production, it has not yet supplanted Canada as ranking second in production of newly mined gold. It is claimed, it was withdrawn from hoarding and, therefore, it is old gold reclaimed.

South Africans scoff at what they term a bombastic claim, and have no fear of losing premier place among the world's gold producers. This contention is backed by Dr. F. S. Malan, formerly a famous Russian geologist and now a fugitive from the Bolsheviks. His statement, based on actual knowledge of the various Russian goldfields and not upon political bias, is to the effect that nowhere in Russia do gold-laden bodies occur with that regularity and in the volume seen on the Rand in South Africa. "If Russian gold fields ever reach the stage of providing competition for South Africa it will be at tremendous cost of time and labor of transportation," he concludes.

Salvaging Gold From Chimney

U.S. Army Office Reclaims It From The Soot

Since the U.S. government devaluated the dollar, almost doubling the dollar value of every scrap of gold the Assay office in New York has been using every conceivable precaution in its melting room to conserve the metal. The Assay Office is housed in a relatively new building, strong and severe, at the corner of Old Slip and South Street. One of its important installations is called a "dust precipitator in reality a series of metal sleeves, each plumbed by a chain. Alternating currents run through the chains and the sleeves and, as smoke passes up the chimney, the most particles, including minute quantities of gold, are dashed from the air by this electric barrage. And fall to the bottom of the flue. The precious residue is collected once or twice a year by men who go into the heats of the chimney and sweep it out. The Assay Office realizes $10 000 to $15 000 on the soot and gold reclaimed from chimney mat. Even the dust on the walls is collected for gold.

Drugs in Garden Flowers

Many Are Valuable For Something Apart From Beauty

Most people realize that at least one flower whose value to mankind is not to be estimated simply in terms of beauty. The bonus of the stately foxglove yield the drug digitalis, which still has no superior as a cure for heart disease of the weak pump. The crocus is the basis of a preparation for gout sufferers, and the lobelia possesses good service as a balm for whooping cough. Then what a stress is the monkshood! Its attractive blue flowers conceal a deadly poison, accurate, one-sixteenth of a grain of which will kill a man But like other garden drugs, this virulent member, scientifically controlled, is invaluable in the treatment of fevers and acute neuralgia.

Money For National Parks

One Million Dollars Has Been Authorized For This Purpose

Expenditures totalling more than $1 600 000 for projects in Canada's national parks have been authorized by the Dominion government, with individual amounts ranging from $2 000 to $175,000, but embracing projects in practically all of Canada's western park playgrounds It is proposed that some of the work will be done by contract and the rest day labor

Easy To Remember

The debate over "I" and "me" goes on unabagly, but there is one thing that we ought to stop. It is the phrase "between you and I." If the people who use it would reverse the pronouns and say "between I and you," they might learn to use the correct form, but every day we hear from the most unexpected sources the heart-rending "between you and I." The correct form, of course is "between you and me"

Was In Two Rebellions

Alberta Veteran Carried Despatches For General Strange

In Alberta 50 years ago, when highwaymen were just fading from the western frontier with the coming of the first Northwest Mounted Police, and when Indians were still on the warpath often, Charles Ingram arrove the mail stage. Now 69 and retired, he lives at Edmonton.

Native of the province, he saw two rebellions at first hand. Son of the chief factor of the Hudson's Bay Co., he was a lad of eight and lived a few miles below Fort Garry (later Winnipeg) in the troublous days of the first Red River rebellion. He can recall seeing the soldiers coming up the Red river As a youth of 20, when the mails were stopped by the Big Bear hatchewan rebellion of 1885, he went on the courier line, carrying dispatches for General Strange's Alberta field force. He made several trips on horseback between Saddle Lake and Fort Pitt.

His predecessor on the mail job, Peter Campbell, was on the driver's seat when the Calgary coach was held up by the bandit spotted by highwaymen in the only case of its kind in this part of the west.

The mail was carried by coach that was in use in 1891 but a humber wagon with an open centre for packages replaced it a short time before the race that accommodated six passengers. An average of 40 miles of trail was covered each day by the plodding team and numerous creeks and streams were forced on route.

Proposed Tax On Noise

Idea Of British Minister Of Transport May Save Nerves

A tax on noise is proposed to save the nerves of the people of the United Kingdom. It is suggested that taxation may succeed where all appeals have failed in the matter of unnecessary noise, and the suggestion that a tax was made in a letter from Leslie Hore-Belisha, minister of transport, which was read at a conference of the Anti-Noise League at Oxford.

"All new heavy motor cars put on the road since January, 1935, have to be fitted with pneumatic tires," he wrote, "and the scales of taxation have been adjusted so as to give a strong incentive to people to substitute pneumatic tires on existing vehicles. The heavy vehicle on solid tires which caused the greatest amount of noise in the past is rapidly disappearing

"Regulations also forbid the use of motor vehicles and trailers which have caused excessive noise and the fitting of an effective silencer to each exhaust pipe.

"The road traffic bill proposes further to prohibit the use of the horn in prescribed hours and zones of silence." Mr. Hore-Belisha stated that in order to gain experience as to what really causes noise the ministry has invoked the best scientific assistance. He expressed the hope that the motor manufacturing industry will co-operate with the government and help to design a silencer that is a remedy for present unnecessary and harmful noise

Rebuilding Viking Hall

Oak Timbers Intact After Being Submerged Thousand Years

A Viking hall has been "reconstructed" at Danang, after one thousand years Workmen engaged in digging a ditch at Olvo found the remains of the hall only five feet beneath the surface of the ground. Heavy oak planks of which the hall was originally built had defied the ravages of time in remarkably that it has been possible to reconstruct the vessel in its entirety The hall is thirty feet long, with pieces of eighteen centimes Iron nails had been used in the making, as well as wooden pegs. Parts of the glass unless, with the original roofarch, have survived, and much of the mass with which the seams were packed to make them water-tight is still in place

Talk About Economy

Two Towns In Bulgaria Have Everything Else Broken

There is a legend current in the picturesque little Balkan town of Panaghurishte that when God once was bestowing his gifts, he allotted them—Summerset is the latter—with two towns—Oakmere and Panaghurishte, alternating it more generously on the latter because of his weird and unpronounceable name.

On that account the parsimoniousness of other towns has become proverbial, and they are dire rivals in that respect to this day.

In both localities men do not shave their beards, being too expensive a matter, but stage them by various devices which makes the beard stay unshaved. In both towns families make use of but one spoon or fork, passing either of them around when eating their meals which they argue, saves extra labor, and what is more important, food lasts longer, as each mouthful is thus swallowed thus must await another turn for a mouthful.

The aged people say that this method of eating prevents one from overeating, save him from indigestion and many other stomach ailments. Are they, nasert, to the use of the tooth brush, razor, knives, and too many dishes.

In both towns hats and shoes are considered a superfluous luxury which may be resorted to only in winter and on holidays. And even on those occasions people often prefer carrying their hats and shoes in their hands to save tear and wear.

Billion Miles Has Objective

Elderly Woman Traveller Expects To Reach Radar Road Record

An interesting old lady who can probably lay good claim to the title of the world's champion traveller is Mrs. Ella G. Munson of East Rockaway, Long Island, who has sailed from Montreal to add the Saguenay district to her list of places visited. Mrs. Munson has travelled close to 700,000 miles and at 73, hopes to reach her total by 1,000,000.

In all her travels, which include 53 trips across the Atlantic and 12 across the Pacific, Mrs. Munson has never encountered a severe storm nor an accident. She has tried almost every known method of transportation, including camels, elephants and rickshaws, but has never yet been to a plane. Only one thing could keep her to fly, she said, and that was an invitation from Col. Charles A. Lindbergh to go up with him.

Mrs. Munson's trips are seldom planned in advance. She stays at home until the urge to travel comes, then she packs her trunks and is off "I can get ready to go around the world in 24 hours," she said.

Mrs. Munson was somewhat at a loss to explain her wanderlust, as her brothers and sisters are all "stay-at-home bodies," but thought she might have inherited it from Benjamin Franklin, an ancestor who in 1842 led a pilgrimage of Mormons to Massachusetts

Loafed The Part

He was a golfer who always played in his oldest clothes. One day he set out for the course, his clubs slung over his shoulder.

Walking down a street he met a woman leaning over her garden gate, eyeing his approach angrily.

"You're very late," she said, sharply, he drew back.

"Late—" echoed the astonished golfer

"Yes, late! You promised to screw my chimneys at eight, and it's past nine o'clock now"

Decline In Cheese Exports

Canada Is Losing Market Of United Kingdom

What has happened to Canada's exports of cheese to the market of the United Kingdom is clearly indicated in a statement of the Bureau of Statistics at Ottawa that during the first six months of the present year our shipments of cheese to that market actually fell to fifth place with only 20,842 cwt. being forwarded across the Atlantic. In contrast with this, New Zealand remained in first place in the British market with 1,316,700, Australia being second with 67,050, the Netherlands third with 61,000 and Italy fourth with 50,928. Two years ago, for the corresponding period, Canada was in third place, ranging behind New Zealand and Holland, and prior to the war Canada's supply of cheese to Great Britain was more than double that of New Zealand.

A further statement of the Bureau reports that during the year 1935 Canada's production of factory cheese experienced a further drop, totalling 111,044,838 pounds, or eight per cent. The total value of the cheese made was $11,113,918, a decrease of two per cent., the average factory price per pound having advanced from 9.44 cents in 1932 to 10.01 cents in 1933. On the other hand, the production of creamery butter in the Dominion during last year—307 pounds, an increase over the preceding year of two per cent.

It is evident that Canada is continuing to lose her grip upon the British cheese market, where once she was supreme, and the statement issued at the present rate it will be only a matter of time before she has been driven from third place by the force of New Zealand's competition.—Brockville Recorder and Times.

CLANDONALD

A meeting of the threshermen of the district was held in the Orange hall, Clandonald, on Saturday, Sept. 1st, with Reg. Spencer, chairman, and George White as secretary. It was decided— after much discussion —to charge 5c for wheat, 3c for barley, 4c for small fields of oats and 5c for larger fields. It was moved by W. J. Masterton that although the price of thrashing be declared as above, the wages should remain $2.00 for men and $1.00 for teams.

We do not think dissatisfaction expressed by local farmers that the price of threshing is based when grain prices are so uncertain. The men in the district who take their teams out in threshing time express the opinion that when grain prices have been raised they should share proportionately in the raise, which would appear to be just plain.

BORN—In the Vermilion municipal hospital, to Mr. and Mrs. Adolph Rountree, a daughter. Attaboy, Art.

We hear that a couple of our more serious bridge addicts broke into the house of one of the players to, they say, search for a foursome recently. We also hear in this connection that Mrs. Chris Kaplin has been looking for the victims of bridgemania with what looks suspiciously like a sling pin up her sleeve. And we had no reason better to think he believes anything but law abiding citizens. However, one never knows.

W. Shirley, the local station agent, is at home for the month. He plans to dig up the lawn, carrots, etc. before re-seeding at any other station; and, dear reader, if you run this way this item was inspired by the one preceding it, you are wrong. Vince did not play bridge, at least, the "Old Man" says he doesn't.

Mr. Charles Nicholls of Castor has been engaged to teach at Moreton No. 2 School. He holds a first class certificate and has had considerable experience. We feel sure that he will get on the good work of the very able Miss McMahon, who had the school last term.

The primary schools are open again and one notices by the time Mrs. Jarvis smilingly wending her way to the small but neat of the village by, we believe, the seventh consecutive term. The Clandonald high school will be open on Monday, Sept. 10th when the 9 built class rooms will be ready for occupation

Mr. A. Chaney has been re-engaged to teach in the Deer Lake school. Tony is very enthusiastic about the way the boys were entertained by the "T" Eaton outfit on the occasion of their visit last week to play baseball.

We suppose that the Island Hiller will feel meek and full of humility this week. We will leave the extent of his meekness when we get the Standard unless "I Ed." soon has the bins pencil.

Mr. Geo. Chalmers in his letter of last week makes two statements, (a) admits a defeat and (b) resorts to sarcastic rhetoric with which he can befriend them). First, that the Executive would be made up of representatives from each team, which is very true, second, that the league started with four teams, which is not quite true. We remember that Mr. Chalmers refers to the present season. If so, why did St. Pats have to go in the summer of a trip to Island Hill early in the season if they were not members of the league? Furthermore, there is at least one motion on the local book seconded by the St. Pats league representative, which would make the St. Pats team official even if the game with Island Hill did not; that would bring the local league up to 5 in pointing out this mistake to Mr. Chalmers' letter we would again remark that all strikes from the league have been at the sole instigation of their respective executive. Mr. Chalmers in secretary treasurer of the league and a letter which is alone the right of the league representatives, and as he points out nothing was done except at the request and with the majority.

Mr. and Mrs. Chris White were visitors to town recently. This is the first time we have seen Chris since the nuptials which united him to the beautiful and graceful lady who is now his wife. They are all set to meet life with its many fortunes both emotionally and sentimally; from all appearances they are going to be very happy and as none to the contrary.

A dance is scheduled for Friday evening in the Orange hall and Mesdames are supplying the music a good time is assured to all.

Readers of this column will remember that we had an election some time ago, to find out where the ratepayers of the M.D. desired to build the municipal office. The result of the ballot was a majority of two votes in favor of having said office in Lawberry. When you went and voted you were wasting your time, as the council has decided after all to build the new office in Clandonald. Congratulations Mr. Wood on the fact that he is about to take up his residence in a real town.

OTTAWA DECIDES TO INVESTIGATE DROUTH PROBLEM

Ottawa.—A party of four permanent government officials, two from the department of finance and two from agriculture, will proceed with the government of Saskatchewan on ways and means to meet the problem of drouth and farm relief.

Cabinet council wrestled with the Saskatchewan situation during two sessions and while no official statement was forthcoming it was learned the government had decided to place experienced men in that province for a period during which they will work with local government officials in an effort to ascertain in what manner assistance may be extended.

So far as could be learned no decision has yet been reached with respect to schemes involving the wholesale migration of farm communities to more favored districts and moves to bind and rejuvenate drifting top-soil by sowing a binding grass, said by botanists.

Even were it possible to find sufficient arable acreage in northern Saskatchewan upon which to locate the 60,000 displaced farmers from the out areas of the south, it would mean at least $20,000,000 expenditure for a country already burdened with financial situation difficult to comprehend.

In addition to the Saskatchewan problem the same situation is said to exist in a lesser degree in the other two prairie provinces. What steps if any, will be taken in the way of reclaiming the dried-out southern wheat fields remain to be decided after experimental work at the end of the department of agriculture have been completed.

Three prairie governments will seek the co-operation of the federal government to find an outlet for 125,000 surplus cattle from the three prairie provinces.

Assistance For B.C.

Ottawa To Advance Funds For Relief Purposes

Victoria.—The Dominion government will assist British Columbia in the financing of direct relief for March 31, 1935, which will amount to approximately $2,800,000 in addition to the $1,500,000 granted from the federal government, John Hart, minister of finance, announced.

Mr. Hart returned here from Ottawa, where he spent several weeks negotiating for financial aid for the province.

Mr. Hart completed arrangements for a loan from the Dominion of $3,000,000 to be obtained in the form of action in New York and also for an advance of $375,000 on account of relief due in the accounts of the last fiscal year.

He also negotiated a loan to the province of $1,000,000 for advances to municipalities unable to carry their share of direct relief.

Mr. Hart stated the Dominion has agreed that, on all the province's indebtedness to the Dominion, the interest rate will be 4½ per cent. instead of 5 per cent., in line with a general fall in interest rates.

The minister said Prime Minister R. B. Bennett had agreed to loan the province $1,800,000 for a public works program as the result of the 40,000 applications made by the T. D. Pattullo for a loan of $5,000,000.

Auction Sale In Toronto Stadium Nets About $87,000

Toronto.—The University of Toronto's stadium, scene of many famous gridiron struggles, was thronged with a crowd of more than 15,000 to witness the Hepburn government's wholesale auction of automobiles used by officials and ministers of the former Henry government.

Besides the sale, 18 cars were withdrawn for use of the department of health, leaving the total number to be sold as 57.

As the former premier's car was hoisted onto an elevated runway, Auctioneer M. Moore of Aylmer, Ont., exhorted the crowd to bid up, saying: "You will be proud to tell your grandchildren you bought the first government car sold at public auction, the car of Premier Henry." There were numerous shouts of "ex-premier."

An exp naive, but six year-old car in which Premier Mitchell F. Hepburn used to ride, was sold for $600. It has traveled 70,003 miles. A 1930 model of a less expensive car went for $400 It has done 110,307 miles.

GRANT HALL, VICE-PRESIDENT C.P.R. DIES IN MONTREAL

Montreal.—A career intimately associated with the opening up of Western Canada was ended yesterday with the death of Grant Hall, 70, vice-president of the Canadian Pacific Railway.

Mr. Hall was taken to hospital Aug. 11 suffering from a stroke. His condition at first improved and great hope he might recover, but he failed rapidly and his physician warned the end was near.

Although he was a native of Montreal and although he returned here to occupy the high railway post he held at his death, he was widely as the western liner that he considered as an executive was developed.

He began his railroad career with the Canadian Pacific Railway as a fitter. In 1886, he joined the old Interoceanic railway as a general locomotive foreman, stationed at Moncton, N.B.

In 1890 he was again in the service of the Canadian Pacific Railway and held the position of general foreman at McAdam, N.B. Shortly after the turn of the century he went west as general foreman in Winnipeg.

In 1903 he went to Revelstoke, B.C., as master mechanic, then returned to Montreal as assistant superintendent of rolling stock, eastern division.

In 1904 he became superintendent of motive power, western lines, and in 1906 was made superintendent of motive power for the company.

From 1911 to 1912 he was the company's assistant general manager and in 1913 became general manager for western lines at Winnipeg. Two years later he was made vice-president and general manager at Winnipeg.

The position he held at his death, vice-president with jurisdiction over all lines, was his since 1918.

He was credited with having a thorough knowledge of all railroad problems, and was noted for his ability to avoid friction of all kinds and was known as a hard worker.

Mr Hall held the affection of his men and was frequently chosen by the company's representative in arbitrating with the railroad unions

He was born here Nov. 7, 1863. He married Mary E. Haley and had a son, William Hall, and a daughter, Madeleine Hall. He was educated at Bishop's college, Lennoxville, Que., and entered railroad work shortly after.

He was a member of several clubs including the Manitoba club Winnipeg, and Toronto club, Vancouver and the Rideau club, Ottawa

Billions For War

Fabulous Sums Spent In Europe For Armaments

London Confident the "eventual war" will be fought at high speed, the world is groaning fast iron and steel to do the job.

While London and Paris army men tended to differ with the opinion Italian military authorities expressed to the effect that trench warfare was obsolete, Great Britain and France nevertheless went forward with fully as efforts to speed up improvement of troops.

The League of Nations' armament yearbook published at Geneva estimated that the world spent between $3,471,000,000 and $1,390,000,000 gold for armaments in 1933.

A great part of this, army men agreed, went for tanks, aircraft and other fast fighting machines designed to wage war at maximum velocity.

While willing to admit the speed of highly mechanized modern armies would greatly affect the old stalemate of trench warfare, French military leaders said they still believed trenches would continue to play an important part in warfare and held to their theory the infantry is still the backbone of an army.

The French army did not trust transportation of troops by aeroplanes in air manoeuvres.

Great Britain's conviction that another war in Europe would be more open led to the creation this summer of the first permanent tank brigade.

Cheap Television Sets

New System Developed Promises Sets At Low Cost

A new system invented by Mr R. W. Hughes, of Plymouth, England may result soon in the production of cheap television sets for all

Mr Hughes said he thought a television receiver, built with light source and amplifier, could be made produced to sell at £10 or less

With his somewhat crudely-constructed apparatus, Mr Hughes is able to project a 100-line picture on a screen two feet square

A system of vibrating mirrors causes a small but instant spot of light to travel over the screen and form the image

Mr Hughes is also developing an apparatus which, he claims, overcomes the problem of persistence of vision—one of the chief difficulties of television and also holds the picture steady for considerable periods

Firms in this country as well as in Germany and the United States have been approached in the meantime and, it is said, that successful negotiations have been concluded with a British company

Mr Hughes has been working for nearly two years on his new apparatus and has built a special transmitter to test his receiving apparatus at any time.

The White Sea Canal

Has Provided Leningrad With Cheaper Means Of Transport

One of the most revolutionary accomplishments of the Soviet Union is the construction of the White Sea Canal connecting the Baltic and the White Sea Heretofore Russia had two water routes leading to Europe one by way of the Black Sea, the other by way of the Baltic and both could be blockaded

Now however, Leningrad can no longer be shut off from the outer world by a blockade of the Baltic, for ships of commerce or war can make their way northward by the new canal to the White Sea and sail around Sweden and Norway. Not only will Leningrad become more important, but a district rich in phosphates, iron ore and lumber will be able to ship its products far more economically than ever before

Your Handwriting Reveals Your Character!

By LAWRENCE HIMBERT
(Grapho-Analyst)

(All Rights Reserved)

Editor's Note: This is the first of a series of fascinating articles on this very interesting subject of Character Reading from Handwriting. The author, a well-known handwriting expert, has an interesting announcement to make following this article.)

There is always something thrilling in the mysterious. For thousands of years, people have paid money to fortune-tellers in return for a glimpse — sometimes accurate, if flashy; and sometimes amazingly prophetic!—of the Future. Down through the ages, people have grasped for an opportunity of tearing aside the veil hiding To-morrow from To-day. There will always be a thrill of the mystical or occult in these forecastings of the Future.

The astrologist who looks at the stars, and predicts your future from them; the soothsayer who peers into the globe and tells your fortune; the palmist who scrutinises the hand for the tell-tale lines it shows; the phrenologist who examines the head for the revelations it discloses, down to the ever-popular examiner of the tea-cups, who focusses on the tea-leaves — all have their followers who swear by them.

And, marching a path that is built on solid scientific foundation, the Grapho-Analyst is gaining an ever-increasing host who have decided his analyses of character efficiency sensationally accurate.

Grapho-Analysis, the science of character deflnuation from handwriting, what is it really?

Robert Burns, the famous Ayrshire poet, said: "There is no such thing as handwriting, but only handwriting." He was referring to the impulse and motive power come from the brain. Writing is no mere muscular act. If you think it is, try to write backwards, or drawing a head.

The Physician Times Magazine some time ago made the statement that "the nerves at the extreme finger-tips are extraordinarily sensitive, and those of every matter similar to that in the brain, may be found."

Throughout the world, Graphology is gaining recognition as a profession. It is taught in many European universities and colleges the subject is being studied as a regular part of the curriculum. In the everyday affairs of life it is finding increasing application.

Business men, bankers and doctors are using it in supplement their own specialized knowledge. Indeed, many of the largest business houses obtain ratings in the world submit to graphoanalysis the handwriting of applicants for important positions; it is being used almost more frequently in criminal and civil courts, and even lovers, hesitating before stepping off the brink of matrimony, consult the Grapho-Analyst for an analysis of the handwriting of their intended bride or bridegroom.

Do you want a personal analysis of your handwriting? Do you want to analyze the handwriting of friends who tells? A character analysis may open the doors of opportunity to you, and enrich your life. Henceforth, I am with its revelations of character and talents. HEBREWS LEADS HIS PEOPLE BACK TO GOD

Golden text: "God is gracious and merciful." II. Chronicles 30:9.

Lesson: II. Chronicles chapter 30. Devotional Reading: Psalm 73:1-8.

Explanations And Comments

Ritual Was Made for Man and Not Man for Ritual, verses 24. "Every thing requiring form is elastic in the interests of the soul." Nisan, the first month of the year, corresponding to our month of April, was the regular time for keeping the Passover, but in the days of Hezekiah it could not be kept at that time, because a sufficient number of the priests had not sanctified themselves (undergone certain washings, abstinence and forms), nor had the people assembled at Jerusalem, owing to the fact that the temple was not cleansed until the seventh day of Nisan, and the fourteenth day was the time for beginning the Passover. Accordingly, the king had taken counsel, and the princes, and all the assembly in Jerusalem, to keep the Passover in the second month. The law (Numbers 9:10, 11) provided for this, and precedents were presented from observing the Passover at the regular time to refer to it in the second month and the thing was right in the eyes of all. Until the coming of Christ, Charles Reynolds Brown contrasts Hezekiah's broadminded action with the narrow scruples of those chief priests and scribes who, when Jesus healed, put putting Jesus Christ to death upon the cross at another feast of the Passover, and who would not venture into Pilate's judgment hall lest they defile and should suffer defilement and make them unfit to eat the sacred feast of the Passover which Christ.

The Royal Proclamation to Judah and Israel, verses 1 and 15. So a decree was issued for every one, from Dan to Beer-sheba, to come to Jerusalem and keep the Passover. The proclamation phrase for the length of the land was "from Dan to Beer-sheba"; the chronicler, however, in writing the history of Judah naturally mentions the southern city first and then the north. The word "posts" (2 Kings 18 4); Hezekiah would re-establish the courier service (see Esther Exodus 12:6. Local sanctuaries had been established throughout Israel (2 Kings 18 4); Hezekiah would re-establish the central sanctuary at the temple. so he wrote letters to all Israel and Judah and sent them throughout the land by the hands of the couriers. His message was: "Ye children of Israel, turn again unto Jehovah, the God of Abraham, Isaac, and Israel, and he will return to the remnant that had escaped out of the hand of the kings of Assyria. The Assyrian invasion of Samaria had but recently happened and Hezekiah urged those who had not been carried away into captivity not to harden themselves in their stubborn courses. His message was: "Ye children of Israel, turn again unto Jehovah, the God of Abraham, Isaac, and Israel, and he will return to the remnant that had kept heathen their fathers and brethren." "Be not stiffnecked as your fathers were, but yield yourselves unto Jehovah, and enter into his sanctuary," he continued.

Little Journeys In Science

INSECTS

(By Gordon H. Gaunt, M.A.)

Insects are our greatest friends—and our greatest enemies. Man and man and some harm him. One in the history of the earth it appeared as if they might inherit the earth and gain control of it. Scientists have counted 340,000 different kinds of insects that are living to-day. Of this vast number man has domesticated and used the products of the labor of only one—the honeybee.

It is of interest to know that an insect that can crawl through the eye of a needle has a little heart and other organs. Insects reverse man's method and wear their skeletons outside. They are without lungs but air gets to every part of their bodies through a large number of microscopic tubes. This system of obtaining air would be efficient only if the insect were diminutive so that it's doubled whether an insect's blood is ever impure.

With regard to intelligence, many an insect has more brain-power, in proportion to its weight, than have human beings. Fabre, who is a very expert bridge-builder. In Texas are found ants which clear the ground around their nests and build a canopy those that produce such seeds as it wishes to eat. Bees have, in proportion to their weight much more highly developed brains. Human-flies are not noted for their brain power but they are experts with their wings, which they flap 330 times a second; bumblebees, 240; wasps, 110; dragon-flies, 28; and butterflies, 9.

Among the most useful insects is the bee, which supplies honey, and in some countries produces bee bread (bee-glue), and beeswax. Honey-flies are

LONE PLUM YIELDS "FRUITFUL" RESULTS

The news item regarding Vermilion's first plums brought forth a good many results and the Standard has learned that Vermilion and district is a veritable orchard.

Mrs. Ed. Corby picked a large quantity of fully developed plums from a tree growing in the yard of the Kirkwhite home on second street north. The same lady also plucked a big amount of fine crabapples from a tree in the same yard

Dr. W. W. Bell has a plum tree on his property but it proved to be a little too close to the house for when ten fully developed plums were reaching the pointed stage, youngsters forestalled the doctor and reaped the fruit of the plum tree.

MEETING OF VERMILION PRESBYTERY OF UNITED CHURCH, LLOYDMINSTER

Vermilion Presbytery of the United Church of Canada met in Grace Church, Lloydminster, on Tuesday, September 11th, and was duly constituted by the Chairman, Rev. G. D. Armstrong, B.D., of Vegreville. Reports from various committees were received and dealt with; Home Missions, Evangelism and Social Service, Religious Education, Foreign Missions and the Missionary and Maintenance Fund, etc. A result from the conference on a "Survey of Social Conditions" provoked considerable discussion. Entering all spiritual affiliations and concerned solely with the application of the principles of Jesus to modern life, the Presbytery adopted the result as follows:

1—Actual, nationally planned employment

2—National control of credit.

3—Reasonable distribution of purchasing power.

Arrangements were made for a rally of Sunday school workers to be held in Vermilion this fall and an itinerary planned for Rev. J. G. Walker of South China who will visit the Presbytery in October. The students in charge within the bounds of the Presbytery were certified to colleges and arrangements provided for their work during the summer. A gift of fifty dollars as an expression of sympathy and goodwill was sent to Rev. Charles Ireland in his present illness in Toronto. Rev. H. A. Boyd, B.D. of Vermilion was elected chairman of the Presbytery for the ensuing year with Rev. H. J. Bowen as secretary. The Presbytery will meet at Vegreville in February at the call of the chair.

In the evening the Presbytery was entertained to supper in the church hall by the ladies of Grace Church. D. Powell Superintendent of Missions and Dr. Endicott, Secretary of the Missionary and Maintenance Fund were present and gave inspirational addresses. Both men stressed the need for a deeper consecration of the individual life if society is to move forward to better conditions. "The soul of all improvement is the improvement of the soul" it is to this particular that the church is to make her contribution to human progress

What Does Your Handwriting Tell?

By LAWRENCE HERBERT (Grapho-Analyst)

(All Rights Reserved)

Handwriting analysts, to be accurate and helpful to the writer, must be based on lengthy research and a painstaking regard for basic values.

I am repeatedly asked if there is anything magical about character reading from handwriting. So, I am taking this opportunity of again stressing that when I make an analysis of a specimen of hand writing, I am not literally taking a rabbit out of your best hat, in the approved conjuring manner.

It may seem to the lay person that for a Grapho-Analyst to give what turns out to be an accurate analysis from handwriting, is to perform a regular magician's trick a sort of Houdini cum Maskelyne cum Thurston device

Nothing could be further from the truth. It is simply a scientific evaluation of the indications revealed to the practiced grapho-analyatic eye by the handwriting specimen. When you go to a doctor, and he tells you that you have a certain organic ailment, you do not imbue him mentally as a magician. You know that his medical education, his training, his research and his practice, have all coalesced into an ability to diagnose ailments. He himself will not regard himself as infallible, he may, quite possibly, call in extra-medical advice from his confreres

And even if, as on occasion doctors do, he makes a mistake, you do not stigmatise medical men as quacks. Because doctors have not yet found a cure for cancer, you do not hesitate to go to a medical man when you are suffering pain, or feel that you have some physical derangement

Grapho-Analysis, like medicine and surgery, is still searching for hidden truths about its own essence It is making tremendous (although slow) strides But do not damn it because, sometime in the past, you have been dissatisfied with one particular mortal-her's analysis

I have been asked of what practical value is it to people, to have their handwriting analysed. As well might one ask what use is it to a scientist to learn how to become a better salesman; or a business man to know more about his business, or a nurse to gain a better understanding of, and more tolerant sympathy with her patients

For, as all these are sensible suggestions, so is it just as essential for you to Know Yourself. Grapho-Analysis shows you not only your general characteristics, but hidden tendencies that may burst into characteristics at any time.

It shows you where are your faults, and thereby gives you a chance to correct them. And it always puts a person on the path to greater personal understanding, and enables one to get more from others

Here are a few brief extracts from analyses made for readers

E. C.—There is a frank, generous and sympathetic nature revealed. One who longs for affection, but is sensitive to praise or blame; too sensitive, perhaps. You have a strong desire for intellectual companionship, and have a love of the beautiful in nature or art

Your writing shows that you have an enquiring turn of mind; you wish to get at the bottom of things, but you are inclined to be a little forgetful about those things in which you are not interested and to slight them. Don't let this grow

A. W.—You have a material nature, and are likely to consider your own interest at all times, before responding to appeals from others. You are not inherently generous. Do not let this tendency develop into "tight-ness" or "meanness"

Do you want a personal analysis of your own handwriting, showing your faults and virtues? It will probably amaze you with its revelations of your character, and may open the door of opportunity to you Send a letter in your normal writing and state your exact birthdate. Enclose with 10c coin (for each specimen) and 3c stamped address envelope to Lawrence Hibbert, Grapho-Analyst, c-o Winnipeg Newspaper Union, 175 McDermot Ave., E. Winnipeg

CORN PRODUCTS

(By Gordon H. Orest, M.A.)

Corn, which grows abundantly on this continent and in the West Indies, is perhaps one of the most widely used grains Apart from being a common food in the form of meal or cereals, the kernel when opened, is found to have three parts: the outside, or husk, the small oily germ, and the mass of white material which is mostly starch.

One bushel of corn gives approximately one pound of oil which is refined and sold as a vegetable fat for cooking. The less refined grades are claimed for soap making or for the production of glycerine and nitroglycerine

Starch from the corn is made into corn starch, for cooking, and into laundry starch.

Another important use of this grain is in making corn syrup which is a widely used product. Corn syrup is made by converting the starch in the corn into sugar, known as glucose, through treating it with acid in large pressure tanks under fifty pounds of steam This treatment changes the starch into the thick sweet substance which we know as corn syrup

From corn also is extracted a type of gum, which is used in place of rubber to some extent "Red rubber" erasers and sponges may be made from this substance It is also used in the manufacture of rubber soles for shoes

Outer husks of the corn and some residue of the oil products are made into cattle food, adding still another to the many products of this common grain

Blessing The Bore

"The world's a small place," said the bore. "For instance at Exeter in Farm I met a man who lives in the next road to me. Later I met him in Venice, then in Rome, again in Alexandria, and finally I crossed the channel with him What do you think of that."

Why didn't you pay him what you owed him in the first place" asked the little man in the corner

Inspection Trip To The West By Officials Of The Organization

Mr. Louis L. Lang, of Calf, Ontario, president of the Colonization Finance Corporation, stated on arrival at Winnipeg, "This is the second inspection trip made by myself, but is the first trip which is being undertaken jointly with executive officers and member companies associated in the work of the Colonization Finance Corporation. My colleagues on this inspection tour are, Mr. J. F. Weston, vice-president of the Colonization Finance Corporation and managing director of the Imperial Life Assurance Company; A. H. Mitchell, general manager of the Canada Life Assurance Company, and W. H. Somerville, general manager of the Mutual Life Assurance Company. We are interested in the farm management program of our corporation because we realize what improvement to agriculture means to Eastern Canada as well as to the business interests in the West. This year marks the fifth year of the operation of our corporation. Beginning in 1930 with 25,000 acres under the supervision of our farm managers, we have at present a field staff of seven farm managers and assistant farm managers covering all of Manitoba, Eastern Saskatchewan. The some farm managers headquarters are at Winnipeg, Cayman, Portage la Prairie, Brandon, Killarney, Deloraine, Virden, Birtle and Dauphin in Manitoba; and Osnow, Moosomin, Weyburn, Indian Head, Yorkton, and Canora in Saskatchewan. These men have under their supervision 1,788 farms, totalling 402,582 acres. About 70% of these farms are occupied and operated by their farmer owners; the interests of our member companies being represented by mortgage or an agreement of sale. The rest of the farms are operated by tenants. One of the objects of our work is to assist farmers to retain the farms they are at present operating by co-operating with them in any improvements which are possible, and also to make it possible for a substantial number of tenants to purchase the farms which they are at present farming under lease. The farm management service supplied by the Colonization Finance Corporation covers at present all of the arable land in Manitoba from the international boundary north to township 38, and the Eastern part of Saskatchewan as far as Regina. On July 1st we established a farm management zone in the Swan River area, but many district we had not covered until that time

The object of this inspection trip for my associates and myself is to inspect the work which is being carried on, to see how it is being regarded by the individual farmers and the communities and districts in which we operate, and to give us the necessary information with which we can formulate a policy for the future of this work which we believe to be worth while. As rapidly as conditions warrant, and as qualified men can be obtained and trained for farm managers, we hope to open new zones. The necessary attention to detail and the cost of this work are naturally limiting factors.

While Mr. Somerville and I have not most of the farm managers last year, I am particularly pleased with the conference arranged at Clear Lake in the Riding Mountain National Park which will give Mr. A. H. Mitchell, and our Vice-president Mr. J. F. Weston, an opportunity of meeting and sizing up our men in the field.

There was one change made in our personnel during the year, Mr. O. B. Longman, zone manager at Indian Head, was appointed Field Crops Commissioner for the province of Alberta and he was succeeded by Mr. W. C. McMillican, former Dean of the Manitoba Agricultural College whose zone we shall visit. Our trip last year took us through Southern Manitoba, particularly that portion affected by the drouth, and Southern and South Eastern Saskatchewan. This year we have planned to visit the eastern portion of the Red River Valley; we shall visit the Portage plains and the Brandon and Neepawa districts, and we expect to visit the Swan River Valley. We shall be accompanied by Mr. W. R. McConnell of Regina, by a number of our loan managers in the West, and Inspectors of Municipal Districts. In Saskatchewan we expect to visit farms in the Canora, Yorkton, and Indian Head zones. Mr. Hall being our Colonization Finance Corporation inspector will be in a class at Regina, after which some of our party are returning East while others are proceeding westward on business of their respective individual companies."

ISAIAH CONTRASTS FALSE AND TRUE WORSHIP

Golden text:

Who shall ascend into the hill of the Lord?
And who shall stand in his holy place?
He that hath clean hands, and a pure heart. Psalm 6:3, 4.

Lesson: Isaiah 1:1-31.

Devotional Reading: John 4:20-24.

Explanations And Comments

The Perverseness of God's People, verses 1-9. "Hear, O heavens, and give ear, O earth" is an apt phrase given to this chapter by Ewald. God's chosen people have rebelled against him. Even the dumb animals, the ox and the ass, are responsive to their masters, but the people of Judah do not consider their Lord. This perverseness has brought punishment upon them, and it is only because of Jehovah's mercy that they have escaped the fate of the people of Sodom and Gomorrah

Outward Signs of Religious Zeal Do Not Deceive Jehovah, verses 10-15. The prophet Isaiah now hears in spirit the reverberations of his midnight, Delitzsch thinks. "They would fain represent the accusations which he had just uttered as unfounded, by appealing to their exact observance of the divine law; but in opposition to this ground of self-vindication which the prophet has read out of the hearts of those impeached, he but proceeds to prove the divine arraignment which begins in verse ten"

"Hear the word of Jehovah, ye rulers of Sodom," the prophet cries, "give ear unto the law of our God, ye people of Gomorrah." By addressing them as "rulers of Sodom" and "people of Gomorrah," he reminds them alike of their wickedness and of their danger. The "law" in which he bids them give heed, is the inspired doctrine he is about to deliver.

"What unto me is the multitude of your sacrifices?" saith Jehovah. "I have had enough of the burnt-offerings of rams and the fat of fed beasts; and I delight not in the blood of bullocks, or of lambs, or of he-goats." Their altars reeked with the blood of sacrifices, but it was all an expression of religiousness, not of religion.

The Nature of True Worship, verses 16, 17. "Wash you, make you clean; put away the evil of your days before mine eyes." "Wash you, make you clean" are figurative words for repentance and amendment. Recall David's cry after his great sin. "Create in me a clean heart, O God and renew a right spirit within me."

"Cease to do well"
It is not enough to refrain from sin. True worship consists also in right living, in service for others.

Motor Horn Order Gives British People A Chance To Sleep

An "anti-honking" order to motorists during sleeping hours has proven so successful in London that the ministry of transport has decided to extend it to every city, town and "built-up" area in the country

Thus England will become a vast silence zone between the hours of 11:30 p.m. and 7 a.m. so far as motor horns are concerned.

SUCCESSFUL CO-OPERATIVES SOUND BUSINESS INSTITUTIONS.

To be successful a co-operative must be sound. It must have a real business purpose, and be strong enough to put it over. It must be a business organization, and not simply a debating society. Maybe a co-operative can be organized out of baloney and bunk, to make a job for some promoter and manager, but it cannot last unless it's made of something more substantial and worth while.

Co-operation should not be undertaken until it is needed and wanted, not by a professional organizer but by the people who are to be the working members themselves. It must do things worth while in bettering conditions for the producer and the consumer; and to be lasting and effective the co-operative must be sound financially

No government is big enough to withstand the drain of a subsidized agriculture, but none is so strong as that founded on an informed intelligent agriculture such as that developed through sane and sound co-operative marketing.—Earl W. Benjamin, general manager of the Pacific Egg Producers Co-operative

Uniform Price System Advocated

Introduction of a uniform price system throughout Canada as a means of distributing whatever benefits result from protective tariffs and of equalizing production costs was advocated by J. D. McKenna, M.P. for Northumberland in a recent speech in the House of Commons investigating Nova Scotia's economic situation.

Urging equalization of wholesale prices of all protected goods manufactured in this country Mr. McKenna contended that Montreal and Toronto virtually monopolized whatever benefits resulted from protective tariffs. Eighty-five per cent of manufactured goods came out of Ontario and Quebec he said and because costs of the finished articles included all the taxes imposed by governments provincial and federal it followed that people of other provinces purchasing those goods had to "pay not only their own taxes but the taxes as well and that in terms of purchasing power."

His scheme to equalize costs and to standardize prices throughout the country involves absorption by manufacturers of freight charges, a process with which many in Western Canada would be prone to agree. This Mr McKenna claimed would permit manufacturers to place their products on the market at a uniform price. The same in Halifax, Regina and Vancouver as in Toronto and Montreal. Previously, it has been noted that at the close of his presentation Mr McKenna was complimented by Prof John Harry Jones of Leeds University England who, noted as an economist, is chairman of the commission.

The contentions and proposals of Mr McKenna are by no means new to Western Canada. Large sections of the province of Saskatchewan and economic students which for two years or more has quietly been conducting inquiries along similar lines with a view eventually of presenting a plan which might be termed as a "Western Policy". This group has concentrated its attention on the price structure, seeking to determine what inequities exist with it noting more particularly the effects upon it and upon the purchasing power of the prairie provinces of freight tariff and taxation costs.

The former favorable disparity in wage and salary scales as between Western and Eastern Canada having disappeared under stress of economic conditions, or being noticeably narrowed, the Saskatchewan group has been seeking something to compensate the loss. Though prices of manufactured goods had fallen, the drop was commensurate with the drop in prices of farm products and seemed to be offset by the reduced purchasing power of consumers in the West. Somewhere within this price structure, it was felt, lay certain factors which, if equalized or removed, would affect much needed adjustments. From some the attack upon prices.

The Saskatchewan group has laid stress on the fact that, while freights and tariffs have increased farmers' production costs they have received no compensation from manufacturers of consumers' goods, nor have the advantages accruing to the industrialized areas been distributed as, it was thought, they should be. From this it was argued that, as consumers prairie farmers were encouraging a system which tended to centralize industry in the Toronto and Montreal areas, which areas derived direct benefits from local taxes payable by the industries and from circulation of the payrolls of such industries. This system, it was contended, placed the West under toll both at home and in the East.

It was felt therefore that, in much as these advantages were accorded the manufacturing areas of the East there should be some compensatory factor some method of distributing benefits, to all parts of Canada in the price structure. That is to say, while goods might cost a little more in the area of their manufacture they would cost a little less in the area of their consumption. And inasmuch as the principle already is applied in the case of nationally-priced products, the proposition at first sight appears fair and just. The West will watch eastern reactions to the proposal made by Mr McKenna, with considerable interest.

Not Very Profitable

Abraham Lincoln Made Very Little From Law Practice

When Abraham Lincoln was elected president of the United States, his bank balance aggregated $601 64.

The original ledger showing his account now is on display in the Springfield Marine bank at Springfield, Illinois where Lincoln was a depositor from March 1, 1833, until his death. His account after his death was continued by his administrator, Judge David Davis, of Bloomington. It being finally closed on May 22, 1867.

The ledger in which his account appears is displayed in a glass and wrought-iron show case. The ledger is turned to a page on which is written in fine script the name "A. Lincoln" and the entries on the page bear out the certainty that his income from the practice of law was meagre at times.

Wheat Situation Hopeful

Supply For 1934-35 More Closely Related To Probable Demand

The crop year 1934-35 is commencing with the general wheat situation not without its hopeful aspects, the Dominion bureau of statistics states. The supply of wheat available for the present cereal year has been greatly reduced by virtue of a second successive crop disaster in the United States, the certainty of a low yield in Canada, a sharp reduction in production in many European countries and the prospects of a small crop in Australia. These developments combine to produce a situation where the available supply of wheat is more closely related to probable demand than at any time in recent years, the bureau said.

According to the United States department of agriculture, production of corn, wheat, oats, barley, rye and flaxseed are expected to be the smallest in 30 years.

Value Of The League

Exerts An Immense Force In The Prevention Of War

There is probably not a single country in Europe where the common people would blindly follow its leaders into war, if called upon to do so. All the nations of the world have in fact formally renounced war as an instrument of national policy; and the machinery of the League of Nations exists for its prevention. It is quite certain that, if war were immediately threatened, or were actually to break out, in one quarter, troops would be made to the League whose power of collective action, even if never yet fully utilized, is potentially immense. Its mere existence has undoubtedly acted as a deterrent at least upon the lesser nations and upon those which are not removed by oceanic distances from Geneva.—London Times.

Experimenting With Dry Ice

Air Cooled Planes Would Facilitate Travel In India

A transcontinental company in India is experimenting with dry ice, or cold carbon dioxide as an agent for cooling aeroplanes. If satisfactory results are obtained, planes travelling across that country will be air cooled in the future. Should experiments prove successful travel should be facilitated between Calcutta and Bombay, where summer temperatures of 115 degrees are considered normal and 130 degrees is sometimes recorded.

A Wonderful Operation

Severed Eye Muscle Sewed And Woman's Sight Restored

Platinum needles, electrically heated, punctured the eye 20 times in the course of the skilful surgery which regained for Mrs. Westwood Bayre 75 per cent. normal vision.

She lost the sight of one eye in June as she returned to her home from her flower garden. The other eye was not affected. A noted Memphis eye specialist said it was retinal detachment.

Severing a muscle he turned the eyeball inward. Foreign fluid had accumulated behind the retina causing it to bulge toward the centre of the eye. The retina is the curtain on the back of the inside of the eye on which images are focused and nerve sensations are transmitted to the brain. Blindness results if the retina is disturbed.

On the outside and back of the eyeball is a fibro-muscular covering which controls the movements of the eye and keeps the eyeball in shape.

From the outer edge of the fibromuscular coating to the area under the bulging retina was a distance of one-eighth inch. A tiny fraction could be pierced, endangering both sight and loss of vitreous, the jelly-like substance that keeps the eye round.

Twenty platinum needles, each one-eighth of an inch long, each with a silk thread in one end, were placed nearby.

Clamping the first with an instrument which brought the platinum to the needle until it was hot, the surgeon inserted the fiery point into the round area.

Twenty times the eyeball was pierced. Then slowly he grasped the thread and pulled out each needle. The severed eye muscle was sewed.

For two weeks the patient lived in total darkness, her head braced to prevent movement. Then the bandages were removed. Light filtered into the retina. Objects became distinct.

Interesting Old Clock

Timepiece Of Cathedral The Great To Be Repaired

A 17th Century clock, made by James Keeke, an English craftsman, and presented to Catherine the Great by her favorite, Marshall Potemkyn, is to be restored, says a Leningrad message. The clock, which is the most artistic value, has not been in working order since 1915. When it is in working order, at noon every day the image of a peacock on the clock stands up and spreads its tail, which is made of gold; 8 cock, four or five times larger than life-size, starts crowing; and an owl, sitting on a branch above, rings a number of small bells.

Under Plane Hooded

French Air Staff Says Paris Would Be Helpless From Invasion

An invading air fleet will wipe Paris completely off the map unless France gets faster fighting planes, the French air staff believes.

Officials said the four days' aerial manoeuvres, recently held, showed conclusively that the capital cannot with present effectives, be defended against air raiders, and emphasized sharply the urgent need for speedier aircraft.

A force of rebuilt pursuit planes failed to match the speed of heavily loaded bombers, comprising the "attacking fleet," the average speed of which was 140 miles an hour.

Ontario Municipal Debt

Stated Debt Is Largest Of Any Province In Canada

Thomas Bradshaw, president of the North American Life Assurance Company, told the Ontario Municipal Association Ontario's municipal debt in default is the largest of any province in Canada.

Forty municipalities in Ontario, Mr. Bradshaw said, are in default to the extent of $96,940,819 while the nearest approach to that figure in bound in Quebec where the defaulting debt is $15,000,000

"No section of Canada, up to four years ago, has a finer reputation for municipal credit than the province of Ontario," he said. "To-day no section in Canada has a more serious municipal problem on its doorsteps than Ontario."

Moose Is Fast Runner

Proved It By Travelling 35 Miles An Hour

How fast is a moose? Ask Charles Mumford of Yarmouth, Nova Scotia. He'll say 35 miles an hour.

While Mumford was motoring home to Yarmouth a young bull moose in the road became frightened by the headlights and started running ahead of the car, keeping this distance for a time while the machine travelled 35 miles an hour. Coming to a rise, the moose slowed to a 20-mile rate, leaped from the road and became tangled in a barbwire fence. Mumford and others from the car were able to help the animal escape by shaking the fence.

Switzerland Heads List

Leads All Countries In Annual Consumption Of Milk

Statistics released by the Department of Agriculture show that Switzerland leads all other countries of the world in the annual consumption of milk, with 280 quarts per person.

Second place for this distinction is shared by United States and Germany, each of which boasts of 220 quarts per person. Canada ranks next with 200 quarts.

The figures on other large milk-drinking nations also compared annually and per person, are as follows: Great Britain, 120 quarts, France, 100 quarts, and Chile, 30 quarts.

It Could Be Done

Midland Gardeners Used Only Waste Water From Stream

At the Midland Bank Horticultural Society's show it was remarked that the winner of seven prizes exhibited blooms watered entirely with waste-water, bath-water, bath-water; at any rate not fresh tap water, of which he pointed out, it boasted that he had not used a drop in his garden during these months of drought.

It can be done. Therefore it ought to be done—as King Edward was fond of remarking mainly of things that were said done in his time. Do not ask us please, how to get or convey bath water. Either find out, or don't use any water. A moral maxim for horticulturists.—London Daily Mirror.

Super-Race For Alberta

Development of a superior race of people such as has never been known in the world before was pictured as the future of Alberta through the combining of the province's wealth of natural resources and the ideals of the cosmopolitan population which live within its boundaries by W. R. Howson, M.P.P., provincial Liberal leader, in an address given at Edmonton.

The United States ships quite a lot of shoe blacking to Africa. The natives probably use it for cold cream.

Border Cuts Off Hospital

Free State Board Has To Cross Line To Inspect It

Derry Port sanitary board has just made a remarkable meeting, the members leaving Northern Ireland to go into the Free State to deal with the business for which the meeting was summoned.

The board crossed the border in taxis to inspect its hospital at Ballyrattan, near Moville in County Donegal, a hospital which has never had a patient since its opening thirteen years ago. It was built to deal with cases of infectious disease on vessels coming to Derry but before its completion, the border had been created with the result that the board was left on one side of the border and the hospital on the other.

No solution of the situation has ever been devised and the board decided to effect repairs to the institution, the chairman remarking that "the present state of affairs cannot go on forever."

Facing Dangerous Situation

Britain Is Working In The Interests Of Peace

"The international situation has steadily deteriorated and the prospects of a successful outcome of the disarmament conference have grown dim," declared Lord Londonderry, British air minister in an article in the Weekly Home and Empire.

"While there is no occasion for a panic there is no time to be lost," he added.

"The proposed British air expansion program is not to be regarded in any quarter of the world as a threat but rather, as an action showing that we are preparing to contribute our share to the assurance of world peace."

South Africa Satisfied

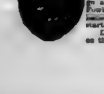
Secession of South Africa from the Empire is as "dead as a dodo", according to General Smuts. Yet seven years ago the Ottawa Journal quoted Smuts was riding the wild waves on the Empire Hustings being provided with a separate dwelling of little more splendid than the relation between British and Boer.

And Nothing Happened

The South Daily Star says "Let's see. I claim the war debts were cancelled three years ago the world was to sink in chaos. Unless Britain gave India independence two years ago the white man was to be driven into the sea. And this year, if the government collected a tax on coal mining would be ruined. What's the next remark."

If every family in London is to be provided with a separate dwelling experts declare 388,797 houses must be built.

Few People Escape Attacks Of Summer Complaint



Summer Complaint may be slight, or it may be serious, but you can't tell which it is when you have it. Always the purpose diarrhoea, the vomiting and purging is to continue, for a day or two, and you may become weak and prostrated.

Just as soon as you feel any looseness of the bowels get at once to your druggist and get a bottle of Dr. Fowler's Extract of Wild Strawberry and check this unpleasantness. Sudden illness in the week-end hours can get started.

Don't experiment. Get "Dr Fowler's". It has been on the market for 80 years.

British Tour To Aid Canadian Industry

Kellogg Company of Canada Limited, London, Ontario, Entertains Important Visitors from Old Country

Eighty leading buyers and industrialists from the British Isles who are at present touring Eastern Canada with a view to increasing trade between the Dominion and the Mother Country, were recently the guests of the Kellogg Company of Canada at a delightful dinner in the Hotel London, London, Ontario.

This visit, known as the "Maple Leaf Tour," was arranged by the Hon. G. Howard Ferguson, High Commissioner to Great Britain. The visitors include men and women from practically every industry in the United Kingdom and the Irish Free State. It is stated reliably that the aggregate buying power represented by the group runs into several millions of pounds sterling annually.

The dinner sparkled with geniality and goodwill. W. P. Butler, Manager, and C. Garfield McCormick, Sales Manager of Kellogg's extended warm greetings to the visitors. Mayor Wallace and Frank White, M.P., were the other local speakers, while the spokesmen for the Britishers were: James Walker, head of James Walker & Sons, growers of Dathaze, Scotland, and William Collier, J.P., Managing Director of William Collier Ltd., Dyed Bakery, Lancashire and of Ford & Sons, of Oldham.

Mr. Walker pointed out that in Scotland the traditional dish was oatmeal and "Our forefathers built up strong constitutions on it. Yet an excellent substitute, I am sure, has been found in Kellogg's Corn Flakes." Mr. Collier expressed the warm thanks of the party to the Kellogg Company for their hospitality and spoke of the deep impression made on the visitors by the Kellogg factory and other industrial establishments they had seen.

Mr. Butler introduced the famous girls' softball teams of the United States and Canada to Kellogg guests who later competed in a game at which the Britishers were guests of honor, meeting the All Canadian sport for the first time.

Programmes for Drought Area

Decision to initiate two important projects for assistance of settlers in the drouth areas of the province has been made by the provincial government this week announces Hon. Josie Hoadley, acting premier. One of these projects is the initiation of a system of wells in the municipalities and improvement districts in the driest areas to be financed by the provincial government through the municipal authorities in such a manner as to give the greatest benefit to the farmers in these districts. This program will include not only the construction of roads throughout the municipal districts concerned, but also the construction of dams for the conservation of water for stock in the area most seriously affected by drouth conditions. The other project is in connection with the disposal of cattle in the districts affected in the drouth districts. From information now in the hands of the government, there are some 20,000 or 25,000 head of cattle to be disposed of. Some of these have been sold at unfairly low prices. The provincial government hopes to initiate arrangements whereby some of these cattle will be disposed of, the low grade stock going to pasture for processing, while it is hoped to be able to sell the more desirable stock to those who have feed in the drouth districts.

Details for both the above projects are still to be worked out, but the general policies have been decided upon.

Spreads of Ye Olde Days Also Ran High

HALIFAX, N.S., Sept. 12.—Tales have been handed down of the feats of trenchermen of former days and one wonders just what these affairs cost. There recently came into the possession of the manager of the Nova Scotian Hotel in Halifax, N.S. which is owned and operated by the Canadian National Railways a bill for a dinner held about two hundred years ago in the Great Pontac Hotel a famous hostelry of a by-gone day in the old country. The dinner was given by no less a personage than General Wolfe, on the eve of his departure to capture Louisburg on the island of Cape Breton. Louisburg was taken on July 26, 1758, and Wolfe then proceeded to the capture of Quebec which fell in the following year. Here is the itemized bill which was rendered in pounds sterling:—

Coal Production

Coal production in the province to the end of July of this year was 2,215,573 tons, compared with 2,760,855 tons for the same period of 1933.

Following An Ideal

THE builders of Alberta Pool Elevators, the farmers and women who put their money, their time and their energy into the project, had definite ideas before them.

They wanted a co-operative concern, first and foremost, operating on the basis of a public utility, with the profit motive secondary to that of quality and service, and based upon the foundations of co-operation as established imperishably by the pioneers of the movement.

These ideals and principles have been followed as closely as possible by Alberta Pool Elevators. It is the ambition of the organization to make this co-operative enterprise respected and trusted by all grain growers. Its operations an open book to its patrons and its standing built on widespread confidence. In its broad sense, confidence is the foundation of all human relationships which possess the quality of endurance. The growth and life of any institution depends on the confidence it inspires and commands and can hold.

There is no more unanswerable way of expressing confidence in the worthiness of the ideals and objectives of this movement than by deliveries of bushels—wagon loads and car loads of grain to

"A GOOD PLACE TO DEAL"

MUTUAL LIFE OF CANADA

Reports Increased Business

April Sales Higher

The number of new policies paid-for in April 1934 exceeded by 30% the number for April 1933.

Policyholders Add to Insurance

Approximately 5,000 Canadians applied for and received Mutual Life insurance policies in amounts ranging from $500 to $120,000 and aggregating many millions, between January 1st and April 30th, 1934.

One-half of this business was taken by present policyholders—a splendid endorsement of the results of their original policies.

Payments to Living Policyholders Three Times Greater Than Death Claims

Death Claim payments in 1934 already total	$1,128,954
Payments to LIVING POLICYHOLDERS in dividends, Matured Policies, etc., in the same period amount to	$3,745,438

An EXAMPLE of how MUTUALITY PAYS

($5,000 Endowment in 20 Years —issued in 1904 at age 25)

THIS MAN PAID
20 Annual Premiums of $139.75 ..... $4,792.50

HE RECEIVED IN RETURN
Face Value of Policy $5,000.00
Accumulated Dividends 1,221.30
Special Extra 1928 Dividend 21.00
..... $6,246.30

HE GAINED $1,453.70

This is a return of $275.65 for every $100 of premiums paid. If the insured had died at any time after the policy was in force $5,000 plus the dividends declared to date of death would have been paid to his beneficiary.

It is to YOUR advantage to insure in The Mutual Life of Canada—the only Canadian life insurance company that shows its operations (1869) has grown and on a mutual basis—there is no capital stock — ALL profits from all sources belong to policyholders, who own the company in its entirety.

CLANDONALD

Friday last a very successful school fair was held under the auspices of the Clandonald School Fairs Assn'n.

The fair was an educational success both from the point of view of exhibitors and judges. Mr. D Andrews of the U. S. in charge of judging of the field products was enthusiastic in his praise of the quality of the exhibits, especially taking into consideration the fact that this was the first fair to be held in the district. His criticism and general remarks were both constructive and instructive and will be a great guide to competitors at future fairs. Miss Drew, who judged the domestic exhibits, was a great help to competitors, her remarks and advice will do much to improve the future exhibits in this field. Mr Parker of Vermilion judged the school work and was pleased with the brand of exhibits generally.

The personnel of the executive committee wish to thank everyone who in any way helped to make this fair a successful one and they greatly appreciate the wonderful co-operation so unstintingly given them. On questioning the members of the executive committee, Mr W. J. Chasterton, Pres., Mr. Ross Mackenzie, V Pres., and Mrs. Lena McHenry, Sec-Treas., they felt that in spite of the enormous amount of work these positions called for they were very well pleased with the results, pointing out and emphasizing the fact that without the wonderful co-operation given them the fair could not have been the success it was.

We were at a dinner recently when we had the unique experience of being entertained by members of three generations of one family, viz, dear old Mrs. Williamson, Sr., Mrs. Louis Williamson, daughter, and Miss Louise Williamson of Vermilion, granddaughter. The latter is staying with her aunt and uncle, Mr and Mrs. Bill Redwood, to help with the oats at threshing time.

Interesting showers have fallen over the week-end and threshing will be delayed until about Wednesday. Many fields of what were once oats remain to be cut in the district.

"Charlie," the town "handyman," informs us that a certain lady is looking for us with blood in her eye. On inquiring what we have done to deserve such a "welcome" we are told that we've failed to publish the fact that we've "swung to the head that wears a crown." And so long as the lady in question has not her rolling pin by the time she finds us we should worry.

A favorite neighbor of ours on her home town by Vermilion number is the proud mother of a baby girl, who arrived at the hospital with her new baby daughter, stopped and said "Say, big boy, what did you mean by congratulating the 'old man'?" Oh, those women, the conceit of it! But it's O.K. Ethel,we know you only wanted us to see what a pretty baby you had.

Sixty-five farmers in this district used Elephant brand Fertilizer in their farming operations this year and with one exception all are ordering supplies for the coming year. Reg. Spooner, phone R616, is the local agent and can supply full information.

Tom Scotter's general store plans on re-opening a big Fall Sale. Watch for his ads advertisements in the Standard next week and the week following.

Death of Hugh Mayhew

The deep sympathy of the community by is extended to the family of the late Hugh Mayhew, who passed away at his home in Kamsack early Monday morning, Sept. 3rd. Death was caused by heart failure from which the deceased had suffered for some years. The funeral took place from the Kamsack Baptist church on Tuesday, Sept. 11th, the Rev. Mr. Brown conducting the service.

Beautiful floral tributes and letters of sympathy were received from friends of the family. The deceased settled in Rastville in 1904 and was one of the pioneer farmers of the district. Surviving members of the family are the sorrowing widow, one daughter Myrtle, and sons Henry, Roy, Lawrence, Earl and Raymond. Rev. Mayhew of Vermilion is a brother.

Court Sittings at Clandonald

Police Magistrate Blackwell, of Lloydminster, presided at the Police Court sittings held in Clandonald on Tuesday, Sept. 11th.

F. J. Curnan of Derwent was tried with being in possession of a horse branded UP, unlawfully on Jan. March 1929. The court authorised the C.P.R. to sizze the horse.

Jas. Moran was charged with the theft of a hay pedding, but at account of the circumstances surrounding the case and due to the fact that the accused was to be deported, the case was dismissed.

Richard Grealy of Rusylvia was also charged with the theft of a horse and faced the same charge. He was charged by E. W. Florendine, C. P.S. detective, and served as an example to other horse thieves.

Jas. McAbeoe, who was already on suspended sentence, was charged with stealing a horse, the property of, he was valued at $10 which he had traded to Mr. Hilchak; also with the theft of a cow, value $2.00, sold to Dan Hushaney, two cows branded CD, the property of the C.P.R. valued at $100, and two horses branded CD, property of the C. P. R. valued at $125. Mr. Hanes gave evidence of ownership for the C.P.R. and Detective Florendine gave evidence of tracing the goods. Magistrate Blackwell sentenced McAbeoe to six months with hard labor on each of the four charges, sentence to run concurrently.

The Magistrate stated that anyone in the Clandonald district should be very careful of trading animals or second hand harness further than anyone found with C.P.R. branded stock would be dealt with severely as this sort of thing is getting to be C.P.R. or of the Scottish Immigrant Aid Soc.

GRIZZLY BEAR MINUTES

A meeting of the Council of M. D. Grizzly Bear No. 452 was held in the office at Wildmere on Sept. 3rd, Mr. Bankhead, deputy reeve, taking the chair at 10:45 a.m., there being also present Councillors D. Gardiner, E. C. Symes and C. Carmichael. Minutes of previous meeting were read, approved.

Mr. Shaw and Mr. Yeoman were arrived and Mr. Nash vacated the chair in favor of Reeve. A considerable amount of correspondence was dealt with; these included a report of the Municipal Conference held at Edmonton in July which with various recommendations was tabled. A letter from Mr. Hunley, Weeds Field Supervisor, drawing attention to matters relating to noxious weeds; from the Dept at Edmonton re the fact that one new Municipal Allowance had been fixed at $20 per month; also that two Old Age Pensions had been allowed, one at $12.50 and one at $20 per month. Resignation of Walter Hall, Hospital trustee was discussed and eventually Mr. Symes' motion that this Council favor payment of Hospital representatives in full from hospital funds for such meetings attended, irrespective of the amounts requisition for, was agreed to. It will be seen the Council agreed to support at next municipal convention a move to have hospital requisitions based on valuation instead of, as in Wainwright, on an acreage basis.

Secretary reported having advertised the agreement with Isley and Vermilion Hospitals and the Grizzly Bear municipality for care of indigents as per the Health Department's requirements. A number of applications for consolidation of tax arrears received since last meeting were submitted and appointed.

Arrangements were made for advertising new pound in Tp. 47-6 with P. Tondu as poundkeeper. Mr. Carmichael was appointed to examine the new pound in Tp. 48-4 that would be central and convenient for the majority of the ratepayers. In view of an application for relief from Mrs. T. Dowson, council agreed that action should be taken towards having her husband committed to the asylum.

Notice was submitted from the Provincial Chief Auditor of an inquest to the Alberta Assessment Commission against the decision of the council in appealing to exempt certain lands of the Hudson's Bay and C.P.R. Companies. Also an appeal from the Hudson's Bay Co. against council's refusal to exempt their land. Both appeals to be taken towards having her husband committed to the asylum.

Wake up your Liver Bile

No Calomel necessary

For you to feel healthy and happy, your liver must pour into your bowels 2 pints of liquid bile daily. If this bile is not flowing freely, your food does not digest. It just decays in the bowels. Poisons in the body literally soak into blood. Then you feel sluggish, constipated, sick and everything you eat sours and ferments. Gas bloats you. Your head aches. Your skin may break out in blotches. You lose energy and get pale and sallow.

Merely to relieve constipation and get a passing movement, you may take a purgative that only irritates the bowels and does not get at the cause. But what you need is something to make those 2 pints of bile flow freely to digest your food. Then you will feel like working and playing. You will look and feel like a new person.

Carter's Little Liver Pills are made to do just that. Gently but surely they get those 2 pints of bile flowing freely. Ask for Carter's Little Liver Pills. Refuse substitutes. Only 25c at all druggists.

SYNOPSIS

Camilla Hoyt and Peter Anson, young and in love, marry secretly, much against their wishes, and spend until Peter is able to provide for her. Peter is a young, struggling architect trying to win a competition for a schoolyard abroad, and Camilla is the adopted daughter of a wealthy family. She is not to inherit money when she comes of age and so is studying commercial art in the hope of landing an agency job. Others in the story are Avis Worth, another wealthy girl who is trying to win Peter Belvia Todd, Peter's model and Gus Matson, his former roommate with whom he has quarrelled. After a party at an exclusive club when the rest of the members of the party go to a cabaret to continue the revels, Peter and Camilla slip off to the beach by themselves and fall asleep on the sand. When they awake it is early morning and Avis and another boy are standing near them. The latter is overcome for Camilla to announce before the party that she and Peter are married. Avis urges Peter to accept some of her earnings to help him along, but Peter refuses and they quarrel. After Camilla has left, Peter learns that Avis Worth calls and persuades Peter to accept a loan of $1000. Peter finishes his exhibit and asks Avis and Camilla for suggestions as to a name for it. Camilla suggests "Youth." And Avis "Inspiration" Peter chooses the latter title. But Camilla, heartsick, goes to Fifi's studio for quiet and there Peter and Avis follow later, and as the fights are turned on, see the exhibit has been shattered to pieces. Avis accuses Camilla of the deed, but Camilla, stunned by the disaster, and hurt and horrified by the accusation, faints.

At Camilla's suggestion, Peter borrows as his exhibit a statue he had sculptured especially for her as a wedding gift. Camilla is the model of Honor.

Camilla's advertising campaign and Tiny Tots broadcast was a great success and Mrs. Hoyt expresses her pleasure and surprise on hearing that Camilla was the author and artist who was so ably stimulating business for his company.

Peter's exhibit was awarded the Paris scholarship and he prepares for his journey to France. After the ship's departure from New York, he is on his way to the cabin where he meets Avis Worth. During the voyage Avis tells Peter that Camilla has received his scholarship exhibit in full of temper, and he believes her. Elsewhere in New York Gus Matson is with Camilla and confesses it was he who destroyed Peter's model.

CHAPTER LX

A peremptory summons from Mr Hoyt on the day after Gus Matson's visit, found Camilla in his office in a state of trepidation. Had something unusual happened? Was he angry with her for her presumptuous and deception? Had his pleasant attitude at the broadcasting station been only a masked act, for the sake of his pride? It would be like him, perhaps.

She approached the inner office almost with a feeling that the man whom she was about to meet was a stranger. But his greeting was as cordial enough — even affectionate Her fears vanished

"Sit down, sit down," he said in his cordial way. "I've been wanting to talk to you my dear You gave me the surprise of my life the other day."

"Was it very wrong of me to deceive you, dad?" she appealed wistfully.

His eyes twinkled as she never had seen them before "I'm mighty glad you did. You proved to me what I always suspected that you could do. Even when your mother opposed your ambition to take up commercial art I held a secret conviction that you could make good. With your determination, I could see that any encouragement from me would be superfluous, and only antagonize your mother more." He exchanged with her that look which she remembered so well from her childhood, a glance of understanding which made words useless

"Nothing could have pleased me more than the way you have developed. I will admit that I never should have dreamed of placing my business promotion into your inexperienced hands, much as I believed in you. So I engaged efficiency experts and paid a large fee to an advertising agency to handle the campaign. And, after all, it fell right into your inexperienced hands, and you pulled us to victory. It only goes to show that the wisest of us haven't so much judgment, altogether, no matter how big we think we are Well that is just a little story."

"It would be worse than irony if I hadn't made good," she reminded him with a timid smile

"But you did!" he dismissed the matter with a wave of his hand, and demanded abruptly, "But what about Peter? Are you going to let your marriage fail, now that you have succeeded in your career?"

"Oh, no!" Camilla denied. "You know why I did not go abroad with Peter. We are living according to our original contract, of course."

"What good will your contract be a year from now?"

"Why Peter loves me, dad!"

"I don't doubt it. I know he does. But when people love each other and are married, they should be together; at least, for most of the time I tell you, Camilla, I feel it my duty to advise you from a more disinterested. Your place is with Peter in Paris, or wherever he is."

"But he can't take care of me and he won't accept my help. He is terribly proud."

"Of course. But what about Avis Worth?" he released another bomb. "Do you know that she is on the same boat with Peter?"

"I'm not —"

"That is no coincidence," he interrupted, sternly. "Camilla, I may as well tell you that I've kept a pretty close watch over your private affairs since you left us. Your happiness is my deepest concern. I did not like another boy are standing near them. The cruise of Avis Worth, another boy for quiet and there Peter and Avis follow later, and as the fights are turned on, see the exhibit has been shattered to pieces. Avis accuses Camilla of the deed, but Camilla, stunned by the disaster, and hurt and horrified by the accusation, faints.

"Is there any objection to your living apart in Paris, and seeing each other often, as you did here?"

"Why, no, dad, I don't want to leave my work and live there on nothing"

"Listen to me, my dear. If necessary, Mr. Hoyt explained with obvious pleasure and surprise on hearing that Camilla was the author and artist who was so ably stimulating business for his company.

Fire Danger In Schools

Many Schools In Canada Are Fire Traps

Alfred Rogers, K.C., chief inspector of schools for Ontario, said in a recent statement that in the province of Ontario alone 1,000 children are in danger from fire in schools which are not fit for the purpose.

Mr. Rogers is speaking at a Rotary Club luncheon in Montreal, Mr. Rogers said that the province of Ontario has a million dollars annually for the purpose of building schools, but that the money is not being spent to the best advantage.

"Within the limits of dawn may still be found schools that are a disgrace to any province in the Dominion," he said. "Some of these schools are fire traps. Many of them are unsanitary. Some are both. It is not unusual to find one toilet for 200 children. It is not unusual to find no toilet at all. I have seen schools in which there was no water supply. I have seen schools in which there was no fire escape. I have seen schools in which there was no fire escape. I have seen schools in which there was no fire escape

G. F. TOWERS IS TO BE HEAD OF CENTRAL BANK

Ottawa. — The Dominion government has appointed one of the youngest Canada's leading bank executives to head the new central bank now in process of establishment. He is Graham Ford Towers, assistant general manager of the Royal Bank of Canada, who will celebrate his fifth birthday in a few weeks.

Appointment of Mr. Towers as first governor of the Bank of Canada was announced by Hon. E. N. Rhodes, minister of finance, upon whose shoulders rests the responsibility of initiating and establishing the new institution.

Born and educated in Montreal, Mr. Towers joined the Royal Bank 14 years ago as an accountant and secured experience in foreign banking through his subsequent activities as inspector of branches in China. His career has been one of swift advancement and he has published a volume on "Foreign Exchange" in which brought him considerable acclaim in financial circles.

In accordance with the legislation authorizing establishment of the central bank Mr. Towers' term of office will be seven years, after which he will be eligible for re-appointment. He will leave shortly to visit European central banks to gain experience and knowledge of assistance to him in his new work. It is anticipated the Bank of Canada will be in operation shortly after the new year.

It is the intention of the government that a deputy governor will be secured from some other central bank within the empire so in its initial stages the Bank of Canada may have the services of one high executive with practical experience.

With the problem of electing a supreme head for the bank now solved it is understood further organization will go forward rapidly. There will be a deputy governor and possibly an assistant. Mr. Rhodes will also have to recommend to the governor-in-council the names of seven shareholders who will act with the governor and deputy governor as the board of directors. This of course cannot be done until the capital stock of $5,000,000 has been offered and subscribed for, which will be done shortly.

Ottawa will be the main office of the central bank and decision is expected shortly on the premises to be chosen

Fallen Western Lambs

Federal Plan To Assist Sheep Ranchers In Saskatchewan

Toronto—Hon Robt. Weir, Dominion minister of agriculture, announced approval of a plan whereby western range feeder lambs would be fattened in Eastern Canada. Members of the Southern Saskatchewan Sheep Breeders' Association have signed 7,000 head of feeder lambs for shipment to eastern feeding points.

Officials of the Dominion livestock branch will find suitable feeding farms and supervise feeding, fattening and marketing operations. Members of the ranchers' association have agreed to remain with the feeding under the terms of a rancher-feeder agreement whereby a valuation of three cents a pound is placed on the lambs at the Moose Jaw stock yards.

Freight from shipping point to feed lot will be added to the initial price charged the feeder when lambs go to the feed lot. Freight charges will be met by the Dominion department of agriculture, the department to be reimbursed when sales are made. Ranchers will maintain ownership of the lambs until marketed when the rancher and feeder will obtain their share of proceeds.

In Favorable Position

Canada Is Friendly In Relations With Other Countries

Montreal While abroad there is little cause for "cheerful spirit", Canada is in a favorable position, its relations with other countries being friendly, the committee on international relations reported to the Canadian Bar Association in annual convention here.

At present, the report notes, the whole world is faced with a situation in which members of each of the many groups are discussing how best to destroy one another. Each of these is silently conscious that both defender and aggressor in any conflict will be destroyed as a likely result, without any assurance that one group or nation will emerge clearly dominant, the report contends.

U.S. Secretary Of War Says Present Force Is Inadequate

Raritan Arsenal, N.J. Secretary of War George Dern said the United States needed a larger, more effective regular army.

The secretary, who came here for the concluding four days of the army's war game manoeuvres against an imaginary enemy invader, said he thought the regular army was not adequately equipped at present, and advocated increasing its strength from 125 000 to 165 000 men.

"The army," he said, "is sadly in need of modernization and mechanization. At its present size the army is not large enough to perform all the peace time tasks assigned to it."

A DEMAND FOR CANADIAN WHEAT IN UNITED STATES

Winnipeg. With a shortage of Durum wheat in United States becoming more and more apparent, demand for Canadian Durums by United States mills reached a season's peak on the Winnipeg Grain Exchange with the movement south of the international boundary approximating 500,000 bushels. Such exports total about 1,000,000 bushels covering the last two weeks.

Recently top grades of Durum wheat were commanding a 32-cent premium over the September future at both Duluth and Minneapolis, while Canadian Durums were quoted at 17½ cents over Winnipeg October option. This brings the Canadian Durums quotation to approximately $1 a bushel, despite the 42-cents-a-bushel duty and 2½ cents-a-bushel handling charges still making the Canadian grain considerably under the United States price.

The United States Durum price at Duluth was $1 25½ per bushel plus a 32-cent premium making a total of $1 60½.

Bulk of Canadian Durum wheat is grown in Manitoba and supplies of this variety are being quickly cleaned up.

If I recognize in the 1,000 years to come that a longer one is to be ordained for me, I will then also recognize that I have to accomplish a great mission and that I have to conduct the German people to a great future.

WANT STIFFER PENALTIES GIVEN FOR KIDNAPPING

Montreal - Kidnapping and its proper punishment occupied the attention of the Canadian Bar Association at its annual meeting here In a round table conference a motion recommending the criminal code be amended so as to permit judges to impose the lash in sentences under five years was carried When the matter came up at the convention as a whole the lash recommendation was dropped and the association went on record as recommending the criminal code be amended in order to give the courts jurisdiction to impose more severe penalties in kidnapping cases.

Judges and lawyers from all parts of the Dominion took part in the discussion on kidnapping which Roebuck KC attorney general of Ontario appropriately enough in view of the fact Lindbergh baby case was mapped the chair when the question came up before the meeting for discussion on the recommendation of the committee of administration of criminal justice that lashes be imposed for the crime

DOROTHY SHUPE TAKES OWN LIFE

Lifeless Body Found Hanging from Tree Thursday Morning

The lifeless body of 14-year-old Dorothy Shupe, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. R. W. Shupe, who dwell some 7½ miles south and a little west of Claymore, was found hanging from a tree by a lariat rope at ten minutes to eight on Thursday morning, Sept. 13th. The discovery was made by her father who had come to look for her. Dorothy had set out on horseback at twenty minutes to seven to bring in the cows as was her custom each morning. A cheerful child, she was humming to herself as the horse trotted out of the yard. When she did not return in the usual time, her parents felt no alarm, as the ground was wet and somewhat slippery. Mr. Shupe set out to look for her; coming to a coulee through which Dorothy seldom went, he noticed her horse tied to a tree; on going closer he was horrified to find his daughter hanging from the lariat rope which had been fastened to a tall tree. He immediately cut the body down but life was already extinct.

After examining the body Coroner Dr. Lamb of Ia. W. W. Bell, family physician, announced that no marks of violence, other than those made by the rope on the throat, had been found. The physician stated that it appeared to be a clear case of suicide.

The dead girl's family were at a loss to account for her action and could think of no possible reason for her tragic act. Dorothy was the baby of the family and consequently was made much of. She was cheerful and energetic, attended school and was popular in the district where the family are old settlers and are well known and respected.

At first a murder was suspected as the parents maintained that the child did not know where the fifty foot lariat rope was kept and also that she could not tie the hitch knot as with which her horse was tied. Her mother was her hands and her hat on her head when found. The law was a difficult one to clinch. The farm dog was reported as being bruised and lame in one paw and this was at first connected with the tragedy also.

The coroner was satisfied however that for some unknown reason Dorothy took her own life and placed the body for burial. The funeral was held on Friday afternoon, Rev. Osborne and interment took place in Sunnyside cemetery.

Unions Angry When Authorities Disbelieve Power Of Gods

The deep-rooted superstitions of the farmers of the Tangier Valley who believe in the power of their dragon gods to bring much-needed rain have brought about several clashes with the authorities and with private persons, and in several cases these clashes have resulted in the deaths of the farmers

In Kangzhan, a town in southern Chekiang province, the farmers, incensed over the fact that the local Kuomintang office expressed disbelief in the powers of the gods, raided the offices and completely destroyed them

At Chungteh, the offices of the magistrate were surrounded by a group of farmers who forced the magistrate to conduct prayer services before the dragon god. The farmers threatened to kill the magistrate if he refused to obey their commands and pray for rain. No aggressive act by the farmers became that the magistrate ordered his bodyguard to open fire with the result that one farmer was killed and several wounded

Near the town of Tuyun a school principal was killed by a mob of 2,000 infuriated peasants when he tried to convince them that praying to their dragon god nine city parks. In addition to tradit-nal Union Square will be available for open-air meetings.

Film Stars' Handwriting Analyzed

By LAWRENCE HIBBERT (Graphe-Analyst)

(All Rights Reserved)

(Editor's Note: This article will be found especially interesting, dealing as it does with well-known film stars. What does YOUR handwriting tell? See the invitation following this article).

A correspondent sends me samples of the writing of several well-known people, and asks me to analyse the writing for her. There is no much of interest in these analyses, that I am making them the subject of a special article.

Perhaps you have wondered why many men have been led into the different pursuits in which they have gained fame and fortune. It is immensely interesting to think of what might have been if different individuals had been busy with traits of character that were entirely different from the real characteristics of their nature.

Men and women are born into this wo rld with d-ffe rent talents and abilities that they must learn in order to take full advantage of them. Both through life and never learn their proper channels in which to find and develop them early in life.

Rebecca Rogers, a prominent film star, is particularly fortunate in having found and mastered the driving force of his life. His writing, which is illustrated here, have seen his fame know, that he is a great dramatic actor that he can interpret a role in a way that few people can even approach, but he has also boundless energy and another very outstanding talent with which he has not yet learned to deal, namely, mechanics. The rhythm and breaks in his writing indicate clearly by the handwriting analyst - a talent and appreciation for mechanics and tools.

As an operatic singer, Ramon Novarro achieved fame that is not often given to a man. His talent in music is well-known, and is, perhaps, the finest thing about his character.

He has still another characteristic, another ability. His writing shows an ability to use his hands in a mechanical way, perhaps in painting, sculpture, or some other means of expression. He was born with much pronounced artistic ability and many keen grasps, music and the drama especially.

Take the handwriting of John Bol-i, another well-known screen star. His most outstanding trait in his character is his self-reliance. He has the quality that makes him depend only on himself for anything that he may accomplish. He is surly (quite the contrary) to his many friends, but, at the same time, he looks to each one to get done for and that man to himself.

Bolland not be anything else if he desired - there is an independence of thought and action that will not allow him to think of help when he has a problem to face. He is close-mouthed about his personal affairs, and will usually be found solved before other people have heard about it. Decisive, quick thinking - a man of action only to date.

If you want a personal reading of what your own handwriting reveals, send a letter in your normal handwriting, and state your birthdate with 10 cents coin, and a stamped (8c) addressed envelope. You will be surprised at the revelations of your character and talents. If you become more than one specimen for analysis, please enclose coin for each.

Gold Strike

Find Of Great Importance In North-ern Saskatchewan

Strike of gold on the shores of Lake Athabaska in north-western Saskatchewan is a find of major importance, according to Hon. T. C. Davis, K.C.

Mr. Davis returned from Edmonton recently, where he met several prospectors just back from Lake Athabaska. Reports were favorable and the find said to be said.

The strike lies 60 miles east of the Alberta boundary in Saskatchewan, and is easily accessible by water since the quartz lies right on the lake shore. Assays as high as $150 have been reported.

A Novel Lightning Rod

Many people of Central Europe believe that lightning will not strike houses if certain vegetables are grown on the roof. The German domestic-gardener, or Dundee cabbage, is most commonly used for such lightning prevention.

SUNDAY SCHOOL

By JACK MINER, Canadian Naturalist

"The little boys that I worked with in Sunday School twenty-five years ago are to-day the live wires of our community. In other words the Sunday School boys of to-day are the foundation of to-morrow's Christian community. And without some form or way of introducing our children to Jesus and His ways our Church and Christianity are bound to go down, and if we allow our established Christianity to go down we will have a most prosperous and hushed-up to nothing in the earth to-day. We will do no other nations have when your we ignore the blessed privilege of teaching our future kind and God that we may live

Moreover, I wish to say that I know no better or more economical way that a young man can develop a smiling countenance and Christian courage and loyalty in his own heart then by teaching a class of boys in Sunday School In other words the more we invest in the Sunday School the greater our daily income of blessing is

Personally I have nothing to boast of, but all to thank God for, as there I found my best friends and the Sunday school and it was there I am now also my wife and son now working my third book As far as education is concerned, the same can be said of my father, who never went to public school one day in his life, but his Sunday School teacher taught him to read.

Thus I have just reason to bow down and thank God for the Sunday School and its influence on

ISAIAH COUNSELS RULERS

Golden text: "Thou wilt keep him in perfect peace, whose mind is stayed on thee; because he trusted in thee." Isaiah 26:3.

Lesson: Isaiah, Chapters 7, 31, 36 and 37.

Devotional Reading: Psalm 21:1-7.

Explanations And Comments

Trust not in Egypt, but in Jehovah. 31:1-3. When Isaiah tells Israel his call to be a prophet, in the sixth chapter, he begins by saying, "In the year that King Uzziah died, I saw also the Lord." Others saw only the dying King; Isaiah always saw through events to God who is back of them. The rulers of Judah realize that there is imminent peril of Jerusalem's being taken by the Assyrians, but they give no thought of God. Isaiah pronounces woe upon them for going down to Egypt for help, relying upon the horses, chariots and horsemen of that country in the hour of their peril, and failing to seek the help of Jehovah. "Jehovah, too, is wise," the prophet proclaims (he speaks satirically), and he will bring calamity upon the evildoers. The Egyptians are men, not God, as the great men of Judah seem to think; their horses are flesh, not spirit; when Jehovah acts, both helper and helped will fall and be destroyed together.

"Take ye counsel, but it shall be brought to nought; speak the word, but it shall not stand: for God is with us." Others may devise wise and prudent plan for their times and prudence in carrying it out, was the last thing they thought of associating with God. Others they relegated to what they called their religion—their temples, worship, and piety."

A Call to Reform. 31:6-9. Turn ye unto him from whom ye have deeply revolted, O children of Israel; put away your idols.

"It is the duty of nations as well as men to own their dependence on the overruling power of God, to confess their sins and transgressions in humble contrition, yet with assured hope that genuine repentance will lead to mercy and pardon; and to recognise the sublime truth announced in the Holy Scriptures and proven by all history that those nations only are blessed whose God is the Lord." (Lindsay, Vol. I).

Turn to Jehovah and your foe, the Assyrian, shall fall, not by the sword of man, but by the stroke of God. "In the great crisis of her history, the invasion by Sennacherib, Judah was saved, as England was saved from the Armada, neither by strength of her bulwarks, for they had been burnt, nor by the valor of her men, for the heart had gone from them, but because, apart from human help, God himself caused her hostile foes in the moment of their triumph."

Stay On The Rolled Standard

It seems difficult, sometimes, to stay on the Gold Standard, but the "rolled" standard — oh! that's something else again. Once a man has "rolled his own" with Ogden's Fine Cut he's on this "Rolled" standard of smoking enjoyment for life.

Ogden's is might easy to roll and it does give a smoother, cooler and more fragrant smoke . . . To try Ogden's is to like Ogden's — particularly if you use "Chantecler" or "Vogue" Cigarette Papers. Ogden's Fine Cut and either of these makes of cigarette papers ensure you a standard of satisfaction that's well worth staying on.

ATMOSPHERIC PHENOMENA

(By Gordon H Guest, M.A.)

Dust, commonly associated with the gritty particles which float in the air in the course of "dust storms", is in reality responsible for some of the greatest beauties of nature. Sunrise, purple twilight and rain drops are caused by small dust particles which fill the air. The blue sky is almost as black as night, scientists say, if it were not that the particles of dust and water are present to have in the last twenty years. It all started when my little seven-year-old daily-school class and I got in the way of the Sunday School thirty years ago. Remember, Sunday School and Christianity are the foundation of our public schools and all other good things that follow. The best public school teachers I have known, preaching the best results in the public schools, were, in recent years,

Excavations Important

May Prove Valuable In Tracing Migration From Asia To America

Archaeological discoveries expected to prove of great value in tracing the migration of peoples from Asia to the Aleutian Islands in Alaska and thence to continental North America was reported at Cordova, Alaska, by Dr. Ales Hrdlicka, curator of the Smithsonian institution museum. Dr. Hrdlicka and his five student assistants unearthed a wall 250 feet long and 20 feet high in their excavations of Uyak bay. At the site of the wall were found many implements and remains of ancient Alaskan cultures which Dr. Hrdlicka said substantiated the contention that two pre-historic races had lived there at different ages.

WHEAT SITUATION IN FRANCE

The average annual wheat production from 1920 to 1931 was 276 million bushels, and the average annual consumption was 284 million bushels, leaving a deficit of 8 million bushels. Therefore imported approximately 30 million bushels per annum to meet the requirements.

In 1932 and 1933 however, France, in common with most importing European countries, showed a high yield per acre as the result of favorable weather conditions, and as both the production and consumption of wheat increased in that year, there was not sufficient wheat for export. In 1933 France had a crop of 327 million bushels, leaving the last two years her substantially surplus of wheat for export, and other than other foreign countries which she has been accustomed to be 300 million bushels, but of course, for the purpose of this calculation I have only taken the surplus of 30 million bushels available to export to other countries. The government intends to home these exports.

5 Northern	38	50
6 Northern	30½	46
Feed	17½	37
OATS
2 C. W.	15¾	21½
3 C. W	12¾	21

Top price for barley on October 14, 1933 was 29c, with the lowest grade bringing 19½c. On the date of Sept 13 this year, barley Grew brought 46c with the lowest price 24½c.

Funniest thing heard this week was little Albert Carlson pulling his wagon around with a lot of tin cans tied to it. When someone asked him why he had the cans tied to his wagon he said that he wanted to "make a noise like Daddy's truck."

NORTH AMERICAN WHEAT SITUATION

Total Annual Average Wheat Production ..... Million Bushels

Due to attempts to maintain the price of wheat at 1929 and 1930, the United States and Canada together would produce what has been accounted to quite recent months. Last year's unfavorable harvests throughout the world, but mainly in the United States by one hundred million bushels. This present year's disastrous crops of wheat and coarse grains in both the U.S.A. Canada and continents, should with an increasing world demand for wheat for bread purposes, and to a certain amount for animal feeding to bring burdensome surpluses down almost to a normal amount, i.e., the "carry-over" existing before 1928 If this proves to be correct then normal prices for wheat, on relationship of supply and demand, should prevail.

Russia And The League Of Nations

Soviet Russia having applied for admission into the League of Nations the burning topic at Geneva, as among many of the European capitals is whether that application should be approved or rejected. Russia has the powerful support of Great Britain, France and Italy as well as of some other countries, but is opposed by a number of the smaller nations, including Canada. It is reported Belgium, Poland and Greece while Switzerland the home of the League, is said to be sharply divided on the question. The London Times has expressed the belief that Canada and Ireland will line up with the opposition.

Unless unanticipated events are created through advance negotiations and conferences, the forthcoming meeting of the General Assembly of the League will be the acute, if not the crucial, test of the issue with the further possibility of the failure of Russia's application because an unanimous decision cannot be reached. Russia's admission is chiefly problem to solve, yet most persons in the world would be surprised if it is very surprising one.

It is not necessary to review the reasons which led to the establishment of the League of Nations, as set forth in its aims and objectives. Its very name implies that it was to be international in character, that it should include not some nations but all nations. Although certain nations remain outside its membership the League is not as strong as it should be. It is weakened by the absence of many nations. In the past month its great weakness has resulted from the refusal of the United States to join, plus Russia's absence and the very significant and barred former. Now that Russia is willing to come in she refuses to permit it.

The only answer I have heard to that contention is that the government of Russia is communistic. Premier Tardieu of France expressed it as saying that he will vote against Russia's admission into membership on the ground that it would forfeit its international character. Such an objection would be an excuse but surely it is not a valid and legitimate reason for exclusion.

Italy is a member of the League but that does not constitute sanction of international Fascism by the other nations of the world. Other nations may set up or have governments of communistic or fascistic or other forms. Some might turn socialistic, some become more and more democratic and others again return to monarchies or autocracies. Such developments are the right and privilege of the people of those countries. But they do not constitute reasons why they should be treated as outlaws among the nations of the world.

The people of any country have the sole right to determine their own form of government, that which in their opinion is best suited to their particular conditions or state of development. This is one of the fundamental principles underlying the structure of the League of Nations, namely, self-determination of peoples and nations. Failure to recognize it, and give effect to it, would quickly destroy the usefulness of the League and ultimately destroy the League itself as an organization.

There are times when, following internal upheavals and revolutions, a nation may lose the diplomatic recognition of other nations, but this is largely because the fact is not clearly established as to which of the contending groups really enjoys the support of the people in such country and can therefore be safely recognized as "the Government". But when a Government once becomes established recognition of it by other nations as a rule quickly follows. The reason by which it came into being, its principles and policies are a matter for its own people to approve or disapprove, and recognition by other nations does not necessarily imply approval.

The Union of Socialist Soviet Republics (Russia) has an established form of government, has had for years. It is recognized by most of the other nations. Agreeably or otherwise it is accepted by the Russians people. What reasons in there, then, why Russia should not be recognized by the nations acting jointly through the League of Nations and full membership and full membership in that body be granted to it? It is silly to argue that the granting of such membership in the League is to foster international Communism. One might as well argue that to now admit the United States would be to give international sanction to all the policies and implications of Roosevelt's "New Deal" or in the case of Germany to place the stamp of approval on Hitler and his Nazi policies and programme.

Regardless of what one may think of Russian Socialism and the policies and the theory of the Soviet government, and quite opposed as one may be to the introduction of similar principles and methods into their own country per se the world sense should wish Russia well. It is far better for the world that Russia should succeed and for such a vast area and certainly it would be unchristian and cruel to wish the Russian people to desire failure. Even though the Russian system is not to be desired nor prove beneficial elsewhere it may well prove so to suit state of development.

The best way to promote international good will, goodwill and trade thus promote the cause of peace — for the nations to get together. Let us know each other better. And the best way to do so is for such getting together to be in the General Assembly of the League of Nations. Therefore let every nation in who is willing to join, and desires to cooperate, do so. Let it be possible for Russia to come in and be welcomed. Let every possible opportunity be taken to bring us there.

Famed Racing Husky Dead

St. Godard Mourns Loss Of Nine-Years-Old Team Leader

Emil St. Godard, world champion log racer, mourns the death of his gallant leader Toby, one of the pampered dogs that ever stepped in harness.

Toby died at Peterborough, New Hampshire. The veteran of races across the continent suddenly suffered stomach trouble, and although three doctors worked on him they failed. I save his life.

Toby was nine years old. He was part husky and part greyhound, a combination of staying power and speed. He was owned in the St. Godard kennels and won 28 long distance classics.

Toby led the St. Godard string in six of the gruelling 200-mile derbies between The Pas and Flin Flon. He was also well known to sportsmen in Ottawa Quebec and New Hampshire.

"He fought all right," said Emil, when friends heard the news. "Toby was a wonderful dog. I intended to leave here in August to start training Toby for the derby. I will not have to train a new lead. I have several of Toby's pups at the ranch and they will work one of them in Toby's place."

DOCTOR SAID SHE MUST REDUCE

Fat a Danger to Her Heart

Overweight is not merely a matter of appearance, but a real danger to health. Fat is to the system of energy the internal organs have to bear. Too much fat lays down under the bowels and under the heart, and on the liver in an instance A woman has

I have been treated by specialists who tried to reduce my weight, as I suffered with heart trouble. But no matter what they gave me, nothing helped me. Then I read about Dr Kruschen everyone wherever I go I always always have more energy I have lost. I took it at first for rheumatism, and it has helped the world of good, as well as greatly reducing my weight before Christmas I weighed 224 lbs. Now I am 196 lbs. less in fact, a coat I had worn last year I now had to take to be altered before I was able to wear it again. I have also really made any difference with my diet, so there is only Kruschen that has done it.—Mrs. M. S.

The six salts in Kruschen assist the internal organs to throw off each day the wastage and poisons that encumber the system. Then, little by little, that ugly fat goes—slowly, yes but surely.

Alberta In The Lead

Province Has Highest Marriage Rate In 4 months

A bridegroom of 84 with a bride of 18; 20 brides under 16, three mothers who have borne their third child within the year, and a man who married when they were more than 80 years old are some of the highlights of the marriages recorded in the vital statistics records of Alberta. The province has the highest marriage rate in the Dominion, with 23,000,000 trout fry in the lake this year. Forty-pound trout are no novelty in Lake Superior and millions of trout and whitefish fry are placed in the lake every year. In fact, trout of 30 to 40 pounds are not nearly novelties even in some inland lakes.

Natural Metal On Earth

Newly Discovered Mineral Is Worth $1,000,000 An Ounce

The rarest metal on earth—worth more than $1 000 000 an ounce—was exhibited before the American Chemistry Society by an assistant chemistry professor who announced the first isolation of proactinium.

A. V. Brosse brought from the University of Chicago one-tenth of a gram of the metal, which he says resulted in isolating after years of

Proactinium is "squeezed" out of pitchblende The latter ore is reportedly plentiful in the Great Bear Lake and other northern districts of the Canadian west

Hard and silvery, the proactinium clung to a fine, one-inch thread of tungsten like drops of mercury. Its rays are more penetrating than radium. Its scientific and medical possibilities are wide. It emits the same kind of "Alpha, Beta and Gamma" rays as radium, and Dr Brosse said its "Gamma" rays, which are the ones used in medicine, will penetrate lead more deeply than those of radium. Its "Alpha" rays, which are fast-travelling particles, fly farther than similar particles from radium.

But proactinium does not give off nearly as many of the rays of any of the three types. It has a "half-life" of 32,000 years, which means that in that period it will radiate away half of its metallic substance Radium, in contrast, has a "half life" of 1,800 years

The difference in rate promises to make possible medical experiments with the new metal that are too dangerous with the faster-acting radium.

The tenth of a gram of a thread of the proactinium which radiated be squeezed chemically out of a ton of ore It cost $5 000 At the same rat- an ounce will cost $1,250,000

Oldest United States Town

Oraibi, Arizona, Inhabited Since 1200 States Scientist

Fortunately for St. Augustine, Florida, and Santa Fe, New Mexico, the oldest town in the United States has no chamber of commercial or advertising genius to dispute the claims for Dr. Paul S. While St. Augustine was settled about 1565 and Santa Fe dates back to about 1537, Oraibi has been the home town to generations of Hopis since 1200 A.D., and Dr. Martin convinced himself of the antiquity of the Oraibi pueblo by archaeological studies there

No Novelty In Canada

Publicity is being given to the fact that 40-pound trout have been caught in Lake Bevan in Armenia and that the Soviet government has placed 23,000,000 trout fry in the lake this year. In fact, trout of 30 to 40 pounds are not nearly novelties even in some inland lakes.

THAT DEPRESSED FEELING IS LARGELY LIVER

Wake up your Liver Bile

—Without Calomel

You are "feeling punk" mostly because your liver fails to pour 2 pints of bile juice into your bowels daily. When bile is not flowing freely, food just decays in the bowels, gets fermented, and your entire system is poisoned with gases.

When your bowels are loaded with decaying food and bile backs up in your liver, you get constipated, bilious, sick headachy, gassy, sour stomach, and your skin may break out in blotches. Don't merely dose your bowels with a purgative. Ask for Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets. They are purely vegetable and mild but thorough in making bile flow freely. Japan Grows Own Wheat

Country Now Able To Supply Its Own Requirements

The Japanese government's five-year wheat growing project, inaugurated in 1932 by the ministry of agriculture and forestry to enable the country to supply its own requirements of the cereal, has achieved its objective two years ahead of time Estimates submitted at a conference in Tokyo of the chief officials of the wheat encouragement bureaus in the various prefectures showed the wheat crop in Japan this year will yield 14,849,900 bushels while the estimated consumption of the country is 45,000,000 bushels

Since the domestic crop is now practically equal to consumption, the officials have decided to relax their efforts to increase production and to concentrate their attention on effecting improvement in quality

Although bread by no means supplants rice, which remains the staple cereal, it has been popular as a food for several years and army regulations prescribe mixing wheat with rice before boiling it for soldiers' rations The wheat constituents counteract the tendency of polished rice alone to cause beriberi thanks as it is called in Japanese

Japanese housewives consequently now mix some wheat with the rice before boiling it for the family table with apparent good effects on the general health.

Due to the world rise in wheat prices, Japanese flour mills have been finding back recently chiefly on domestic wheat. It is likely that the mills will continue to import a fair quantity of Canadian and Australian wheat of qualities not yet produced there, for mixing purposes, for some time at Last.

The Art Of Making Tea

Method To Use In Order To Obtain The Full Delicious Flavor

No beverage in the world is as universally popular as tea. It is used in nearly every civilized country and this delightful drink not only refreshes and invigorates the mind and body, but also serves as the medium by which people meet in a spirit of friendship and understanding the world over.

If the following directions which are now supplied by "Salada" Tea are followed, each cup will yield the full delicious flavour that makes t a so enjoyable

1. Use a tea of fine quality
2. Use fresh water always
3. Use an earthenware tea-pot

Scald out the pot to make it warm place in it a level teaspoon of tea for every cup desired, and one for the pot. Add fresh boiling water. Allow to steep about five minutes and stir slightly before serving

Tea made according to the above rules will be fragrant, delicious and completely satisfying.

Hint For Egg-Packers

When packing eggs for shipments a good practice is to put the hand lightly over each filler as it is packed to make sure that no eggs are projecting above the top of the filler. Such eggs almost invariably will break in transit. Before packing a case, examine the bottom and sides. If any nails are loose or have fallen out, replace them.

TURKEY HILL TID-BITS

Our Tid-Bits are rather late, readers, but hope you will pardon the delay. The weather has been so unsettled lately that threshing has been held up. Mr. Alf Lomas has made several attempts, however, and will soon have his crop finished. Mrs. A. Lomas, we hear, has composed a poem about the duties of the threshing crew on rainy days. Quite an inspiration, boys, we hope you took heed.

We've heard complaints lately about some wandering cows. Those have been busy helping themselves to gardens and grain fields. Too bad, Irene, they didn't leave you any school fair vegetables.

Wednesday didn't turn out a very pleasant day for the Fair. We must say, though, that Turkey Hill came in for its fair share of the prizes, and we thought, in spite of the cold, it was well worth the trouble we took to exhibit our entries.

Thanks Woodvale, for the lovely afternoon you provided on Sept. 2nd. Some of us were unable to attend and were sorry indeed when the others returned to relate the wonderful time they had enjoyed. The softball score was 17-14 in favor of Woodvale. We suspect the Turkeys had eaten too much pie and ice cream cones.

Well, school's in full swing again, under the able management of Mr. T. Chrisp. How was it, teacher, with the large attendance of three the first day! And where did you obtain your lessons in window cleaning? Quite inquisitive, maybe, but we noted the change in their appearance.

Miss K. Powell and Miss V. Young were among those who received a diploma in connection with the contest recently sponsored by the Canadian Cooking School.

Sixteen Years Ago To-day

Interesting Items gleaned from the Fi les of the Vermilion Standard

THIS DATE 16 YEARS AGO — 1918

Stephen Hrynyk has erected large frame premises at the top of the hill, corner of First St. North and Dalyea Ave., where he will carry on his general store business.

Chas. Hodgins, old-timer of the Wetlaskie district, is up from Hamilton, Ontario on a business trip.

The death took place at the home of his daughter, Mrs. H. A. Crosby, town, on September 18th, of a respected and venerable old time of this community in the person of Stephen Parsons, at the advanced age of 78 years.

Mrs. W. R. Fergusson (formerly of Pernassus Plats) passed peacefully away at the family home, town, on September 11th following a long illness. She was 51 years of age.

The City Livery was completely destroyed by fire this Thursday aft r noon and fourteen head of horses were rescued, including three valuable stallions, one being the first prize Clydesdale at the Vermilion Fair held last week and owned by Grant Cowley. Fred Keys' standard bred horse, and one owned by G. D. Jones.

The Vermilion site 1914. The advance made was 14 miles from the apex to the 20 mile mouth of the salient and took just 6 hours. The report stated 20,000 prisoners and 200 guns were taken.

Jottings a mention of a plant disease which is attacking some of his oats Official diagnosis of the disease calls it potato scab. The editor points out that the kernels are nothing but a mealess powder, due apparently to lack of moisture. It is of interest to note that garden peas, grown adjacent to the affected field, were impossible to use because of harmful bacterial action set in despite the cooking process. Mr de Breville has been informed that the disease lives over in stubble and seed, necessitating clean seed and summer fallow

By the way, Chandonald, does "a complicated case defies explanation" mean long legs or big feet?

Doug Do ye think it'll stop raining?

Alex Ah dinna ken, but it always has yet

The Pic Plate is awarded to Mr. Bowman Fyfe-Hunt for his kindly courtesy in loaning the School Fair exhibits to town for the Woodvale children. Thank you, Mr. F — keep the change!

The Dream That Built A Mighty Industry

How One Man's Vision Gave The World Its Greatest Breakfast Cereal

Twenty-eight years ago, W. K. Kellogg, whose name is now a household word, originated Corn Flakes—the greatest discovery in manufactured breakfast foods the world has ever known. Today, more than twelve million people have breakfasted on Kellogg's Corn Flakes. Thus one man's dream became a reality and Kellogg's Corn Flakes are enjoyed in practically every civilized country by people of almost every race and tongue.

What is the secret of this world-wide popularity? It is because the Kellogg institution has always adhered to the ideals of its founder. Not only has it aimed to give the public the finest food product that human intelligence, research, and up-to-date equipment can possibly extract from the choicest grain, but to insist on business methods based on honesty and sincerity. Quality has always been the first essential.

Kellogg's Corn Flakes have continued to lead the world and to think of Corn Flakes is to think of Kellogg's. So fine is their quality, so indescribably delicious their crisp, tasty flavour, that demand is ever increasing. Today it takes the product of 675 acres of corn to supply the daily needs of the world-wide Kellogg family.

The splendid Kellogg plant in London, Ontario, is one of three large, modern Kellogg factories. There happy Canadian people work under pleasant and hygienic surroundings and under ideal conditions to supply these tasty, healthful Corn Flakes to Canada, other parts of the Empire and European countries.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Editor, The Standard.

Dear Sir—In my letter appearing in the Standard on 30th August I made an effort to clear up some misunderstanding regarding the Clandonald District Football League. Evidently I have not succeeded with the Clandonald correspondent with the statement of mine to which he takes objection and owes a great amount of ink to disprove it. "The league originally began with four teams." These are exactly the words I used. Why he should "presume," from the above that I referred to the present season is beyond me. How can he apply the terms "origin and beginning" to the third season of the league without admitting the possibility that I was referring to the initial season of the league and all this bosh in the stomach as the St. Pats trip to Island Hill, etc., has no bearing on the point. Your correspondent took on a difficult task in attempting to establish an untruth where none existed.

Yours very truly,
Geo. T. Chalmers, Sec.-Treas.
Clandonald District Football League.

Editor, The Standard.

In view of the different reports reently given in the Standard as to the football league situation, I think it is up to me to give a few facts, particularly with reference as Island Hill's failure to get into the play-offs. Evidently Mr. Chalmers knew where the cup fried when he picked up the the position of dictator of the League in his letter to the Standard, although he stated nothing was done without ref ere ence from the executive. In that case, who ordered the Hill to play St. Pats, forcing the latter to a trip of about 16 miles, knowing that under League rules the game would have to be protested? Who rushed the games in close succession, giving only 4 hours' notice in the second, between Island Hill and Clandonald, before their cushtomary John Conroy, went to Edmonton for the rest of the season?

Mr. J. N. K. McAllister, chief commissioner of the Dept. of Colonization and immigration of the C.P.R., and the Rev. Father Meerbeaudt, O.S.B., M.C., managing director are on a tour of inspection of the Clandonald colony. Mr. N. Meiznes, supervisor of the colony, is directing the party.

In talking with Ernie Parley recently he informed us that he used Elephant Brand Fertiliser on his spring plowing this year. The field had not been summerfallowed for 4 years. As to result, Ern states that he threshed 30 bushels of wheat to the acre which matured about one week earlier than usual and is remarkably free from noxious weeds. When one considers that spring plowing is yielding from 12 to 18 bushels, it is easy to understand Ernie's enthusiasm. The fertiliser was purchased from Reg. Spencer. Mr. Parley is ordering a larger supply for the coming season.

During the present wet spell, we have spent a lot of time inspecting various samples of grain, which ran the gamut from No. 1 Northern, (a sample of Ed. Wilson's 223) to tough feed (grown by Moriarity of Landonville). This is one year when the grain buyer is headed for a lot of grief and the said buyers do not look any too happy about the prospect.

It would appear that otherwise sound grain has lost as much as two grades by having cut too green, the result of an uneven watering of the crop.

Since the last report there has been practically no threshing and it appears as if we will not get started before Monday next; even if the weather man is in his most happy mood.

Mr. E. J. Edge, proprietor of the Clandonald hotel, is installing an electric light plant + 32-volt A.C. This lighting system, along with the two-way heating system, make the Clandonald hotel with its large, comfortable, well furnished rooms, its splendid table d'hote, one of the most up-to-date along the line. Not to mention reminiscences of mine host, most of which would make a cat laugh.

The old man was looking kind of glum one morning recently, with a black look on his usually cheery mug. On questioning him as to the reason he proceeded to enlighten us, and how! It seems for the last three weeks the old man has been on a self-inflicted pledge to abstain from anything even approximating a stimulant. About that time he made a trip to Whitewright to visit the Buffalo Park. He solemnly assures us that he is willing to swear on any version of any man's Bible that he only stopped twice on the road. On entering the park imagine his surprise to see facing him an animal that looked like nothing on earth as much as a cross between a giraffe and a jack ass, with many other funny looking creatures to boot, including those of several pink elephants. The remaining occupants of the car proceeded to unload for a closer inspection of the animal, but about this time the "old man" began to collect his scattered senses. With a leap and a yell he landed in the driver's seat; the rest of the party tried to explain and calm him down, all to no avail. He was intent on getting places a long way from there. One of the party said "Can you drive the car?"; the old man came back with "Say, fella, can this car go?" They got aboard and he let her go and never stopped until they got back home.

Opening our facial cavity we gave three raucous haw haw's. Then we respectfully, from this dizzy heights of our superior knowledge, proceeded to explain to the old man something of the experiments going on by the government in an endeavor to get milk which won't freeze at 60 below, or something. We elaborated on buffalo being crossed with Hereford cattle, yak and other suitable animals, the hybrid get of which are known as Pakus." The old man looked at us with a sickly grin and said "Oh yeah." so he is still off stimulant; in spite of our most noble efforts to alleviate the sufferings of a fellow human.

THE TENDERFOOT

Author of "The Coronado Trail", "The Canyon Trail", Etc.

CHAPTER 1.

"When you tell me that you're going out to Crevasse County to claim your half of the old Hour-glass ranch, I tell you, Mr. Keene, that you're just asking for trouble." Thus Sheriff Ed Wyatt, vice-presiding of the Drovers Bank in Cato, leaned back in his chair, spread his hands flip-to-flip and stared at his visitor. He took him in from head to foot and frankly liked what he saw. Three he studied at some length on his desk.

"Your uncle was a good friend of mine," he said. "But he was very careless or unwise to make the will he did. . . ."

"What do you mean?" Gerald Keene straightened up in his chair and Simon Burwell grinned at him.

"Don't carry a chip on your shoulder, my boy. I'm not criticizing old Peter. Why, boy, I loved him. Your uncle lived many years in the West. He and old Joe Carr were partners for years. It was quite natural that when Peter died he should leave the Hour-glass ranch to his partner, Joe Carr. But when he dragged you in to the matter he only complicated matters. How long since you saw your uncle?"

"I never laid eyes on him in my life," said Keene. "He was my mother's brother and the family was widely separated. I happened to learn of the bequest quite accidentally. I had been . . . in business . . . in the Northwest and I happened to drop in at my old home. There I learned about the will so I got the letter from Judge Frame to you to identify myself. The old judge told me that you have always handled the ranch's business. That's so, isn't it, sir?"

"It has never kept me busy. I'm sorry to say," said Burwell. "There is no business worthy speaking of. You're the half owner of a big ranch that doesn't pay a dollar of dividends . . . and won't. Have you seen your uncle's will?"

Burwell did not wait a reply. He went to a wall safe and came back with a slim document that he read meticulously, accenting every word.

"You see, he left the Hour-glass equally to you and old Joe Carr and he provided that, in case either shall die, the entire property passes to the other. It's a queer sort of way to devise property. For more'n ten years old Joe Carr has tried to make a good thing of the place but each year he's only got deeper in the red."

"What ails him? Doesn't he know his business?"

"Oh, he knows his business all right. There's not a better cattleman south of the Palisades. . . . You may as well know the worst at once, Mr. Keene. . . . old Joe drinks quite a bit. He didn't always, but he does now. I think that's one reason for his failure to make the Hour-glass pay. He has lived there for years with his daughter. He has an excellent manager in Frank Crewe, but . . . Now, mind you, this is absolutely under your hat! . . . I believe, though he says any soul is couldn't prove it, that the Hour-glass ranch has been for years, and is right now, very thoroughly and consistently looted."

"Huh! . . ." Gerald Keene's gray eyes half closed and Simon Burwell had a feeling vaguely that they were shot with oblong hazel sparks. "You've said either a lot too much or too little, Mr. Burwell. Go on, please . . ." And he hitched closer to the desk as Burwell lowered his voice.

"Well . . . It began about five or six years ago when two men, Sam Dustin and Spike Goddard, bought a lot of scrip that they picked up and put up a ranch house. They called the place the Broken Spur and it was finally given over to raising purebred stock. They didn't have to buy good stock with old Joe Carr's bloodied Hereford bulls on the open range. All I really know is that bad spirit developed between the two spreads. I don't know what started, but I do know that over a year ago Jim Clinton, sheriff of Crevasse County, had both ranches in to pay off their men on different days. That was because every pay day in Seco was a regular Civil War . . . Anyhow . . . old Carr claims somewhat loudly, that Dustin and Goddard have been looting the Hour-glass, but he's never been able to prove it. All I really know is that, with cattle and water and land and grass, old Joe is gettin' deeper and deeper in the hole. That's all I can tell you; that you're half-owner in a big ranch and that, if you're not mighty careful, you'll have your head pulled under."

"Huh. Still I don't quite see. If old man Carr is losin' money, who pays it out? Where's it comin' from?"

"I've tried to tell you. God help you if you try to keep old Joe Carr's head above water. He'll only drown you both. But you'd better run out there yourself, Mr. Keene, and take a look at things."

"Thanks. I'm going to do exactly that."

As Gerald Keene rose and took his hat, Simon Burwell got a glimpse of gray eyes that narrowed in the glare and of a mouth that was almost straight above a full lower lip. The knowing vice-president grinned a little.

"I think my visitor will go far," he muttered. "I never even asked him what his occupation is. . . . Huh. A man used to selling bonds'll not learn much about a ranch. However . . . Old Judge Frame evidently takes an interest in him. . . . And I'm well quit of the business." But he rose and walked to the long window and watched his late caller as he left.

A half-hour later Gerald Keene plunged through the door of a hotel restaurant, slammed the door and gripped the shoulder of a man who was sitting in a chair by the window watching the world spin past between the toes of his boots on the sill.

"Duro," he said, "we're in a mess right up to our necks. I swear I don't see any answer to it. . . ." His lean face lit and his eyes twinkled. There are eyes that gleam and eyes that twinkle. These twinkled. There is a difference. One has humor; the other has none. Stone studied his friend for a brief moment.

"Shoot," he said

"Well, I gave old man Burwell my letter of introduction and he told me all he knew about the Hour-glass ranch. It seems that by my uncle's will (he died a year ago) the other half belongs to his old partner, Joe Carr. He lives on the Hour-glass with his daughter and has made a flat failure of it. If either of us dies, the other gets the entire ranch . . ."

"What could he tell you about your uncle?" demanded Stone.

"Very little; only that he was a lovable old fellow and that he was a mighty fond of Carr. Oh! He told me, too, that two men, Dustin and Goddard, in the past few years have bought up a lot of 'scrip' and started a ranch next to the Hour-glass. They call it the Broken Spur. Burwell says old man Carr drinks a bit and is convinced that Dustin and Goddard have been systematically lootin' the Hour-glass for years. You bet about old man Carr's drinkin', isn't it?"

"It sure is. You can reform anybody but a systematic drinker. Go on."

"That's all Burwell said there's a regular feud between the two ranches that reached the status of a Civil War on pay-days. I reckon old man Carr's been shootin' off his mouth too much after a drinkin' spell. You know how it is. They say a lot more'n they ever started to say. Could you find out anything?"

"A little. While you were over at the bank I hunted up a man I know. You see, I used to work for the Lazy M in Nebraska. They were a member of the Stock raisers Association an' that's a lucky bet in a cattle country. Just because Nebraska went crazy over Free Silver is no reason her people shouldn't be sane in sports. Old Ben Lyon, who used to be their attorney, is practicin' here now. I saw his shingle as I went to see him while you were with Burwell.

Stone thoughtfully rolled a cigarette and went on as though talking to himself.

"Ben says he's known Joe Carr since he was a pup. He says that drunk or sober, old Carr is as straight as a lariat but that for some years he's been up against hard luck and plain up against it. About this a years ago a pony stamped him against a buckin'-post in a corral and busted hell out of his right leg. That's when he began to drink, I reckon. It busted him up a good deal. Not enough to keep him from ridin', but enough to make him a poor bet on a ranch that needs a good eyes. He's got a fine manager in one Frank Crewe, but they just can't make both ends meet."

"What became of that bill the store sent us?"

"Oh, I sent it back marked insufficient funds."

Carried Out Old Idea

Peter The Great First Thought Of Huge Russian Canal

Praise to whom praise is due—and most assuredly praise is due to the Russian engineer, Serge Kyk, entrusted by the Soviet government with the gigantic task of linking the Baltic and the White sea by means of a canal, said to be the biggest in the world. It was in December, 1931, that operations started under the most discouraging conditions. To begin with, an efficient staff had to be trained, recruited for the most part from young graduates with little else but enthusiasm for their equipment. Then there were the natural floods, intense cold, difficulties of supplying the necessary building materials, food for the workers, etc. On top of this there were no skilled craftsmen to be found in the locality and a totally insufficient number of unskilled workmen. Not the least remarkable of Kyk's achievements is the method by which the number of about 100,000 thousand, were converted into willing workers by promises of freedom after faithfully performed their duties for the benefit of the country. Many inspiring tales are told of the changing of hardened criminals to self-respecting citizens, who labored with a will to get the job completed on time it was finished in nineteen months.

It is said that Peter the Great had such a canal in mind when he transferred the capital from Moscow to St. Petersburg His idea was to utilize the two great lakes, Onega and Ladoga, for the purpose and this has now been done. On the Onega-White sea section sixteen dams had to be built, with 33 sluice canals, 23 discharge basins, 19 locks, of which 13 had to be constructed in hard rock over a hundred feet below sea level; while millions of cubic yards of rock had to be blasted and removed, and a million and a half trees were cut down and carted away.

Furs By Airplane

Fur trading in Canada to-day contrasts strikingly with that in the old days. Recently a shipment of furs valued at $125,000, consisting of forty-four bales weighing 1340 pounds, was carried by airplane from Ubern Alberta into Edmonton, the capital of the province. This was the largest and most valuable fur cargo brought from the North by plane. In pioneer days many weeks of slow travel were required to make such a delivery.

Modern Marvels

Activity Of Science Has Narrowed Space And Shortened Time

The other day a gentleman in Jasper, Alberta, talked to a friend on the S.S. Empress of Britain on the high seas. The conversation was sent by wires to New York, thence to London, and then transmitted through the radio channel back to the vessel. This book-up was made in fast time, and the three minutes' talk was quite clearly heard

Just recently, Premier Bennett, sitting in Ottawa, spoke briefly in dedication of a giant electric sign placed on the Grand Building opposite Canada House in London, England; and his words were written in a running line of illuminated electric letters at the foot of this same sign. A moment later the premier pressed a lever and the sign itself sprang to light.

These two incidents are typical of the marvel of the modern world a marvel that has been achieved through the activity of science Space has been narrowed and time shortened. Nor has any of the glamor or excitement or the salt of satisfaction been taken out of living thereby.—Winnipeg Free Press.

A Banker's Passport

Carries Engraved Portrait Clipped From Ten Dollar Bill

All passports bear a photograph of the holder, but there is now proposed authorized and issued to a Canadian without his photograph—it carries an engraved portrait clipped from a $10 Bank of Montreal bill. The holder's name is Sir Frederick William Taylor, a director and formerly general manager of the Bank of Montreal.

The circumstances under which Sir Frederick clipped the bill and attached the engraving to his passport application are not known, but this well known Canadian excercised the usual caution attributed to bankers by retaining the serial numbers in order that the bill might be replaced by a new note.—Financial Post.

Rumania Has New Law

Men Must Have Government License To Grow Beard

The wearing of beards in Rumania is under government ban. Hereafter a permit will be required for such facial adornments Uniformed government couriers departed on horseback for a tour of Rumanian villages to announce the new regulations. By bugle calls and drum-beatings they assembled village residents in the public squares to announce the ruling. The regulation created consternation among members of the orthodox Jewish population, who, by Mosaic law, are not allowed to cut their beards.

"It's the finest gasoline we've ever used!"

NATURALLY, we are proud of FIRE-CHIEF — proud of the fact that it actually surpasses other gasolines in quality and value.

We could tell you the technical reasons why Texaco FIRE-CHIEF is better and how it is constantly being improved. But we know that you are more interested in what FIRE-CHIEF will do for you in your car.

MINING INDUSTRY COMES SECOND TO AGRICULTURE

Calgary.—In the heart of this agricultural area of the Dominion a federal official cautioned that the mineral industry of Canada was gaining rapidly upon agriculture in export value to the country.

Dr. Charles Camsell, deputy minister of mines, addressing the western annual meeting of the Canadian Institute of Mining and Metallurgy, declared agricultural exports increased in 1932-34 by 13 per cent, while in the same period exports of minerals and their products jumped by 60 per cent. over previous years's statistics.

In 1933 the value of Canada field crops amounted to $422,148,000 and mineral "crop" $230,501,000. The mining industry now employs directly or indirectly in agriculture among the principal producing industries of the country, "Mining," declared Dr. Camsell, "strikingly illuminate the mineral industry in the great and growing role it plays nowadays in Canada's foreign trade."

Describing the intensive search for gold in the Rainbow Lake area, encouraging results, Dr Camsell added: "And it may not be amiss to stress that international conditions are at the shadowing, or likely shadowing in the future in the demand for the precious metal."

"The enhanced value of the gold exports has had much to do with the Dominion's total foreign trade immense gold reserves, is raising May $1, 1934, to $1,150,568,900 from $923,-003,560.

"The increasing price of gold has added immensely to the Dominion's wealth. A great boon has been conferred upon Canada by her gold resource resources, in the raising of the price of the one product that above all others is most readily saleable," declared Dr. Camsell.

The deputy minister said the world demand for gold was greater now than ever. History showed the price of gold had been periodically raised. Through the ages had never lowered. He did not believe it was likely now to recede to the recent standard level of $20.67 per ounce.

Unemployed Man Becomes Successful Manitoba Farmer

Winnipeg. Two years ago P. Langner was one of Winnipeg's unemployed. Weary of fruitless job-seeking, he decided to apply relief for himself and his family.

To-day he is a successful Manitoba farmer at Mafeking. Memorie of the back-to-the-land commission and Langner came into his office, placed a bundle of Dumas wheat on his desk and announced he had sold 1,700 bushels of it at 98¾ cents a bushel. The premium was paid because of the wheat's quality.

He has more to sell and expects a gross of $3,500 this year.

Wants Money Back

Has Unused Railway Ticket Purchased in 1870

Chicago John Watt isn't going to take that train ride he bought a ticket in 1870 so he wants his money back.

The Chicago office of the Canadian National-Grand Trunk Railways reported that Watt, who lives at Auburndale, Mass., bought the ticket in Chicago for passage between Detroit and Boston.

Watt presented the ticket and it was forwarded to the general offices in Montreal, with the request for his money back.

The ticket, Watt said he was told, was good "until used."

Would Stop Bloody Strikes

Chicago Action aimed at preventing hasty calling of printers' strikes was taken by the International Typographical Union convention after the delegates voted to change the union rule which required a strike vote of local members within 24 hours after its authorization by the executive council of the International, to allow the council discretion in fixing the time for a vote.

Deputies Intrigue

De Valera Of Irish Free State Refuses To Remain And League

Geneva.—Small nations raised their voices as the League of Nations assembly opened general discussion—Austria in fervent declaration and the Irish Free State in fervent protest.

Chancellor Kurt Schuschnigg, rigidly guarded by secret service men, stated Austria's case, reiterating Austria's insistence on independence.

Long, lean Eamon de Valera, president of the Irish Free State, followed Schuschnigg and somewhat hesitatingly declared he did not object to Russia's entry into the league, but he did object, vigorously, to the backstairs intrigue going on over the wording of the invitation to Russia. De Valera demanded the whole matter be put before the league assembly.

Schuschnigg stressed his words as he declared the intention of his government to preserve Austria's internal and external independence. He denied the Austrian co-operative state was reactionary. "We are not reactionaries," he said, "but sufficiently realists to dispense with a backward glance at the policy of an earlier day."

Mr. de Valera said flatly that he didn't like the lobbying that has been conducted to secure Russia's entry. He objected to the "hoteroom intrigues", the drafting and redrafting of the form of invitation.

His was ready to vote for Russia's entry, he said, although the ideals of the Soviet and of the Soviet were poles apart. From inquiries he has made he gathered that Russia would have the necessary two-thirds majority vote to enter the assembly, and that Russia was ready to join.

"They may not get down to business at once, and bring the matter before the assembly without attempting to deprive any state of its right under the convention to object to Russian membership," he demanded.

Indians Claim Rights

Mistawasis Tribe Alleges Band's Funds Improperly Spent

Prince Albert, Sask.—Aged Chief George Dreaver, 73-year-old head of the Mistawasis Indians, testified in the exchequer court hearing of the band's petition of right here that the speeches made at the signing of the treaty in 1876, commissioners of Queen Victoria promised that cows, rice would be supplied free to the Indians on their reserve located west of here.

In their petition the Indians allege that the department of Indian affairs improperly spent $21,273 of the band's funds. Medicine and education, which they claim were to be free, were charged against funds held in trust by the government for the band. Other expenditures for farm instructors' salaries, education and maintenance of deaf and dumb members of the band, overcharges for 20 head of horses and payment of freight money to two women not members of the band were improper and without sanction, it is alleged.

Electric Lights In North

Mission Hospital Guarantee Its Own Electricity

Ottawa.—Encountering severe gales, ice, rain and fog, the steamer Nascopie, carrying the 1934 department of interior's expedition to the posts in the Canadian Arctic archipelago, continues to make progress on the season's patrol.

A highlight of the visit to Pangnirtung was the installation in the Anglican mission hospital of a plant for the generation of electricity, a donation by the family of the late Reverend Kemp, Toronto. The hospital was ablaze with light before the steamer left to proceed northward.

Spalding, deputy commissioner of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police, to officers of the force in the Arctic and sub-Arctic posts to see that the Migratory Birds Act was obeyed by white men and Eskimos. He stated if there were a like decrease in the number of migratory birds in the next 30 years as there had been during a like period in the past, Canadians of the future would never see wild geese or ducks.

James Brewer, of Montpelier, Vt., was chosen president. John Farley, of San Francisco, was elected first vice-president.

Big Ben Is Burnished

Historical London Clock Has New Coat Of Paint

London.—Big Ben has had his faces washed and all dolled up with German paint and bright gold.

A drab and gloomy landmark when it was put in splints for overhauling, Big Ben reappeared in the same gilttering finery as it did in the early sixties.

The gold is real gold, too, applied in the form of the thinnest of gold leaf.

TELL OF HUGE PROFITS FROM WAR MUNITIONS

Washington.—The vast Du Pont Corporation of Delaware was shown before United States senate munitions investigators to have done a war order business totalling $1,245,000,000 between 1914 and 1918—part of the profits from which went into General Motors stock.

Pierre Du Pont, member of the munitions manufacturing family, told investigators that $47,000,000 of the corporation profits were spent to buy one-fourth of the common stock of General Motors.

Three brothers Irenee Du Pont, Pierre S. Du Pont and Lamont Du Pont and their cousin Felix Du Pont, were in the room.

The testimony brought out that Du Pont was the first United States company to receive great orders, and in the first year of the war, from September, 1914, to September, 1915, it received $365,000,000 worth of war orders from Europe In all of 1915 orders totalled $323 000 000. During the year before the war the company's business amounted to only $36,000,000.

The end of the war brought a cancellation of $260,000 000 in contracts held by the Du Pont Company.

"The war's end meant a great change for us," said Pierre "a great change.

A report said the company showed a net loss of $10,601 060 in 1919

Chinese Demand Food

Inland Province Faces Famine After Summer-Long Drouth

Nanking, China. The wolf growls loud and louder in famine-stricken Anhwei province.

A summer long drouth that has waved fields, dried water courses and made desolate that thickly-populated countryside gave no sign of ending, and hungry desperate farmers swarmed into smaller towns demanding food from rice shops. These closed, fearing attacks.

Advices from inland province — where the rigors of the winter are as great as those of summer indicated relief must be forthcoming promptly if wide-spread disorders and banditry are to be averted.

There were grim stories of hunger-crazed wolves sweeping down on helpless villagers, farmers using their last small supplies of drinking water in fruitless efforts to move parched crops, peasants dying everywhere of hunger, disease and pollute water supplies

Stronghold Of Peace

Adolf Hitler Pledges Germany To Peaceful Measures

Berlin. Adolf Hitler again solemnly declicated Germany to the cause of peace. The reichsfuehrer received the diplomatic corps in the reichspresident's office, last occupied by the late Paul von Hindenburg and told the assembled envoys:

"The unalterable goal of my policy is to make Germany the strongpost of peace."

ADVOCATE STEPS TO FACILITATE TRADE WITH U.S.

Winnipeg Early action by the governments of Canada and the United States toward reciprocal tariff concessions was urged by the ninth annual convention of the Canadian Chamber of Commerce here.

Support of reciprocity came as the convention adopted the annual report of the policy committee, which also urged a trade mission to China in 1935 to stimulate Canadian trade in the Orient.

Economy in government and a national unemployed relief policy with the Dominion contributing equitably on a basis of provincial needs also were approved. Administration of relief should be under provincial departments or commissions.

Land settlement as a step toward solving unemployment was advocated. The convention also recommended a Canadian wheat institute to stimulate marketing and aid of Canadian wheat in markets of the world and co-operation between federal and provincial governments for protection of the public in sale of securities.

The convention approved steps taken by various federal governments to negotiate trade agreements that would secure concessions for agricultural products on new markets, and urged that every advantage be taken of every possible opportunity to extend this principle

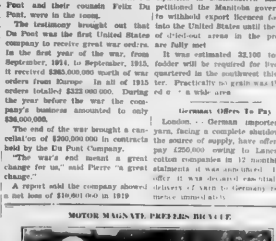
Appointment of committees by the incoming nations council to study the problem of immigration, and another to deal with upset social conditions and allied problems was decided Duplication should be avoided and steps toward climination asked

The chamber approves the principle of the best talent in the community and its encouragement in all of its activities. It declared the policy section dealing with the reciprocity question.

It notes that on June 12 1934, the president of the United States was granted by congress authority to enter into foreign trade agreements and to modify existing agreements. It expresses the opinion the governments of Canada and the United States should enter into negotiations at the earliest possible date to determine the extent to which mutual concessions can be arranged with a view to accelerating the movement of trade between the two countries

Immediate removal of duplicatory taxation and steps to cut costs of government in the federal, provincial and municipal field were written into the policy report as a result of previous action of the convention It asked reduction of membership of the federal cabinet house of commons, senate and provincial legislatures. End of duplication and overlapping of government services such as administration of insurance, company law, agricultural and health and social services was advocated

MOTOR MAGNATE PREFERS BICYCLE



Recently Lord Nuffield (formerly Sir William Morris famous British automobile magnate, stated that the best days of his life were spent on a bicycle and that for health and pleasure he still preferred to tour the countryside by that means As a sequel to that statement the British Cycle and Motor-Cycle Manufacturers and Traders Union sent a deputation to Lord Nuffield's home at Cowley and presented him with a new bicycle This picture shows the happy peer riding his new steed

Strongest Steps To Make Change In The B.N.A. Act

Ottawa.—A letter prepared by Prime Minister R. B. Bennett before his departure for Geneva, has been dispatched to all provincial premiers asking for suggestions for a date at which they will meet with the Dominion government in Ottawa to discuss constitutional and other questions, as tentatively planned at the last Dominion-provincial conference. The letter dated August 21 asks

What steps can be taken to reduce the evils of duplicate taxation and produce a more logical allocation of sources of revenue now available to Dominion and provinces"

As the provinces prepared to submit their exclusive jurisdiction over legislation dealing with such social problems as old age pensions, unemployment and social insurance, hours and conditions for work minimum wages, etc, to the Dominion parliament, if so, on what terms and conditions"

Is it desirable to redistribute more effectively some the respective jurisdiction of the Dominion parliament and provincial legislatures with respect to health and agricultural and other matters in which there is duplication of effort by federal and provincial authorities"

Consideration of the extent to which there may be more complete co-ordination of the efforts of federal and provincial authorities with respect to the existing and possible extension of statistical information and what steps if any should be taken to ensure uniformity and complete adjustment of Canadian statistics

In the event of it being determined that the legislative jurisdiction of the Dominion parliament and provincial legislature as at present defined in the British North America Act should be modified, a determination of the form in which the amendments to the America Act should be made.

Appeal For Unemployed

Legion Head Suggests Plan To Help Them Keep Confidence

It is only by proper application of sympathy and understanding we shall be able to help them back to normal life," declared General Ross "and I can suggest no work more appealing to service clubs than the task of rebuilding these men into normal, healthy citizens."

The Canadian Legion, General Ross intimated, was studying a plan that would provide vocational and physical training for returned men out of work.

The cars will be shipped care of the municipal secretaries in the various districts concerned, and these officials will have charge of the distribution of the donations. WORLD HAPPENINGS BRIEFLY TOLD

Traffic earnings of the Canadian Pacific Railway Company for the week ended Sept. 14 totalled $2 942,000, as compared with $2 454,000 in the corresponding period last year, an increase of $488,000.

Jeffrey Arnott, assistant purchasing agent of the Canadian Pacific Railway, has been promoted to the post of assistant purchasing agent with headquarters at Vancouver, B. W. Roberts, general purchasing agent, Montreal announced.

Canadian farm products exported to the United States in August were valued at $1,266 000 an increase of more than $500 000 compared with the corresponding month last year when they amounted to $833 000 the Dominion bureau of statistics reported.

The cost of living in England increased by one per cent during August, the Labor Ministry Gazette stated. Taking July, 1914, as the average, the cost of living index was 143 per cent. on September 1 compared with 142 on August 1. The index stood at 141 in September, 1933.

Full freedom for civil servants to participate in politics, even to the extent of being a candidate in the federal, provincial or municipal arenas through leave of absence without pay, will be sought during the coming session of parliament by the Amalgamated Civil Servants of Canada.

Grave fears as to the survival of the Pyrola Canadian race as a distinct species in Canadian soil are felt by Mayor Camillien Houde of Montreal. Speaking at a ceremony to commemorate the arrival in Canada of Jacques Cartier, Mayor Houde questioned the likelihood of the race's survival.

The weekly illustrated paper, "Canada," published in London for the past 27 years, is being merged with another weekly, the "Canadian Gazette." The editor and founder of the former publication, Walter Lefroy claims 27 years of prominent association with Canadian affairs made it unwise to let it die.

Minister of Finance E. N. Rhodes declined to say definitely whether Canada would follow the lead of the United States and nationalize silver. An assurance was sought by two Montreal silver exchange officials, but the finance minister said he could not be expected to make any definite statement on a government policy of such importance.

WHAT DOES YOUR HANDWRITING SHOW?

By LAWRENCE HERBERT
(Graphe-Analyst)
(All Rights Reserved)

The increased interest in Graphe-Analysis, the science of character delineation from handwriting, has brought in its train not only a host of converts, but the inevitable sceptic.

One of the most frequent objections is posed by those who ask "How can handwriting show one's character, when we are taught how to write from the same copybook in school?"

The answer to this objection only proves how strongly handwriting does show character. Because if you will study the writing of a single class of students who have learned writing from the same copybook, a few years afterwards, you will not find two who write alike.

Each one writes different results a different stamp, a different pressure and different conformations of letters. This shows that, as one grows, one's character changes or strengthens, and one's handwriting changes too.

And whilst I am discussing objections, I would like to stress that it is not possible to tell a person's age or sex from handwriting. Here and there a trained graphe-analyst will be able to hazard a guess. There is no scientific foundation for it, however and consequently, no reputable graphe-analyst will attempt it.

There is increasing evidence that certain ailments can be discerned from handwriting. People suffering from heart trouble reflect this condition in their writing.

But graphe-analysis has not yet attained the point where it is possible to analyse ailments from handwriting with entirely scientific accuracy.

These are factors that time and continued research will attain, but character analysis from handwriting is an accomplished fact. And it is also true that vocational guidance can be given by trained graphe-analysts.

If you want to discover your own characteristics and traits as revealed by your handwriting, take advantage of the offer made at the foot of this article.

BAKED CORN AND TOMATOES

2 cups cooked corn
2 cups tomatoes
1 teaspoon salt
Pepper
1 teaspoon sugar
1 cup fresh bread crumbs
3 tablespoons butter

Mix seasonings with the corn and tomatoes and pour all into a greased baking dish. Spread the crumbs over the top, dot them with the butter and bake in a moderate oven for one-half hour. This is a satisfactory way of utilizing left over corn or tomatoes.

BAKED PRUNES

Cover 1 pound of prunes with cold water and let stand for four hours. Drain prunes and reserve the liquor. Add ¾ cup sugar to the liquor and boil until the sugar is dissolved stirring if necessary. Place the drained prunes in a covered casserole cover with hot liquor and bake in moderate oven (325 degrees F.) 40 minutes

Dodges High Taxes

Woman Of 90 To Marry Young Man So State Will Not Get Her Money

Life to Antonia Moreira of Lisbon, Portugal, has consisted of one long collector after another and now at the ripe old age of 90 she is going to strike all through my life but collect taxes."

Court permission has been given for the marriage. Senora Moreira acutely told the court that she knew she would die very shortly and that "it would be a sin if I died and all my belongings should pass over to the state's treasury, which did nothing all through my life but collect taxes."

In marrying a young man, she would be sure that her possessions would mean a good chance in life for him who, strong and young, might then be happier in life, despite the high taxes.

To Safeguard Pedestrians

Beacons To Be Erected In London Streets For This Purpose

"Belisha beacons" will be erected for protection of London pedestrians, another feature of the war on motor accidents. They get their name from Leslie Hore-Belisha, minister of transport, who presided at a conference when it was decided to introduce them.

These are posts seven feet high with a yellow-painted glass globe, unlighted, at the top. They will be put at the crossing-places for pedestrians. In the dark they will reflect headlights a quarter of a mile away.

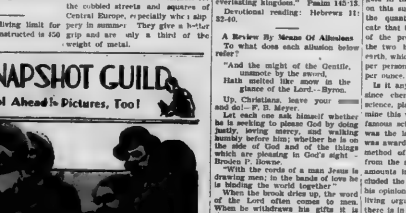
The SNAPSHOT GUILD

School Ahead In Pictures, Too!



Excitement is part of the picture at any football game. It's easily worth the missing of one play to get an over-the-shoulder shot like this!

ABOUT this time of year, school is in everybody's mind; and not only students and teachers, but parents, aunts, and uncles.

And if there ever was a snap-shooters' school, it is school. It may be a one-room school or it may be a great university. Wherever, whatever it is, so, it's crammed with snapshottable picture possibilities.

Yet we might as well face the silly fact of the matter—few snapshooters make the most of school's snapshooting opportunities.

Perhaps they are dazzled by the very wealth of the material at hand. More likely, they think that somebody else is going to take the pictures. And that's a fatal mistake. For nobody else can see things as you see them. And it's what you see that means most to you—and to the folks at home, now or years from now.

The question, then, is how to make the most of school's picture possibilities. A little planning will do the trick.

First, about the right camera for school days. Success will do, provided it is clean and in good order and uses a size of film that is easily available anywhere. If yours has a fast lens and a fast shutter, you'll have an advantage in taking shots of sporting events, but such a camera is not at all essential. With a little care you can make even the simplest box camera turn out entirely satisfactory pictures.

Then, how can snapshooting be planned? All of it, of course, cannot be planned, but many of the most important shots can be. Why not work out a scenario, Hollywood fashion?

First of all, whether school's just a mile away, you'll want a few good shots of home. Then a view or two on the way to school. Maybe those views seem commonplace now, but wait a few years.

At school, of course, there are the obvious shots of the buildings, the campus, the football gridiron, teachers, old friends, sports, picnics, class ceremonies, and so on. It's a good idea to take them so as to form a kind of continued story. Then, when they are mounted in your album, the pictorial story will flow along evenly.

It's easy to plan ahead for the kind of pictures mentioned above, but don't forget the spontaneous things.

For example, if there's an exciting football game, try the trick of shooting blindly back over your shoulder into the crowd at an exciting moment. People won't notice the lens and the chances are that you'll get some amazing facial expressions!

And in less exciting moments it is still a good idea to avoid "posed" pictures as much as possible. Simply standing up in a row, or sitting primly at the camera, simply don't look comfortable, that's all. Catch them at leisure moments, as they perch on the school steps or linger on the lawn.

A really good collection of school pictures is hard to find, as any school year-book editor will tell you. Yet there's nothing much easier to take, and few snapshots increase in value, year after year, as surely as those taken at school.

Flying At High Altitudes

Wiley Post Soon Fast Time Made In Upper Stratos In Near Future

Wiley Post, round-the-world flyer whose most recent interest has been an experiment with an aeroplane that would make commercial flying practicable at altitudes of around 40,000 feet, arrived in Vancouver recently.

Since he completed his solo flight around the world in the record time of seven days, 18 hours and 49 minutes, Post has been working at development of a high altitude ship he said he believes his machine is capable of sustained flight at around 40,000 feet and will make 350 miles per hour at that altitude. He is certain high altitude flying will be commercially general before long.

For flights of 300 miles it will be economically better to rise at least to 20,000 feet, Post said, and for longer flights, sometimes will travel from 40,000 to 50,000 feet above the ocean.

Estimates set the cost of the proposed inter-American highway from Alaska to Argentine at $160,000,000

Little Journeys In Science

GOLD FROM THE SEA

(By Gordon H. Guest, M.A.)

Many people know that there is gold in the sea, but the authorities on this subject are in dispute as to the quantity. Figures given indicate that there are about 700 ounces of the precious metal for each of the two billion inhabitants of the earth, which would amount to $24.500 per person if gold is valued at $35 per ounce.

If it any wonder then, that ever since chemistry became an exact science, plans have been proposed to mine this wealth from the sea? One famous scientist lured by the idea was the late Dr. Fritz Haber, who was awarded the Noble prize for his method of producing ammonia gas from the air. He found such small amounts in sea water that he concluded the idea was impractical. In his opinion there is more gold in the living organisms of the sea than there is in the sea water.

Recent developments seem to indicate that the chemist of the near future may be able to extract gold from sea water commercially. This is based upon the fact that a plant has been built in the United States for the extraction of bromine from the ocean.

Bromine is used in the production of ethyl gasoline and hence is in great demand. A few years ago chemists turned to sea water for bromine, even though it contained only seventy parts of bromine in a million of water. Very large gasoline ties of water must be treated along gallons to obtain a pound of bromine.

It is easy to see why scientists talk so confidently of securing gold from sea water. Bromine is only worth twenty c[illegible] gold is valued at [illegible] Thus, in spite of the fact that there is much less gold than bromine in sea water, science is hopeful of mining gold on a commercial scale from the ocean. It has been estimated that the gold content of sea water is about $35,000,000 a cubic mile.

Skating Rink On Glacier

James Simpson, guide, naturalist and artist, has scraped smooth the surface of a glacier lying between two mountains near Banff, Alberta to make a summer skating rink for his bunky daughters, Mary and Margaret. He said skating on glaciers will be common in a few years.

"A CARROT WHAT WAS A CARROT!"

The Editor has seen carrots of all shapes and sizes, and has eaten them cooked many different ways and not cooked at all—the latter with dismal results sometimes—but a carrot that climaxed all carrots was brought into the office by Jim Knoll, son of Dr. J. J. Knoll, on Monday afternoon, and what a carrot! It was almost too big to believe. It tipped the scales at exactly two pounds, measured two inches long and was easily 14 inches in circumference at the top.

Is This Real Sport?

The international yacht race for the America Cup between the British challenger Sir Thomas Lipton's Shamrock and Charles Townsend Bedford's Columbia is the subject of international discussion in the magazine section of the Sunday City of the London Observer. Setting forth the facts and figures relating to the two vessels it has a caption reflection on the part of the multi-millionaires who annually engage in this sport. The yacht race is not a sport, says the writer, but a form of gambling. The part of those who engage in it quite the contrary. No gate admission can be charged and the spectacle is free to millions who can get within sight of it.

But the most important element of these yachting affairs is financing it during the time in which it is staged. Last year it is said that a million dollars was put up by wealthy boats and the actual total cost is staggering. In this matter alone the cost of preparation and of money for such a race is justified as only one of participants can at a time whose millions of dollars are at their disposal. Indeed, it is said that the latter is one of the few sports which does not depend on the gate receipts for its existence. Yet the yachtsmen are the wealthiest of all sportsmen and are they making the most substantial contribution to the well-being of their fellow-men?

What is real sport? What is a true definition of real sport? Real sport is one which takes part of life, and it should, therefore, be engaged in, not by a select few, but by all. The means by which we should be the development of the fittest, and what sport is all who engage in it coupled with the individual and local interest. It thus traits of character which recognize and meet with fairness. Prejudice, a true knowledge of the rules of the game whatever it may be, acceptance of defeat with good grace and a spirit to win by fair means.

If this is a correct definition of real sport it must at once become a mere money-making enterprise. Such is the case with yachting. The fact that it is not a money-making enterprise is proved by the fact that its expenses are not met by gate receipts and salaries the men engaged who are in the pay of the underlying real sport are sacrificed to the sport.

Unfortunately much of the so-called sport of to-day has degenerated from the ideal of amateurism to professionalism; from love of the game to love of the dollars that may be earned. It is no longer sport or recreation, but a cold, competitive business.

This has been true in baseball in the United States. Tens of thousands of people pay to see the stars in well-nigh highly trained experts play ball. These thousands of themselves bourse for the "home" team with such interest as they may be a native son or even a resident of the home city, but unspecified men, from anywhere simply because they have the knack to excel in a certain position on the baseball diamond. Such is the great national game of the United States, but it is not sport. It is nothing but a business highly organized to the nth degree to make money for the owners of the franchise and their high salaried ball-playing employees. Instead of the thousands of spectators being benefited physically or otherwise by reverse in true they ought to be actively participating during these leisure hours in some health giving recreation.

In its heyday lacrosse the old-time ball game of Canada, was an amateur sport. Thousands of boys engaged in it, and the love of the game and the exercise they obtained. Professionalism crept in, and Canada's national game died. Canada's great winter game ice hockey is travelling the same road thanks to the adoption of the game by the United States and the invasion of the world's sport magnates with their offers of large salaries to expert hockey players. Professionalism makes inroads into football, golf, tennis, in fact in few games curling, for instance remain free of the taint.

What and who are responsible for this condition? The love of money, the grabbing instinct of man. Recently universities and colleges to a considerable extent. Large universities pay extravagant salaries to so-called sports directors to coach their football teams. Such institutions are prostituting the ideal of all members of their student bodies, but to build up a championship crew or team in the varsity departments of sport to carry the college colors to victory at British affairs in the country, and command the admiration and ultimate enlistment of youth from all over the country. It is no longer sport in the truest sense but a business proposition with such institutions.

With bad few exceptions people love sports. Practically every child likes to play games. It is a natural born instinct, and it has its place, and a big place in the physical, mental and moral development of youth. But it is being perverted. It is on material ends with the result that sport in its real sense is largely being in the larger centres of population and we must go to little small town villages and rural communities to find games and sporting activities engaged in by the masses for the intrinsic love and joy of the game. Sport in its true sense and meaning should be strongly encouraged everywhere but at a time a ball was called to professionalism in sport, and to its twin evil of making proficiency in any one branch of it the end all of one's existence.

Prince Assisted Miners

Waived Royalties Until Mine On Estate Was Self-Supporting

The Prince of Wales went down a Somerset coal mine that came to life close to the spot where a coal mine had died.

There is a human story behind this "new coal field for an old one."

The prince heard it from one of the doughty West of England colliers who conducted him round the pit.

Thirteen years ago a coal mine at Farrington Gurney closed down. Three hundred men were thrown out of work. They were idle and forced to go on the "dole."

Three years later, determined to make work for themselves, a small band of them applied to the Prince of Wales for a concession to dig close to the dead coal field. It lay in the grass of a dusty estate.

The prince lent a sympathetic ear to the colliers plea. He told the men the royal would waive any royalties until the mine was self-supporting.

The men set to work. After deep excavating they struck coal. Every row and again the prince inquired how the mine was working.

Now the mine is paying for itself. Fifty men are in full-time employment, one hundred and thirty-five are part-time, and more are being taken very week. And the Duchy of Cornwall is reaping its dues.

The prince is one of a royal welcome from the black-faced colliers.

Then he disappeared half a mile under the ground for a quarter of an hour and watched the men dig for coal. He reappeared, his hands black from the lack of coal-miners he had lent almost double.

Air Survey Reveals Ruins

Ancient Earthworks Sunken For Centuries Were Invisible From Air

A moundbuilders' ceremonial chapel and an ancient roadway, approximately two and one-half miles long, were discovered for the first time near Newark, Ohio following completion of an aerial survey by Captain A. W. Stevens, intrepid army photographer and participant in the recent ill-fated attempted to invade the stratosphere.

The discovery was made by Dr. Henry C. Shetrone, archaeologist and director of the Ohio State Museum while examining air photographs taken by Capt. Stevens' at museum offices in Columbus, Ohio.

Invisible from the ground, these once mighty ancient earthworks, believed constructed by Hopewell Indians, have lain sunken for centuries unnoticed by residents of this vicinity.

The roadway, which is 150 feet wide, is of perfect geometric proportions and indicates that people of the Hopewell era had some knowledge of that mathematical science, museum officials believe.

A keyhole-shaped figure on the air photo, the chapel, which lies at the road's southwest termination, is approximately 200 feet in diameter at its circular part and is believed to have been a ceremonial oracle of the Hopewell tribes

Located between two perfectly proportioned circular Indian mounds southwest of the city, the territory in which the new discoveries were made has long been a mecca for archaeologists and tourists.

Tunnels and elaborate underground burial rooms similar to those found in the world famous Ogden Mounds near Lewiston, Ill., also products of Hopewell culture, might be found as a result of the new discovery Shetrone believes.

First research of the Newark Indian burial grounds was made in 1846 by Squire and Davis, early archaeologists who explored Ohio and the Middle West.

Although they indicated the beginning of the roadway in maps filed with the Smithsonian Institute in Washington, no further trace of the earthworks had been discovered until the air exploration, L. Captain Stevens, museum officials say.

Cook's Home Rebuilt In Australian Park

Even Its Taken To Melbourne With Explorer's Cottage

Packed in 253 boxes and transported by 33 lorries, Captain Cook's cottage was taken through the streets of Melbourne, Australia, on the journey to its resumer to the Fitzroy Gardens, where it is to be re-erected in connection with the centenary celebrations.

Everything about the Yorkshire cottage has been preserved with amazing thoroughness, even to the creak on the staircase, as one wit remarked. Stones for the walls flagstones for the floor, joists rafters and beams have all been marked and numbered.

A bag has been forwarded containing the original mortar which held brick and stone together, also a bag of nails which will not be used for hammering in, but interesting as showing the type used

The key stone will not be replaced in its original state. The quarantine authorities demand that it be fumigated, as a potential bearer of disease. In exchange for the cottage, Cook's birthplace, Great Ayton, York, is to possess a stone oh-ick modelled on the monument commemorating his discovery of Cape Everard.

Lignite Coal

Development Of Coal Field In Saskatchewan Carried On Successfully

Development of high moisture lignite deposits in southern Saskatchewan, which are located a considerable distance to the east of other fuel sources of Western Canada, has been carried on successfully throughout the depression years, R. L. Sutherland, consulting engineer for the Saskatchewan Coal Operators' Association, told the western meeting of the Canadian Institute of Mining and Metallurgy at Calgary.

"The increase in production in the Saskatchewan field and use in recent years when the general trend of production has been downward," he said, "has been due in part to economic conditions and in part to improved preparation at the mines."

The more densely populated sections of Saskatchewan and Manitoba, he said, offered a wide market for the southern Saskatchewan fuel.

Doubled Up With Rheumatism

Could Not Wash Himself Nor Brush His Hair

So bad was his rheumatism that his fingers were doubled up and he could not work again. Although he is 70 years old, Mr. Thompson, I could not brush my hair nor wash myself. People said I should never work any more, but after reading Fruit-a-tives I was on my feet and have been working hard ever since. Fruit-a-tives is the only medicine I take for rheumatism and I always keep it in the house. I take them in my tea, and I have recommended them to friends. I could not get in or out of bed myself, nor sit up in a chair, but after 3 doses a day sometimes Fruit-a-tives Kruschen Salts have done it."—Mrs. Thompson.

Rheumatic conditions are the result of an excess of uric acid in the body and the ingredients of Fruit-a-tives Salts have the power of dissolving uric acid crystals. Other ingredients assist Nature to expel these dissolved crystals through the kidneys and bowels. In addition, there are still other ingredients which prevent food fermentation in the intestines, and thereby check the further accumulation of poisons which undermine the health.

When Duties Are Divided

Work In Very Seldom Done As It Should Be

Affairs at the French ministry of finance, where the windows are never clean because, as someone has just discovered, the ministry of finance is responsible for the inside and the ministry of fine arts for the outside, and the two ministries never arrange to clean both sides at once, had an almost exact parallel nearer home to early Victorian days. When the prince consort began to make the arrangements at Buckingham Palace, which he found far from satisfactory, he was informed that the lord chamberlain had charge of all the interior rooms except the kitchens and pantries, which were under the lord steward, while the exterior came under the office of works and forests, and that they never met to synchronize in cleaning the windows. On demanding why there was never a fire in the dining room he was told "the lord chamberlain lays the fire, and the lord steward lights it." As the underlings of those two officers never had any dealings with the queen was left to dine in the cold. Manchester Guardian

Need Coin-Container

Philatelists Sending Money Through Mail Use Variety Of "Stickums"

A crew of 15 postal clerks at Yellowstone Park, Wyoming, which handled the 90,000 requests for first-day covers on the new Yellowstone stamp issued recently, wonder why someone has not invented a special coin-container for philatelists

Collectors sending in five, ten, twenty-five and fifty-cent pieces used every conceivable method in making the cash conformers with the envelopes which they wished to have the new stamp as well as the cancellation mark from the Yellowstone post office on the first-day covers. Tar, adhesive tape, molasses, wax, honey, chewing gum and syrup were among the varieties of "stickum" employed

The clerks all exhibited over theirs at if Eldorado Stone Hedging Tar the well protected cash.

Planes Equipped For Toning Up Pilots Under Instrument Hood

Ultra-violet rays have been added to standard equipment on aeroplanes the New York Herald Tribune says in regard to flying at Floyd Bennett Field, New York's municipal airport.

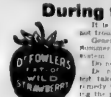
Looseness Of the Bowels During the Summer Months



It is well-to-do during the summer that most people are not troubled with some form of looseness of the bowels. Generally it develops into Diarrhoea Dysentery or Summer Complaint and has a tendency to weaken the system.

Do not delay the discharges too suddenly. Do not experiment with a new and untried remedy, but take Dr. Fowler's Extract of Wild Strawberry, a remedy that has been used by thousands of families during the past 84 years.

DOUBLED UP WITH RHEUMATISM

Could Not Wash Himself Nor Brush His Hair

So bad was his rheumatism that his fingers were doubled up and he could not work again. Although he is 70 years old, Mr. Thompson, I could not brush my hair nor wash myself. People said I should never work any more, but after reading Fruit-a-tives I was on my feet and have been working hard ever since. Fruit-a-tives is the only medicine I take for rheumatism and I always keep it in the house. I take them in my tea, and I have recommended them to friends. I could not get in or out of bed myself, nor sit up in a chair, but after 3 doses a day sometimes Kruschen Salts have done it."—Mrs. Thompson.

Rheumatic conditions are the result of an excess of uric acid in the body and the ingredients of Fruit-a-tives Salts have the power of dissolving uric acid crystals. Other ingredients assist Nature to expel these dissolved crystals through the kidneys and bowels. In addition, there are still other ingredients which prevent food fermentation in the intestines, and thereby check the further accumulation of poisons which undermine the health.

"It Helps Me!"

That's what 98 out of 100 women say after taking this medicine. It quiets quivering nerves, gives them more strength before and after childbirth, tides them over Change of Life . . . makes life seem worth living again.

A FURTHER STEP
on the Road to Recovery

A Statement by the Prime Minister of Canada

THE Dominion of Canada will offer for public subscription within the next few days the 1934 Refunding Loan. It is an undertaking of such significance to every citizen that I think it fitting to present this brief explanation of its relation to the welfare and continued progress of our country.

The 1934 Loan is not an incidental effort. It is a part—and an essential part—of the great debt conversion programme in which Canada has been engaged since 1931, and by which we are refunding at maturity the large sums borrowed at the height of the depression. The success of this programme and of the 1934 Loan as part of it means be over emphasized. It is important from three aspects: 1—National Credit; 2 - National Economy; 3 - National Recovery. I shall deal with each of these in turn.

1. National Credit

National credit means to a nation what an honest reputation means to a man. Its maintenance is a primary essential and necessities that each obligation be met fully and promptly, as it comes due. Our debt conversion programme is like the family budget, our method of meeting our obligations and thus maintaining our credit

By this programme Canada has already refunded $636,000,000 of maturities. By the end of November of the 1934 Loan will bring the refunded total to over one billion dollars. Already, Canada's credit stands extremely high, both at home and in the great money markets of the world.

Striking evidence of our high credit standing was given within the last few months when Canada secured immediate over-subscription of a long-term loan in London at a price to yield the investor less than 3½% and, in New York, obtained 3 Treasury Bills of $20,000,000 bearing interest at 2 per cent. And there is equally striking evidence in the personal sphere in the fact that every interest issue of Dominion of Canada Bonds now outstanding is selling today at substantially above its issue price. The twenty-year 6% Bonds of the 1933 Refunding Issue, due in 1953, are now selling at 104 to yield approximately 5⅞%.

2. National Economy

The debt conversion programme, in the second place, is providing substantial savings to public interest charges. The debt which we are refunding was incurred with interest rates at unusually high levels. Refunding operations is now being accomplished with interest rates throughout the world moving steadily downward toward lower normal levels. an encouraging world movement which is essential to business recovery. By refunding under these conditions Canada has already obtained a reduction of the previous interest charges amounting to more than $9,000,000 per annum, and completion of the 1934 Loan will provide a further saving of over $5,000,000 per annum.

The annual saving of over $14,000,000 thus secured has a direct cash benefit to every tax-payer. The saving has much more than offset the interest charges on the debt which has been incurred to meet the extraordinary burden of unemployment relief. It has, to a considerable extent, offset the heavy burdens which the depression period has imposed with respect to railway and other current requirements. It will also pave the way to tax reductions with the return to better times.

3. National Recovery

The debt conversion which Canada has achieved since 1931, by thus maintaining national credit and assuring national economy, has been a major factor in our progress toward business recovery.

A year ago, preliminary to the 1933 Refunding Loan, I took occasion to express the belief that Canada had passed the low point of depression and was definitely upon the road to recovery. Today, our progress toward recovery is a matter of established fact. Since the low point of February 1933, the trend of business has been moving steadily upward in an impressive manner and is now substantially sustained that we need no longer doubt its reality.

The facts of business recovery are written beyond dispute in our statistical records. The most significant indices of trade to be played a dominant role in business, industrial production, merchandising, electric power production, employment and prices. Here is the record in each case:

	PERCENTAGE INCREASE.
	During 1933	Over Point of Depression
1 And volume of business	11.4%	45.8%
Industrial Production	15.7%	56.9%
Merchandising	11.1%	49.2%
Electric Power Production	12.3%	32.7%
Employment	14.1%	17.1%
Wholesale Prices	7.2%	12.7%
Farm Products Prices	9.7%	63.3%

The rate of increase in production, employment and prices during 1933 was the most marked of any year in the history of Canada.

Our internal trade figures are equally encouraging. During the first five months of 1934 the value of production of Canadian products increased approximately $90,000,000, or 12.2% over the same period last year. Employment during the year increased more than eighteen per cent, or 36.2%

A Further Step

Anyone who reflects upon these three aspects of credit, economy and recovery will at once appreciate that the 1934 conversion programme entails important benefits to every Canadian and that, consequently, the success of the 1934 Loan is the personal concern of every man and woman in the Dominion.

The 1934 Loan is a further step in a great national undertaking; it is a necessary and important step on the road to recovery. I know that I need not stress the attractiveness of the Loan as an investment. It is a splendid investment, for there will be universally recognized. I do, however, earnestly call upon my fellow Canadians to support the Loan to the limit of their abilities as an opportunity to promote our national welfare. I know of no way in which the individual citizen can render greater service to himself and to his country.

Electoral Map Of Battle River Rid'g Being Re-Cast

Old Polling Subdivisions Disappear While New Ones Come Into Being

Enumerators Will Complete Lists of Voters. Day of Sweering in on Election Day is Past

In the next federal elections there will be in the vicinity of 10c polling subdivisions in the riding of Battle River, according to a map of the electoral district now being prepared by Returning Officer S. C. Herbert Vermilion as usual will have three polling stations, while Lloydminster, Wainwright, Provost and Hardisty will probably be divided into two each for the first time. In these towns (or mostly they voted in different booths according to alphabetical arrangement, owing to the fact that a new constituency to the south and another to the west as far north as fanfarlere were drawn off following the 1931 census and which were added to the adjoining ridings of Acadia, Camrose and Vegreville, the electoral map had to be recast in which process many old polls will disappear and many new ones come into existence.

It is interesting to note that the first electoral map was prepared under A. J. McArthur of Hardisty who was the returning officer at the time of the riding W. E. Mills of Wainwright, who followed in his footsteps after the redistribution of the creation of the riding W. E. Mills of Wainwright, who followed in his footsteps after the redistribution, made several changes. Then there was another re-enacting made by J. W. G. Morrison of Vermilion, who was returning officer during the prohibition election. During the registration under both Mills and McArthur the riding began below Cormanton and ended at Cold Lake. The foundation of the present alignment was laid by Mr Morrison. This was followed by Geo. L. Hodson of Wainwright who was returning officer in the 1926 election. W. J. Shortreed of Hardisty who held that office in the 1930 election made some changes, renumbering the polling stations, and this has formed the basis of the map that will soon be declared by Mr Heather. The latter has endeavored to simplify the arrangement by following the township and range lines as far as possible so that the location of the poll will be easily traced on the map. Upon completion of the allocation of the polling subdivisions the list of polls will then be handed over to Mr E. H. Gerrard who is the franchise officer and who has to do with the appointment of the enumerators under the new Franchise Act enumerators become permanent officials and will revise the electoral lists for their respective polls each year. The last to be prepared from the 15th to October to the 12th of November of this year, when they are finally closed until be a basic list for each polling subdivisions. If your name is not on it you will not be entitled to vote. The day of swearing in on election day is past. The new regulations make no election lists and give everybody the opportunity of knowing whether he can vote or not. It places the responsibility upon the basic list is completed directly upon the elector himself. The enumerators will be as accessible as possible. The preliminary lists will be posted in conspicuous places so the voters will be able to find out if their names are on and if not the enumerators whom also the returning officer for his part will place them on if the applicant proves that he is qualified to vote.

Mr Alex McCallum manager of the Dominion bank at Clarkfield, Sask., and his son Hugh were visitors in the district for a few days at the home of the former's sister, Mrs R. W. Beerbower. They were en route to Edmonton where Hugh will attend the varsity. Clarkfield is situated in the drought stricken and grasshopper plagued area, some 60 miles south of Moose Jaw. Mr McCallum was modest enough to the abundant vegetation here as his home district is nothing but a desert stripped clean of what little did manage to survive the dry weather by the myriads of hoppers

WILDMERE WINKS

The Brothers have finally finished at the widow's home after being delayed off and on by rainy weather two weeks. May it be their last and everyone pat themselves.

Wildmere Community Club gave a "shower" for Mr. and Mrs. C. Cruthers and Mr and Mrs. J. Marfleet last Friday evening. It was to have been Saturday but owing to threshing starting on that day it was changed. A very nice crowd attended. Dancing was enjoyed for a few hours, then a dainty lunch was served, after which the girls were given to the happy couples. And many lovely gifts they received, among them were a set of silverware each, given by the Club. Jimmie Wallington was chairman and on behalf of the crowd wished them every happiness and success. Cliff and Jack thanked everyone very nicely for all the kindness shown them.

Glad to see Mr. J. Barnhart has moved to his farm again, after his illness last July.

Mr. Brown preached his farewell church service at Beauvoud last Sunday. We were unable to attend, although we would have liked to. We wish Mr. Brown every success as he goes forth to his studies.

Mr Cornish and Mr. Dunning are holding church service at Beauvoud on Sunday, Sept 30th. Everyone is welcome.

Noticed Around the District

Mr Parker, the school inspector, visiting the different schools. Eric Madill carting flax. Harry Howard trying out his new threshing separator for last Saturday. Tom Best digging a new well with the help of Jos Payne. Penshost thing seen was Tom Best driving around the country on Tom day with a sleigh, with the wagon box on backwards. It has been cold enough to, sure, Tom, but you are rushing the season a little, don't you think?

Can anyone remember losing a sweater at Wildmere school last Christmas concert? If so, let the writer know.

There may not be any "Winks" next week. If it stays dry the writer will be chief cook and bottle washer for the threshers again.

OBITUARY

MELVIN DENNIS

The funeral service for the late Melvin Dennis, eldest son of Mr. and Mrs. A. L. Dennis, Minburn, was held from the United church, Minburn, on Sunday afternoon, Sept. 16th. The service was conducted by Rev. W. T. Cronk. At the conclusion of his sermon the minister said: "Your presence here this afternoon is your silent method of expressing to the sorrowing friends your tenderest sympathy for them in their hour of deep bereavement. And in your name we would seek to convey to Mr. and Mrs. Dennis, to Eleanor, Irene and Gordon, our sincerest regrets for the early and untimely passing of their beloved son and brother, Melvin. The heroic and brave struggle that this young sufferer patiently endured has touched the hearts of the whole community, for the people of this district have been deeply stirred by the long drawn-out battle that he waged against the harbourer of the human race, death itself, but finally death prevailed and his earthly journey has ended.

"Now there are two ways that we can meet sorrow and loss, the one, the wrong way, is to harden our hearts, to cultivate a rebellious spirit and to blame God for our griefs. The other way — and I think the right way is to lift our tear-stained eyes to heaven and say, as Jesus said when the shadow of a cruel cross was lying athwart His path, "Not my will but Thine be done."

"Though dark my path and sad my lot—
Let me be still and murmur not—
Or breathe the prayer divinely taught,
Thy Will be done."

"And do you remember the next verse of that beautiful poem of Charlotte Elliott's?

"If thou shouldst call me to resign
What most I prize, it ne'er were mine;
I only yield Thee what was Thine,
Thy Will be done."

"The author recognizes that we are but stewards of God's heritage, whether it be in the possession of children, natural gifts or worldly wealth. And when we submit to the inevitable and place our wills in God, in some passionate struggle was a divine benediction seems to fall upon our spirit and a peace that passeth all understanding gentlens and sustains our hearts.

"Permit me to say how bravely and nobly Mr. and Mrs. Dennis and family fought to preserve the life of Melvin. They left no stone unturned if per chance sickness might be overcome in his body. All that modern science could offer was procured this service, skilful and tender hands ministered to him the twenty-four hours of the day, and the full cup of parental devotion was poured out (as they believed) unto Him but human effort did not prevail and it is now the sad duty of Melvin's former school companions to lay his precious dust back into mother earth. And there shall we let him rest and around his lonely bed shall bloom in the seasons come and go, nature's fragrant flowers and here his head shall wave the prairie grasses and in deeper tone shall be heard the song of the willows."

The burial took place in the Minburn cemetery the pallbearers being John and Roy Dow, Jack Wilson, Frank Mead, Ernie Wilson, Ernie Dow and Jack Dow.

The Objective

Alberta Pool Elevators are out to prove that a co-operative grain handling concern can be an instrument of usefulness to all grain growers and a successful business concern as well

Every grain grower in the vicinity of an Alberta Pool Elevator is invited to aid in this effort to perpetuate in Alberta, by Alberta farmers, for the good of all, a strong, grower-controlled, co-operative elevator organization.

This can be done with advantage by delivering grain in wagon lots or car lots to

We convey our thanks to Ye Ed for the brave and daring leader he saw to this column in last week's issue, and vow that the precedent is established, well, we'll be looking for you.

A whisper for the ear of "our old friend Mac": We spent ten minutes searching the headlines for you in the last issue. And mind us merely to please; we have all that stuff we can carry.

Apropos to that, we met an old acquaintance in town the other day Constable Hervey of the "Mounties" was Lt. Hervey of the Calgary Light Horse. He enquired for Major V. B. Cassey and Capt. Al Beecroft of "Canadian A.M.R.'s" who were classmates of Mr. Hervey in 1930 at the Royal Canadian School of Cavalry, Calgary. He is at present stationed in Lloyd minster and invites these gentlemen to "look him up" as opportunity offers.

We are very sorry that Mr George Chalmers, Sec Treas of the C.B.F.L. misread our notices recently. "Mistake" was the word we used not "untruth." We have no desire to enter into a grammatical argument as to "origin" "bestiana," and their precise meaning we know of more interesting ways of killing time. Mr Chalmers insinuates that because we do not see eye to eye on the meaning of a word that we are below the level sea in intelligence. We don't remember at any time making any claim as to our intelligence, we are prepared to admit our lack of same to any extent to Mr Chalmers satisfaction. However, we are sitting to developer in this direction and hope as time goes on to reach the intellectual plane occupied by Mr. Chalmers.

This, dear reader, will be our last remark in connection with the District Football League unless anything of news value develops.

THE ROMANS had a phrase for it - - -

"CAVEAT EMPTOR," meaning "Let the buyer beware." This wasn't used as a bit of balm to ease the ancient conscience; nor, yet, was it placarded in the booths and stalls of the market-place. It was a piece of every-day knowledge, born of dear-bought experience.

A shopkeeper knew little about the source of his merchandise. This music he bought from a trader, who said it came from Byzantium. So he sold it as the latest Byzantian style. The trader told him the dye was pure Tyrian—it wouldn't fade. So he sold it as Tyrian dyed. But the buyer knew the responsibility was his own. If he guessed wrongly, or his judgment was poor, it was his hard luck.

Today, fortunately, there are safer guides than the blanket-warning to "let your eyes be your market."

These guides are the newspaper advertisements. In this newspaper, they are a catalogue of the best values in town—signed by responsible firms. If the goods are not all that is claimed for them, their sponsors would need to "beware." For no business can thrive on a one-time sale, or on dissatisfied customers.

A signed advertisement is, in a way, like a promissory note. The advertiser has made a statement, and affixed his signature as a sign of good faith.

So, read the advertisements before you start out on a buying-trip. Make this a weekly habit, and see how much you save - - - in time, in temper, in money, in shoe-leather.

Even Rheumatic Pains Eased Fast Now!

BAD HEADACHES, NEURITIS PAINS OFTEN RELIEVED IN MINUTES THIS WAY

Remember the pictures below when you want fast relief from pain. Demand and get the method doctors prescribe—Aspirin.

Millions have found that Aspirin eases even a bad headache, neuritis or rheumatic pain often in a few minutes!

In the stomach as in the glass here, an Aspirin tablet starts to dissolve, or disintegrate, almost the instant it touches moisture. It begins "taking hold" of your pain practically as soon as you swallow it.

Equally important, Aspirin is safe. For scientific tests show that Aspirin does not harm the heart.

Remember these two points: Aspirin Speed and Aspirin Safety. And, see that you get ASPIRIN. It is made in Canada, and all druggists have it. Look for the name Bayer in the form of a cross on every Aspirin tablet.

Get list of 12 tablets or economical bottle of 24 or 100 at any druggist's.

Why Aspirin Works So Fast

DROP AN ASPIRIN TABLET IN A GLASS OF WATER

Drop an Aspirin tablet in a glass of water. Note that BIG, FORE it touches the bottom, it is disintegrating.

IN 2 SECONDS BY STOP WATCH

An Aspirin tablet starts to disintegrate and go to work.

What happens in Your glass happens on your stomach—ASPIRIN tablets start "taking hold" of pain a few minutes after taking.

THE TENDERFOOT

By GEORGE H. ROBNEY

Author of "The Coronado Trail", "The Canyon Trail", Etc.

SYNOPSIS

"You've fallen heir to a half-share in plenty of trouble," the lawyer told Gerald Keene. "The Broken Spur has been systematically looting the ranch, and old Jon Carr, your partner, is drinking himself into ruin."

(Now Go On With The Story)

"What seems to be the trouble?" Keene's tone was anxious.

"Exactly what I asked old Jon. He said that as far as he can see there are two reasons; Carr is mighty old fashioned . . . and the Broken Spur is next to 'em."

"Well, what of it? These days none one's got to be next door."

"Huh. You're damned innocent for the man I know you to be. I suppose you never heard of rustling!"

"That's archaic," said Keene sharply. "Men don't rustle these days."

"Think so? Wait a bit! Old man Carr is always short of cash. He has to hire his men just for the time he needs 'em. He's got only about four or five men permanently on his payroll. That means that poverty keeps him from buildin' up a bunch o' waddies he could count on to charge hell with a cup o' water if the Hour-glass needed it. He's honest, too, and that's a handicap when he lives next to the Broken Spur. For years Dustin and Goddard have been tryin', by a kennel, to get the water supply that makes the Hour-glass valuable. Can't you see what happens? Old man Carr, crippled, is bein' robbed deaf, dumb and blind to make him sell his place. . ."

"But he can only sell his share. Half of the place is mine. . ."

"Well then . . ." Stone hauled himself erect in his chair . . . "It looks to me as if one Gerald Keene, before long, will find himself partner to two crooks. If old man Carr is right. Don't you see? If old man Carr will have to sell his half of the Hour-glass to these new Dustin and Goddard to stand square with the world . . ."

"Does your friend Lyon say these men Dustin and Goddard are two crooks?"

"He didn't have to say so. He said he couldn't understand 'em. Old Ben is so straight that the only man he doesn't understand is a crook. Why?"

"Well . . . I told old man Burwell I was goin' to run down to the Hour-glass and have a look at the place. If I go as the half-owner I'll learn exactly nothin' if there's any crooked work goin' on. I'm thinkin' it'll be best for me to go down there with a letter of introduction from Gerald Keene, the half-owner of the Hour-glass, to old man Carr. To get me a job down there and see for myself what's goin' on."

"Huh. Gerald Keene'll learn nothin' but good on Gerald Keene's ranch," said Stone grimly.

"That's on. I can't go to the Broken Spur because if Dustin and Goddard are really crooked, they'll not be hirin' any strangers on the ranch. If things are as crooked as men say the Hour-glass'll be the place to learn about it. My plan's the best. I'll go down there with a letter from Gerald Keene' and you stay here till you hear from me. I'll get me a job. . . ."

"Huh! What kind of a job! A qualified cowpuncher'll be under suspicion the minute he hits the place. Why would a qualified workman take on with a busted ranch when there are others better able to pay him what he's worth? You can't get a job."

Keene stopped him on the shoulder. "You're on. I can't. But I'll go as a tenderfoot. I'll take a letter of introduction to old man Carr. I'll be Duro Stone lookin' for a job to learn the cow business. You know every druggister in the East is turnin' out amateur cow-punchers. I'll be one."

Stone laughed in spite of himself.

"I know the type. Druggister cow-punchers! Nickel plated gun an' bearskin chaps! Bought straight from Montgomery-Ward. Hlusche, mum! You can't do it. You can't fool anybody who's ever forked a cayuse. Your walk; your color; the way you ride . . . Nothin' doin'."

"I'll show you. Let me at that telephone till I order some stuff."

In five minutes he had send an order crashing across the wire.

"To be delivered in twenty minutes sharp," he said.

In a half-hour it was there and a grinning boy pouched the receipt.

Keene thrust the toy into the hall, untied the package and turned to Stone.

"You damned old Doubting Thomas" he said. "I'll show you! Wait."

He was gone like a whirlwind. A half-hour later the inner door opened and a new figure stood in the doorway. Neatness overlay all his garments. His stitched boots wrinkled about the ankles and his red-and-green shirt faintly crushed in its creases. His white gootskin chaps had evidently been combed and newly brushed and a nickel-plated six gun showed three freshly filed cuts across its butt whereout both men laughed mightily. Stone roared with laughter and Keene raised himself on his toes and studied his reflection in the long glass.

"I'm Dure Stone," he said. "I'm goin' down to the Hour-glass to get me a job back-a' cows and calves into their little beds. I'm goin' to learn all there is to be learned about cows an' their ways. I'm not Gerald Keene. I'm Duro Stone who used to sell papers on the Rock Island route. I always did want to be a cow-puncher. Will I do?"

"God knows what you'll do," quoth Stone between grins. "But if you find out what the trouble is at the Hour-glass or the Broken Spur, you win for me Gerald Keene. That's me! I'll help you make the ben off the rest."

"Wait. . . ." Keene came back from the closet with a bottle and glasses. "Here's the health of Keene an' Stone. . . . I'll wire if I need you."

"And when I hear," said Duro Stone, left behind, "I'll sure come a-runnin'."

"You may need to," said Keene soberly. "I hope not but I'm afraid."

"All right, Old Timer. To the health of the new Duro Stone."

CHAPTER II.

"There he comes now! That's old Dad Kane as sure as shootin' . . ."

Sam Dustin, half-owner of the Broken Spur ranch, jerked a finger to the west and Spike Goddard, his partner, rose slowly and squinted into the dust-haze of the range.

"You're a damned fool ever to have grubstaked that old fool Dad Kane," he said explosively. "It's all your doin', too. Three hundred dollars plumb thrown t' away."

His words carried a sting. They were meant to do just that. Everything that Spike Goddard said or did carried a sting. His red face; his cold blue eyes, his wire-stiff reddish beard all bespoke combativeness and Dustin felt that sting. He knew that silence under the whip-lash of his tongue would annoy Spike more than any speech.

Dustin and Goddard had owned the Broken Spur for several years and all Crevasse County wondered how they made it pay. That they did make money was clear but none knew how they did it. Old Sim Peters, the decrepit old cashier at the only bank in Seco, could have told them but there were good reasons why Peters should tell nothing that affected Sam Dustin.

"If you'd told me three years ago that you were simin' to grubstake old Shammy Skin Kane," said Goddard, I'd have told you it was the act of a damn fool."

"I know. An' then you stopped me from talkin' up the Bar Circle range lease for grass," snapped Dustin. "That cost us over ten thousand. I'll because you were scared to take a chance."

This time Spike flushed. A man does not care to be reminded of his timorous moments that cost him money. He stood by his partner, scowling off into the sunset. Joint owners of the Broken Spur, they were as different as black is from red. Sam Dustin's tall lithe figure, his dark, handsome face, his flawless teeth made a perfect foil for his partner who was, as Jameson, Editor of the Seco Courier said "As red as a fox and twice as shifty. I wouldn't trust the pair any further'n I'd trust a coyote in a hen-yard."

The negro cook came out and pounded the supper summons on a big iron triangle that hung on a China-berry tree and the men trooped from the bunk-house to supper but the two partners gave no sign. They continued to stare across the corrals at a great red dust-cloud that moved slowly along the distant wire-fence. Under that dust-cloud dim shapes resolved themselves into three pack-ed burros followed by a stooping figure that prodded the rear-most burro with a short gond. At each prod the reluctant burro lurched a few steps but dropped back into a walk. Dustin laughed

DAWN

Dawn, coming up with its splendor
Diamond in gold and to blue.
Dawn, with its message of courage.
Old as creation, yet new!

Tasks that are waiting the toiler.
Real that is waiting the old
Those are the gifts dawn is bringing
Now, as its banners unfold

Labor and laughter and loving
Planning and pleasure and pain
Ever with dawn life beginning
Living its ranging refrain.

Dawn with its promise of power
Setting the restless heart free.
Brimming men's thoughts with fresh ardor
Hinting of triumphs to be

Answer to prayers made in anguish
Symbol of sorrow withdrawn.

After the dark, comes the dawn

Going Back To Spitzbergen

Elderly Swedish Hunter Likes Life Beyond Polar Circle

Making one of his rare visits to his home country, Andreas Qvarnstrom, who in 70 years old and has spent the last 25 years in the polar regions as fur hunter and coal mine employee, has been telling the newspapers in Stockholm something of his experiences.

In the last few years he has lived in the summer months as watchman at the coal mines in Spitsbergen, carrying on his trapping in the winter. He tells of long winter months spent in the frozen wastes without human companionship, of polar bears and arctic foxes which have fallen to his rifle or been trapped by him. He estimates that he has secured the pelts of at least 200 bears.

Qvarnstrom has been shipwrecked in the polar seas. He has had to swim in icy water when his boat capsized, and when he reached dim safety, his clothes froze so quickly as he pulled himself out of the water that he had to break the frozen cloth to be able to move his limbs.

In spite of his age and the hardships he has endured Andreas is in the best of health. He still feels the call of the sea and intends to return to his lonesome life in the inhospitable regions round the polar circle.

Preserving Indian Legends

Grandson Of Ojibway Chief Writing Stories He Has Heard

Indian legends are being preserved by Basil Hedderson, grandson of an Ojibway chief who recently completed his writing career at Selkirk, Manitoba.

Reading the last chapter of his forgetful life, Hedderson has turned to books for the stories he has heard during the stories told him by the Indians. He was born at Fort Alexander, now Pine Falls, Man., Aug. 14, 1858, and learned the alphabet from a trapper, a man who spent a winter at the fort. Since then in all his travels he has been adding a little more each year to his knowledge.

Hedderson is a veteran of the Dominion Exhibition, having visited Montreal on many occasions with the Manitoba exhibit.

Laws Of Physics

Indictments Point to Settled At The University Of Saskatchewan

Laws of physics as operating in the court of Magistrate J. S. McKenzie at Sudbury, Ontario, have no validity in Saskatchewan. In the physics laboratory at the University of Saskatchewan are two suspended leaden balls of equal weight. When one ball swinging slowly is struck by one swinging rapidly in the other direction, it is the slowly-moving ball that bounces back while the one previously in rapid motion becomes almost motionless. An authority on physics points out that if two bodies of differing momentum (weight multiplied by velocity) meet, the resultant momentum will be the same in direction as that of the major force. The majority carries.

Tiny Fish Is Transparent

Species Called Goby Is Found In Tropic Waters

To anglers accustomed to catching deep sea fish on a heavy line the new find which swam around in the aquarium at Stockholm, Lord Linnaeus would hardly seem worth while but to scientists is in the experimental stage.

This tiny species, called a goby, is not less than two this is of an inch in length, was brought to the museum by Dr. Albert W. Herre, curator and scientist of international repute, who returned from a 40,000-mile trip in the Pacific.

The little transparent creature, unnamed as yet in the smaller fish to the Pacific, is the only species of its kind found in the tropical seas.

Its transparency is so complete that the bones and the pulsating heart can be seen from both sides of the body. Even the eyes are transparent.

Little Helps For This Week

"Let I pray Thee Thy loving kindness be for my comfort, according to Thy word unto Thy servant." Psalm 119:76

Love divine has seen and counted
Every tear it caused to fall;
And the storm which Love appointed
Was the choicest gift of all.

O that thou couldst dwell in the knowledge and sense of this, even that the Lord beholds thy sufferings with an eye of pity, and is able not only to uphold thee under them, but also to do thee good by them. Therefore grieve not at thy lot, be not discontented, look not at the hardness of thy condition, but when the storms of vexation are sharp look up to Him who can give meekness and patience, can lift up thy head over all, and can cause thy life to grow and be a gainer by all. If the Lord God help thee according to thy condition of affliction and distress thou will have no cause to complain, but will bless His name —I Pennington

Duchess Was Good Substitute

Takes Duke of York's Place And Digs Potatoes

When the Duke of York was unable to visit Sheffield England, because of a poisoned thumb, the Duchess took his place. At a group of allotments where unemployed men had contributed a penny each to present the duke and duchess with garden implements, their leader said they had hoped the Duke of York would dig up some potatoes with the fork. "Well, I shall try to take his place," she replied.

She removed one of her black kid gloves and her white gloves, the duchess stepped into the potato patch and showed the big fork firmly. She picked up one of the potatoes telling the men that she would give the fork to the duke herself.

Prin. Elliott Writes Interesting Letter On S. of A. Regist'n

Vermilion School of Agriculture,
September 24, 1934.

Editor, The Standard,
Vermilion, Alberta.

Dear Sir—The recent announcement of the Hon. P. G. Grisdale, that the School of Agriculture at Vermilion would definitely open has been warmly received by a large number of farm folk who have had boys to send to that institution for training, and as well scores of young ladies who desire the very practical course in Home Economics which it offers.

Already the response as measured by registrations for the winter's courses have been very gratifying, as well over the applications have already been received. The well equipped dormitory will hold close to 200 students, so that there is still room for those who wish to spend a profitable winter at a minimum of expense.

Board and room has been reduced to $20 per day, and the institution furnishes the bedding and bed linen and provides the laundry for same. There are no range or tuition fees, and Alberta thus offers a course in Agriculture for boys, and one in Home Economics for girls at a cost that is most reasonable.

We shall not try to print all the names of those who have registered, but have thought that such a weekly newspaper would like to receive the names of those registering from its immediate vicinity. The names of those whose applications have been received from Vermilion and district are:

ISLAND HILL

(Held over from last week)

We were digging our acre garden of spuds when Bill Doogan, Campbell Lake, passed our way and shouted "You must be Irish with a name like so many spuds." Well now, that was a terrible indictment to fling at us! So we made to tell all them it was concern that we are a loyal Canadian citizen, loyal to His Majesty's forces, civil and military; even loyal to all the sheriffs, rub-a-dubs, bailiffs and corporation collectors and financial men of all kinds. If any of them ask for grain or grain or grain we won't never think of refusing. We would offer a cup of tea to any of these ... gents with our hand and point out with the other where our grain is stored and tell them to take it.

We are only telling you this dear reader, in order to prove how loyal we are. We are quite content if they leave us that acre of Irish Cobblers.

Dear Irish Cobblers, we love you so well

We cut you, when we cannot sell. In case it has escaped the notice in the news of the day, we want to tell you that the new Central Bank towers over all the other banks.

Noticed During the Week

Mr. Neilie McInnes, accompanied by Mr. Andrew MacDonald and the C. P. R. commissioner of colonization, Mr. J. M. K. MacAlister, motoring past our bungalow. They favored us with a friendly nod.

The first Parent-Teacher Association Tea at the high school was a success and we hope to have more like it. We would like to see more parents taking an interest in our functions, such as dances and literary meetings.

The constant routine of study is broken frequently by short examinations which startle the students for a few moments, but we manage to survive them.

Things we want to know: Why George Boyer wants to run the 100 yard dash at recent league bouts?

Just what is all the attraction at Lloyd. The field meet or ...?

SUSPECT IN THE LINDBERGH CASE IS APPREHENDED

New York. — Police Commissioner John R. O'Ryan issued the following statement in connection with the Lindbergh case:

"The taking into custody of Bruno Richard Hauptmann marks untiringly and closely co-ordinating efforts on the part of the New York police department, the Jersey troopers and the department of justice to bring to a solution of the Lindbergh kidnapping and with the facts at hand we are satisfied that the first and most important stage of the police work has been accomplished.

"The story as related by the detectives who have been engaged on the case for more than two and a half years might best be told in chronological fashion.

"Within two days after the payment of the ransom money in St. Raymond's cemetery, a $20 gold certificate was discovered in the Ebel River drug store, on Amsterdam avenue and 90th street.

"Subsequently, one of the ransom bills, bearing a corresponding serial number, was discovered in the Corn Exchange Bank at Park avenue and 125th street. From there the bill was traced to a gas station in the vicinity of the bank.

"The operator of the gas station described the customer who passed the $20 gold certificate in an almost identical fashion as the one described by the Fordham store proprietor.

"Securing the name and address of the owner of the automobile bearing the license number appearing on the bill, the investigators kept the premises under surveillance. Because of the importance of the case and the danger to the lives involved, it was decided by His Majesty's forces, civil and military; even loyal to all the sheriffs, rub-a-dubs, bailiffs and corporation collectors and financial men of all kinds. If any of them ask for grain or grain or grain we won't never think of refusing. We would offer a cup of tea to any of these ... gents with our hand and point out with the other where our grain is stored and tell them to take it.

Meisner Surrender

Claims He Had Nothing To Do With Lahelt Case:

Detroit. — Asserting he did not "have the first thing to do with this kidnapping," David Meisner, one of two men sought by Canadian and Detroit authorities in connection with the kidnapping a month ago of John Lahelt, Ontario brewer, surrendered to police here today.

Meisner said he could produce "all the witnesses in the world — even policemen," to prove he was in Cincinnati at the time of the kidnapping for $150,000 which, so far as known, has not been paid to date.

He surrendered to Inspector John Hoffman, of the special investigation squad, after making an appointment. Hoffman said Meisner surrendered without any conditions.

The other man sought is Albert Pegram.

Communists Shout Insults At Queen Wilhelmina

Three Members Of Parliament Arrested At The Races

The Hague, Netherlands. Three Communist members of parliament who shouted insults after Queen Wilhelmina had finished her speech from the throne were arrested and jailed as an infuriated mob tried to get at them.

Police, fearing an outbreak of violence as the temper of the throng about the parliament building grew more hostility, led the men to prison by a secret route.

It was the first time in the history of the Netherlands that members of parliament were arrested in the course of a session. They were released later.

Circus Lion Caused Panic

Shot By Guards After Escape From Cage During Parade

Richmond, Va. — Breaking open his cage during a circus parade a Polar ... dragged down a horse pulling one of the wagons and then ran at liberty down North boulevard while crowds of spectators fled in panic.

Circus guards shortly after shot the animal to death.

The beast ran several hundred yards down the street after Patrolman John Robert Paul had fired five shots at him as he sank his fangs into the horse's neck, taking refuge in the Hankins-Johann sheet metal works. A circus guard fired four times at the beast. A policeman finished the wounded animal with a pistol bullet.

Criticism Of Lottery

New York. A broadside of criticism was directed at the city's proposals to raise relief funds through a new lottery and a municipal bakery. Threat of a legal fight against the lottery was voiced. Mayor F. H. LaGuardia admitted a bakery stood about one chance in 10 of being declared legal.

War is Denounced

Church Of England Opposes Strife As Means Of Settling Disputes

Montreal.—With almost unanimous accord, members of the general synod of the Church of England in Canada, by resolution, denounced war as a means of settling disputes between nations.

The resolution, moved by Rev. Canon W. H. Davidson, Montreal, and seconded by Magistrate J. E. Jones, Toronto, was to accept the principle laid down by the Lambeth conference of the Church of England.

On the principle that Canada should be prepared, one dissenting voice was raised, however, by E. E. Richards, Victoria.

"We must have the best instruments of war available," he said. "There is something worse than war — that is national dishonour." He was met by loud cries of "No," when he declared: "I say that the movers of this resolution are responsible for three men's deaths."

Ven. Archdeacon F. G. Scott, of Quebec, seconded the motion, rose in reply to Mr. Richards.

"The last thing General Sir Arthur Currie said to me," Archdeacon Scott reminded the synod, "was to send a message to the university veterans in Toronto imploring them to start a movement to say that war is a futile test and not a test of the manhood of the world. That came as the general's last order from his death bed."

INSURANCE PLAN IN CANADA FOR THE UNEMPLOYED

Montreal. - Premier R. B. Bennett is preparing to launch an unemployment insurance plan in Canada upon his return from Europe, Wood Cote Pitfield announced at the annual general meeting of the Montreal Conservative Association, Inc., at which he was elected president.

Mr. Pitfield, a prominent business man and a leader in the Montreal Conservative field, stated: "The prime minister has under way an unemployment insurance scheme, worked out on an actuarial basis, which I think is the finest plan I have ever seen to combat unemployment.

"If the provinces agree, this plan will go into effect," Mr. Pitfield went on. "If they don't I don't see how it possibly can. The provinces have power over civil rights. They have for instance, power over marriages.

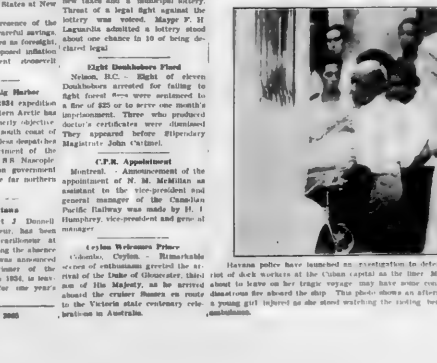
"I don't see why we can't reduce interest on mortgages from seven to six and eventually to five per cent. The only reason why we cannot do it is that each province has the right to govern its own mortgage legislation."

British Films

Large Sums Being Spent To Produce Better Pictures

London. Opening of the newly refurbished Tivoli cinema theatre with the beginning of a series of pictures to produce greater British pictures it was announced.

Sir Julius Hagen spent $2,000,000 to equip the Twickenham studios already one of the largest in England with sound recording, including underwater film apparatus. Six major films are on the program of the company Hagen stated, and $5,000,000 will probably be spent in the first year of work.



HAVANA RIOT LINK IN SHIP FIRE?

Havana police have launched an investigation to determine whether a riot of dock workers at the Cuban capital as the liner Morro Castle was about to leave on her tragic voyage may have some connection with the disastrous fire aboard the ship. This photo shows an aftermath of the riot, a young girl injured as she stood watching the rioting being lifted into an ambulance.

Takes Heavy Toll

Chinese Refugees Tell Of Lives Lost In Flood

Tsuhow, China. — An unending stream of bedraggled refugees from the region flooded by the Yellow river, their homes and livelihood destroyed, has poured into Tsuhow.

Government officials were considering a drastic proposal to transfer many of the refugees from the river valley to unsettled territories in Shantung province for rehabilitation.

Their crops destroyed and not knowing what to do, the refugees, wandering aimlessly, tell stories of acute suffering and vast loss of life in the flooded regions of southern Hopei and northern Honan province.

It was reported thousands, clustered together like frightened sheep, still were trapped in the Yellow river valley. Some still live in tree tops. Rescue work in proceeding with 250 junks of Changyuan Hsien has become an island, swirling flood water surrounding it.

Creamery Survey In Alberta

For Purpose Of Determining Cost Of Manufacturing Butter

Edmonton. Beginning in Calgary and in Edmonton, a creamery survey has been launched under the joint auspices of the provincial dairy branch, the University of Alberta, and the Dominion department of agriculture.

The purpose of the survey is to make a study of the cost of manufacturing butter in Alberta and also of the cost of trucking or otherwise delivering cream supplies.

Returns Home Via Canada

Vancouver. Miss Sheila MacDonald, daughter of Premier Ramsay MacDonald, who left London, Sept 1, for Melbourne via the S.S. Aorangi to attend the Melbourne and Victoria state centenary, will return to England by way of Canada instead of by the Suez canal, it was announced by Capt. Morro Castle Quiz

Starting Information Is Gleaned From Investigation

New York.—If obeyed, the last order from the bridge to the engine room of the Morro Castle would have left the Sansing Ward liner circling about the ocean a while at dusk and fire, evidence at the United States department of commerce inquiry showed.

The engine crew, however, disobeyed the order and put the engines into neutral.

This testimony was given by an 18-year-old Massachusetts Institute of Technology student, William Wesley Tripp, who was on the tragic voyage from Havana as a cadet engineer.

Details of the death of Captain Robert R. Willmott who suffered an acute attack of indigestion and died only several hours before fire broke out on his liner—were given by Howard Hanson, the fourth officer who testified he saw no marks of violence on the body.

Rumors have been persistent that the master met foul play. The discharged bones found in the cabin where his body was cremated in the holocaust are now being examined for any evidence of poison.

Against Works Program

Calgary Wants To Spend Federal Grant In Own Way

Calgary By a polling of more than five to one, Calgary citizens have turned down a public works program involving expenditure of $180,000 granted by the Dominion government for that purpose alone

The plebiscite, in which only one-fifth of the registered voters cast their ballots, coincided with the city's determination to seek leave from the Dominion government to spend the apportionment on civic finance other than public works. Mayor Andrew Davison visited Edmonton to seek the backing of the Alberta government in such an arrangement

The citizens voted 2,830 against and 550 for repairs to the horse show building at the exhibition grounds totalling $15,000; 2,567 against and 923 for an assembly hall and gymnasium at Western Canada high school to cost $95,000 and 2,916 against, 782 for a public swimming pool estimated at $70,000.

DISCLOSE PLOT TO OVERTHROW SPANISH GOV'T

Madrid. The government was confident it had disclosed a plot of monarchist and reactionary elements of the Spanish republic and establish a "proletarian state" by means of a revolution more bloody than the recent abortive uprising in Austria.

Wholesale murder of public officials, including Premier Lerroux himself, rupture of the government army, manufacturing plants at Oviedo and Trubia and evacuation of Leon elements of the air force and army had been planned, according to information the government claim of the plot obtained.

Premier Ricardo Samper conferred with President Alcala Zamora at his home and an announcement afterward said he was sure the leading plotters, socialists and extremists, would be apprehended promptly.

Plans said to have been discussed included a revolutionary general ... [illegible] Spain with a ... [illegible] ... [illegible] ... [illegible]

Teachers' Association Holding Sessions

There is a fairly representative attendance at the 12th annual convention of the Vermilion Inspectorate Education Association which began its two-day sitting this morning at the First United church. The meeting opened with an invocation by Canon McComas, following which Mayor Fallow gave an address of welcome on behalf of the Town of Vermilion, and in which he particularly stressed the adoption of meeting pictures as an adjunct to our present system of education. He felt that through such an arrangement pupils would be able to grasp their studies in a manner quite impossible under scheme of education as now in use. He saw in it a solution of the many pressing problems teachers have to contend with in the school rooms

J. W. G. Morrison, K.C. introduced the teachers on behalf of the "intellectual faculty" of the town. He thought it a most pathetic comment on the present day affairs that there should be any doubt as

Little Journeys In Science

CARBON MONOXIDE

(By Gordon H Guest, M.A.)

Frequently we read of accidents caused by the escape of carbon monoxide gas from the exhaust of motor engines or from furnace pipes. Produced by the burning of carbon, in coal gas and in motor exhausts, this gas, which is also known as carbonic oxide, is very poisonous, and is doubly dangerous because it has almost no odor, and overcomes victims so quickly that they rarely have time to escape from the fumes.

The deadliness of the gas lies in its action on the blood, where it displaces the oxygen in the haemoglobin, through which it reaches the body tissues. It is identified in the body because of the bright red color which it gives to the blood.

It is estimated that one volume of carbon monoxide in eight hundred volumes of air is fatal when breathed for half an hour; much smaller quantities are known to produce unpleasant effects if inhaled for any length of time. Small cast iron stoves at fifteen miles per hours are said to give off forty-one cubic feet of carbon monoxide per hour, while a large car gives off one hundred and eighty-four cubic feet of the gas in one hour. Thus in large cities the air constantly contains small amounts of the gas, and considerable attention has been given in some centres to purifying the air, particularly in tunnels and underground railways. This is done by passing the air over a substance known as hopcalite, which changes carbon monoxide into harmless carbon dioxide.

Mice and birds are particularly sensitive to carbon monoxide and sometimes rescue crews in mines take canaries in cages with them into the mines following an explosion in which this gas is believed to have been released.

"What is a molecule?" asked the teacher

"A molecule," said John, "is something so small that it can't be seen, even through a microbe."

Russia A Powerful Factor

March Sadder To Have Nations Member Of League

Russia has been admitted to the League of Nations. Any other outcome would have been incredible, granted Russia's willingness to come in

The League of Nations is an agency finally perhaps but the most effective in existence to-day for the preservation of peace in the world Whatever we may think of the Soviet theories of government, and their practice the fact remains that Russia is one of the great nations her politics and ambitions a powerful factor in world affairs. Obviously therefore, it is much safer to have Russia on the inside with Britain and France and all those associated with them, than on the outside with Germany and Japan and the United States as critical observers

Those who would have excluded Russia from this free assembly of the nations think of the League as a sort of secret society for a few of the elect. That view is utterly and fantastically absurd. If Russia is a menace to world peace through her plan of government, there is all the more reason for subjecting her to the presumably pacifying influences of League membership Ottawa Journal

Would Segregate All Young Law Offenders

Church Of England Synod Urges Action By Parliament

Canada should segregate her youthful criminal offenders during both trial and prison terms, the synod of the Church of England decided.

The motion of Magistrate J. E. Jones, Toronto, a resolution was passed urging the parliament of Canada to provide separate trials for boys between 16 and 21 years of age and separate penal institutions, similar to the Borstal system in England, where possible.

Most Rev. J. C. Roper, archbishop of Ottawa, seconded the resolution and undertook to bring the matter before the government.

Up to the age of 16, Magistrate Jones explained, the juvenile courts were available, but between that age and 21 there was no special provision He pointed out the dangers to young offenders of contamination with older and more hardened criminals.

The synod approved another resolution by Mr. Jones, urging provincial governments to implement Dominion government legislation respecting probation where it had not already been done.

Also certainly the youngest offenders to whom attention should be directed, said Rt. Rev. A. Sovereign, bishop of Athabasca. "There are fine grey-haired men in our penitentiaries now," he declared. "They are boys, many of them about 18 years old."

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

OCTOBER 7

FELLOWSHIP WITH CHRIST

Golden Text: Abide in me, and I in you. As the branch cannot bear fruit of itself, except it abide in the vine; no neither can ye, except ye abide in me. John 15:4.

Lesson: John 15.

Devotional Reading: Matthew 4: 18-22.

Explanations And Comments

Fellowship with Christ and Fruitage, verses 4:11. "Abide in me and I in you." Abide means to remain in John's Gospel. "Abiding in Christ is something more than beginning in Christ." (Horace Bushnell). "You can bear fruit only by abiding in me: In and through you I will live henceforth, is Jesus' promise. How can one abide in Christ? amid the duties and pleasures of life, can one keep one's mind always fixed upon him? "You are in a lift until you step out of it, though you may not be thinking of the lift. You are on a road until you take a turning right or left, although you need converse with your friend, you do not think of the road. You are in Christ amid the pressure of daily care, and the tasks of business, as long as your face is toward the Lord, your attitude that of humble submission, and your conscience void of offence." (J. R. Meyer).

One who abides not in Christ is cast forth as a useless branch, and in the vineyards such cast-off branches are gathered and burned. "The thought is not to be so pressed as raise the question of the loss of souls who are once united with Christ. We are concerned here with service rather than salvation. The words, however, are not without serious implications as to the absolute necessity of a real and continuous union with Christ." (Charles R. Erdman).

"Herein is my Father glorified, that ye have much fruit." By "glorify God" means to recognize and acknowledge his true character. The Father is the Husbandman, pruning the fruit, testified to his skill and care. "And so shall ye be my disciples."

"Abide in my love: even as the Father hath loved me, I have loved you." And then Jesus reminded them that it was only through obedience to his commandments that they could do so, and impressed upon them its obedience by adding that he had remained in his Father's love by keeping his Father's commandments.

Largest Flag in World

A society has been formed to hoist a Japanese national flag, which, it is claimed, will be the largest in the world, on the summit of Fujiyama, the sacred mountain of Japan. The flag will be 60 feet long and 24 feet wide, and when hoisted, will be visible from a great distance.

SIGNED ON THE WORLD!—THAT'S LIVER

Wake up your Liver Bile

Many people who feel sour, sluggish and "all-in" do not realize that their trouble is caused by their failure to get enough bile into the digestive tract daily to keep digestion moving and the body free of poisons. Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets are a purely vegetable laxative that gently but surely stimulates the liver to its proper duty. Ask for Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets by name. Decline Of Manners

Impoliteness And Rudeness Considered Smart By Some People

The decline of manners has become clearly marked during the past few years and is by no means confined to the one sex. Ordinary politeness and civility have departed from the masses and their exercise in apparently, something to be forgotten rather than promoted. It is now regarded in many quarters as the smart thing to be impolite and rude, and the influence of the home and the school, which has fallen down in so many cases, is largely responsible in this regard.—Brockville Recorder and Times.

MECCA THE HOUSEHOLD OINTMENT

THE TENDERFOOT

By GEORGE R. RODNEY

Author of "The Coronado Trail", "The Canyon Trail", Etc.

SYNOPSIS

"You've fallen heir to a half-share in plenty of trouble," the lawyer told Gerad Keene. "The Broken Spur has been erratically tooling the ranch, and old Joe Carr, your partner, is drinking himself into ruin."

But Keene decided to go see what was happening for himself—but old Gerald Keene, half owner of the Bear-Claw Ranch, bet on Dave Stone, tenderfoot in a Montgomery Ward Whitewot outfit.

"Listen to old Dad, will you," he growled. "His talk is sure potent."

Fragments of that talk came to them on the hot wind from the distant. Under their word-lash the horror frankly trotted. Dustin hailing him from cupped hands:

"Hol' Hhaaaaaaaal! . . . Dad . . . Kane . . . ! Come on over to the house."

Kane stared at them from rheumy eyes white with crusted alkali and came slowly across to them, wiping his lips on the back of a dirty, hairy hand.

"Wait till I strip the packs. Then you'll have room to ride on the top."

"Leave the packs where they are!" Spike's eyes narrowed and his voice softened. "Come on Kane. You all the company I've."

"Mean? You know damned well what I mean. I ain't no cattle man but I know cows. I've seen when I and two Broken Spur men changin' brands on Hour-glass cattle. Usin' mostly—them cattle on a fenced range at that. After that, they cut the fences an' piled tumble-wired along the wire to look like an old trail an' . . ."

"You're crazy, man! . . . I tell you . . ."

"I ain't aimin' to start no trouble. Least of all do I want to have trouble with the Hour-glass people. I got me a good reason, too. You and me are partners in prospectin' but I tell you plain that if your men ain't called off their mad Joe Carr's cattle, I'll not only split with you . . . I'll go to him an' . . . ."

"I tell you, you old fool, you're wrong," began Dustin Then Kane exploded

"I tell you I seen 'em," he said. "It wasn't no small party just maverickin' a few calves like they've got a right to do. I seen Gray an' Bippo and Coxe. They had a wagon in the holler an' they had a fire goin' an' a wagon brithe the irons They had no sense no way. They might know that usin' grease-wood for the fire'd be like shootin' out what they was doin'. On legitimate brandin' they'd have had dry wood in the country under the wagon. You all off your dogs till I git done with my business with the Hour-glass. If you don't, you'll be sorry. I ain't goin' to be milked up no cattle over at my time of life."

A breathless silence held both partners For just a frac- of a second Spike considered shooting his partner's game Then he swung Maiden around, kicking the off- of his mind temporarily quicker than Spike could. Dustin pounced on it like a cat on a mouse and fairly snatched it open with teeth and fingers as Kane talked.

"I'll need a couple o' men to help me for a few days but I'm thinkin' that when word gits out of what I've found, there'll sure be a stampede like the Tonopah days. In the meantime I need powder an' fuses an' fulminate an' drills. Mine are all worn down to the roots an so spunk. I need a new pick and some bedding', too. Them damned asses o' mine eat up most of my bedding. I'll need two quarts of mercury, too, an' a new chamey bag an' two hundred o' bacon an' flour an 'sugar an' coffee . . ."

He rambled on but neither man paid any heed. Dustin laid an old newspaper on the table and emptied the contents of the bag on it and Goddard, who loomed over Dustin's shoulder, started back with a quick oath Dustin, too, took fire at what he saw.

"Good God!" he said sharply. It was not an oath though Dustin was prone to use them. It was a confirmation of oath and disbelief and surprise.

Never on earth did you find this, Dad?" he asked sharply. "I've seen gold from Alaska to Arizona but never anything like this. Where on earth'd you find it?"

"Like it?" Kane giggled the senile laugh of old age. "I didn't find it on the hill. I found it under the earth and I dug like a damned fool of a prairie dog to git it. I figgered that bag'd make me rich set up This is what I git for keepin' on tryin' after you all figgered I was another damned old diserf rat gone crazy."

He thrust a claw-like hand deep into the bag and felt the weight and fragments and turned it over lovingly Little yellow nuggets lay on top nesting in rich promise on lighter gravel One great piece of white quartz was laced and streaked with gold as red as fire and one chunk almost as big as a man's closed fist seemed made of solid metal

"Looks like I've found the Mother Lode," cackled Kane. "What say?"

Little Helps For This Week

"Whether therefore ye eat or drink, or whatsoever ye do, do all to the glory of God." I Corinthians 10.31.

Without God, will doing service is to the Lord and not unto men." Ephesians 6:7.

A servant, with this clause,
Makes drudgery divine:
Who sweeps a room, as for Thy laws,
Makes that and the action fine.
G. Herbert.

Surely the truth must be that whatever in our daily life is lawful and right for us to be engaged in in itself a part of our obedience to God, a part that is of our religion. Whenever we hear people complaining of obstructions and hindrances put by the duties of life in the way of leading themselves to God, we may be sure they are under some false view of religion. They do not look on their daily work as the task God has set them and as ordained by Him Who sees the end from the beginning, and say to Him that His time of life is not the time for His service, but that the circumstances in which they are placed are the circumstances in which they are to serve Him.

Keep "Leftovers" Fresh and Tasty

You know how deliciously fresh wasted layer keeps sandwiches, Tarts and Henry Wasted Paper cool do the same for cut cheese, bread and other foods that remain at the end of the meal. Here's Way Science Now Relieves Pain in Minutes

BAD HEADACHES, NEURITIS AND RHEUMATIC PAINS EASED ALMOST AT ONCE

Remember the pictures below when you want fast relief from pain. Aspirin eases even a bad headache or neuralgia often in a few minutes! An Aspirin tablet begins "taking hold" of your pain practically as soon as you swallow it. And Aspirin is safe. For Aspirin does not harm the heart.

Remember these two points: Aspirin Saved and Aspirin Safely. Always insist that you get Aspirin, the united doctors prescription. It is made in Canada, and all druggists have it. Delivers Bread By Boat

W. Belsin, the "Bread Boatman" has just completed his 47th year delivering bread on the Lesser Slave river at Maclean, New South Wales. In travelling his daily round he has covered between 600,000 and 700,000 miles without an accident. Most of his rounds were done in a rowing boat, but the last few years he has used a motor boat.

Smarter Tie For Sailors

New Pattern Being Issued For British Jack Tar

The black silk handkerchief, or scarf, for many generations a distinguishing feature of the British sailor uniform, is to be oblong instead of square, state admiralty fleet orders

Since the latter part of the eighteenth century, the scarf always 36 inches square, has been folded in knot to meet the point of the sailor collar The new scarf will be 36 inches by 36½ inches

A naval officer said that after a little wear, the square handkerchief when formed into a tie or scarf, is not long enough to make a neat knot Issues of the new pattern will begin at once

VICTORY BOND CONVERSION HELPS BUSINESS RECOVERY

Prime Minister's Statement Receives Nation's Approval

Ottawa, Oct. 2.—The Prime Minister's frank concise statement regarding the 1934 Refunding Loan has met with warm and encouraging response from bankers, insurance and trust company executives, business men, professional men, agriculturists and labour leaders throughout the country. The concrete evidence of business recovery from the low point of last year which Mr. Bennett stressed in his opening announcement such as a 56% increase in industrial production, 17% increase in employment, 43% increase in farm products prices, as well as a substantial improvement in car loadings, electric power production and wholesale prices, emphasizes the ... of the national credit, the progress in achievement of national economy and the steady general upward trend in business.

Completion of this year's refunding programme will bring the total we have refinanced (inaugurated in 1931) to over $1,000,000,000.

$9,000,000 per annum has already been saved in interest charges and when this year's operations are concluded, the annual saving in interest will be about $14,000,000. This saving more than offsets interest charges on debt incurred to meet the extraordinary burdens incident to unemployment relief, and eventually should enable the government to reduce taxes.

The tenor of the comments from bankers, insurance and trust company executives, industrialists, agriculturists and labour leaders is ably summed up by the unanimity of their opinion, which are that Canada has emerged from the depression with probably less strain than that experienced by other countries, and that, while our progress is gradual, it is well founded. There have been no disturbing change consequent upon too rapid a rise.

The consensus of opinion is that by reason of the favourable basis of conversion and the attractive yield offered (particularly in the long term bonds) the majority of 1926 Victory Bond holders will convert, and now investors hasten to secure an allotment of the new Bonds.

NEIGHBORHOOD NARRATIVES

After being offered a big variety of weather Sunday, including hot sunshine, warm breezes, a chilly and penetrating gale, and a very miserable little rain, we were rewarded with a golden sunset embellished with a double rainbow.

Mrs. Artie Priestland had the inconvenient misfortune to break an arm while cranking the car on Saturday. Please accept our sincere wishes for a speedy and complete recovery.

Miss M. Dickenson is very kindly becoming Mrs. Friesland's "right hand" while the latter is recovering from the accident.

A sensation "out our way" has been caused by the passing and repassing of a huge moving van, pressed into service to haul wheat. Its power is certainly evident as it roars by.

We made slight investigations into the use of a fertiliser on the fields of a neighborhood farmer, Mr. F. van Wageningen. A check-up of results showed a very heavy crop of straw, beautifully even in growing, and coming thick and fast enough in the spring to completely discourage weeds. The dry spell during the summer had a bad effect, and checked the yield considerably, so that it averaged only two more bushels per acre than the unfertilized land under the same circumstances, also the quality of grain seemingly proved inferior, sheer development apparently didn't finish satisfactorily. The crop was wheat on summerfallow, the fertilizer used being superphosphate. Oats fertilized with ammonium phosphate showed little difference on summerfallow, a better stand on spring worked land. The yield was not checked. The opinion of the experimenter is that the use of fertilizer on run-down land or with satisfactory moisture conditions would certainly pay. We thank Mr. and Mrs. Van Wageningen for this information and are proud that our community can boast such progressive members.

Health note: A woman is as old as she looks, but a man isn't old till he stops looking.

We note a good many friends' names and a delightfully big number from the Neighborhood in the School Fair prize lists. It is a lot of trouble, but if you only knew how proud we are of you, you'd certainly do even better next year, youngsters!

Wee: What was that big explosion in the south country the other day?

Bud: Oh, Clarence Potter has been feeding "Lay or Bust" to his pullets, and the rooster got at it.

It takes a real hunter to come up to the standard of the three brave stalwarts who, on a rainy morning when they couldn't thresh, got up anyway before dawn and went after ducks. What is a day off for, if you can't sleep in?

We send the Pie Plate to get ready for threshers.

We note that Miss Hazel Hankin is attending Union school for the purpose of studying Grade Nine.

UNIVERSITY OF ALBERTA BUREAU of STUDENT PUBLICITY

Weekly News Letter

EDMONTON, Oct. 2.—University of Alberta embarked on its 27th annual year as provincial center of higher education here, September 24th. A large part of the first week was spent in fulfilment of registration and enrolment regulations. Figures released by the Registrar's Office reveal that enrolment of undergraduates will approximate that of the 1933-34 term when over 1200 students were enrolled.

o o o

Freshmen students who registered for their first taste of college life here last week are being treated with rare consideration. The abolishment of all forms of hazing and initiation last year, Students' Union officials were this year faced with the problem of finding a new method of introducing newcomers, both to each other and the University.

o o o

For the past week both freshmen and freshettes have been feted and entertained by campus organizations including a tour of points of interest in university buildings, first year class gathered in Convocation Hall on September 26th to hear an address by Dr. Wallace, President of the University. Round of affairs reached a climax on Saturday, 29th, when the freshman class toured the city as guests of the University Alumni, attended an exhibition Canadian football game staged in their honor, and were guests of the Students' Council at an informal dance in the evening.

Canadian Wheat Institute As Nat'l Body Endorsed

Proposals for forming the Canadian Wheat Institute as a national body to conduct work in the interests of Canadian wheat were endorsed by the annual convention of the Canadian Chamber of Commerce which met in Winnipeg on September 11th, 12th and 13th This followed an address by Mr. R. S. Law president of United Grain Growers Ltd., in the course of which he dealt with the need for getting a new force behind the sale of Canadian wheat and showed how through the proposed Institute, advertising, commercial research scientific research and [illegible] efforts might be brought to bear towards the enlargements of outlets for Canadian wheat.

Mr. Law spoke on the subject "Wheat from the National Standpoint" and much of his address was devoted to emphasizing the national importance of the wheat industry of Canada. In emphasizing that fact Mr. Law said it should be realized that, growing wheat for export has been part of the basic policy of Canada for a third of a century Upon it was founded the immigration policy of this country and due to the presence of opening up Western Canada; upon it was predicated a large part of the country's railway construction and the building of canals and harbors. That Western Canada should be opened up that people from other parts of the country and from other countries should be invited to come in, that financial institutions should pour their resources into the prairies and that factories should be built to supply the needs of farmers who were to grow wheat, —all that was part of the national determination of the country since the beginning of the century, he concluding his address. Mr. Law said The welfare of western farmers, the welfare of Southern Canada and to a large extent the welfare of the Dominion of Canada must continue to depend upon our ability to maintain large outlets for the wheat grown in the west, and that in turn may well depend upon our ability to keep a national understanding and maintain a national demand on our wheat problem"

The resolution which was subsequently passed by the convention of the Canadian Chamber of Commerce read as follows

"Realizing the importance of Canadian wheat production to the prosperity of Canada, the chamber has been gratified to learn that those directly interested in the production and marketing of Canadian wheat have under consideration the organization of a Canadian Wheat Institute as a national body to stimulate the marketing and use of wheat in the markets of the world The chamber extends its utmost co-operation in this endeavor"

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

(This paper does not hold itself responsible for opinions expressed by correspondents.)

Editor, The Vermilion Standard.
Dear Sir —

The letter of Mr Scarfe appearing in the Standard two weeks ago was replete with unfounded insinuations. In contradiction to my statement that nothing was done without the consent of a majority of the club representatives, he asks who it was who ordered St. Pats to play Island Hill and also Clandonald to play the same team. Mr. Scarfe knows perfectly well that the schedule of games was by a unanimous vote of the representatives (including the vote of Mr. Scarfe) left in the hands of the president and myself. Why does he who stands for "good sport and fair play" give the false impressions that we have no authority to arrange these games St. Pats at that time was in the League and therefore we could not bar them from playing even though we foresaw that they would use ineligible players. Regarding the incident in which Mr Scarfe refers to John Conve, it is sufficient to state that with due respect to John's playing, that Clandonald beat Island Hill without him several times before and there was no reason to believe that we could not get along without him in the game in question Another false impression left by Mr Scarfe's letter was that Ted Williams was removed by the league executive. The referees were appointed by the different clubs and Williams was dismissed by the Clandonald club, and as a matter of fact I voted against his dismissal but the majority vote carried. Regarding the penalty for offensive language to the referee, this was decided by a vote of the club representatives, (Mr Scarfe agreeing)

Now to deal with the difficulty regarding the replay of the game between Island Hill and Islay. As Mr Scarfe mentioned, he, Mr Givens and myself were appointed to arrange for this special series. The three were appointed presumably to avoid a deadlock in voting. In deciding the date of this game, Mr. Givens and myself were in favor of the following Sunday and Mr Scarfe was opposed. He says he wanted a special meeting of the executive to deal with an offending player But I understand that Mr. Scarfe never asked the President to call a meeting. I asked the President myself if it would be possible to get a meeting immediately, but he was unable at that time to call a meeting of the club representatives. In that case Mr. Scarfe as Vice President could have called the meeting himself when he knew that it was impossible for the President to do so. He inferred that I had been in the habit of calling meetings of the executive when they were to my benefit; I wish to state that regardless of what Mr Scarfe says to the contrary, never since the League was formed have I called an executive meeting

The final blunder in Mr Scarfe's letter was that when Clandonald played Islay in the cup final without the Conveys the result was a foregone conclusion Now I ask anyone who has any experience in any line of sport, if the result of a game that ends in a tie at the end of the regular playing time can be said to be a foregone conclusion. The Clandonald team played without the Conveys because they were in Edmonton at the time. If the game had been postponed, no doubt the show would have pinched the other foot.

Thanking you,
GEO CHALMERS.
Clandonald Alberta.

(EDITOR'S NOTE As considerable space has been given in this paper to the disputes in connection with the Clandonald District Football League, The Standard, with this communication, declares all further correspondence in this matter closed.)

THEN AND NOW.

Fifteen years ago Canada was engaged in floating one of the most successful of its war loans. National enthusiasm was at its highest pitch Business was booming and money was plentiful. Results exceeded the fond est hopes nearly 500,000 citizens subscribing for the 1919 Victory Loan Bonds. True, the income yield of 5½ per cent was very attractive, but equally then was, that people subscribed more from their wholehearted desire to assist national reconstruction rather than because of the attractive rate of interest.

Holders of these 1919 Victory Bonds which will mature November 1st, are now being asked to convert them into bonds of the 1934 Refunding Loan That the majority of holders of 1919 Victory Bonds will avail themselves of this privilege there can be no doubt They know what a safe and profitable investment they have had and will surely wish to continue it. The record of the Dominion of Canada Bonds during the past few years when investors have suffered loss of capital and distress of mind, demonstrates conclusively that there is no safer investment than Dominion of Canada Bonds. Security of principal is para mount in any investment. Consequently, when the unassailable security of Dominion of Canada Bonds is coupled with so desirable an income yield as is offered by the new Bonds the response from those having bonds to convert as well as applications from new investors should be both prompt and enthusiastic

A New And Better Viewpoint

The recent annual convention of the Canadian Chambers of Commerce held at Winnipeg was in a general recognized one of the most important and in many respects the most significant gathering yet held by that body. It was not even one of the largest assemblages of outstanding men in the financial, industrial and commercial life of the Dominion yet convened, but its sessions are to have been animated by a new spirit based upon a fuller recognition of the responsibilities of what has been termed Big Business to the country as a whole and to the welfare of producers, workers and consumers who, in the last analysis are the backbone of the nation.

Important resolutions dealing with matters of far-reaching social and economic questions, and involving vital changes in national policies, were adopted, not the least significant of which was the declaration in favor of the negotiation of a Reciprocity Agreement with the United States of America. The adoption of this resolution clearly reveals the change in the attitude and viewpoint of the business world of Canada.

A significant fact was some of the addresses delivered by men occupying high executive positions in the industrial world. For example Mr. T. A. Russell, president of the Massey-Harris Co. told the convention that "the success of industry as it is to-day is wrapped up together in Canada in a way which is strong proof we can be sure facts and figures to prove it. As the purchasing power of the farmer declines, and Mr. Russell noted the decline in the demand and output for farm implements in the case of the Massey-Harris Co., he said employment dropped from 6,000 in 1929 to an average of less than 1,200 for the months of 1931 and 1932. "Not only has this proved a hardship for the men thrown out of employment through no fault of their own, but it has tremendously affected their purchasing power for all other lines of goods, and, incidentally their ability to pay Canadian property. Large scale industry has had no return on his investment has had to curtail his expenditures and has been a poor customer other than farmer or for other lines of goods." He urged the adoption of measures of mutual self-protection co-operation with the farming industry in order to bring about its re-establishment and promote its prosperity.

Then, up spoke Mr W R Campbell president of the Ford Motor Co of Canada, on behalf of all workers in industry. Space will not admit of any extended quotation from Mr Campbell's address, but the following will serve to indicate his position, and the attitude he urged all employers of labor to adopt in the interests of the workers, in their own interests, and in the interests of the country at large. Said Mr Campbell:

As far as Canada is concerned there can be no normal times until all of our people who are capable of working have an opportunity for gainful employment—free and unfettered by governmental aid. In dealing with the situation which must be corrected it is time that the very grave importance of our human relationships be recognized. I repeat until every man in this country capable of working is able to find gainful employment the prime responsibility of industry is to the worker. The employee's interest must not be subordinated of the interest of the shareholder.

Perhaps" continued Mr Campbell, "there is no rubber amazing statements but not until this condition is brought about can either capital and management or the worker prosper. Our primary duty, then, should be to make certain not only that the worker is given the benefits of industry to be not subordinated to that of capital, but also that labor be granted an equitable share of these benefits.

Suggesting the only possible way in which industry can be re-attuned and employment provided Mr Campbell said "What we must do is to start the ball rolling upward injecting more money into our economic structure at the bottom, through the wages of these industrial workers and profit by the steadily increasing effect of this money upward through every whole business fabric. That is good business because it is profitable. Perhaps it means even the salvation of our industry itself as we know it today. Our problem at home is one of finding greater markets for our goods, for the products of domestic manufacture, and this again devolves upon the problem of finding greater employment and providing increased purchasing power for our own workers. By increasing the earnings of the average worker by paying him a greater return for his labor and by increasing the volume of his employment by pumping into our economic structure more money at that base, we can set in motion a forward solution of our problem."

Having made a reference to the further development of export trade, Mr Campbell concluded "It is an inescapable fact that we have now entered upon an era of social readjustment in this world. In working out this readjustment so that the rights of both capital and labor shall be properly balanced, it devolves upon capital to take the initiative with the welfare of the whole nation always in mind. Capital must do this, because capital has the imagination, the training and the ability to assume leadership. Until this proper balance is struck and until this country has been able to lift itself by its own courage and its own ability back to normal times, it is imperative that capital defer profits defer its claim to a return upon invested wealth in order to provide all of our people able to work with adequate employment at such a return as to enable them to live in accordance with standards commensurate with the calibre of Anglo-Saxon peoples."

Thus we have open confession by two of Canada s great industries that their first responsibility to-day is not to shareholders and bondholders, but to farmers and workers. In real primary producers that capital must look for its return may now that it must take the leadership in solving the problems of the producers workers and consumers, in full realization that unless and until these are solved there can be no return and no future for industry or the enormous investments that have been made in it. Surely Mr Frank also touched on the crux of that great truth in his address, the first and a long step towards its ultimate advancement and success for all

LOST 10 LBS. IN TWO MONTHS

Not too Old to Reduce at 50

Here is a letter which proves that there is no necessity to tolerate excessive fatness, even at the age of 50.

"I was becoming too fat after reaching 50, and suffered attacks of rheumatism and indigestion. I took Kruschen salts and noticed the medicine but they did not do any permanent good. Then I started taking Kruschen. I soon began to feel different—healthier, brighter and more energy, no rheumatism, and to my surprise, after two months I lost 10 lbs in weight. I have not had to stop taking much more, as digestion fullness has nearly left me."—Mrs. F. Avery.

The numerous vital salts in Kruschen promote health and keep up the bodily functions from a number of different angles. First, Kruschen dissolves fat, and Kruschen all feel the immediate benefit. Your blood is cleansed of impurities and becomes charged with refreshed. You forget indigestion, rheumatism, and depression in a new and unaccustomed feeling of physical and mental exhilaration.

WHAT DOES YOUR HANDWRITING REVEAL?

By LAWRENCE HIBBERT
(Graphe-Analyst)

(All Rights Reserved)

(Editor's Note- The response to the author's invitation to readers to send in a specimen of their handwriting for personal reading has been enormous. Readers are referred to the announcement at the foot of this article)

"How can Graphe-Analysis help me"—That is the question that readers invariably ask when they read my articles on the subject of character analysis from handwriting.

And it is a natural question. For in these days many are beset on all sides by others, the struggle for existence, for prosperity as individualists. I will endeavor to answer the question by first asking others

Are you happy?—or are you consciously frowning at life, with a constant chip on your shoulders?

Are you progressing in your work? Are you climbing slowly but surely up the social ladder; unable to make any real progress, yet have no idea what to do to change the possibilities of your future?

If you are married, are you contented?—or is disagreement creeping in, with perpetual bickering between husband and your life partner?

Do you make friends, and keep them?—or are you living the life of an involuntary recluse, unable to enjoy the society and companionship of real friends?

The answers to all these questions can be summed up briefly in a phrase—Know yourself, and others. Or, one hundred years before—Understanding. If you go through life without knowing the individuality of yourself, your faults and your virtues; your merits and your weaknesses—you will be ill-equipped.

Life's prize go to those who, knowing their faults, endeavor to overcome them and strengthen them; who, realizing their virtues, strive to develop them.

Graphe-Analysis helps you to know yourself, and thus enables you to help others. It is a science, a philosophy, whilst at the same time, by pointing out your weaknesses, gives you an opportunity to rectify them.

Handwriting is not merely a matter of writing words. It is the ability to use your brain in order to write. The eye, and brain is the capital of mind body. Everything you do emanates from the mind, and brain. And in writing is only the physical expression of the instructions coming from your brain.

And everything you are and can be is mirrored up in your handwriting, as diagnosed by an expert graphoanalyst.

The Motor Horn

Suppression Of Noise In England During Hours Of Night

The city of London has tried an experiment in the suppression of noise with such success that the London rule is being extended to cover the whole of England. In London for some weeks past it has been an offence, punishable by fine, to sound a motor horn between 11:30 at night and seven o'clock in the morning. The celebrated English respect for law has again been in evidence. Motorists have agreed that a highly closed season on honking is a good idea and have refrained from sounding klaxons and hooters in the prohibited hours. A blessed quietude has resulted. People have been surprised to find out how large an ingredient in London's sight became the motor horn was.

It was a serious accidental and unexpected result of the regulation in that London at night is safer now than it was. A motorist who knows that he may not sound a warning before, warn the approaching pedestrian with a blast of sound is a more careful driver than he otherwise would be. The discovery of this fact suggests some reflections on the motor horn. Few would propose its abolition. A motor car without sounding apparatus in good order cannot pass the safety tests. On the other hand, there are certainly too many motorists who think that the possession of an efficient hooter gives them a license to take risks and scare pedestrians out of their wits. If drivers used their horns in emergency only and not as a routine method of clearing the streets, it is probable the streets would be safer.

They would be quieter too, of course. But the horn-blower who is the worst disturber of the peace is not the man who makes pedestrians jump. He is the young person who summons a friend by prolonged boasting outside the friend's house. The suppression of this nuisance daily from midnight to midnight would be welcome.—Winnipeg Free Press

Another Wheat Exporter

Report That France Has Joined The Ranks Of Exporters

The press report that France has left the ranks of wheat importing countries to join those of exporters is of considerable importance to Canada, in that still another competitor is added to the list. Prior to 1929, France did not produce sufficient wheat to meet her domestic requirements, except in years when exceptionally large crops were harvested. Large crops were grown in that country in 1929, 1933, and again in 1932, so that a surplus of wheat can been built up. In pre-war years France produced very large crops. The 1909 crop amounted to 320 million bushels, or equivalent to the production of 1932. In the five-year period from 1909 to 1913, production averaged 317 million bushels per annum. From 1929 to 1932 it was 296 million bushels or about 97 million bushels less than the pre-war average. France has not reached her pre-war average acreage of wheat which amounted to 17.5 million acres. The 1935 acreage was 13,358,000 and it has not changed materially since 1929

Policy To Be Continued

Renewal Of Stock Feeder System Has Been Announced

Hon. Robert Weir, Dominion minister of agriculture, has announced the renewal of the feeder purchase policy, which was in effect from 1924 to 1932. Under this policy the Dominion department of agriculture will pay one-way railway fare and immobilia travelling expenses to purchase feeder cattle to return to their farms for feeding

The object of this policy is to enable those farmers who have a surplus of feed to use it to advantage and at the same time provide an outlet for surplus feeder cattle.

WILL PROPOSE AMENDMENTS TO THE B. N. A. ACT

Ottawa.—The British North America Act, that aged document which at once binds together the provinces of Canada in one vast national unit, yet stands as a bulwark of protection of peculiar provincial rights, will be the bone of contention at a momentous conference in Ottawa, probably in November.

While the date of the conference is no nearer fixed than when Prime Minister R. B. Bennett sent out the call to the provincial premiers the first of the month, most of the provinces have signified their willingness to attend. Their comments or suggestions on the proposed amendments to the constitution have yet to be made but will probably be ready by the end of the month.

It is proposed to have the provinces yield to federal government control the existing jurisdiction with respect to such social matters as unemployment insurance, hours of labor and minimum wages, certain forms of taxation, company laws and possibly trade regulations involving private property

The British North America Act which brought the first three provinces into one Canadian confederation in 1867, made no provision for amendable amendment. There have been amendments and the general practice has been to secure these by joint resolution of the senate and house of commons addressed to the imperial parliament in London. On occasions they have been secured on the solo representations of the prime minister but that was many years ago.

It will be the objective of the forthcoming conference to secure approval of certain proposed amendments and also to secure, by consent and concurrence of the provinces and the Dominion, approval by the British parliament of a purely Canadian method of amending the constitution.

If this latter objective is achieved it will then be possible for the Canadian people, as represented by their members in parliament, to make whatever amendments in accordance dictate without further reference to London

Aftermath Of Yacht Race

Will Not Enter Another Challenge, Sopwith Says

Newport, R.I. — Endeavour, the trim sloop which completed an unsuccessful bid for the America's cup, returned to Bristol, Rhode Island, Rainbow for the America's cup, to rest for sale

Her owner T. O. M. Sopwith, said emphatically, "I am not selling Endeavour" when he was asked if reports that a movement was afoot in Nova Scotia to purchase the sloopchallenger for use in racing with the Bluenose, Canada's crack fishing schooner.

Sopwith said there was no reason why he should sell the craft

"She is going back to England inside of a fortnight," he added. "I'm going to race her next summer in England

While Sopwith has flatly said he will never challenge again, there were many here who held to the belief that Endeavour was a faster boat than the Rainbow and that superior seamanship was the factor that enabled the United States boat to overtake and vanquish the Endeavour

Those who argued Britain would again challenge for the cup held that Britons must have been encouraged by the fine showing of the Sopwith yacht

Members of the Rainbow camp did not hesitate to admit they were extremely lucky in edging out the big blue intruder

Kidnapping Menace

Hon. Arthur Roebuck Addresses Conference In New York

New York.—Hon. Arthur Roebuck, attorney-general for Ontario, laid before law enforcement and crime prevention authorities of the United States a plan designed to eradicate the growing menace of kidnapping for ransom.

Mr Roebuck's reply to challenges from kidnappers, he declared, should be "certainty of apprehension, and make the penalty unpardonable." This would be accomplished by making it illegal to pay a ransom and by welding all police authorities into a mobile unit which could be stretched out in any direction at sudden notice.

Mr Roebuck, speaking at the New York Herald-Tribune's conference on current problems of 1934, emphasized that he would be called on to effect centralization of police authority "and the reorganization of our civil officials on the basis of a standing army," but what he thought was required was "generalship; and generalship is impossible without control."

There was no need for centralized management of all our forces, he said, but there was need for centralized control of certain of our activities, certain of our resources in the hands of a unified criminal investigation department."

He said his plans to submit at the next session of the Ontario legislature measures designed to widen authority of this branch of the Ontario Provincial Police.

He also told of his preparations to submit to the legislature a proposal which would "entrust the executive with power to supervise the bank accounts and other resources of relatives of persons who disappear when they are subject to the pressure of such illegal demands, and by so doing make forcibly prevent payment of ransom."

Mr. Roebuck agreed such measures would make forfeitable to relatives of a kidnapped victim but he expressed the conviction that if plottirs knew in advance a ransom could not be paid and such payment would be prevented by law authorities, "the relatives would not have been kidnapped. It is not new that the state should ask individuals to bear hardship for the common good."

Wants To Keep Control

British Columbia Reluctant To Surrender New Wage Law

Victoria.—With what he considers higher wage standards and labor conditions in effect in British Columbia than in other parts of Canada, the province would be reluctant to surrender control over its minimum wage and labor regulations to the Dominion authority, Hon. G. S. Pearson, minister of labor, stated.

According to the estimate of Premier T. D. Pattullo, payrolls in British Columbia have been increased $500,000 monthly by minimum wage scales put into effect in the province during the present year.

Mr. Pearson was speaking of the report that the Dominion might propose taking over control of wage scales, at the coming Dominion-provincial conference. The minister is in agreement with the idea of having wage legislation adopted throughout Canada, but is opposed to the Dominion selling scales for this province British Columbia is willing to discuss the matter of wages for the whose of Canada when and if it feels are right, stated the minister.

Town Sells Buildings By Tender

The Town of Vermilion advertised several buildings in last week's Standard as being for sale by tender These had been seized by the Town owing to tax arrearages and were so situated as to be considered as the bandits. The buildings were all sold for substantial sums and are according to conditions laid down, to be removed within sixty days

The buildings were the old livery barn immediately east of the Imperial Bank, sold to E. R. Wilson, the red barn with garage addition, situated east of Waring's store sold to W. Mc Rae the small house west of Mary Suh's feed stable sold to W J Moses The advertisement was just a small one placed in an odd corner of the paper, this demonstrates once again that advertising pays and that even a pair of the Standard, inside or out is equally well read

The Forty-Ninth Parallel

An interesting and thought-provoking editorial article appeared recently in a popular magazine which circulates extensively throughout Canada and the United States. The subject was the forty-ninth parallel across the world. The people of the North American continent regard it as an imaginary line which marks the boundary between the United States and Canada, but, says this magazine editor, the world over the mere mention of the forty-ninth parallel is something more than a bare line on the atlas. It is, he says, the world's line of destiny.

Elaborating his thesis he first invites attention to the fact that in America this invisible, unmarked boundary line is a line of peace. No frowning fortifications nor ugly length of barbed wire entanglements mar its borders or scar its natural beauties. For more than one hundred years it has been a line of amity, a symbol of the contradiction of the old World's barbaric principle that two neighboring countries cannot long exist without strife.

But tracing the course of the forty-ninth parallel around the globe he finds that the symbolism of peace on North America becomes the hard-learned lesson of strife throughout Europe and Asia, stumbling its ugly way through the very heart of the world's worst trouble spots. He continues:

The line of peace upon opposing its Pacific coasts, the frontiers of Asia border ranges and the Himalayan mystery of Manchukuo. On the other hand, the forty-ninth parallel in Europe is a line of war. On the Pacific Japan marches her lines in the jungle areas that border her most triumphant boundaries on the mainland of Asia.

Travel with the line of peace across the flat expanses of the new Red Russian and note its dramatic significance as it pierces the inner core of European turmoil. It traverses the Polish Corridor, constant source of statesmen's uneasy slumber. It cuts through a troubled boundaries; bisects a territory of Germany which Hitler promises never at the most jealous point of its ancient pride. Indeed, Lake Constance, type the line of unmarked steel that mark the longest unguarded frontiers that sweep the Atlantic to the more pacific frontiers of the continent.

As it breaks up against the shores of peace among men in a devilish recognition of the human answer to the character of the human heart. Then in the nature of the line itself.

Running a great intermingling of many races still trace their main descent to one racial source and have proved their ability to, in large measure, assimilate those newcomers of many races and all have largely forgotten, or dropped, the old nationalistic suspicions, jealousies and hatreds of by-gone centuries which are nourished and kept alive in the countries of the Old World.

America is fortunate in this, and stands as an object lesson to all other lands. This being so, have we been as good neighbors as we ought to have been, have we taken full advantage of and reaped all the benefits that should have been ours as a result of our peerless position? True, we have kept the peace in a physical sense in that we have refrained from war, and the economic folly of building up huge armaments one against the other and the false assumption that only through such a so-called "preparedness" can peace be maintained.

But the forty-ninth parallel across North America is not quite the imaginary line it might well have been to the advancement and benefit of people living on both sides of it. There are no forts, but there are all too many legislative barriers imposed along its entire length by both countries, barriers on the one side being duplicated by similar barriers on the other side.

We build our roads on both sides to meet and merge at the boundary line, we construct our railways to the same gauge in order that trains may move without pause from one country to the other, without trans-shipment of passengers or goods, the liner waits a few uninterruptedly across the line carrying radio messages to and fro, and the same is true of the telegraph and telephone, our books and newspapers and magazine our automobiles cross and re-cross, our mails move with-out restraint or loss of time, our trades unions are international in their character so too are our fraternal societies and service clubs, our churches are affiliated via with each other on common fields.

Being so favored, and having done so much to provide our common interests so many ways, and having developed an international friendliness unknown elsewhere and having utilized all that science and invention has bestowed in order to promote this love and mutually advantageous intercourse why have we proceeded to erect artificial barriers to check and stop the flow of trade which all these other agencies have been perfected to encourage and develop? The people of both countries are deemed to be highly intelligent, they are not unmindful of the lessons of history, yet they acted so shamefully as to hamper and cripple that which they have spent untold millions of money and energy to encourage?

There is only one answer, and that answer is to be found in the rapidity of mere individuality and collectivity, of the line of peace" Nature designed that the northern half of this great continent should be the complement of and to be a whole with half. The Maritime Provinces with their resources are the natural complement of the Atlantic seaboard States, Quebec and Ontario are the complement of the Central States, the Prairie Provinces are the complement of the great western States right down to the gulf, British Columbia, the complement of the Pacific coast States. Yet puny man tries to defy Nature and as a result finds himself in a mess of things throughout the whole realm of trade and commerce, finance and economics.

The forty-ninth parallel across North America is a splendid object lesson to all nations except in this one respect. Let these two great peoples do the sensible thing and set another object lesson to the world, and lead the way to a new and new suffering because of the wholesale destruction of international trade.

Richest Street In World

Shops Of Curio Dealers In Delhi, India, Contain Many Treasures

What is the richest street in the world? Without taking into account the environs of the Stock Exchange and Wall Street, where museum fortunes change hands, the Bibbe-known Chandni Chowk in Delhi has substantial claims. It has often been referred to as the richest street in Asia, and, unlike our own commercial thoroughfares, the greater part of its wealth is there for all to see. But many are the treasures which are hid-len away in secret recesses of the shops of curio dealers and jewellers in that picturesque street. One of the dealers, the walls of whose establishment are covered with letters of appointment from Highnesses and Excellencies of all descriptions has manufactured countless wonderful golden and jewelled embroideries for crowned heads and ruling princes to whom he has supplied the finest peacock gown, costing no less than one thousand pounds, which the late Lady Curzon wore at the Delhi Ball, attended by four thousand guests in the Delhi Fort in 1903. Here also are the richest of the embroidery mercants, whose cloths and cloaks, scintillating with costly ornaments, are not confined to royalty, but for State ceremonies. Here too, are the carvers of ivory and the craftsmen who exhibit their skill in evolving delicate figures and animals from solid blocks of ivory, sewn from elephants' tusks.

Woman's Long Search For a Remedy

The trouble with most remedies for constipation is this: Instead of relieving it they give only temporary relief and are found to be permanently corrective, she writes to tell us about it:—

"For upwards of 30 years I was a victim of this constipation. I tried practically everything that it was possible to try. I admit I was a fool for I tried every new remedy I tried helped for a day or two—after that I was worse off than before. Some months ago I took my first taste of Nature's Remedy (NR), and every morning since, and every morning so long as I live, my first duty upon rising is my Kruschen. I honestly feel a different woman. It is a result of my first act in the clock, and my friends remark how well I am looking. My only regret is that I did not try Kruschen years ago." (Mrs.) A. M.

Kruschen Salts is Nature's recipe for maintaining a condition of internal cleanliness. Its six salts in Kruschen stimulate your internal organs to healthy activity. Nature's own system to thus kept clear of those impurities which, allowed to accumulate, lower the whole tone of the system.

Your Aviators Left 'Plane When Trouble Developed

"I just came down by parachute—then ran a 17" motor-car," declared stardust motorist got on the highway near Guildford, England, when he was stopped by an aviator waving a flashlight.

The airman was one of three officers who had baled out of a bombing plane at a height of 2,000 feet in the darkness. He got into the car and they went in tooh for the others.

A search yards further on the car was stopped by another flashlight. Then a third light was seen across a field. It was that of the pilot, who had bailed out when the machine, which apparently experienced engine trouble, was only 500 feet up.

None of the four was hurt.

Scientists Tell Of Heat Combined In Arc Light Carbon

The hottest known thing on earth, we are told, is the burning carbon of an arc light. It is so hot that volcanic most forms in the incandescent crater, a fog of gaseous vapors.

Formerly this fog was thought to be liquid carbon, but a recent report to the American Chemical Society concludes that carbon does not pass through a liquid stage in turning from solid to gas, at least not at atmospheric pressure.

This may be a reason why diamonds have been an impossible for man to make, says the report, for diamonds apparently are the products of a liquid form of carbon.

But, if diamonds cannot be produced from carbon, move heat and light can, it is hoped. Three Finland scientists who have been measuring the heat of the carbon are positive that "under the right conditions, and with a little further chemical aid" arc can be made to burn with an intensity slightly greater than that of the sun.

This would be a novel achievement, indeed. An arc light that is brighter than the sun! It sounds almost presumptuous. —Detroit Free Press.

Little Journeys in Science

DIAMONDS

(By Gordon H. Grant, M.A.)

Diamonds are the purest form of carbon, an element which occurs in almost every living substance. Found in the sand and gravel of river, lake, or sea beds, the stones are separated out by a washing process which carries away the softer coatings, leaving the diamond free. These gems have a crystalline form, but sometimes stones are cut by experts to bring out further enhance their brilliance. Clear diamonds have the greatest value, although there are rare occurrences of strongly coloured stones which are much prized. Black diamonds are more plentiful than the clear stones and are used for cutting and drilling. Diamonds are also used by engravers in making etchings

Heat has been a dream of many scientists to make synthetic diamonds, and this has been accomplished occasionally, although it is found that the process does not produce sufficient pieces to make it worth while.

Moissan, a French chemist, in 1893 was successful in producing a small quantity of the gems by heating charcoal with iron to a very high temperature in an electric furnace. The mixture was then cooled very quickly. A casting of iron was rapidly formed on the outside, but at the centre the cooling was slower, and a few very small clear and black diamonds were found. Rubies and other gems have also been made synthetically, but not with great success.

Diamonds are measured by carats, a unit of weight which is equivalent to three grains troy weight. The largest diamond ever found was the "Cullinan" which was mined in South Africa. This stone originally weighed 3,025¾ carats, but it was later cut into smaller stones.

The New York Times in an editorial commenting conditions in the United States and Canada, says in part as follows. "Since the middle of June the course of American business activity has been downward. The weekly business index compiled by the New York Times from the figures or freight car loadings, steel mill activity, electric power, automobile, lumber and cotton cloth production fell last week to a point where it cancelled all the gains achieved between last November and April of this year. Business by this index is now back approximately to the level of January, 1933, a few weeks before the bank closings, and to the point reached at the end of April of that year when President Roosevelt had been in office two months. This record contrasts sharply with that of Canada, in which the figures indicate point to activity well over 30 per cent. greater than that in January of 1933."

OBITUARY

MRS. JAMES CAREY

The funeral of the late Mrs. James Carey (nee E. Hazel Laycock), who passed away at the Islay Municipal Hospital on Thursday last 4th, aged 21 years, was held at the Vermilion United church on Saturday, October 6th at 2:30 p.m. Services were conducted by the Rev H A Boyd, assisted by the Rev. W. S. Laird of Islay.

The pallbearers were Al. Beecroft, Angus McDonald, Neil McKerhen C. C. Mitchell, J. T. Fyfe and T. A. Torrance.

On Sunday the funeral cortege proceeded from the Waring Funeral Parlors, Vermilion, to Pumoka, where committal services were conducted by the Rev. Mr. Davies.

The late Mrs. Hazel Carey was the youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Geo. L. Laycock, Pumoka. She leaves to mourn her loss besides her husband James Carey of Islay, her parents and two sisters, Mrs. Wm Whitfield, of Vanella, Calloway, Mrs. Ed Whitaker, Alberta, and two brothers, Harry, of Sylvan Lake and Leonard at home. She was held in high esteem by a cheerful and generous disposition and her early demise came as a great shock to many friends.

Floral tributes included a beautiful wreath from Mrs. Carey's many considerable misgivings as to the ability of the pool to make repayments in view of conditions in the wheat market. The record of settlement to date is reassuring. The pool has been doing a fair share of the grain business of the province.

The Practical and the Ideal

Alberta Pool Elevators is a creation of the agricultural co-operative movement and as such is closely knit to the families on the land who believe in and act upon the principles of co-operation in order to better their condition.

Commercial success is highly important but it is to be regarded only as a means to an end—the improvement of the living conditions of rural people.

The major function of this extensive country and terminal elevator system owned by Alberta farmers is to give support to their natural aspirations for a more secure rural tenure.

Both the practical and the ideal sides of the farm movement are united in Alberta Pool Elevators and on this basis a general appeal for support is extended to all grain growers.

Twelfth Annual Convention V.I.E.A. Concludes Sessions Friday

110 IN ATTENDANCE

The twelfth annual convention of the Vermilion Inspectorate Education Association finished its business session last Friday with a business meeting when the following officers were elected:

Hon. President — Dr. R. C. Wallace
President — Morris Allen, Kenilworth school, Islay
Vice President — Harold White
Miss Edward school
Secretary-Treasurer — K. G. Crispin, Vermilion

Committee — H. B. Parker, R.A. (Pres.), Vermilion; Clarence Elliott, Pleasant Valley; Miss Doris Elliott, Clyffside school, Vermilion; Hugh Doherty, Hillsdale school, Bardmore.

Speakers during Friday's sessions were Dr. W. W. Bell, Principal W. J. Elliott, M.A., and Rev. H. A. Boyd, all of United church.

One of the outstanding features of the convention was the public address delivered by President Wallace in the United church Thursday evening. He took for his theme "Education" and dealt with his subject from the standpoint of a training to think for oneself. Schools and universities placed tools in the hands of students and with which they were asked to carve out their future lives. Training must be along economic as well as international lines. People were getting more and more into the way of thinking things out for themselves, inspiring into the ways and whereabouts of life. Time and the other thing. They cannot be swamped or ruled by the tyranny of the political rule as they used to be in the past. That day was done. In the course of his address Dr. Wallace stressed the need in Canada of a Social Research Council along the lines of the National Research body. This council could undertake into the problem of the unemployed, unemployment insurance, hours of labor and other social matters concerning which our knowledge today was very limited. Much could be done to solve many of our economic problems by a research study through a council composed of men trained to think along those lines of endeavor. He also spoke of the great responsibility placed upon the shoulders of those entrusted with the work of the school room as well as in our colleges. There are had the problem density of the modern.

The address was highly enlisting and was listened to by a large gathering. H. S. Parker, inspector of schools, presided.

WILDMERE WISPS

Here we are once more, all through with cooking for the threshers for another year. Threshing is almost finished in our district. If it stays dry, this week will see most everyone's grain in the bins.

We are very glad to see Mr. Baillie Wilson home again from the hospital where he was a patient for a few days. Everyone wishes you a speedy recovery to health, Mr. Wilson.

L. Graham had the pleasure of threshing No. 1 for whom last week. It's the first No. 1 dry we have heard of so far around here. Mr. Martin, Triangle, had some oats standing in the season, but none has gone dry since the rain until last week again.

Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Steele and baby son visited Sunday evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Bathe, Islandwood.

Mr. Cornish and Mr. Dunning have been holding church services at Haslwood school for the past two Sundays at half-past two in the afternoon. Everyone is welcome.

Miss Marion Gibson, Dunsmoor teacher, attended the convention held in Vermilion last week. Miss Furey, our teacher, did not go this year.

Notice of Annual Meeting

Several farmers going ahead with discing and fall plowing. Eric Medill still cutting flax. Tom Bust reaching green feed. Smith Bros. threshing at home. A. Carlson also threshing for himself. And last but not least, J. Kennedy's cow still hanging around at the neighbor's gates.

We saw trucks have been purchased in the district of Wildmere the fall.

Here and There

What a practical newspaperman finds interesting in the news items around the world in the Canadian Pacific flagship Empress of Britain can be readily imagined. As captain the imagination of stay-at-homes. Last winter Alan Moorehead Irwin, a Montreal writer, made the cruise. He saw the ports and places, outstanding people and strange customs. He met and talked with and wrote a book which is illustrated by photographs he took with his own camera, filled with amusing sketches, eyes, humanity. Now, under the interpretative title "—and ships—and sealing wax," the book is on Mecutchan's fall list.

That United States investors' capital would flow into Canada in an even greater volume in the prediction of John E. Hagtie, of the Mutual Life of New York office in Ottawa, speaking before the Life Underwriters Association of Toronto, at the Royal York Hotel recently.

The cream of American baseball players is scheduled to sail from Vancouver, October 30, aboard the Canadian Pacific liner Empress of Japan, for an all-star tour of Japan, China and the Philippines. Among the stars Mr. Kenesaw Mountain Landis may also be in the party.

Photographed in a group for the first time since they were "shot" on their arrival in Canada a few years ago, His Excellency the Governor-General, Lady Bessborough and their elder son and daughter were snapped on board the Empress of Britain just before Lord Bessborough and her son and daughter sailed for Europe recently.

Appropriation of one dollar was made recently by the Vancouver City Council as the nominal price for the purchase from the Canadian Pacific Railway of 1½ acres of right-of-way property at Kitsilano Beach, near the British Columbia city.

The first Meccano appointment of the season for distribution throughout the Dominion from Victoria to Halifax west and recently over Canadian Pacific lines in trains of 45 cars. The fruit is reported to be in wonderful condition and this season's product will maintain the great reputation that British Columbia has won for its apples.

Under the Canadian Pacific five years' free scholarship award to McGill University, Reside Metallurgy, of Montreal, David B. Reid, of Winnipeg, and Albert Grant Austin, of Lethbridge, all sons of company employees, are announced as this year's winners. The scholarships are renewable every year up to five years if the holders are entitled to fall standing in the next higher year.

"There is very clear evidence of a return to prosperity in Canada due to a greater feeling of confidence," was a recent declaration of Lord Riff, owner of more British trade papers than any other publisher in the United Kingdom, interviewed aboard the Empress of Britain.

From every state of the Union and every province of Canada, more than a dozen of the Irish representatives of the Knights of Columbus were assembled in the Royal York Hotel, Toronto, for the annual convention of the Knights of Columbus.

WHEAT INSPECTIONS

An interesting analysis of wheat inspections so far this year reflects the effects of the early heavy frosts on the grades of the grain in the northern districts, but reveals also the very gratifying information that 60% more wheat has not only marketed much more wheat to this date than was the case last year but that the grades are just as good if not a shade better. Calgary reports a total of 1,300 cars inspected between August 1st and October 1st, with 30% of the wheat grading No. 2 or better, as compared with a total inspection of only 8,474 cars in the same period last year, with the grading percentage just about the same. At Edmonton, however, there is not only a drop of nearly 1,000 cars in the number inspected last since August 15th, as compared with last year, but the percentage of those grading No. 2 or better has dropped this year to 73.5% from last year's percentage of 91.

However on running north on Bulyea they came too close to a parked truck; the wagon wheel axle caught under the fender of the truck and away went the whole outfit down the street. It was stopped before any damage was done or before it had travelled very many yards by acting Chief Fred Harrington who proved to be right on the spot. The truck was a big one belonging to Tom Carena.

it. Prevention of the concentrating of great wealth and some equalization of labor so that all may work were among the problems to that end confronting us.

Hon. Mr. Grisdale was principal of this school from 1915 to 1919 and spoke with first hand knowledge of the conditions prevailing then and now. He paid tribute to the fine work that had been done in this and the other schools of agriculture in the province in training students for their chosen avocations on the farm. Alberta was the first province in Canada to adopt the present system of schools as opposed to the centralization policy adopted in other provinces. Ontario was now about to follow the pattern set by Alberta. One of the great problems facing farming communities was the marketing of their products and this was one to which those schools would now direct their activities more than ever. We must take advantage of the marketing act passed at the last session of the Dominion parliament so that the producer will not only produce but will process his products and sell them himself. This was especially the case with poultry and the bacon industry. We have been producing at less than cost; this has to be changed. The government was doing everything now to enable farmers to take advantage of this act. The time was ripe to put his provisions into operation so that the farmer would reap for himself the profits that now go to the middleman.

The Premier also spoke in praise of the work done at the schools of agriculture and particularly so of the pioneer achievements of the early institutes who did not have the equipment and facilities provided these days. It was here the foundation of their present success was laid. He also spoke briefly of the many problems facing agricultural interests today and appealed to those trained in these schools to do not their courses in life to assist in adjusting those problems such that the conditions of the past four years will not be repeated, at least in the severity which we have just experienced. A solution must be found for the more equitable distribution of work than in the past. We must have an economic handed justice. He referred to the work the government had been doing with respect to agricultural pests the working out of the weed policy and their fault at some length with the work of reforestration in which the government was at present engaged. He had no doubt in his mind the wanton destruction of timber lots and bush had changed the climatic condition of the province and we must undo this wrong. Hundreds of acres of the province were slowly drifting south and this was due to climatic changes in its soil. The balance of nature which we ... the early colonization of the ... must now be viewed as ... HANDWRITING REVEALS CHARACTER

(Graphe-Analyst)
(All Rights Reserved)

(Editor's Note:— Considerable interest has been aroused in these articles, written by a well-known handwriting expert. Have you had your handwriting analyzed? See the announcement at the foot of the article.)

A young man from a small town in Saskatchewan wrote to me a letter and enclosed a specimen of his bold writing of his new thought. Part of her letter follows: In sending you my own handwriting, and also that of a friend, I would like you to advise me. I am very much perplexed about my sweetheart very often and I have always thought he reciprocated my affection. But I am beginning to wonder if he really does and whether he is the right type of man for me. I love him very much, but would rather finish things with me than to have a lot of trouble and unhappiness later on. We are engaged to be married, but to keep putting off making a date for the wedding. And I have been told that he goes out with other girls when I'm not here but kept me to forget him and imagine me that when I'm not here he will have nothing to do with other girls. At the same time he puts me off by telling me that his income is much too low to marry. I am to contemplate matrimony for. Please advise me and tell me the truth whether it is good or bad.

I am sorry for my correspondent and am inclined to believe that she is sensible enough to realize as she says in her letter, that it is better to effect a cure now, than make a great deal more trouble and unhappiness for herself later on.

Her own handwriting shows a very ardent nature that simply must have the affection of others if it is to grow and flourish, and has a good deal of natural pride. Her writing shows that she would like to be loved for her own sake and that she cannot be and be her master.

Her boy friend, the writing of her friend is not so good. It shows a tendency to self-indulgence for himself. He is of a sensitive type that is easily disappointed and naturally affectionate in the kindly sense. He is a rather typical type.

My advice to the young lady is that the young man is not the one for her. If she marries him, she will deserve her just as he is because she knows it is his nature to do so.

She shows a streak of dishonesty in him. This coupled with the very definite indications of deceit, tells me that she will only be unhappy if she continues to go with him.

And, speaking of the practical, she is not getting any younger she is losing her opportunities of making the acquaintance of a man who may become fond of her, and make her a good husband.

Acquires Television Device

United States Buys American Rights From Austrian Inventor

Gustav Boehm, Austrian inventor, who claims to have perfected a cheap television set, has sold the American rights to his patent.

The patent, it is claimed, can be adjusted to the ordinary radio receiving set.

The new apparatus is a short wave receiving set capable of clear television within a radius of 50 miles and receiving pictures 4½ by six feet in size.

Herr Boehm, who has been working in Vienna for ten years on his invention, left for New York to supervise the manufacture of his television set. Details of its construction are kept secret until the apparatus has been placed on the market.

Petrol From Salt Water

French Inventor Declares Production Costs Cent Per Gallon

A mechanic at Rouen, M. Albert Baheux, claims to have discovered a process by which he can convert salt water into petrol at a cost of three centimes a litre (about one cent a gallon), says the San Francisco Chronicle. The process is apparently simple: The salt water is pumped through a filter into an electric oven in which it comes into contact with a chemical product of which Mr. Baheux alone knows the composition.

The water emerges in the form, apparently, of petrol. M. Baheux has produced it in substantial quantities and expects very soon to be able to validate his claim. He says that his discovery is based on the observation that natural deposits of petroleum are always accompanied by deposits of salt water. He is willing to sell the secret for $1,250,000.

The entrance to his experimental plant is guarded by two Gatling guns, and he is personally driven off intruders who tried to dismantle one of his ovens at night.

Explanations And Comments

How to Study the Bible. When a man insists that every statement in the Bible is to be taken as literally true, he outrages our sense of fact. That is not true. On the other hand when some man refers to the Bible as "a lot of myths, legends and tales," a cast-off collection of literary and clothes, he outrages both our sense of reverence and our sense of fact. That is not so either. The more thoughtful people of the world have been using this book for centuries as a book of final reliance for all who would live nobly.

The only method for an enduring faith in the Bible is sound, accurate, thorough knowledge. Let men study to show themselves approved unto God, workmen that need not be ashamed, rightly dividing the word of truth. Let them learn to discriminate between that which is merely local, temporary, incidental in this literature and that which is universal, enduring, vital. Let them learn that we have there a record of the progressive revelation which God made of himself through the religious experiences of a people in their search after spiritual insight. It is a record of gradual gained processes of mental and spiritual unfolding, stretching through a period of more than a thousand years. We have this heavenly treasure in the earthen vessel of a Hebrew civilization, and it takes shape, color, and odor from the vessel which contains it. The more we learn about the literature our knowledge of the Bible, the better it will be able to use writings which are able to make men wise unto salvation and furnish them thoroughly for all good work.

But consider that fearless, painstaking scholarship, which walks through the pages of Holy Writ with eyes wide open to the truth, let there be also a genuine reverence for this book as a message from the heart of God to the soul of man. "Let knowledge grow from more to more, but more of reverence in us dwell." Men have found this book a lamp unto their feet and a light unto their path. They would have it hid in the heart that I might not sin against Him. Discriminating study carried on in the right spirit leads to the renewal of the inner life. There is no more satisfactory test of biblical knowledge and reverence, between scholarship and devotion—they are the right and left hands of a common, complete approach to the Scriptures. We say "Our Father," and we say "Hallowed be thy name." In like manner, let there be the blending of intimate knowledge with wholesome reverence in the life. Let us shall find that "all Scripture given by inspiration of God is profitable for instruction in righteousness". Charles Reynolds Brown, in The Gospel for Main Street.

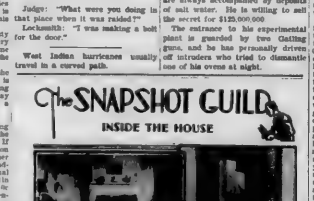
The Snapshot Guild

INSIDE THE HOUSE



Light for this living-room chat came from the window at the right. The day was almost dull but the camera caught every detail in an exposure of only a tenth of a second.

Stairways almost always have rich picture possibilities. The stairs shown here have an unusual twist, which was capitalized by the photographer. Note the most "ordinary" of stairs can be made to give striking and memorable pictures. All you need is a watchful eye and a handy camera.

If you've got off taking pictures of the inside of your home because of a vague notion that such pictures are unusual, banish that notion and get out your camera. Here are a few pointers that may help you in your first shots.

In the first place, you will need to make time exposures. And for successful time exposures the camera must be absolutely steady. Use a tripod, if you have one, or prop the camera on some substantial support such as a table. Too, the camera must be level; otherwise corners and doors and windows will not be properly straight up and down.

It is a good idea to place your camera so that you get only a little of the ceiling in the picture-finder. There's more of interest nearer the floor.

The secret of success in indoor pictures lies in controlling the light reaching the various parts of the room to be pictured. To begin with, never point your camera directly at the window or door through which the greatest amount of light is coming. Keep the light behind or to the side of the camera. If, as sometimes happens, a sunny window is in a particular part of the house you want to take, you can eliminate sun-glare by a very simple trick. Pull the shade of that particular window clear down and keep it down for an exposure long enough to give you the other features and details. Then, close the shutter and run the shade up to its normal position. Now, go back to the camera and, without changing the film or the camera's position, repeat the shutter speed for a half second longer

It's a good idea to use a very small lens stop in taking indoor pictures, because you want detail in every part of the room, and this will find that "all Scripture given by inspiration of God is profitable for instruction in righteousness". Charles Reynolds Brown, in The Gospel for Main Street.

THE TENDERFOOT

By

SYNOPSIS

"You've fallen heir to a half-share in plenty of trouble," the dying Gerad Keene. "The Broken Spur has been systematically looted, the ranch and old Jos Carr, your partner, is drinking himself into ruin."

But Keene decided to go see what was happening for himself—and at Gerald Keene, half owner of the Hour-Glass Ranch, but as Dave Stone, tenderfoot to a Montgomery Ward widower outfit.

Dad Kane, desert rat and luckless prospector till now, is returning to tell Dustin and Judy Goddard, owners of the Broken Spur ranch, who had grubstaked him, of his discovery of a rich gold mine, and shows samples of the ore. He sees Broken Spur and rustling Hour-glass cattle and protests against it.

(Now Go On With The Story)

For a moment silence held both men. They knew the old Scotch legend of the Mother Lode and they knew, too, that old desert rats like old Kane, believed in it with vigorously protesting their disbelief; that foolish old tale that says that all gold is fermented and thrown out from a central body as the human heart sends blood to the distant parts of the body and that the tiny veins of gold, if found and traced back to their origin, will lead to the great Mother Lode where gold is made.

"Mother Lode bull," quoth Dustin hotly. "Where'd you find this? Is it far from here?"

"Four days' travel even with them trained asses o' mine. Ever read 'em the Bible is to be taken as literally true, he outrages our sense of fact. That is not true. only got to prove that I was the first to find it."

Dustin nodded and Spike too. They knew the custom of law that is not justice at all at times.

"All the same," said Dustin, "I don't like to leave to trail 'em and he found a kingdom. I done the same. Mine got loose sam as I followed 'em up Red Water canon . . . Look 'em up Reed."

He fished futilely in his pocket, withdrew his hand and swore wildly when he stopped every pocket.

"I've done lost it," he said hoarsely. "I put down all the directions in my notebook and of course. It don't have no real difference. I can trail back there at night if I have to but I don't like lost my notebook that info was in it all. I know I had it just before I seen Gray an' Corse with the wagon."

"Maybe they found it," suggested Dustin.

"It won't help 'em none if they did, reckon. But I'd sure like to have it back. It's got all my accounts with you gentlemen in it It was up Red Water canon that I said . . ."

"That's on Hour-glass land," said Dustin fiercely.

"Who knows it if I don't" That was when I seen the wagon. I was examin' back from huntin' my stray horses when I stumbled on a piece of good lookin' float I put it in my pocket and went back to trace the vein I found the vein on the hillside and located it and come back. I was simple to build me a fire and round the ore to see what it was like. I had made all the entries in my notebook like I always do Then as I come over the ridge I seen the smoke and the wagon and then I seen the Hour-glass outfit. They left and I made my camp in the bottom. Then I went back and looked into the matter of the vein. I got out two little sacks of ore It'll sassy you Dustin and to the ten or I'm a Mormon

"Huh! You've been spendin' a lot of time lookin' for gold for a man that's on the Hour-glass land," said Dustin sourcingly "A minute ago you were accusing me of stealin' that worth's virulent tongue when aroused to speech but Spike a silent-spoken man, said he was dominated and controlled by his partner.

"We've got to do something and do it quick," said Dustin. "Old Dad Kane is bound to talk. He just can't help it. And if once word gets out that he's found rich ore even on Hour-glass land, there'll sure be hell to pay. Red Water canon is clearly on the Hour-glass I wish the old fool hadn't told that note-book. I'm afraid to ask Gray and Corse about it. They'd double cross us in a second if they got wind of what we find this the old fool's made . . ."

"Thinks old man Carr would tell if he's properly approached" suggested Spike.

"Huh Would you tell if you were in his place" That's the answer Even to mention the possibility of buyin' the rights from him would make him post the ranch against trespassers. Where'd we be then? I'm not sweryin' much about old Carr. I got him as good as sewed up in a sack with head and feet stickin' out. It's bigger than Carr. I'm aimin' at."

"Huh. You talk like a fool," said Spike sharply. "How his you say you got old Carr sewed up in a sack when you daasent even tie your pony to his tie-rack when you want to see that red-headed girl of his? You got the owner of the Hour-glass dead to rights? Huh. You make out to ride down to Reno to git the mail when there ain't no mail just 'cause you want to git another look at that red-headed Edith Carr You make me tired."

For just one brief moment Spike Goddard stood on the bare edge of red tragedy. He saw in his partner's eyes such a glare of utter hate that he fairly shrunk back at what he saw. For a full half minute Dustin stared at him fiercely; then he laughed. Spike drew a breath of relief.

"No use lookin' at me like you want to kill me," he said awkwardly. "I'm only tellin' you what all the Valley knows."

"About what, you damned fool?" snapped Dustin. "Of course I like Carr and I did have a row some three years ago. That was when your damned classmates got you caught 'moonin' up with his cows. If I want to tie my horse to the Hour-glass tie-rack, I'll take the consequences, I reckon. Get that? Put that in your pipe and smoke it."

"You will like hell," snarled Spike. "You'd be as welcome there as a rattler in a prairie dog's hole . . ."

"I'll be damned if the one remark needed. Dustin exploded

"And any time I happen to want Edith Carr, she'll come to her and mind what I say and do what I say and get it . . . "

"I hope you. I heard a lot of things I don't believe That aint that you started over Soda Springs ain't any invitation to dinner at the Hour-glass."

"All right. Don't believe me then. There's more ways to reach a girl than thru her father, darlin' as they call it now."

"I hear you . . . "

THE RHYMING OPTIMIST

By Aline Michaelis

WITH LIMITATIONS

Each heart must with Ulysses share the urge
Which made him wander on by sea and land
That which is moved along Earth's misty verge
Still beckoned by some far, compelling hand.

For everyone, sometimes, would leave his fireside
And all the certitude of peace and home
To answer the call with which distance across the lifting waves, the tossing foam

But years slip by, and never I turn once more
To memory, painted fairer than the truth,
Penelope beside her open door
Waits, lost and lovely, the bloom of youth!

Then red-lit skies from out their lying vows
And hastens back beside the hearth to drowse.

The Air-Cell Radio will do everything that the finest electric set will do. It has been brought about by the invention of a marvelous new source of power—the EVEREADY Air-Cell "A" Battery. This battery breathes air and re-energizes itself for at least 1000 hours, which at 3 hours a day is almost a year's service in the average household.

Do not confuse the new Air-Cell Radio with the old type battery sets—Air-Cell Radio is new from the ground up—now being built by every leading radio manufacturer specially for Air-Cell performance.

Ask your dealer to demonstrate. Your interest will be well repaid.

Duke Of Wellington's Invitation Card Uses Former Spelling

An invitation card, sent out by the Duke of Wellington, at the exhibition in the Royal United Service Museum, is a reminder that dropping of the "u" in such words as "honour" and "labour" is not an American innovation. Like so many Americanisms it has Anglo-Saxon antecedents. The card asks for the "honor" of the company of Lieut.-Col. the Duke of Wellington at the dinner given by the duke to celebrate the anniversary of Waterloo. The "favor" of an answer is requested.

Not till the publication of Dr. Johnson's Dictionary in 1755 was English spelling at all standardized. Wellington lived in an age in which the tradition of writing precisely as they thought fit still survived. Thus Castelreagh, who was his colleague at the Congress of Vienna, also indulged in some eccentricities. In one dispatch written to Liverpool in 1815 the then Foreign Secretary refers to Plattes which somehow seem echo Swedish." London Daily Telegraph.

Champion Bicycle Rider

The champion pedaller, a cyclist of Leeds, celebrated his jubilee on wheels he has pedalled 340,000 miles in the England like a map-maker, and thinks nothing of cycling 100 miles a day at 63. In 1911 he pedalled from Leeds to London 190 miles in 12 hours 36 minutes and held record for 21 years. He began on a bone-shaker, graduated to a penny-farthing and has ridden every make since . . .

Little Helps For This Week

Charles Wesley.

A little thought will show you how vastly your own happiness depends upon the happiness of other people themselves toward you. The looks and tones your breakfast table, the product of your fellow-workers or employees, the faithful or unreliable men you deal with, what people say about you, the letters you get, the friends or foes you meet, these things make up very largely the pleasure or misery of your day. Turn the idea around and remember that just so much are you adding to the happiness or misery of other people's days. And this is the half of the matter you can control. Whether any particular day will bring you more of happiness or of suffering is largely beyond your power to determine. Whether each day of your life shall give happiness or suffering to others rests with yourself George S. Merriman.

Faster Way Found to Relieve Headaches

NOW PAIN OFTEN RELIEVED IN MINUTES!

Directions for those who have often wished for relief from pain. Demand and get the method discovered by [illegible] Aspirin.

Mr. [illegible] found that tests conducted in a hospital laboratory showed that Aspirin tablets relieved pain in a few minutes.

Many of these tests were made on patients suffering from headaches. Other tests were made on those suffering from pain of neuritis, neuralgia, rheumatism, and from the pain of colds.

In the case of each one of these tests, Aspirin relieved pain in a few minutes.

Mr. [illegible] found that Aspirin acted so quickly because it was so readily soluble. Aspirin tablets dissolve instantly in water, forming a solution which is quickly absorbed by the body.

Ordinary tablets, which do not dissolve readily, must be digested before they can be absorbed. Hence they are slow in relieving pain.

Mr. [illegible] found that Aspirin does not harm the heart. Many of these tests were made on patients suffering from heart disease. Aspirin did not affect the heart in any way.

Mr. [illegible] found that Aspirin does not depress the heart. Many of these tests were made on patients suffering from heart disease. Aspirin did not depress the heart in any way.

Mr. [illegible] found that Aspirin does not upset the stomach. Many of these tests were made on patients suffering from stomach disorders. Aspirin did not upset the stomach in any way.

Mr. [illegible] found that Aspirin does not depress the heart. Many of these tests were made on patients suffering from heart disease. Aspirin did not depress the heart in any way.

WORLD WHEAT SITUATION

(Total World Annual Production of Wheat in Bushels)

Before the depression started the world wheat industry has produced from three important factors. Firstly, in 1928 an extraordinary yield per acre occurred in many countries. For various reasons, the surplus did not disappear, but instead, unfortunately remained. Secondly, the depression substantially decreased the consumption of wheat per person in the world. Thirdly, because even such all are low prices, the production of wheat was less of a losing proposition than the production of land, wood, flax, etc. — so farmers throughout the world tended to change their acreage formerly devoted to the latter products to that of wheat production.

As recovery from the depression occurs (and this now seems to be clearly happening) no doubt the reverse of the above policies will take place, which will, of course, tend to raise wheat prices in and as these factors come into a balanced level for production.

INTEREST SAVINGS DEPOSITS TO BE REDUCED TO 2 PER CENT.

Interest paid on savings deposits will be reduced to two per cent, on from November 1, 1934, by all chartered banks in Canada, the Dominion government post office savings banks, and the Ontario Government savings office, Finance Minister Rhodes announced at Ottawa recently. A similar reduction will be made effective by all other banks on December 1.

OPENING VERMILION SCHOOL OF AGRICULTURE

The announcement has already been made by the Hon. W. F. Grisdale that the Vermilion School of Agriculture will re-open on October 29th Already over 200 applications for admissions have been received and within the past week of excellent threshing weather, the number is growing so that it looks as though the school will have a record enrolment by the opening day It appears also that there is going to be a record attendance of girls, as over 60 applications have been received

Board and room has been reduced to $20 per day and there are no fees or costs of any kind. The girls at present have the required time in the dressmaking classes, but next year without cost. The down age limit is being raised to 18 years, while the present age limit is 16 years to 22 years. Entrance examinations will be waived for those who have passed the Normal entrance examinations. Another interesting feature this year is the large number of registrations from those who have their Nos. 11 and 11th grade. Some even have their 12th grade

The boys do half their work in stables and a considerable amount of their time is spent in the shop, blacksmithing, and grain and investing programme.

The girls take a practical homemakers' course, for what better information can a girl have to fit her for life, than a study of foods and diets, cooking, sewing and nursing together with other things that make this the popular course that it is

Applications are being received every day by Principal W. J. Elliott

VERMILION FAIR HAS SUCCESS FUL YEAR

With officers elected, committees completed for the new season, the Vermilion Fair, which will be held on July 10 and 11, 1935 With Provincial grants altogether eliminated and the Dominion grant seriously reduced it has been difficult to finance the Fair in previous years. However, it is expected that the Fair may continue to function without serious curtailment of prizes in the various classes. The directors are hopeful that the Fair will be held

Lessons Of The Depression

Perhaps the wish is father to the thought but it is quite evident that, in steadily increasing degree, people are espousing the view that the depression which has hung over the world like a fog for the past five years is lifting, slowly perhaps but nevertheless surely, and that gleams of sunlight are seeping through for the encouragement of mankind and the restoration of confidence.

In support of this view statistics are quoted of increased business, rising prices, more employment, increased revenues for the railways, rising national revenues. Betterments of the kind are noted, not in one but in many countries and from many quarters come reports that there is a growing tendency on the part of people with money to invest to again proceed to do so.

Whether this more optimistic viewpoint is justified we are not in a position to say, and it is just possible that the statistical betterment noted is the result of the injection of artificial stimulants into the arteries of business by governmental bodies, rather than the outcome of a natural and more substantial improvement in conditions. Whatever may be the underlying cause of this slowly returning confidence, it is undeniable that it exists and people believe that the tide waters which have been running so strongly in an adverse direction for so long have passed the peak and are now beginning to flow in an opposite and more favorable direction.

Coupled with this there is recognition in Western Canada that, while such betterments may be seen in other parts of the country and the world, there can be no marked improvement throughout the length and breadth of the Dominion until it is blessed with more favorable and normal climatic conditions, resulting in some profitable return to our agricultural population for the enormous labour they have expended. Unemployment has not been the curse of the vast majority of Western people. They have worked long and arduous hours, 365 days in the year, but Nature in an unkind mood for some years past has denied to them the reasonably profitable return from their labor, in fact, in thousands of cases no return at all. Loss has been added to loss, and the cumulative effect has been to throw tens of thousands of other people out of employment because there was no work to be had. Such climatic conditions will not permanently continue

Possibly one of the best indications that the depression is passing is that people are beginning to take note of the lessons which it has taught. Some of these are of a purely material and practical kind. For instance, and despite a certain school of thought which urges that man should plan his activities from year to year, and, as nearly as possible, balance production with consumption, there is a growing conviction that the wisdom displayed in Egypt in the days of the Pharaohs when under the guidance of Joseph they laid by and accumulated reserves in the years of plenty to carry them through the lean years. It is more and more coming to be accepted as a truism that in Western Canada we must do likewise.

But above and beyond the material lessons taught by the depression,—lessons, it is to be hoped, that have been well learned by many—there are moral, ethical, spiritual lessons, the importance and significance of which will, it is also to be hoped, leave a lasting impression.

Ritchie, the famous prize-fighter, is reported to have once said that he never knew how good he was until he got his first licking. Many of us have taken a pretty severe licking in different ways during the past five years. It sometimes does a man good to be thoroughly floored. It may call up reserves of energy that he never realized were his. And this seems to be, sought to be, to the credit side of the depression. Adversity brings out the strength of character of men and women, or the lack of it. Seemingly strong men have gone down and gone under; others have displayed an initiative and developed traits of character and strength which even they did not know they possessed.

Assuming that the fog of the depression is lifting, and that we are again early emerging into the sunlight of more prosperous times, now is a good time to take stock of what the depression has actually done to us and taught us as individuals and as a nation. If we correctly size ourselves up as individuals, and profit by our inventory of ourselves, the nation will be better, stronger, more enduring. This, then, is a time for realistic balance sheets,—balance sheets of character, of habits, of motives, as well as, and even more important to the final analysis than balance sheets of money, stocks, bonds and chattels.

"I have just taken a real inventory," said a man who has had his full share of bad business breaks. "I've thrown out a lot of stuff I used to carry as assets. For instance, I carried on my payroll a lot of useless luxuries that were called 'friends'. When I couldn't manage the upkeep any longer, I let them go. Then I found out that they had been standing in front of people that really were friends. I'd been spending time and money on people that didn't mean a thing to me, and neglecting those who did. Now I see a few special people oftener, and have a better time with them. I think, on the whole, I've come through the depression pretty well. The cash value of my estate has shrunk considerably, but that's balanced by a big increase in what can't be measured by any yardstick of dollars and cents. The result is my net worth is greater. There's a good side to going broke

How many people have been wasting time money and energy upon things that really do not count, and neglecting those that are worthwhile and make life what it ought to be and was intended by an all-wise Creator to be

Has the depression taught you who reads this any lessons? Are you a better man or woman because of the depression, or have you revealed weakness of character and slipped? Are you now showing determination to profit by the lessons learned. If so, with all its worries and difficulties and even sufferings the depression may be turned to good account. It's up to you.

Old Ship Scuttled

Otago Was Once Commanded By Conrad The Novelist

Sixty-three years ago a small sailing ship of 848 tons, the Otago, left Liverpool for Port Chalmers, New Zealand. She did the voyage in the almost record time of 85 days, and many were the yarns told of her, both in the town and at her destination.

Now she has been taken out to sea for the last time and scuttled. It just did not pay to break her up. But her past was a tale of romance. She was once the command of Joseph Conrad, novelist, and later he made references to her in his books—"The Mirror of the Sea," "Falk," and "The Shadow Line."

Built in 1869, she put up some fine performances. Once she sailed 308 miles in 24 hours. Her last days were spent as a coal hulk in Hobart, Tasmania, a battered but proud vessel.

THIS IS THE WAY TO HAPPINESS

There's nothing—absolutely nothing—to take the place of perfect health as the foundation of a happy life. And no better way for every one to get it than to turn to that famous tonic wine, Wincarnis.

Wincarnis is not a drug. It is simply the purest of fine wine with all the valuable properties of the 2½ lbs. of grapes which go to every bottle, combined with strengthening elements of beef and guaranteed vitamin malt extracts.

From your first glass of Wincarnis you will feel new vigour coursing through your veins. You will sleep more soundly, wake more refreshed. In a few days you will have forgotten the irritableness of your former bad self state. You will go through the most strenuous day at the top of your form.

Many thousand doctors have recommended Wincarnis for nervous disorder, anaemic debility, and all run-down conditions. Start taking it and experience Wincarnis today. Your struggle ends from this moment.—Sole Agents: Harold F. Ritchie & Co. Ltd., Toronto.

Travelled In Baggage Car

Argentina's Fat Man Could Not Get Into Coach

Argentina claims the world's fattest man. He is Pedro Cardozo, a butcher, weighing 638 pounds. He arrived at Buenos Aires from Rosario after travelling in a baggage car because he could not enter the coaches. He is 30 years old, 5 feet, 6 inches tall, with a waistline of 7 feet 10 inches, a forearm of 1 foot 10 inches, and a thigh of 2 feet 9 inches. When he was 19 he weighed only 138 pounds, but he had to quit working at 25 because he had reached his present weight and could not stand on his feet more than a few minutes at a time.

Glaciers Move Backwards

Unusual Happening In Switzerland Explained By Scientists

No fewer than 81 of 100 glaciers in Switzerland which have been under observation by the Society of Natural Sciences are reported to be moving backwards. Of the remainder, 15 are moving forward and four are standing still. The scientists say that the 81 glaciers are moving backwards because they are melting more quickly at their "ends" than they are being pushed forward.

Siren Warns About Tides

Quicksands In France Traps Par Feet Of Unwary

Mont Saint-Michel, most photographed French landmark, is to be provided with sirens against the peril of the sea.

Debate on the advisability of protecting strollers along the quicksands, incidentally, has led to the discovery that there is no such thing as being swallowed up by these octopus bogs.

Many an ancient Breton mariner, it was revealed, has been caught in quicksands and survived. The question is one of time. Sand is a sea that sucked down to above the waistline, because the mbedi is firm at that level, but many have been caught at a time when the tide was coming in and drowned.

The danger is that of drowning when the tide comes up from seemingly nowhere filling the vast reaches of sand with furious torrents and treacherous eddies.

Victims more often than not are visitors who start out for the historic island of Tombellaine, and fooled by their calculations of distance and time into being trapped by the tide.

Some, of course, are caught in quicksands and are unable to free themselves before the tide gets up to their chins. Seized with panic even if caught only up to their knees, they struggle frantically, and although it is not true that they sink into the sand, it is true that their methodless struggles prevent them from getting free

A siren on the hill, it is argued, would warn these travellers to turn back in time. It also is proposed to erect concrete "islands" at various points for the protection of promenaders caught by the tide.

Walking For a Wager

Saskatchewan Youth Has Already Covered Two Thousand Miles

With about 2,000 miles behind him and about four times that far to go before he can collect a wager he made with the mayor of Waldeck, Sask., Ernest Wall, of Waldeck, sauntered into Montreal, October 1.

Wall made a bet with his mayor that he could start with 10 cents in his pocket and walk 10,00 miles in one year. He set out from his home town July 6 and has walked ever since, travelling to Montreal across the prairies and the desolate north shore of Lake Superior. Farm people real he heads towards the maritime provinces.

To collect his winnings, the 21-year-old Saskatchewan youth must not travel on the same road twice. Nor must he snatch rides on freight trains. He must get the signature of the mayor of every city and town he visits and must collect one signature for every mile he walks. He is not permitted to ask for aid or remuneration for services rendered, but can accept anything given voluntarily.

Submarines Made Safer

All the new submarines built for the British navy have two safety devices, one consisting of eye-bolts to which divers may attach a hawser in case of need, and the other being a battery of buoys which can be released from within the vessel to permit communication with rescuers.

WHAT DOES YOUR HANDWRITING REVEAL?

By LAWRENCE HIBBERT
(Grapho-Analyst)
(All Rights Reserved)

(Editor's Note: These articles on Character from Handwriting have aroused enormous interest. Many readers are sending in specimens of their own handwriting for a personal analysis. If you want your handwriting analysed, see the announcement at the foot of this article).

A Grapho-Analyst's mailbag is very interesting. It is a reflection of people's hopes and fears, worries and problems—it is a very mirror of life itself. And for each question, the Grapho-Analyst can supply an answer.

Hand writing shows so plainly the character of the writer. Grapho-analysis is an X-ray that cuts through the verbiage, and gets right down to the very nature of the writer.

A girl writes in tormented fashion, pleading for advice on how to deal with her brother and father. They are making life miserable for herself and mother, and threaten to do bodily harm if the latter do not do what they are told in regard to some money that the men want. The writing of the father and brother show greed and selfishness, with a brutal will that overrides all others over into violence.

Another girl is having trouble with her boy friend. Is he to be trusted? There are many letters of this kind. And very often, we can give a reassuring answer. Sometimes, our advice is not to be understood and people are asking for.

Sometimes we are very anxious to know the characteristics of her young daughters. Are they honest, kind, or nosey. In this way, she can encourage them along the lines in which they are most progress, and in time they will be happy

Another mother is perplexed about her boy. He is the only child she has, but she doesn't understand him. Grapho-Analysis reveals his hidden traits, and suggests a line for the mother to work along.

A young man from the West says he is in life has been miserable. And, as he will, he cannot do anything right. His handwriting reveals the lazy-mindedness colour in his nature, and the need for great control. He has a hard row to hoe before he can regain normalcy.

The letters show how many people are square pegs in round holes. Real talents wasted because the person is in a vocation totally unsuited to him.

Opportunities lost, because people have not developed the essential qualities of will and determination.

Grapho-Analysis is very helpful. It reveals not only the major characteristics, but also those hidden tendencies that are gradually looming up, and will, ere long, affect one's mode of life. If they are strong qualities they can be developed. Often, they are potential weaknesses, and need curbing. Grapho-analysis shows the way.

What does your handwriting show? Get a skilled Grapho-Analyst tell you the secrets that your writing reveals. You will be surprised at the revelations. Find out the true character of your friends. Send specimens of the writing you want analysed, and enclose 10c coin for each. Enclose with 5c stamped addressed envelope, to: Lawrence Hibbert, care of Wilshire's Newspaper Union, 173 McDermot Ave., Winnipeg, Man. Letters are confidential and will be answered as soon as possible, but please allow at least two weeks for your reply.

Butter, cheese, bran and pollard, oats and oilcake, oats, wheat and rye flour, lard, bacon and hams, salted beef and pork, condensed milk, rennet and other unmanufactured, unstemmed leaf tobacco, potatoes, onnions and lubricating oil are some of the agricultural products exported by Canada to Barbados, the most easterly island of the British West Indies.

ALBERTANS SPEND $4,000,000 FOR NEW CARS THIS YEAR

More Cash Deals Are Made, Dealers Report

Purchases of new cars in Alberta this year represent an outlay of four million dollars, it is estimated, giving further proof of better business conditions.

This is a gain of $1,304,000 over the figures for 1933 when 2,706 new cars were sold to Alberta buyers.

Some Edmonton dealers report that sales are about double those of last year and orders still are being filled. One feature of the situation is that more cash deals are being made while it has also been found that the cash payments are larger than hitherto on trade-ins for new cars.

Up to the end of August, new car sales in this province numbered 2,791 which was only 46 short of the aggregate for 1931. Since August, at least 200 sales have been made which, on an average valuation of $1,000 would carry the sales total over $4,000,000.

The low point in sales was reached in 1933 when the total was 2,728 for the province, while it improved to 2,706 in 1933. In 1931 the total was 2,839.—Edmonton Journal.

Montreal, Que., Oct. 16.—There is a "silver conscience" in Montreal. For this the Sleeping and Dining Car department of the Canadian National Railway says a hearty "thank you." Six after dinner coffee spoons and two soup spoons were returned to it several days ago after an absence of undetermined duration. They arrived by mail in a package bearing a Montreal postmark and their receipt is duly acknowledged to the unknown who returned the silverware

Mild Winter Forecast In East

Montreal, Oct. 16 —Again the time has come round for weather forecasters to consult their favorite oracle and give us the low-down on what kind of winter we are going to have. Down in New Hampshire the woodchuck is once up. Last September it seems few of them were seen after the middle of the month and the winter was one of the coldest on record but Johnny Chuck this year has shown himself in great numbers from which it is inferred that we are going to have an open winter.

Liberal Economic Meet To Be Held At Vermilion

At Stettler on Saturday the fourth of the Alberta-wide series of Liberal economic conferences will occur with all-day sessions. A motorcade from Edmonton will carry a large delegation to Stettler for the meetings, W. R. Howson, M.L.A., Liberal leader; L. A. Giroux, M.L.A., and other prominent men heading the Edmonton delegation.

The economic conference idea had its inception in a provincial Liberal leaders declation that localized gatherings conducted upon the open forum plan would best develop a general canvey of provincial problems and needs, aiding in creation of a platform best meeting the needs of all Alberta's people. Conferences have already been held at Lethbridge, Medicine Hat and Calgary, one is set for Vermilion on October 29, another for Edmonton on November 7, and on December 1 at Calgary the local conference series will wind-up with a provincial-federal conference at which provincial needs will be crystallized for Ottawa action.

At the economic conference no political barrier is erected. Reunions of party or affiliation, all residents are given platform privileges to air grievances and make suggestions. Each of the preceding conferences has attracted problems which have been made the integral part of the Liberal platform.

KOKNEE & DISTRICT NOTES

Well, dear readers, no doubt you are all rather anxious to ascertain the cause of our absence. Well, the cause is easily found as business was so urgent. Threshing was on, and herding cattle and sawing wood ahead so annoyed that we could not settle down to write. Now all the men folk are relieved from threshing — and we will get rid of the cattle soon. This proved to be quite a proposition. We hope our neighboring scribes are quite well, though we did think that the Island Hill scribe had sailed for dear old Belfast when we missed his notes one week in the Standard, but he has made his appearance again.

Ironside and frost gave us very fit for crop to boast of here, and not what they expected. But it is still a great "next year" country.

It is nearly serious asking for donations of vegetables and potatoes from this district for the dried out areas, as very few are in a position to give anything, they have all dried up. With present low prices for cattle and wheat grading No. 5 or feed, few have any money to spare.

Next week's items will be a return of socials and dances, and here's hoping everybody will be able to patron the same.

The weather man has been on good behavior lately and has favored the late threshing. All the fields seem to be cleaned up for another season.

WILDMERE WINKS

The community joins the writer in sending deepest sympathy to Mr. C. English in his recent bereavement. Mrs. English will be greatly missed, as she was always such a jolly, cheerful person. It was indeed a short illness of her sudden death, but the grim reaper comes where least expected sometimes.

John Wilson, who was taken quite ill while helping load a truck with wheat last Thursday morning, was rushed into the doctor who ordered him into the hospital for a few days. John has returned home again and we wish him a speedy return to health.

Threshing has been completely finished in our part of the country. The Smith Bros. pulled their outfit home last Thursday. A. Carlson last Saturday, and Geo. Haines on Monday of this week. The weather was much better at the finish of the run than at the start.

Don't forget, folks, about the whist drive and dance in Triangle school on Friday, Oct. 19th. Everybody is welcome.

Laurence Graham and Bobby Martin attended the U.F.A. dance in Tolland last Friday. A fine crowd was on hand and a good time reported.

News is rather scarce in our part of the country this week. We noticed though, that Inspector Parker paid an official visit to our school, that Albert Howard is cultivating summerfallow, George Crathern hauling hay; Norman Smith starting back to school; Mr Gibson building a new granary, Eric Medill stacking green feed; and A Holte and Ed Schroeder digging spuds.

AID FARMERS TO SECURE MONEY TO CARRY ON

Ottawa.—Details of the amendments to the Canadian Farm Loan Act passed at the last session of parliament, in conjunction with the Farmers' Creditors Arrangement Act, have been published by Finance Minister J. M. Rhodes and distributed among those concerned. Under these amendments the board will be empowered to take second mortgages in satisfactory cases to enable the farmer to secure money to carry on his operations.

The explanatory statement says, in part:

While the Canadian Farm Loan Act has made provision for adequate rural mortgage loan facilities under normal conditions, under existing conditions the amount of the average mortgage loan available on the normal margin of security and on the basis of present-day values of farm lands has not proved sufficient to re-finance the overdue and pressing obligations of farmers incurred at higher price levels or incurred in the period of readjustment following the first severe drop in price levels and farm income.

The amendments to the Farm Loan Act have been consequently designed to make available to individual farmers larger mortgage loans on a consequently smaller than normal margin of security.

This has been done by empowering the board to make to farmers applying for loan not only the ordinary way of loan restricted to a maximum of 50 per cent. of the appraised value of his lands plus 20 per cent. of the value of the buildings thereon on the security of a first mortgage thereon, but also to make a short additional advance, if so required by the applicant, on the security of a second mortgage on the said real estate and on the security of a mortgage on his livestock and chattels up to a maximum of one-half of the amount of the first mortgage advance. But the aggregate of the amounts advanced should not exceed two-thirds of the appraised value of the farm lands and the buildings thereon accepted as security for such loans, nor in any event more than $7,500.

The additional advances, which may be for convenience termed "second mortgage loans," are repayable on terms not exceeding a period of six years and carry interest at a rate not more than one per cent. in excess of the current rate of interest charged on first mortgage loans.

Mining Town Growing

Jellicoe, Ontario, In Midst Of Real Estate Boom

Jellicoe, Ont.—A real estate boom has struck this [illegible] mining town as prospectors, geologists, miners and others rush to grab land and erect shelter against fast-approaching winter that soon will crack down on the scene of Canada's newest gold scramble.

All along the Canadian National Railways' right-of-way from the station to what was until recently Jellicoe's only pretence at a hotel, hammers and saws resound as the tang of [illegible] ith a mushroom. Mining companies are constructing living and working quarters in the bustling country base, trying to finish them before the impending freeze-up.

Lots have been rented by the railway along the right-of-way and beside the rusty sidings. Houses, shanties and new stores are being built. A new hotel-bunkhouse has been finished and all available sleeping space around the walls is rented, much of it permanently.

The problem of sleeping accommodation has been solved by the patient by arrival on one ading of a tourist sleeping car in which the railway company rents berths at nightly rates of $1.50 for a lower and $1 for an upper.

Society Woman Abducted

With Of Wealthy Kentucky Oil Man Is Kidnapped

Louisville, Ky. — Mrs. Berry V. Stoll, young society leader and wife of a wealthy oil man, was seized from her fashionable home by a kidnaper who left a note containing a demand for $50,000 ransom.

Beaten by the abductor, who gained entrance into the home on a pretext and left her maid bound and gagged, Mrs. Stoll was spirited away in an automobile.

Federal, city and county authorities immediately began a wide search.

Mr. Stoll discovered the kidnaping when he returned home from the office late in the afternoon. There he found the maid bound and gagged in a closet.

The maid said the abductor got into the house on the pretext of wanting to use the telephone. She was subdued as saying she "never saw a more fiendish-looking man."

As soon as he entered the house the man drew a pistol from his pocket and forced the maid to help him bind Mrs. Stoll's hands with tape. He was unusually rough, the maid said, and this was evidenced by the scars of blood found on the floor.

The abductor was described as being between 30 and 35 years old, about five feet eight inches tall, weighing about 180 pounds, having black hair parted in the centre.

Mr. Stoll later issued a statement addressed to the kidnaper and asked that it be published:

"Berry Stoll has just found the note regarding the ransom and arrangements are being made accordingly."

He declined to make contents of the ransom note public, but it was learned that in addition to demanding that money be delivered to him William A. Stoll, president of the Stoll Refining Company, was "next on the list." He is a brother of Berry Stoll, the vice-president, and is president of the Louisville Board of Trade. Stoll said the ransom note was found in an upstairs bedroom.

People Living Longer

So Insurance Companies May Raise Annuity Rates

Chicago. — People are learning to live so long that annuity insurance premiums are likely to be higher in the future.

Arthur B. Wood, president of the Sun Life Assurance Company of Canada, declared that in an address before the American Life convention in which he warned that "if annuity premium rates are based on the assumption that recent past experiences will be repeated, they will probably prove insufficient."

He suggested that "to avoid incurring an ultimate loss, additional provision should be made for anticipated increase in longevity."

Follower Of Gandhi

Madeline Slade, Former Society Girl, Reaches New York On Mission

New York.—Madeline Slade, former English society girl, who nine years ago became "Mirabai," chief woman lieutenant of M. K. Gandhi, has arrived to "give Americans a clear conception of Gandhi."

She travelled third class on the Majestic and said she regretted having [illegible] unable to use even more humble accommodations.

"Mirabai," daughter of a former admiral and oil magnate before she renounced social life to follow Gandhi, was dressed in homespun clothing, a maid's coat, and cheap Indian sandals.

Miss Slade said she came on the invitation of the Rev. John Haynes Holmes, chairman of the American League for India's Freedom, for a lecture series.

Interest Rates Reduced

Savings Account Interest To Be Cut To Two Per Cent.

Ottawa.—Interest paid on savings deposits will be reduced to two per cent. as from Nov. 1, 1934, by all chartered banks in Canada, the Dominion government post office savings banks and the Ontario government savings office, Finance Minister E. N. Rhodes announced.

A similar reduction will be made effective by all other banks on Dec. 1, and the minister intimated that a number of the important loan and trust companies in Ontario will reduce by one half of one per cent. the rate of interest which they at present pay on savings deposits, such reductions to be effective from Jan. 2.

On May 1, 1933, savings deposit interest rate was reduced by the chartered banks and similar institutions from three per cent. to two and one-half.

SOME CONTROL OF INDUSTRY MAY BE INSTITUTED

Ottawa. — Suffering more widespread than that caused by the Great War had been brought about by uncontrolled business, Tom Moore, president of the Trades and Labor Congress, stated in an address here.

"We are going to have industrial control in Canada whether we like it or not," he declared. "Industry has shown conclusively that it can not conduct itself.

"For the good of business itself, for the good of the people, in order that great shows which the Stevens investigation has shown to be so prevalent may be abolished, some control will have to be instituted. But we must go carefully or we might establish a dictatorship.

"Legislation should be brought in to effect only after collective agreements between those concerned —employer, employee and consumer. It must be uniform throughout the Dominion. After that, the people should boycott all those who will not live up to the regulations and drive out those who will not play the game fairly. We must see that business is for public benefit and not for private profit."

Bringing of the British North America Act up to date, unemployment insurance and industry-control were three ways in which Canada could combat "rebellious feeling," he believed, was far more extensive than generally realized.

In considering unemployment insurance, Mr. Moore suggested certain provisions which he thought necessary for social legislation for Canada, such as insurance be continuous as many as possible be insured, but not to include those who for physical or such other reasons were unemployable and who would be looked after by other means, benefits to be in cash; qualifications to be governed by the number of contributions made.

Although it had been said when unemployment insurance was first proposed that it would bankrupt industry the country, stated Mr. Moore, since 1930 Canada had spent $300 [illegible] relief and was now spending [illegible] Minto at the Royal Winter Show in Toronto.

Average Export Value Shows Sharp Increase

Ottawa.—The sharp rise in the export value of wheat in August, when it reached $12,868,000, was more than maintained in September, the Dominion bureau of statistics reported. The quantity exported in September was 17,546,859 bushels and the value $15,322,000, about $300,000 more than a year ago.

The average export price in September was 87.1 cents as against 73.9 cents last year. During the first months of the current fiscal year the export value was $68,937,000 compared with $60,279,000 last year, a gain of about $8,500,000, the bureau reports.

Refunding Loan

Believed That Original Amount Has Been Over Subscribed

Ottawa. With the 1934 refunding loan an unqualified success no definite figures of recent applications were issued but it was learned the only reason the books were being left open was to enable further conversion of 1919 Victory bonds. The government was assured the original objective of $250,000,000 would be more than reached but it was desirous of securing as many conversions as possible even if it were necessary to scale down some of the larger subscriptions to keep the total issue within the figure set.
